KAISER MOTOR CAR.

Now Used by Chorus Girls in London.

Ballet girls of London's biggest musical success are riding home these nights on cushions meant for the ex-imperial limbs of the ex-kaiser. The most sumptuous car in the world, seized as Hohenzollern property by the British Government at the outbreak of the war, is now owned by Gladys Dillon, revue producer.

Miss Dillon has owned the car for a year, but wouldn't have had it a week if she could have sold it. It came to her from a Norwegian, together with a yacht once raced by the Emperor Wilhelm. Both were bought by the Norwegian at public auction. After trying to pay their upkeep for three years he presented them to Miss Dillon.

The car is so magnificent that nobody will buy it. It seats ten people and can hold fifteen. It has combined dinner and card table in the rear, with seats for seven arranged around it. In the back is a cellarette and an installation whereby lunches can be cooked at short order. The carriage, including the driver's seat, which accommodates three, is in mahogany four inches thick, inlaid with silver in oriental design.

Sunken opaque lights supply the illumination. The floor is parquet oak. Silken curtains conceal the windows, which are protected by shutters [illegible] an inch thick. The engine of the car is 70 horsepower.

On armistice night Miss Dillon returned to appear in the car at the Criterion restaurant. Hooligans from the east end surrounded it and made such disturbances that a policeman was turned in a riot call, and an armed squad had to escort the car back to its garage. Since then the only use to which it has been put has been to convey members of the ballet in Miss Dillon's theatre to their homes when the show was closed, usually late. The entire ballet has been conveyed in three trips.

"The car is a white elephant," said Miss Dillon. "Englishmen won't buy it because it belonged to the kaiser and because they say it is too swanky; Frenchmen won't buy it because of the [illegible] per cent duty they would have to pay to get it into France. The only man who can afford to keep the car is an American millionaire, and I am now considering three offers from New York."

English automobile experts who have seen the car pronounce it the most luxurious in the world. It is priced at $15,000.

STEPS TAKEN TO STRENGTHEN WEAKER TEAMS IN INTEREST OF BETTER SPORT

At the executive meeting of the City Baseball League held in the Empress Hotel last night, steps were taken to strengthen the weaker teams and provide better ball for the fans. This action was precipitated by the statement from Mr. Mulhall, manager of the Canadian Woollens team, that his team was seriously considering withdrawing from the City League on account of lack of good material. He stated that at the commencement of the season they had been handicapped by the rules of their Athletic Club which prevented them from seeking the services of outside players and that now they were only allowed to take four from outside of the factory.

A Bomb-Shell.

This statement was pretty much of a bomb-shell to the executive, although it was admitted on all sides that much could be done to even the teams up. Mr. Mulhall stated that they were short of a battery and the representatives of the C.G.E. offered to provide Helson as a catcher. Louis Yeotes came across with the offer of his left-hander, McClintock, and upon the arrival of Mr. J. W. Worth, the Canadian Woollens representatives decided to withdraw their resignations.

The drawing for the opening games on Saturday next was also considered to be against the best interests of the game and it was therefore decided to re-arrange the schedule so as to play the C.G.E. against the Thistles and the Great War Veterans against the Canadian Woollens. It was the opinion of the executive that this arrangement would provide two closely matched games for the opening and something worth presenting to the fans as an opener.

Kay to Umpire.

The chairman of the meeting, Mr. Gordon Matthews, made the pleasing announcement that Mr. Kay, who umpired so satisfactorily last year, had again agreed to umpire for the season. Mr. Kay was a popular umpire with all the teams and this announcement relieves the situation immensely as far as the umpiring of games is concerned.

To Play 7 Innings.

It was also decided that the games should be seven innings. Some representatives wanted to make the first game seven and the last nine innings, but the majority were in favor of making them all only seven innings.

The question of fixing up the grounds was a matter which caused some discussion. It was pointed out by those who had already been practicing on the diamond that sand instead of clay had been placed at the bases and that at the present time they were nothing more than sand holes. The net behind the grand stand is also in need of repair and already practicing teams have lost balls on this account. C. McLean, representing the Peterborough team, and Frank Pierre, representing the City League, were appointed a committee to interview Dr. Wightman with reference to getting these important matters adjusted.

Opening Saturday.

Arrangements for the opening on Saturday have been completed. His Worship the Mayor and two councillors will be on hand. One will pitch the ball, another will catch it and the third will hit or least attempt to hit it. The parade will start from the Y.M.C.A. at 1.30 sharp. The Great War Veteran's band will be on hand and the C.G.E. have guaranteed to provide a conveyance of some kind for them. It was thought last night that on account of the fact that the big truck was broken the conveyance would be a couple of wagons hitched together and four horses. The band will be followed by automobiles carrying the players for both games.

National Rules.

It was also decided that the National rules should govern all games in the City League. There have been some changes in these rules this year, but it was thought last night that there was only one change that would have any affect on the City League. The change is that the pitcher shall not rub the ball on his clothes or in the sand before pitching it and that no other player shall rub the ball in the sand before throwing it to the pitcher. The penalty for doing so is suspension for 10 days and if the pitcher uses the ball after a player has rubbed it in the soil he is also liable for suspension.

Meet on Mondays.

Mr. Worth raised the point that the executive meetings clashed with the football meetings and it was moved by Mr. Mulhall and carried that the meetings should in future be held on Mondays and at 7 o'clock instead of 8.

Fred Craig presented a schedule for the season which he had been requested to draw up. It is a quadruple schedule providing that each team shall have four games with every other team in the league.

TOO MUCH PUBLICITY FOR ONE BALL TEAM

The stir at the City League meeting last night was the unfortunate result of too much publicity for one team. While the Thistles probably have a good line-up it is foolish to assume that they and the C.G.E. have collared all the material in the city as some would have us believe. It looks as if the publicity department of the Thistles was a little overworked and it nearly had opposite results to those intended. However, the difficulties were smoothed over and it is just as well that they arose before the opening of the league.

MAY REVIVE OLD MIDLAND LEAGUE

FOOTBALL EXECUTIVE HAS THIS QUESTION UNDER CONSIDERATION

It was indicated at the regular meeting of the city League Football executive last night that there is a possibility of the old Midland Football League being revived. A communication was received from the secretary of the Football League at Oshawa, stating that Oshawa was anxious that Peterborough should again become the headquarters of this league, as it was in days gone by. He stated that besides Oshawa, Bowmanville and other towns were desirous of reviving the league and believed that there were prospects of a great future for it.

The executive will take this matter up shortly and an announcement as to their decision will then be made.

The matter of picking teams for the international game to be played between Scotch and English teams at the exhibition grounds on May 24th in connection with the Field Day sports also came up for consideration, and it was decided that the players for this game should be picked at the next meeting of the executive. The requirement is that each player of the team shall be a native of one or other of the two countries. In choosing the teams for this game an effort will be made to make the team as strong as possible in order that the general public and visitors will have an opportunity of seeing the class of football which is being played at the present time in the city league.

The following referees were appointed:

Saturday, May 15— Canadian Woollens vs. M. G C., at Oval; A. McKinley.

Saturday, May 15— G. W. V. A vs. DeLaval at Exhibition Park; F. Roberts.

Thursday, May 20.— Caledonians vs. C. G E., Exhibition Park; Mr. Bates.

President Parkins was in the chair.

A GOOD GAME TONIGHT

A good game is promised at 6.30 tonight at the Exhibition Grounds when the C. G. E. meet the DeLaval. The line-ups will probably be as follows:

C. G. E.—J. Naples, goal; B. Mason and J. McDonald, backs; A. Parkins, H. Bestard and J. Young, half-backs; A. Manders, Wag Hotston, H. Turner and Ed. Bartley, forwards; reserves, H. Cowie, J. Bills and W. Ridley.

DeLaval—W. Jones, goal; W. McDougall and Fred Hartshorn, backs; W. Brown, G. Humprge and J. Cooper half-baks; G. Hartshorn, J. Long, J. Cullen, A. Nicholls and E. Abraham, forwards.

FOR BOUNTIFUL HARVEST

Bishop Pinkham Asks Anglican Clergy to Pray.

(By Canadian Press.)

Calgary, Alta., May 13.—Bishop Pinkham of the Anglican diocese of Calgary, earnestly asks the clergy of the diocese to use, in public worship, suitable prayers from the New Canadian Prayer book, for favorable weather during the season for the cultivation of the soil and for a bountiful harvest, and he invites all Anglicans to join him in praying for these blessings when they pray privately, or use family prayer.

BRITISH WARSHIPS FOR THE DOMINION

REGRETS LACK OF PUBLICITY OF PROPOSITION IN DETAIL

Toronto, May 13.—"It is a matter of deep regret that the Government did not present this great subject in a more comprehensive and thorough way to the House of Commons, and did not give the widest possible measure of publicity to the details of the report throughout the country as to the offer made by the British Government to the Canadian Government with respect to the gift of ships," so declared Commodore Aemilius Jarvis, president, at the annual meeting of the Ontario Division of the Navy League of Canada, at their annual meeting in the King Edward Hotel yesterday afternoon. Following his review of Admiral Jellicoe's report a resolution was submitted recommending Jellicoe's major scheme involving $25,000,000, but which, it was pointed out, would not committ the country to this cost, but to policy. Little or no expense would be required for years as the capital expenditure would be absorbed by Great Britain.

Jellicoe's Report.

"We have been advised on reliable authority that the Canadian Government have been informed that the British Government is ready to supply as a free gift such vessels as Canada may require, provided they are available, of course, for Imperial defence in time of war," said Mr. Jarvis. "Therefore, the capital expenditure called for in the schedule of Lord Jellicoe's report would for the first six years be eliminated, thus reducing the estimates by very substantial figures.

"It is a matter of interest to know that Canada is today the eighth maritime power, with 2,300 vessels, and a personnel of over 40,000 in our merchant service. It is common sense and necessity that as an insurance we must make provision for its adequate protection."

Ten Boys' Brigades.

The annual report showed ten Boys' Naval Brigades in Ontario, with 872 boys in training. A new plan is being inaugurated to train boys as officers to take command. To help dependants $60,000 was given to 33 institutions, 18 missions and 180 individuals; $29,000 was spent to take over and erect sailors' homes in Canadian ports. An endowment fund of $250,000 has been established.

Rev. Dr. Cody spoke on "Canada's Place Upon the Waters" at the noonday luncheon, emphasizing the need for expansion. He thought Canada had not taken her proper place in Imperial defence, and in mentioning Admiral Jellicoe's report was of the opinion that one scheme was ineffectual as it only defended Canada.

STRENGTHEN TEAM OF CANADIAN WOOLENS

WELCOME ADDITIONS TO THIS FOOTBALL ELEVEN ARRANGED FOR

Although at the present time safely ensconced at the foot of the league the Canadian Woollens football team has no intention of remaining in that position for the remainder of the season, and it is understood from reliable sources that steps are being taken which will greatly strengthen the team and give them a fighting chance which they apparently have not had up to the present.

It was announced this morning in this connection that Sam Calladine had decided definitely to throw in his lot with the Woollens. Sam was goal-keeper for the old 93rd battalion team, and recently returned from overseas. There is no doubt that he will be a welcome addition to the team. Several other teams have been known to be angling for him but Sam favors the Woollens.

Negotiations are also under way with the DeLaval team where by Hillman, the splendid back of that team be transferred to the Woollens. The Woollens were anxious to have this deal go through in time for the Saturday game, but the DeLaval team require his services for tonight's game as their team has been badly shaken up. The league ruling requires the transfer to take effect forty-eight hours before the game is played and it will therefore be impossible for Hillman to play for the DeLaval tonight and the Canadian Woollens on Saturday. It is likely however, that he will appear on the Woollens line-up for all games after Saturday.

Silos and Sunflowers Multiply Farm Profits

Cutting the Sunflowers.

Silos and sunflowers promise to revolutionize farming methods in Western Canada. That silos on the farm practically double the stock carrying capacity of the land is a fact well proved by the experience of thousands of farmers in all parts of the American continent; while practical experiments in the growing of sunflowers made on farms and experimental stations in various parts of Western Canada show that twice as large a yield per acre can be obtained with sunflowers as with corn or any other ensilage. So very satisfactory were the results obtained last season in widely separated parts of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, both in growing sunflowers and using them for ensilage, that it is safe to say that a considerable area will be planted to this crop in 1920.

Perhaps the best crop of sunflowers in Western Canada was that harvested on the Demonstration Farm of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Strathmore, Alberta. From [illegible] eight acres of land an average yield of 34.6 tons to the acre was obtained. The land on which it was grown [illegible] irrigated. Generally speaking, twenty-five to thirty tons of sunflowers to the acre can safely be looked [illegible] on irrigated land in Southern Alberta.

Sunflowers were also grown [illegible] great success on land in districts where irrigation is not necessary. At Olds, a yield of thirty tons to the acre was obtained by one farmer. [illegible] Castor fourteen tons to the acre was gathered and at Daysland Thomas Noble harvested fifteen tons to the acre. All these places are in Central Alberta and the yields were obtained in a season that was unusually dry. Given a season with an average rainfall the yields would have been enormous. Mr. Noble finds sunflowers a good soiling crop, and feeds his cattle with them in July and August, besides filling his silos.

Yields similar to those obtained in Central Alberta were harvested in the various parts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba where sunflowers were grown and it seems to have been sufficiently proved that they will grow and give enormous yields almost anywhere in Canada. Feeding tests show sunflowers in just as favorable light as the harvested yields. Professor G. H. Hutton, Superintendent of Agriculture and Animal Industry of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has shown that the feeding value of sunflowers ensilage is superior to that of corn or of peas and oats mixed during the past winter. Forty Holstein cows on the company's farm at Strathmore, Alberta, were successfully rationed on corn, peas and oats, and sunflower silage for periods of two weeks, each cow being given thirty pounds of silage daily. Only the best seven days of each period were counted in the tests. The results show that during the period of sunflower feeding the cows gave more milk, the milk contained a slightly higher percentage of butter fat, and the animals gained more weight than during the periods with the other food.

Tests that are being conducted at the Manitoba Agricultural College, while not quite completed, show similar results to those obtained at Strathmore. At the College six cows are being used in the test, which is being made over several periods of three weeks each, with different rations. During the three weeks they were given sunflowers, these six cows gave 40.7 pounds more milk than during the previous three weeks when they were fed corn silage. They also showed a slight increase in weight.

Professor G. H. Cutler, head of the Department of Field Husbandry of the University of Alberta has devoted much time to the study of the sunflower as a silage crop for the Canadian prairies. "The mammoth Russian is the variety that gives the most satisfaction," says Professor Cutler. "This is a single stalk variety having huge heads from twelve to fifteen inches in diameter. Under conditions even in the dryest parts of the country this crop can be expected to yield from twenty to thirty tons of very good forage per acre. The usual tonnage of corn is easily exceeded."

It is contended that the sunflower is destined to become an important crop in the Canadian West. With a yield of double, and a feeding value of at least equal to that of any other fodder crop, it will enable double the number of live stock to be supported on the same land, and with the use of silos this number can be further multiplied. With this crop generally grown, the dairy industry will receive further impetus. And since it is claimed that equally satisfactory results are obtainable with sunflowers in the feeding of beef cattle, sheep and hogs, the growing of this crop will enable mixed farming to be carried on more successfully, thus ensuring still greater prosperity, not only among the farming community, but to the country generally.

SPIRITS ATTEND LODGE

Medium Says She Saw Astral Lights Flit Round Sir Oliver's Head.

Montreal, Que., May 12.—Madame Handa, a medium, saw Sir Oliver Lodge after his lecture, accompanied by the Rev. Edward Bushell and the Rev. J. A. Tremblay, who are both greatly interested in spiritualism. Sir Oliver advised her to keep away from table rapping audiences and startling seances, but to keep on with her work with a few earnest and serious friends. During Sir Oliver Lodge's lecture Madame Handa claims she saw luminous astral bodies which scintillated about in the air, but more especially around the lecturer's head.

FRIENDS AMAZED AT BIG CHANGE

EATS ANYTHING, SLEEPS SOUNDLY AND IS FULL OF ENERGY AND AMBITION.

"When a man has been in a weak and run down condition for seven years and is suddenly restored to health, so that he is full of energy and eager for work, he naturally wants to tell everybody about it," said Arthur Galarneau, who resides at 105 Chateauguay St., Quebec, when the Tanlac representative called to see how he was getting on with the medicine, a few days ago.

"I was in a terribly rundown condition," he continued. "My stomach was out of order and whatever I ate would lie on my chest like a lump of lead. After my meals I always felt drowsy, and yet at night could not sleep well, for my rest would be disturbed by dreadful nightmares when I would jump up and start to yell. I got so weak at last that I used to dread going to work and it always seemed as if the day would never end. I had no energy and my work was like a martyrdom. I can assure you I lost all hope and my case was about desperate.

"If I had all the money I spent on medicines trying to get relief during the last seven years I would be well-to-do today. And when I first read the statements in the paper about what Tanlac was doing I was very skeptical about it helping me, for my case was exceptionally bad. Still I decided to give it a trial, and I've been congratulating myself ever since that I did. Every dose I took seemed to bring me new relief. My appetite got keen, I began to enjoy my food and found out I could digest it perfectly. I got stronger every day, and now my friends are all amazed at the great change in my condition. I am full of energy and my daily work is just a cinch. I have now got some ambition in life and feel that there is some hope in the future. I shall always be grateful for what Tanlac has done for me and I am glad of this opportunity of recommending it."

AN ENGLISHMAN NOT A FOREIGNER

INJUDICIOUS USE OF TERM RESULTED IN "FIREWORKS"

Winnipeg, May 12.—Reference to an Englishman as a "foreigner" set off the fireworks that resulted in Lindsay Crawford of Toronto breaking off his speech to the Winnipeg Kiwanis Club at the Fort Garry Hotel. Mr. Crawford, who is president of the "Protestant Friends of Irish Freedom," and editor of The Statesman, Toronto, was dealing with the Irish question.

Discussing the establishment of the shipbuilding industry in Belfast, Mr Crawford said that it had been founded by an English engineer, Harland, and a German financier Wolff. Referring to the subject a few minutes later, the speaker alluded to the establishment of the shipbuilding industry by "foreigners."

W. McLandress arose and said it was not right to refer to an Englishman as a foreigner before such an audience.

Mr. Crawford said that it was a slip, and wished to apologize. However, he said the industry had been established by foreign capital, and, therefore, in a technical sense, he was correct. He then proceeded with his speech.

"Irish trade was controlled by England," said the speaker, "in the same way as she had controlled the trade of all her colonies. We have an instance of this in Canada, where England made us build our railways east and west instead of north and south."

Fred. Law, of the Great War Veterans, got on his feet and protested against a statement that England had forced Canada to build her railways east and west.

"England had nothing to do with it," came another voice.

"Here, hear," came from a number of tables.

Two of three members were on their feet at once, and Mr. Crawford sat down.

The discussion lasted five minutes. Some, while not agreeing with the speaker, however, were willing to let him proceed and hear what he had to say. Others held that he should not make statements which, they said, they knew to be incorrect.

Mr. Crawford rose and asked if he were a guest of the club. He was informed that such was the case.

"In that case I wish to withdraw," said Mr. Crawford.

"We will close as usual by singing 'God Save the King,'" said the chairman.

The audience, one of the largest of the season, arose and sang the National Anthem and "Rule, Britannia."

AFTER THE GYPSIES

Palmists Who Have Capable Husbands Get No Licenses.

(By Canadian Press.)

Vancouver, B.C., May 12.—No licenses for gypsy palmists who have husky husbands that are considered capable of supporting them, is the dictum just handed out by the Vancouver City Council.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION

Belleville, May 13.—The city council may be asked to submit to the electorate at the January elections the question of whether there should be a change in the form of city government to that by commission. The latter form has been under consideration here for some time, and the Chamber of Commerce has invited to the city manager of Westmount, Que., to come to Belleville to address a meeting on the question.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Brian Boniface in writing to an American Exchange, suggests the following cause for social unrest:

This may be a mental shock to those of your readers who do not dote on psychology: Prevalent social unrest is not caused by nor is it related to economic conditions. If it were, how would the pitiful unrest in the large and growing army of Presidential nomination-seekers be accounted for? What do they care about economics? As little as most of them know about that impertinent and distressing subject.

Great expectations! There you have the answer to the question, the cause of the state of mind.

Those who have read, as I have the hundreds of proffered explanations—hundreds? thousands!—must have been impressed by the recurrence among them of historical data relating to social conditions following every war concerning which there is history engraved on bricks or inked on paper. They prove that following every war there has been unrest, which has been as conspicuous in times before as since people have had to substitute oleomargarine for butter, face eviction notices instead of invitations to banquets, accept less than 1 per cent. of kick in their cups.

Now I'll tell you: War excites the expective faculties, arouses ambition merging into hope, merging into a conviction which becomes an expectation that the end toward which hope has been aroused will be attained. You see this in the commonplace citizen, big only in lungs seeking an unimpeded path to the White House, a child with chin uplifted, gallant eyes flashing as he wields his wooden sword, who hopes to be a great soldier, hero of a thrilling war adventure—and presently expected to be.

A young woman compelled to remain at home and wash dishes for a large family and help mother mend clothes feels it when she sees a picture of another girl not so pretty as she bravely dressed in a war service uniform receiving a decoration from a prince, and wishes she were so blissfully situated knows that she is as deserving, determines to try to get into a uniform and on the front page of a picture supplement, and presently—for so the human mind operates—expects to be. A dull eyed man hears of millions made in war contracts overnight, dreams, hopes, expects!

But what is the man driving at? asks the economist without a pinch of imagination to help him recognize a truth.

The war ends: the world is filled with people who have thrilled with great expectations of gold, honor, publicity, the White House, acclaim: a drab life ended, a glorious day to dawn of riches, ease, distinction power. By such the harsh facts of life are resented not because of the price of sugar or rents but because—the ignis fatuus having flitted to other fens—life becomes unillusory.

Our economics may be all wrong or partly wrong or all right. I know nothing of them except this negation they are not the cause of after war unrest. The true cause relates not at all to the price of pork: it is because great expectations have grown dim, faded, failed.

DRURY IGNORSE U. F. O. OFFICIALS

GOVERNMENT STANDS BY BILL PROVIDING FOR SUPERANNUATION

Toronto, May 12.— The Government will stand by its superannuation bill, despite the letter-writing activities of J. J. Morrison, secretary of the U. F. O. Premier Drury and his colleagues went into caucus with the supporters of the coalition yesterday anxious to find out to what extent the members were being influenced by Mr. Morrison's appeal to local clubs to use their influence to prevent the passage of the bill. They came out of caucus with the belief that although a certain number of Government supporters will oppose the measure in its further progress, they have sufficient backing to keep them out of difficulties.

The position of the Premier is admittedly a difficult one, but Mr Morrison's letter has left him no alternative but to stand by the bill. To allow it to drop now would be a confession of weakness that Mr. Drury could not afford to make. In any event the bill seems assured of passage, since there will certainly be enough supporters for the measure from the other groups to make up for any desertions from the U. F. O. ranks.

The "antis" were quite active yesterday, several of the leading spirits busying themselves getting support for a protest against the bill.

AN EFFORT TO GET 57TH

two bands joined up—perhaps a union of picked members—into a citizens' band. Some citizens, he was given to understand, would willingly contribute $5 a year to that end. But, he declared, we must have a military band, adequate support of which should be forthcoming.

Agreement Ready.

At this juncture the city clerk read an agreement drawn up in readiness for Council's endorsation of a Veterans-Citizens' Band. The essential terms of this agreement are as follows:

The G.W.V.A. to contribute $1,000 and supply band accommodation.

The city to contribute $1,000, the band to be at the Mayor's call for national holidays, demonstrations and celebrations.

Future city grants to go toward maintenance of this band, the bandmaster to be selected by a majority of active members of present band.

The 93rd's instruments to be used by this Veterans-Citizens' Band, and to revert to the city should the organization cease to exist.

The band to be controlled by commission.

The Veterans to have this band's services at their annual church parade and on other special occasions agreed on.

Ald. Crowe and Turner moved that this agreement be received.

Ald. Turner wanted the question settled.

Get Together.

Ald. Whitehouse: "It's funny if we can't get these two bands together in an agreement."

Ald. Turner here pointed out that since the Parks Committee had made their appropriations they had been called on for unforseen expenses for park purposes. Therefore, he said, they had been forced to anticipate the use of a portion of the $1,000 decided on for band grants. And so, the committee really has not a $1,000 to invest in the agreement read.

Another Move.

Ald. Crowe and Turner moved that $600 be granted the band of the 57th Peterborough Rangers. They to give 13 concerts in the parks during June, July and August—one Friday night of two hours' duration. The band to play 30 strong and Bandmaster Gliddon to assume all responsibility.

This was lost.

Ald. Hamilton considered the G.W.V.A. had acted in a public-spirited manner, which he was sure Council would like to take advantage of. On the other hand, he said, it was necessary to have a military band, and it should be encouraged to some extent. And the only solution seemed to rest in the two getting together amicably.

Ald. Crowe: "It can't be done this year." He here added on the side, "there are veterans in both bands."

Ald. Phelan was strong for the "get together" proposition, and he asserted there is not room for two bands.

Ald. Gordon and Whitehouse's resolution that the present deputation from the G.W.V.A. and one from the 57th Peterborough Rangers meet this Committee of the Whole Council with a view to getting together an agreement on a one good citizens' band, was here voted on and carried.

MANITOBA WILL NEED FARM HELP

REPORTED THAT LARGE AMOUNT OF LAND MAY BE UNWORKED

Winnipeg, May 13.—Shortage of labor threatens to greatly hamper work on the farms of Manitoba. Unless more help is secured within the next few weeks it is feared that 60 per cent. of the wheat lands will have to go unworked this year. There are nearly three times as many jobs as applicants. The average price being paid for farm helpers is $75 per month with board. Twenty-three agricultural districts in the Province have reported seeding as general.

Wheat is up and well advanced in the Regina district, although much seeding has yet to be done. Weather conditions continue favorable, and the wheat is sprouting with marvelous rapidity and is quickly covering the surface weeds.

Seeding has become general in the Edmonton district, while in central Alberta the grain is beginning to show above the groudn. Seed sown near Bawlf last Friday was said to have been two inches above the ground on Monday.

Quebec, May 12.—Only a few farmers in the Province have done any seeding, while others have just begun their spring plowing. The season is exceedingly backward, and the farmers are awaiting warm weather before beginning operations.

St. John, May 12.—Farming operations have scarcely been begun owing to cold weather. Frequent snow flurries are still being experienced in outlying districts.

IMPRESSED WITH WATERWAY PLAN

ST. LAWRENCE CHANNEL DISCUSSED IN UNIONIST CAUCUS

Ottawa, May 13. — As Western Unionist members have been receiving many requests from Western Canada to oppose the St. Lawrence power and deep waterway project a hurried caucus was called yesterday to hear Mr. H. F. Keefer, member for Port Arthur, an enthusiast for the project, explain the idea Members who came to scoff remained to praise the plan, but it was felt that all through the West there was a misconception as to the scope and purpose of the Deep Waterways Commission, which will visit various towns and cities in Western Canada to take evidence on the subject. It was decided to inform the Western Boards of Trade and other bodies that the commission is going west solely to get information and to ask them to arouse as much public interest as possible in the question, so that all sides of the question may be considered at the meetings. One decision was arrived at in the caucus and that was that before such a project was ventured on the Western people would have to get definite assurance that the Hudson Bay project would be proceeded with concurrently and finished first.

NINE VICTIMS OF BLUEBEARD WATSON

RECOLLECTS THAT A WINNIPEG WOMAN WAS MURDERED BY HIM

Los Angeles, Calif., May 11. — "Bluebeard" Harvey, who was sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment for the murder of one of the eight wives he had admitted slaying, has "recollected" still another wife whom he killed, it was revealed today by Deputy Sheriff Robert L. Cons. This brings the total to nine wives he has slain. The officer who has been constantly with the arch-criminal since his arrest a month ago, stated that today for the first time "bluebeard," who was sentenced under the name James P. Watson, revealed his true identity as Joseph Gillam

"Bluebeard's ninth wife victim, according to his confession was Mrs. M. A. Watt. He married her in Winnipeg, and murdered her and sank her body in Lake Coeur d'Alene, in whose waters lies another of his victims.

"The woman's name just suddenly flashed through my mind. I forgot it before," was Bluebeard's" explanation of the delay in mentioning the ninth murder.

"Bluebeard's" confession shows to date nine murders, five missing women and twenty-one marriages, and the investigators, like the public, are wondering whether the amazing list to which he has confessed embraces all, or whether he will have further "recollections."

He assumed the alias James P. Watson when he went to Canada, where he continued his marrying habit.

SHOT AT POLICE GETS FIFTEEN YRS.

WELL MERITTED PUNISHMENT IMPOSED BY JUSTICE LOGIE YESTERDAY

Toronto, May 13.—Joseph Kelly, convicted of shooting at P. C. Dawson when the latter arrested him while attempting to open the safe of the Laidlaw Company in February, was yesterday sentenced to fifteen years in Kingston Penitentiary by Mr. Justice Logie. The first three years of the sentence will run concurrently with the three-year term Kelly is now serving for burglary.

Kelly was charged with shooting with intent to kill, and it took the jury more than three hours to arrive at a verdict of guilty. When they finally handed in their verdict His Lordship expressed satisfaction with it.

MILLION DOLLARS FOR PROPAGANDA

A DEFENSE OF GREAT INDUSTRIAL MERGERS IN CANADA AND ENGLAND

Montreal, May 12.—A million dollar fund for the propaganda of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was foreshadowed tonight at the annual dinner of the Montreal branch. Among the guests were Col. W. Grant Morden, Sir James McKechnie, head of the Vickers firm, of England, and many of the business leaders of the Province.

T. P. Howard, as president of the Dominion Manufacturers' Association, said that they had approached the Government on the necessity for a Scientific Tariff Board for Canada, and stated that it would be considered with the support of 1,600 labor unions of Canada, as well as the manufacturers and employers.

In a defense of great industrial mergers both here and in England, Col. W. Grant Morden said that he and his colleagues were at present giving great attention to a plan that would be announced in due course, under which "we will give our employees not only an opportunity to participate in the success of industry, but also representation on our directorate."

Touching on the shipbuilding industry, Col. Morden said the British Empire Steel Corporation was going to build ships. With the steel plants in Sydney, and their wonderful facilities in having the raw material at hand, it was obvious that with ships, there would be a complete circle in industry which would make Canada quite independent.

PRISON THE PUNISHMENT

Second Reading of Bill Providing Penalty for Drunken Drivers

Toronto, May 13.— ..The sanction of imprisonment, I think, will retrain many who would not otherwise be impressed by the certainty of a $100 or a $200 fine," declared Hon. Mr. Raney in introducing for second reading his bill imposing upon pesons drunk in charge of motor cars a penalty of seven days' imprisonment for the first offense, from one to three months on the second offense, and from three months to a year in jail on the third.

Dr. Stevenson, London, suggested cancellation of license for the first offense, but Mr. Dewart thought that perhaps a little drastic. The Liberal Leader, however, expressed himself as in entire accord with the move to jail instead of fine drunken motor car drivers

The bill was given second reading.

Electricity From Sunlight.

An interesting suggestion about the "power of to-morrow" is made by a writer in the British Nineteenth Century. He looks forward cheerfully to the day when all our electric power stations will be useless except for museum purposes. Admitting that there are difficulties in the way, he thinks that they may eventually be overcome, and that we shall derive our electricity direct from sunlight. When that takes place, industrial supremacy will be transformed to tropical countries. Meanwhile, Sir Charles Parsons, the famous turbine inventor, has renewed his suggestion of finding unlimited sources of power from the heat of the earth by digging a hole eighty odd miles deep. British scientific imagination is clearly in a very active condition.

Wellington's Coach.

When Lord Kenyon offers his great East End estate for sale one of its best remembered features will not be included in the lot. Lord Kenyon bought the estate from Sir John Tyrell's family, and with it the famous post chaise in which the Duke of Wellington (who gave Sir John the coach) rode through the Peninsular War and at Waterloo.

The carriage is a curiosity in itself, as visitors to Kensington Museum, where it was "permanently" loaned by Lord Kenyon, may see for themselves. The coach comes in half and makes two separate carriages if necessary.—London Globe.

A Rare Bird.

The white-headed stork, one of the most interesting and valuable possessions of the London Zoological society, is dead. It was a native of the Upper or White Nile, and so far as is known the only living specimen of this remarkable bird in Europe. As long ago as 1860 the then British vice consul at Khartoum—Mr. Petherick, himself an indefatigable naturalist—brought two specimens to London, and these were the first ever seen alive in Britain. After an interval of many years the present sirdar—Sir Reginald Wingate—presented to the society the specimen which has just died, and which was a familiar object in the vicinity of his palace at Khartoum. Visitors to the garden in Regent's park will recall the rather melancholy-looking bird in the aviary adjoining the southern entrance. For long periods it remained almost motionless save for the twinkle of an extra mobile eye.

Safety in Debate.

"Papa," said Willie Hohenzollern, "aren't you worried about what they may do with us?"

"No, Willie. There is so much difference of opinion as to what would be a suitable retribution that I think the argument may easily be prolonged indefinitely."

How to Treat a Wife.

Justice McCardie, in the London Divorce Court, gave a disquisition on how not to treat a wife.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Robey, daughter of a clergyman, petitioned for a divorce from her husband, Dr. W. C. T. Robey. She accused him of cruelty and misconduct. Dr Robey denied the allegations and sought restitution of conjugal rights.

The question arose whether the husband had been guilty of a course of conduct, which, although not amounting to cruelty, was yet just cause for the wife to refuse to live with her husband.

Mrs. Robey, however, said he was habitually cruel and neglected her. She was corroborated by her two sisters, whose evidence the court accepted.

On one occasion, it was said Dr. Robey never spoke to his wife for about a fortnight, and when she spoke to him he merely stared at her.

"I think," the court summed up, in granting the decree to Mrs. Robey, "that the doctor traded on the sweetness of his wife's temper, her patience, and her willingness to help him.

"He forgot the courtesies of married life, and wholly ignored the duties of sympathy and kindness. He treated her as a mere servant, rather than as a wife.

"He applied the methods of the barracks to the conduct of his domestic life.

"He roughly demanded what he should have courteously requested.

"He thought his wife was a proper subject for gross abuse. He sapped her affection—even destroyed it—and created repugnance where there has once been love.

Then the husband's jealousy and unkindness, consequent upon that, deepened his gross discourtesy and cruelty of conduct."

"This was what in 1917 apparently led Mrs. Robey to seek relief in the courtesy and attention of other men."

England Building Locomotives.

There has been a marked revival in locomotive building in Great Britain since the conclusion of the war. One large engineering firm which recently entered this field is engaged on an order for many thousand locomotives for a foreign government, says an exchange. In the production of these locomotives all the highest refinements in economical mass production have been secured. The various shops are arranged so that the materials and parts flow uninterruptedly through to the finished locomotive, and each step in the process of manufacture and assembly is subjected to close continuous observation in order to prevent the slackening of one part in the process of evolution delaying the subsequent steps. So well planned were the whole arrangements that his firm has the credit of turning out the first locomotive built and completed after the armistice.

A Delayed Funeral.

George L King, known by every man, woman and child in Brown county and by all visitors who go to Nashville by way of Helmsburg, has been the stage coach driver between Nashville and Helmsburg and the hearse driver for Nashville's only undertaking establishment for ten years.

Recently there was to be a burial at the Story cemetery, twelve miles south of Nashville, and King was called on to drive the hearse. He hitched two horses to the hearse and started from Nashville at 5 a. m. After he had driven within two miles of the cemetery, he got out to walk up a steep hill and noticed that he had forgotten to put the coffin in the hearse. He turned the horses' heads toward Nashville and made the trip back in short time. He loaded the coffin and changed horses and resumed the trip. The burial was delayed four hours.—Indianapolis News.

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCES OF MADAM PANTAZZI IN RUSSIAN REVOLUTION

Thrilling Address by Former Hamilton Lady Before the Women's Canadian Club.

Madame Pantazzi, wife of a Roumanian army officer, who has had some remarkable and terrible experience during the war, lectured last night under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club of Peterborough in the Great War Veterans hall.

The hall was well filled and the audience listened spell-bound to hear stories and experiences, the like of which has not been heard in fiction.

Madame Pantazzi is a distinguished looking woman, tall with a fine figure, fair and with an abundance of white hair, although only 35 years of age. Her terrible experiences in the country of her adoption were the cause of her hair turning prematurely white. Previous to her marriage, which took place shortly before the war, she was a Miss Edith Greening, of Hamilton.

When the war broke out, Madame Pantazzi said, her home was in Bucharest, the capital of Roumania. At that time her husband was employed by the Government to look after the transport and munitions of the Roumanian army.

Upon the defeat of the Roumanian forces the German army advanced and took the capital. She described graphically the scenes which immediately preceded this event telling of the heart-rending crowds of women and children carrying practically no belongings who were unable to find accommodation on the south-bound trains. Streams of refugees left the city by every road and women and children were crushed and trampled in the vain endeavor to flee from the oncoming hordes of Germans.

Madame Pantazzi received but a few hours' warning to pack her belongings and flee the city and she was forced to leave the house to which she had come as a bride and which contained all her bridal presents and works of art. From there she and her husband went to Jassy, which was the new Roumanian capital and at this point her husband was sent on an important mission to Russia. While on this mission he noticed that there were vast supplies lying at the Russian railway depot and at the Port of Odessa, which were consigned to the Roumanian army, but which were not being delivered. Upon his returned to Jassy he went to the king and informed him of this fact.

He was appointed by the king to go to Odessa and take charge of moving the supplies along to their proper destination. At this time the Russian army was still fighting with the Allies, but two weeks after he and his family had moved to the Russian seaport the revolution broke out and the Czar was imprisoned. The north of Roumania was composed of Slavs just as in Russia and Bolshevism spread quickly to this portion of the country, thereby placing the Roumanians in Odessa between two fires. Odessa quickly fell under the influence of the Reds and her husband, together with many other Roumanian officials who were in the city on diplomatic work, were thrown into prison.

Reign of Terror.

Then started a reign of terror during the course of which houses were looted and destroyed and people were shot for the slightest signs of resistance. They were stripped and searched for valuables and in some cases even their clothing and boots were stolen. The house in which Madame Pantazzi was residing was among those ransacked in this way.

A Bolt From the Blue.

Suddenly in all this turmoil a bolt from the blue came in the form of an aeroplane bearing as passenger Col. Boyle, of Woodstock, Ont. He arrived immediately after a great fight had been staged right in the city between the Reds and the Russian Imperialists. It seems that he had heard about the plight of the Roumanians in Odessa and had requested the King to permit him to go to the city and bargain for their release. His arrival at this point was most fortunate for at that time their was a Bolshevist warship in the port ready to assist in the deporting into the interior of Russia of these prisoners, and it is safe to say that if this plan had ever been carried out they would never have been seen alive again.

Offers Exchange.

Boyle went to the Reds and offered that if they would release the Roumanians in the city he would in turn guarantee that 400 Bolshevists who were at present in the hands of the Roumanian army would be released. At first he thought that he had succeeded and some of the prisoners had already been released when the Bolshevist commander disappeared and his aide stated that he had received no instructions with regard to the matter. The prisoners were placed on the warship and all hope seemed gone. Boyle managed to get Madame Pantazzi down the gang plank and away into the crowd in spite of the rows of soldiers bristling with bayonets.

Heroic Action.

After protesting in vain against this breach of faith Boyle became so exasperated that he jumped on to the ship shouting to those on the shore that he would promise the release of the men on board. Madame Pantazzi does not know to this day how it was accomplished, but nevertheless every prisoner on board was freed through the instrumentality of Col. Boyle, of whom she speaks in the most glowing terms. He was over 50, she said, and had never been in an aeroplane in his life before and yet he had insisted on making the trip across two battle fields with both sides firing on him in order that the prisoners might be saved.

Proud to Be a Canadian.

At the moment when Colonel Boyle stood on the gang plank of the ship defying the whole Bolshevist army Madame Pantazzi said that she was proud to be a Canadian. When she first went to Roumania people would ask her if she came from America and when she replied that she did, they would say: "Oh, then, you are an American." When she corrected them and said that she was a Canadian, they said: "Why the Canadians are a lot of Indians." Soon after the war the difference was noted and even total strangers who before the war had never heard of Canada, knew all about what Canada was doing in the war. Canada's fame had spread quickly throughout the whole Balkans.

Her Purpose.

Madame Pantazzi is visiting friends in Toronto and during her stay in this country she is endeavoring to raise funds for a day nursery for the fatherless children of Roumania. Although up to the present time she has not spoken at many meetings she has already raised considerably more than $1,000.

At the meeting last night the silver collection amounted to $25 and added to this was the sum of $25 voted by the Peterborough Women's Canadian Club. The Women's Canadian Club also paid for the rental of the hall instead of using their regular meeting room in the Library in order that as many of the public as desired would be able to hear Madame Pantazzi.

A vote of thanks was moved by H. R. H. Kenner and seconded by Mr. J. W. Fraser. The chair was occupied by Mrs. Kendrey, who is president of the club. Miss Florence Scott pleased the audience with several delightful solos.

EXPECTED TO LIVE ON ONLY $5 A WEEK

MAGISTRATE TAKES MISERABLE WAGES INTO CONSIDERATION ON THEFT CHARGE

In the Police Court this morning a 14-year-old local girl was charged with stealing a sweater from her employer, a local store-keper. It developed during the course of the evidence that the girl was receiving $5 a week for her services, and she was supposed to be able to make a living on this wage. Magistrate Dumble asked her adopted mother, who was present, if she was addicted to stealing and she replied that she had not been until lately. In view of the circumstances the magistrate on the recommendation of Chief Thompson let her go on suspended sentence on the condition that she reports regularly to the police matron, Mrs. Buntin. The crown attorney declined to take any fees in the case.

Stole Overcoat.

A local youth appeared to answer a charge of stealing the sum of $6 from Wm. Leggett and also an overcoat from Cecil Follis. He pleaded guilty. As it was his first offence, the case was adjourned until May 15, and he was advised to get busy and work in the meantime, and bring with him next trip enough money to make restitution.

Obstructed Traffic.

James Paul, a farmer residing on R. R. No. 1, Frazerville, was charged with obstructing traffic on Saturday last by leaving his car standing too long outside the furniture store of Robert Begley on Water street. This is the first charge of this kind this season, but if the practice continues it is the intention of the police to prosecute all such offenders. The fine this time was the minimum of $2 without costs, but next time it will be heavier.

Three Million Dollars

It says: Thomas A. Edison combined his genius with three million dollars and produced the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison — "the phonograph with a soul."

Always remember this picture-message.
Remember the man at the top—the man whose genius is responsible for it—Edison the wizard, Edison the idealist.
Remember the three million dollars spent, the seven years he experimented—the untiring research which spared neither men, materials nor money.
Then you will always understand why the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison is the ultimate development of the phonograph—why its Re-Creation of an artist's art and that artist's living art are without difference.

RIGID INQUIRY INTO OTTAWA FIRE

BURNING BUILDING HAD NO FIRE ESCAPE IT IS REPORTED

CAUSE OF FIRE UNKNOWN

THOUGHT BLAZE MUST HAVE STARTED FROM SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION

Ottawa, May 14.—Trapped in their room by the flames which gutted the third floor of Dr. F. C. Hagar's maternity hospital, at Somerset and Elgin streets, between half-past two and three o'clock yesterday. Mrs Bert Morris, of 121 Le Breton street, and Mrs. Phillas Mitchell, ~~of 22 St.~~ Joseph street, were overcome by the smoke and burned to death.

Ten minutes after the alarm of fire was first telephone by Nurse M. Hammill, Fire Chief Graham, accompanied by his driver, Fireman F. Schonher, following in the wake of two streams, rushed the blazing stairway, and crawling on their hands and knees through the smoke and flames found the bodies crumpled in two scorched heaps under the windows.

Try to Smash Window.

The unfortunate women had, in their fight for life, struggled to the window and Mrs. Morris had, from the fact that when found she still grasped a chair in one hand, evidently made one last heroic effort to escape by smashing the glass and leaping to the pavement below.

The bodies were lying, one face downward, between the beds and the window and were lying partially across each other.

In spite of the thick smoke and flaming walls, Chief Graham and his men rushed in with tarpaulins, on which the bodies were placed and reverently borne to the street. Those dead or rescued are:

The Dead.

Mrs. Bert Morris, 121 LeBreton street. (Baby saved).

Mrs. Phillas Mitchell, 22 St. Joseph street. (Baby saved).

Patients Saved.

Women in the hospital who are said to have been rescued are:

Mrs. Oliver Master, 115 Powell avenue.

Mrs. W. J. Ford Pratt, 63 Blackburn avenue, and baby.

Mrs. B. J. Cunliffe, 31 Simcoe street, and baby.

Mrs. H. C. Johnson, 24 Bellwood avenue, and child.

Col. A. Ferguson, Haileybury.

Mrs. J. J. White, King George road. Overbrook.

Mrs. S. S. Bucke, 465 Besserer street.

Although awakened by the nurses escape was denied the two victims of the terrible tragedy, because when fully aroused to their danger exist by the door was shut off owing to the fact that the flames, which originated in a store room at the head of the stairs, had burst out, and firing the highly inflammable thin wood material with which the walls were lined, had turned the whole third floor into a raging inferino of fire.

Both Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Mitchell gave birth to babies recently, and both children were saved.

Inquest Opened.

Coroner Craig opened the inquest into the death of the two victims in Woodburn's undertaking parlors. After the identity of both women had been established a jury was empanelled and an adjournment of the probe was made until next Thursday evening at the Police Station.

Although the bodies had been badly burned, the features of the women were quite recognizable. Mr. Phillas Mitchell identified the body of his wife and Miss MacDonald, head nurse of Dr. Hagar's Hospital, recognized the second body as that of the woman who had registered as Mrs. Bert Morris. No relatives of this victim have yet come forth to identify her. No person had visited her during the period she had spent in the hospital, the nurses state.

Names of all the inmates of the hospital were taken by Coroner Craig, and if their condition permits they will be called on to give evidence at the inquest.

A full investigation will be made into the cause of the fire, and Deputy Provincial Fire Marshal George F. Lewis, of Toronto who is now conducting a fire investigation here, will remain in the city.

The Cause Unknown.

Dr. Hagar was unable to account for the origin of the fire and believes

REBEL FORCES WIN FIRST PHASE IN FIGHT AGAINST LOYAL TROOPS

Desperate Battle in Mexico Continues—President Carranza's Men Attempt to Break Through Ring of Steel—British French, American Warships Present in Vera Cruz.

(By Canadian Press.)

Mexican rebel forces have apparently won the first phase of their battle against troops still loyal to President Carranza, which have been fighting in desperate battle, north of San Marcos, state of Puebla, for the past four days.

Break in Lines

Rebel Reinforcements

Struggle is still continuing and new rebel reinforcements are reported to have reached the scene, coming up from the south.

An International Incident

Incident may be foreshadowed by the fact that W. A. Body British Cansul for Vera Cruz, is in the camp of President Carranza. Advices give no details as to the reason for his presence there, but it seems probable he accompanied the President in his flight from Mexico City.

British authorities in Vera Cruz havearranged for a Mexican Naval Lieutenant to go by special train to the battle field and make an attempt to rescue the English man.

Allied Warships There

British and French warships have made their appearance in the harbor of Vera Cruz and four United States fighting vessels are at anchor there.

May Surrender

Negotiations for the surrender of Matamora, across the frontier from Brownsville, Texas, are under way and it is expected the Carranza forces there will surrender without fighting today.

SIMS' FALLACIOUS AND BASELESS CHARGES REFUTED SAYS DANIELS

Never a Time When Tournage Was Not Available to Carry Troops and Supplies.

By Canadian Press

Washington, D. C., May 14.—Rear Admiral Sims' "fallacious and baseless" charges that the Navy Department delays prolonged, the war four months unnecessarily was "practically only charge of unfavorable results from many sins of omission and commission," this officer had ascribed to his department.

Charge Fully Refuted

Secretary Daniels today told the State Naval Investigating Committee that the charge was fully refuted by the Admiral's own testimony. There never was a time, witness said, when tonnage was not available to carry troops and supplies to France as fast as they could be landed and transported to the front. Allocation of ships to the United States by the Allies, always was a dominant fact, Mr. Daniels declared.

POLYGAMY DYING OUT IN PERSIA

ADVANCED LIVING COSTS THE REASON— JEALOUSY ANOTHER FACTOR

(By Canadian Press.)

Teheran, May 14— Polygomy is dying out in Persia, another result of greatly advanced living costs, together with jealousy, which is becoming more marked a characteristic of Persian wives with the permeation of Western ideas and standards in the East.

With this change has come another thecustom of having family names. A year ago a Persian Government made it compulsory for people to adopt a surname. Before that only peasants had any common name in the family, the upper classes possessing only one. A man, for instance, might be called Ghaffar simply and his son Hassan with nothing to show their relationship.

SET HOMES OF WORKINGMEN ON PROPER PROGRESSIVE BASIS

Church and Labor Must Ultimately Join Forces to Advance the Welfare of Humanity, Declares Peterborough's M. L.A. in Paper Read at World Brotherhood Meeting.

Toronto, May 14.—Owing to attendance on a Government measure before the Ontario House yesterday, Mr. T. Tooms, M.L.A. for West Peterborough, was unable to be present at World Brotherhood Federation meeting in Toronto. However, he sent his views on World Brotherhood, which Secretary Howel read as follows:

"I would like to express my thoughts with regard to the Christian Men's Brotherhood Federation of Canada and Labor. I believe the two great organizations should be closely related.

"The Labor movement is essentially a moral and spiritual movement; at the present time looking for spiritual guidance. It is not a matter of the sordid dollars and cents as soome unscrupulous manufacture and newspapers would have people believe. The working man at this time is thinking for himself and his thoughts originate from his home surroundings. His wife and family are his first thought. If these are starving or are short in any way he resents this for he has worked all he can, produced all he can, and at the present time finds he is not able to meet the necessary expenses

"Set the home of the workingman on a proper progressive basis and you will have him right. The Labor movement does not discrimiuate in creed or color, but unites in one common bond of brotherhood to preach the gospel of emancipation of the workers, preaching the sentiment of love and brotherhood, and it is upon these grounds that the church and Labor must ultimately join forces.

"Let me suggest that if the workingmen will not go to church, take the church to the worker. Do you not think that if you first democratise the church, you will very soon christianize democracy.

"We have a Labor Day in this great Dominion of ours, why not have a Labor Sunday.

"Other fraternal societies, such as Oddfellows, Forresters, etc., etc., have a church parade Sundays why not Labor. Let the churches take the initiative and invite the differentlocal unions of their particular district to church. I am optimistic enough to believe it would meet with results.

"Pardon me, if I say that I think that Christianity and economics are so interwoven that unless the two are dealt with fearlessly from the pulpit, that progress in the great social world will be very seriously hampered.

"I sincerely wish your great organization God's blessing."

USE MOSQUITOS IN FUTURE WAR

PROFESSOR MAXWELL LEFROY, SCIENTIST SUGGESTS POSSIBLE USE OF PEST

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 14.— Mobilization of the mosquito, the house-fly, the louse and various other disease-carrying pests for the dissemination of deadly germs in enemy territory is a possibility of "the next war" pictured by Professor Maxwell Lefroy scientist.

"I foresee the mosquito from Brazil starting yellow fever in new lands, the house-fly, duly infested with cholera, dysentery or enteric and the typhus-laden louse doing their deadly work much more effectively than spies poisoning wells," said Professor Lefroy in a recent address.

"This would be part of the work of a War Office of entomologists—the working out of strategic plans for the distribution of these pests by airplane. It seems that the world is intent upon furnishing an airplane service for these pests, many of which are now held somewhat in check by natural enemies in their native climes This will give them just the means of transit they have required. It will be a peace-time danger as well as one that could be used very offensively in war. The danger from these winged battalions of death, is more serious than one dare estimate."

TOURISTS ABROAD FACE MANY TRIALS

PASSPORT TROUBLES, ALSO OVER CROWDED TRAINS AND BREAD CARDS

DELAYS ARE NUMEROUS

WAITS IN BULL PENS FOR CUSTOMS OFFICERS FULL OF HORROR

The Hague, May 14.—The thousands of tourists who are expected to visit Europe this summer will be disappointed if they look forward to all the comforts of the days before the war. This verdict has been expressed by many much harassed tourists, who, in overcrowded trains between stops at overcrowded hotels, have run the gauntlet of passport bureaus, frontier controls and police registration offices and institutions which still prevail in many countries only in a slightly less degree than in wartime.

Pasports and passport visas are necessary everywhere. Even to make the five hour trip from the Hague, Holland, to Brussels, Belgium, requires days of preparation, and the days generally lengthen into weeks if one expresses the most extraordinary whim to make a round trip of several round trips.

An American, for instance, having obtained in the United States a Dutch visa which permits him to land Holland for a brief stay, desires to go to Brussels— just five hours away. On arrival in Holland he has had to register with the police, getting an identity card permitting him to have a bread card, &c. (for bread is still rationed in many countries.)

Desiring to go to Belgium, he must first go to his own legation or consulate to have his passport amended so as to be valid in Belgium. This done, after a solemn oath that it is necesary to go to Belgium consulate or legation, finds a long waiting line of persons with a similar desire, finally is attended to, and speeds of identity card stamped in order that he may leave the frontier.

But he must surrender his bread card first—at still another bureau, which is probably closed for the day. Armed with a receipt from the bread card bureau he returns to the police bureau, gets his stamped identity card and probably finds the last train to Belgium for the day has gone.

Even when he gets aboard the train which may be so overcrowded that even with a first class ticket he may have to ride in a second or third class compartment, his troubles are far from ended. There are waits and passport, and customs examinations at both the Dutch and Belgian frontiers -one examination to get out of Holland and another to get into Belgium; waits in rooms like bull pens in which, if the train happens to be crowded the scramble for a subway at a rush hour is play in comparison.

This condition, typical of travel between Holland and Belgium, is as nothing to the difficulties of getting from Holland into Germany.

Rapid progress is being made, particularly in Belgium, to restore railway traffic to normal, but the shortage of equipment, due to war losses, or shortage of coal, due both to strikes and war, has reduced the number of trains operated to a figure far below that of before the war and all generally are overcrowded. As a rule no reservations of seats, except on very long trips, are possible.

INADEQUATE WAGES TEMPTED ME!

IN THE POLICE COURT yesterday a young girl faced the charge of stealing a sweater from her employer. That employer, it appears, paid the girl the munificent sum of $5 a week, and she was expected to live on that wage. We do not know what the employer expected to result from the unfortunate girl's arrest, but it is a real pleasue to learn that the court frowned on the wages paid and pitied their recipient. He let her go on suspended sentence instead of imposing an imprisonment penalty which might have driven the girl to despair and subsequent ruin.

Five dollars a week will not pay a girl's board, to say nothing of buying boots at $10, hats and other clothing. Such wages invite dishonesty and tempts recourse to means of livelihood which degrades and shames.

In this year of our Lord nineteen-twenty we hear much of the brotherhood of man, and it is up to society to see that "sisterhood" is not lost sight of. We hope there are not many "sisters" of this "civilized" race in the $5 a week category or not far removed therefrom If so, God help them! But we do know that this young girl referred to is not the only one our police magistrate has given a chance under similar circumstances. Some criminals are naturally vicious, but too many are driven to crime and vice by force of circumstances, and in nine cases out of ten, perhaps, the non-living capacity of wages received by the feminine sex is responsible for a fall from virtue and honesty. There is still plenty of room for missionary work at home as well as abroad There is yet need that both society and governments safeguar' young girls from those temptations fostered by wages inadequate in themselves to keep body and soul together.

RESPECTS THE SWORD ONLY.

IT IS REPORTED that the Armenians have turned to a Bolshevik government. And when it is considered what they have suffered from the massacring Turks practically unprotected by fellow Christian races, can it be wondered at that they resort to a government quite the reverse of those which in the name of Christianity should have given protection in the past but failed to do so?

For a decade or more the turban-topped and many wived Turk has played fast and loose with humane principles, putting Christians to the sword at his own sweet will, while plenipotentiaries of Christian nations vied with each other to gain advantages from him for their own governments. Had it not been for international rivalry in a race to gain trade and political preference in Turkey, there seems no reason why Turkish atrocities should not have been obliterated long ago.

But now that we have a League of Nations, or at least a League of Christian Allies, let us hope that the Turk will be brought up with a round turn to a sense of his responsibilities to those powers, surely able, if they will, to enforce on him respect for Christians. John Bull has at last displayed force at Constantinople, and it is only force that the Mahometan Turk, like his allies the Germans, have any respect for. Mahomet was a prophet, with the Koran under one arm, so to speak and the sword in the other hand, who taught his followers that all infidels must be subdued by the sword The Turk, at any rate, of all Mahometans, still gives room for the suspicion that he adheres to Mahomet's teachings literally, even to the sword's length. And unless the Allies are prepared to meet him with his own weapon, Armenian massacres, strife between creeds in the near-East and Asia Minor will continue, and Turkish defiance of the Christian world be stimulated

FOR THE SAKE OF LANGUAGE.

EIGHT THOUSAND Mennonites have decided to take up their abode in the United States because the Saskatchewan and Manitoba Governments will not allow any other language than English to be taught in the Public schools. These people are thrifty, law-abiding and peaceable, have gathered together much wealth, and it seems really too bad that on a question of language some ten million dollars in cash, together with productive manual power, should be lost to Canada. While it is true that settlers of some foreign extractions are most undesirable, yet it seems that these Mennonites had been tried and found wanting in nothing but a desire that their children should have opportunity for education in their parent tongue. However, these two western provinces have lost or are losing thousands of producers because of a policy which certainly seems short-sighted at a time when despatches from Manitoba read that much land will be idle this year because of lack of man-power.

The British are recognized as the greatest colonizing race the world has ever seen, and their success lies in that broad policy which not only allows freedom in religion and in retention of inherent race characteristics, but offers protection thereof. But Saskatchewan and Manitoba, apparently, have altogether an adverse colonization idea to that of the nation from which they in the majority sprang; and for a pr... [illegible] concerning language, which surely could have been arranged to meet this case, have lost a class of settlers to which the United States are willing to make concessions in the interest of production.

"It certainly seems absurd that at a time when Canada requires every possible emigrant who can aid in the work of production, no less than eight thousand excellent settlers of a most productive type should be virtually driven out of the country on a question of language. The story is that they feel compelled to go elsewhere because of the refusal of the authorities to allow any other language than English to be taught in the Public schools, and have decided to migrate to the United States, where they have been given the assurance that they will not be liable for the performance of military service. It is certainly too bad that western fanaticism on the language question should be permitted to lose us eight thousand of our population to the United States, together with their wealth, which is estimated at ten millions of dollars. If the United States could afford to make special arrangements with the Mennonites, surely to goodness Canada could have done as much to retain them here. The West has cost Canada in the past and is still costing her enormous sums of money for railways, etc., and a large immigration of the right class of people is almost its only salvation. When there is so much danger of foreigners with tendencies towards Bolshevism seeking an asylum in the West, it is surely the part of wisdom and patriotism to make an effort to retain in the country such excellent citizens as the Mennonites are known to be without harassing them with any absurd conditions as to language."

These Mennonites, who compose one of the largest international bodies opposed to war and military service, claim that they were harassed and upset in the Western Provinces during the war. They first came to Canada in 1786. In Russia, in Holland, in France they were granted exemption from military service, and it is assumed that they were given to understand that in Canada their religious views would be respected. According to American authority, the Mennonites settled in the United States in 1683 on lands granted them by William Penn in Pennsylvania. This pioneer company founded the Mennonite settlements in that State which have greatly increased in numbers and prosperity. The Mennonites, who were driven from Russia by the abrogation of the laws granting them special privileges, arrived in the United States in large numbers in the latter part of the nineteenth century. Some of these settled in the Dakotas and Minnesota, but the majority took up land in Reno, Kingman and other Southern Kansas counties. These Kansas settlements are representative of modern Mennonite communities. They are made up of industrious and peace loving persons who have developed the raw prairie land into some of the best farms of the State. They take little interest in public affairs, and refuse to use modern inventions, although they have accepted improved farming machinery on the same principle on which they accepted the telephone. When this "device of the devil" was prohibited in "a Mennonite house" they installed it in their barns.

The Mennonites in Saskatchewan and Manitoba plan to move to Alabama, and have been negotiating for a large tract of land in that State, where they will be allowed to settle their own educational affairs. They are of the world's best farmers, and Canada's loss will be America's gain.

MUSIC EXISTS FOR AMATEURS.

CONSIDERED from one point of view, music exists for the amateurs, for the men and women who love it, and find in it inspiration and comfort in daily life, or solace in affliction. From the practical point of view, to despise him is to commit the folly of quarreling with one's bread and butter. By the lover of music is meant, of course, not the person who prefers a royalty ballad to the B Minor Mass, but the person of culture with a refined taste. With regard to the other class, it would be better to try to improve his taste, than to cast him forth into the outer darkness without more ado.

From the higher point of view the contempt of the amateur is a deplorable exhibition of intellectual arrogance. Let some of the straiter sects of musicians "ask themselves whether the opinion of the amateur" is, save on purely technical things, always necessarily worthless.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

CANADA'S POPULATION.

(Wingham Times.)

While officials of the Bureau of Census and Statistics are rather chary of making estimates of Canada's population at the present time, they are of the opinion that Canada's population now is about 8,750,000. They admit, however, that this is just a calculation, and that next year's census may show that Canadians number many more. A recent return tabled in the House of Commons estimated the population at March 31 this year at 9,000,000.

A SURPRISE FOR THE VETERANS.

(Saskatoon Phoenix.)

Cleaning up after a war involves some extraordinary labors. It is said that the British Government has already had figured out for it the exact number of bullets fired and the exact weight of the shells fired to smash up the Hindenburg and every other German trench. Now it is having prepared a statement showing every yard of ground occupied by the British armies, and it appears that these figures are needed because it was agreed to pay rent for every yard of trench dug in France and Flanders. The boys who occupied those trenches will no doubt be amazed to learn that for the accommodation they received — often making it — rent had to be paid. They will also probably agree that the rent should be paid to them, as compensation for staying in the trenches.

WORKING AND LIVING.

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat.)

Plainly the Allies must assume some responsibility for the "internal order and economic well-being" of Germany if the Treaty is to be enforced with any semblance of justice. To disarm Germany and to refuse to aid in her preservation is to destroy her and to make compliance with the Treaty impossible, as well as to make her resulting anarchy a menace to all Europe. Apart from any considerations of humanity, which ought not to be eliminated, the material interests of the Allied Nations, as well as of all Europe, and even the whole world, demand, as Nitti says, that Germany be given "the possibility of working and living."

A LOVER IS EMBARRASSED.

(Edmund Vance Cooke.)

A lover is embarrassed, so they say.
His phrases fall in awkward disarray,
His breath is backward and his speech is lame,
His tongue is ice-bound, though his heart is flame.
And yet, from the first time I touched your hand
I almost think I made you understand
How adequate you were (and still you are),
And how I held you as my compass star.

Now, after years together, I am dumb.
Or, if I summon words, they limply come,
And when I send them stumbling to the test
My tribute seems no more than some half jest,
And you, as if you only heard the half,
Receive it with a little wife-like laugh,
Or else I tender it in plain, blunt prose,
As one might say, "Here, take it! It's a rose."

When the first murmurings of love-speech came,
I could make eloquent your very name,
When I so little knew you, I could tell
Your worth to me. Now, what I know so well
I mumble at, I hesitate, and then
The cold words will not breathe to life again,
And I succumb, in middle-aged dismay,
A lover is embarrassed, so they say.

PETER WRIGHT SAYS HE IS FRIEND OF S.A.

LABOUR MAYOR GIVES REASONS FOR SUPPORTING JUBILEE SELF-DENIAL EFFORT

The Labour Mayor of Newport (Mon.) Councillor Peter Wright, has been a warm friend and supporter of the Salvation Army for many years, and when he presided over Mrs. Booths Meeting in the Temperance Hall at Newport recently he gave some convincing reasons why he would ever remain a friend of the "Poor Man's Army."

"My first meeting with the Salvation Army," said His Worship, "was in 1888 in Colombo. I saw there a frail woman Officer from Southampton telling the story of Jesus to a crowd of some 3,000 or 4,000 natives, and stones were being thrown at her. This was too much for me, so I sent a few of the throwers sprawling. (Applause.) In the morning I found myself in hospital; they had nearly killed me. (Laughter.) I have since seen the Salvation Army at work in Melbourne, (Australia), and in many other parts of the world.

Has Seen the Work.

Only as recently as last year I saw them in New York, Vancouver, Montreal, Toronto, Stockholm, Copenhagen, and many other places, and wherever I have gone I have heard from leading men interested in social effort, that the Salvation Army is all the time carrying out a great and noble work— uplifting and ministering to the needs of mankind." (Cheers.)

Army is Needed Today.

After referring to a meeting which he and Mr. Harry Lauder arranged in a large building in New York on behalf of the Army's funds, and at which 20,000 dollars were raised, His Worship continued, 'There was never a period in the history of the Army when it was more needed than it is today."

His Worship read a list of donors who has responded to his appeal, from the Council Chamber, in aid of the Self-Denial effort, and after expressing his regret that the amount was not larger, said, "I believe before the effort is over you will come up to expectations and beat any town in the kingdom! The money will be well spent; it is not wasted on high salaries. Newport ought to make its gift at least £5,000!"

Responding to the vote of thanks at the close of Mrs. Booth's address, the Mayor referred to one night in the West of London when, having concluded an engagement, he was too late to find any lodgings or to get home.

"Someone suggested that I should go to an Army Shelter," he added, "and I went. I was cordially received at the door, paid my tanner and entered. The first question asked by the Salvationist was "Are you clean?" (Roars of laughter.) I replied that I had had a wash that morning, but my questioner wasn't taking any chances, so I had to have my clothes fumigated! (More laughter.) I was then given a big mug of cocoa and a great hunch of bread, and finally was shown up to my "bed room"!

A Personal Experience

"My attendant wanted to know about my spiritual condition, and asked me a number of pointed questions. Nor was he satisfied with any evasive replies. Until three o'clock in the morning he tried to help me. the body only, but they make anxious inquiries about your soul's welfare.

"What did I get for my tanner?" he asked, and added, "I got a wash my clothes fumigated, a big mug of cocoa, a lump of bread, a good bed, and plenty of spiritual advice. (Laughter and cheers.) And you can't beat that for cheapness anywhere. (Cheers.) Therefore I want you all to plump for the Salvation Army, especially during this Jubilee Self-Denial effort!" (Hearty applause.)

Work on the Welland Ship Canal was resumed on a small scale yesterday, dredging on section No. 5 being recommenced.

Memorial services were held in Westminster Abbey yesterday for the late Crown Princess Gustave Adolph of Sweden.

CLEANLINESS IS HEALTH

By the use of Gillett's Lye, house cleaning is made a pleasure instead of a drudgery. It softens the water and cleans thoroughly whether the dirt is visible or invisible. Destroys all bacteria and infectious germs, removes obstructions from drain pipes, closets, sinks, etc. Refrigerators are made delightfully fresh and clean by using one teaspoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in two gallons of water.

HOW D. B. HANNA WON SUCCESS

Biographical Sketch of Chairman National Railways

Mr. Hanna was born on December 20th, 1858, at Thornliebank, near Glasgow, Scotland, and entered railway service with the Glasgow Barrhead and Kilmarnock Railway 1874. In 1878 Mr. Hanna transferred to the Caledonian Railway and was cashier for that road in Stobcross Terminal, Glasgow, from its opening to the date he left to board ship for Canada in 1882. At this time the Grand Trunk Railway made it a practice to bring out to this country young men of railway experience and Mr. Hanna was one of those who took advantage of this opportunity. On arrival in Canada therefore Mr. Hanna entered the service of the G. T. R., being employed in the Auditing Department in Montreal. Two years later, he made his third change going to the similar department of the New York West Shore and Buffalo Railway, with headquarters at New York City, remaining there two years, 1884-1886. The fourth move was from New York to Portage la Prairie, where in 1883 he became chief accountant of the Manitoba and Northwestern Railway operating out of that Manitoban centre. In 1892 he became treasurer and, in the year following, land commissioner as well.

Three years later, Mackenzie and Mann commenced the construction, Gladstone to Dauphin, of the first hundred mile stretch of the Canadian Northern Railway system. It was not so known at that time, but bore the appellation of the Lake Manitoba Railway and Canal Company. The two railway builders were seeking a manager to operate the road, and the choice devolved upon D. B. Hanna. He entered the service of the Canadian Northern a few days before Christmas of 1896 as superintendent. By practically living on the line, he stirred the territory into productivity and by making every nickel do all that even a Scotsman could expect a nickel to do, the road was made to pay its charges the first year and furnish a tidy surplus. And when the members of the Manitoba Legislature, which had guaranteed the bonds of the enterprise, journeyed up to Dauphin in 1897 they expressed themselves as positively amazed at the evidence of prosperity in the territory the lines served. This success encouraged further expansion, which was most marked during the five years that followed, the lines of the C.N. spreading far afield from the original 100-miles stretching from Gladstone to Dauphin.

When the general offices of the Canadian Northern were established in Toronto in 1902, Mr. Hanna came east to take up enlarged responsibilities as third vice-president, with supervision of all departments of the road. He held the reins of the great operating, financial and traffic departments and continued to give, by dint of long hours, the same kind of close scrutiny to the problems of the road as in its early days, only the perspective was for 10,000 miles, with termini at Atlantic and Pacific tide water, instead of the 100 miles "section" between Gladstone and Dauphin in Central Manitoba.

Mr. Hanna became, in 1903, president of the Canadian Northern Quebec Railway, and in 1907 president of the Quebec and Lake St. John Railway. He became president of the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway Company, and also of the Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific Company—a system subsidiary which gives access from the main line at Fort Frances, Ont., to Duluth. When in 1918 it became desirable that the stock holdings of the owners of the Canadian Northern be bought on behalf of the Canadian people by the Government at Ottawa, and the 10,000 miles of line it involved were embraced in a national system, it was D. B. Hanna who was called as president to build up the organization needed to handle a people's railway system 14,000 miles in extent.

Mr. Hanna has won through to success because he possesses the inherent ability to rise to the needs of trying situations, and because he has the driving force to carry him through most arduous work. His manner of speech is decidedly direct, but the tact to deal with questions diplomatically is forthcoming when required. The fundamental principle he works upon is to do the best he can, with the resources at his disposal. And of him it may be said—if it can be said of any man —that he personifies "ability constantly applied." Blessed with a sense of humor that is thoroughly reliable the serious problems that have confronted him day in and day out since he first entered the service of the C.N.R. have not been allowed to take the joy out of life. A man of simple tastes and distinctly democratic in his views, he holds the respect, admiration and affection of officers and employees. He has always been easy to approach. Possessed of a wonderful memory he greets old employees by name in a way that makes for the very best feeling. It preserves the human touch. The difficult task of combining the official staff of the Canadian Government and Canadian Northern Railways has been accomplished without friction of any kind and the two systems are now working smoothly together as one, which is a tribute to the tact and judgment of the presiding officers.

Mr. Hanna is a governor at St. Andrew's College and is a staunch Presbyterian.

LARGE STRAWBERRY PATCH

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 14.—What is claimed to be the largest strawberry patch in Canada is that of Mr. F. H. Boulter, who has a twenty-acre patch under cultivation this year in Stamford, on the old Portage Road. He already has sold thousands of plants. The twenty-acres are in one field

NITTI'S PROBLEM IS VERY COMPLEX

MAY BE ASKED TO FORM ANOTHER GOVERNMENT—ITALIAN CRISIS

Rome, May 14.—With the Chamber divided into two groups Socialist and Catholic neither able to muster a majority, the Cabinet crisis is hard to solve. Agreement between the parties is remote. The Socialist refusal to participate in a Government makes it impossible for Signor Giolitti to get together a working majority from his own followers and some of Nitti's former adherents. There is talk of Nitti's being asked to form a Government again. Other ideals are that Signor Meda, leader of the Catholics, may head the Chamber with Signor Lonomi leading the reformist Socialists.

Should Nitti resume leadership it is thought he will ask moderate Socialists to enter the Cabinet. Deputy Turati, leader of the intransigeants being suggested with Deputy Treves and Deputy Modigliana. Should these fail him, there is some idea that he may form an administration with Catholics giving them some important portfolios, notably that of instruction

Another suggestion is that no Cabinet, however, constituted, can hold power long, and general elections are inevitable soon.

It is stated in shipping circles in London that an attempt will be made to raise the Lusitania. A well-known salvage firm is mentioned as likely to undertake the project.

Three Million Dollars

It says: Thomas A. Edison combined his genius with three million dollars and produced the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison — "the phonograph with a soul."

Always remember this picture-message.
Remember the man at the top—the man whose genius is responsible for it—Edison the wizard, Edison the idealist.
Remember the three million dollars spent, the seven years he experimented—the untiring research which spared neither men, materials nor money.
Then you will always understand why the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison is the ultimate development of the phonograph—why its Re-Creation of an artist's art and that artist's living art are without difference.
Replicas of the original three million dollar model are in our store. You cannot estimate them in terms of other phonographs—in anything except price. They actually cost no more. We'll put one in your home on trial—and let you pay for it at your convenience.

FISH FARMING BY JAPANESE

Fish freezing is now being undertaken in Japan for the first time. The tremendous rise in the cost of living is causing Japanese officials and business men to give serious attention to conservation of the food supply, and the establishment of three of these refrigerating plants is a striking example of how effectively they are handling the problem. The capacity of each of these plants is about 5,000 pounds daily.

During the warm months fish is plentiful and cheap and has always been one of the staple foods of the people, but during the cold months prices advance several hundred per cent. because of the scarcity and consequently only the middle and upper classes can afford it. These plants, which will gradually increase in both number and capacity as the people become used to frozen fish, have already had an appreciable effect upon the price of fish in some localities and it is expected that they will make it possible for nearly all classes to enjoy their favorite meat food throughout the year.

Japan is particularly fortunate in having such a supply of food easily available in the warmer months of the year. The coast line of the main islands measures more than 17,000 miles and extends from the Arctic Circle to the tropics with favorable cold and warm currents along the coasts. Supplementing the natural supply are the fish culture enterprises which have long been a part of Japanese industry and which are now becoming more important.

For hundreds of years the Japanese have carried on the business of fish farming as related to goldfish and carp and the raising of oysters on fagots. This industry has been extended to shapping turtles, eels, salmon and shell-fish in salt water, and to trout in the northern rivers and mountain lakes. Oysters are now being raised according to the French method.

The per capita catch of Japanese fishermen is only about $35, as compared with $600 per capita for English fishermen, but there are some 400,000 fishing boats only one in ten of which exceeds thirty feet in length, so that the sum total runs well into the millions.

Lately the use of motor boats has become quite common—about 3,000 may now be counted in the various fishing villages. The Japanese Government does not look too kindly upon the operation of trawlers. Before the war there were 148 in use, but all but six of them were sold to European nations to be used as mine sweepers. These boats were antiquated even as late as 1915, so that the new ones now building will give Japan a fleet of thoroughly modern vessels. They will, however, be limited to seventy in number.

One of the striking features of Japanese fishing is the large number of women numbered in the fishing population, the total being 339,041, who supplement the efforts of 1,055,438 males.

It is expected that eventually the refrigerating plants will increase the exports of Japanese fish. The plants are all of American origin and are being operated under the advice of American engineers.

ANNUAL MEETING Y.W.C.A. REVEALS GOOD GROWTH IN NATIONAL WORK

Board of Management For Current Year Elected Last Night—Dominion Budget Increases.

The annual representative meeting of the Y.W.C.A. took place last evening in the green room of the institution and was largely attended. Mrs. Scott, the president, presided during the evening, and in her opening remarks defined the purpose of the association and told how the national work had grown during the last six years. In illustrations of this growth the following statistics speak for themselves.

In 1913 the budget for the Dominion Council of the Y.W.C.A. was $15,000 and for 1920 the budget was $150,000, there being $109,000 spent in 1919.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. Cruikshank, the secretary and Mrs. Kenner, the assistant secretary, Mrs. C. C. Abbott, was appointed secretary for the evening, and read the report of the board.

This very delightful informal evening was opened by devotional exercises conducted by Rev. A. J. Thomas of George St. Methodist Church.

Mrs. Harstone moved the adoption of the reports in a neat address, while Mrs. W. Rogers seconded this motion, and also spoke very highly of the work of the association.

Miss Florence Cameron read the report of the Nominating Committee and moved its adoption, which motion was seconded by Miss Olive Marshall.

The treasurer's statement showed a credit balance of $487.01.

An exceptionally fine musical program was provided, consisting of a violin solo by Mrs. Hooper, accompanied by Miss Agnes Logan, vocal selections by Miss Florence Emmerson, accompanied by Miss H. Gillespie. Following this dainty refreshments were served and a happy social hour spent by those present.

New Management Board.

Turner, Mrs. Cruikshank, Mrs. Adam Hall, Miss F. Cameron, Mrs. R. H. Kenner, Mrs Green, Mrs G. McDonald, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Widdiss, Mrs. Ingall, Miss Walton, Mrs C. C. Abbott, Miss McVannell, Mrs Drummond, Mrs. Cormick, Mrs. R. M. Waddell, Mrs. Langley, Mrs. Widdifield, Mrs. Allan Cameron, Mrs Buckanan.

Report of the Board

Last year's report of this Association showed a marked advance an increase in several departments, and it is most gratifying to note that development still continues when with one exception, the personnel of the staff has changed.

Mrs. W. D. Scott, President of the Board, has carried on the work of the year with unlimited tact and devotion.

Prior to her departure in September for further training in New York, a farewell evening was tendered Miss Parker in recognition of her efficient services of some three years at the

Women Doctors in Canada

WITHIN a few years the practicing woman doctor should be known in every part of the world. Nearly 3,000 women students are taking up the profession of medicine in Britain.

Women doctors excelled themselves during the war in hospital work and in "carrying on" while male doctors were required on the various battle fronts. Dr. Elsie Inglis and the noble band of women doctors associated with her in the Scottish Women's Hospitals in Serbia and other allied countries won the warmest praise from every quarter. Their courage and fortitude during the severe hardships of the Serbian retreat are among the most thrilling and impressive pages in the history of the great war. There is no doubt that Dr. Inglis sacrificed her life in the allied cause. Her memory will ever be fragrant among university women.

It was the courageous persistence of Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell in the United States and of Dr. Sophia Jex-Blake in Scotland that opened the doors of medical schools to women. To-day women are welcomed as heartily as the male students of surgery and medicine in the schools of this continent and of Britain. The spade work of the pioneers in the movement has been amply justified.

Approximately there are 250 women doctors in the Dominion. The Queen City has a large share of these. They are to be found in every province, and many of them have large practices. A few have gained distinction in their profession. Dr. Maude Abbott, for instance, is one of the chief authorities in the medical world on congenital cardiac disease, and is the author of the article on this subject in Osler's "Modern Medicine." Dr. Abbott is curator of the Museum at McGill University Medical Faculty, and assistant editor of the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association. This notable physician was one of the first to point out the great utility of the museum as a means of teaching medical students.

Dr. Edna M. Guest, who recently returned from overseas, was appointed by the British War Office to the staff of a war hospital in England and was afterwards on the staff of the Scottish Women's Hospital in Corsica. Dr. Guest was subsequently summoned to Royaumont Hospital in 1918, and remained on the surgical staff there until shortly after Armistice Day. Her war record is fine.

Other Canadian physicians who held overseas appointments were Dr. Margaret Parkes, of St. John, N.B. and Dr. Evelyn Windsor, Calgary.

So far as Canada is concerned there is no hesitancy on the part of women to enter medicine as a career. There are no fewer than 78 women students in all the years of the medical course in Toronto. One is a trained nurse, one was a V.A.D. overseas, one a dentist, and a fourth holds a degree in pharmacy. The course occupies six years.

Toronto, too, has the distinction of possessing a Women's College Hospital which is entirely staffed by medical women and is a great credit to them.

Whatever medical women may have to face across the line in the nature of jealousy by male physicians there is no handicap of this character for medical women in Canada. The men and women doctors work harmoniously together. They are animated by a true spirit of comradeship in the fight to overcome disease and relieve suffering. The ability of the woman doctor is acknowledged by none more readily or more generously than her male colleague.

The supply of women doctors is not equal to the demand. They are wanted for general practice, for salaried officers in state institutions and for resident physicians in hospitals. The profession of medicine insists on a long and arduous training. It involves from six to seven years' hard work before the real education of practice begins, and with little or no income during that period.

At the outset the general practitioner is confronted with the expense of an office equipment and it is no easy task to build up a practice. Even when success has been attained in this respect, if the doctor would keep abreast of modern methods she takes a post-graduate course every two or three years.

Medicine is one of the most arduous professions; but it has compensations for those who are wedded to their work. And women in a marked degree have proved their serving worth in the hospital, state institution and the home.

Want Fish First.

The high cost of living forms a vehement argument by the British Columbia Indians who oppose the proposed amendment to the Indian Act.

"Our Heavenly Father gave us food long before the white man came by placing salmon in our rivers. Now the white man, millionaires who can afford better food and want to make a little more money come and take our food away from us," said George Matheson, of Sardis, B.C. Indians have been arrested for taking their winter's food supply from the rivers running through their own reserve.

Matheson, along with other braves, declares that the Indians would never be at peace until their land, fishing and hunting rights were fully restored to them. Other matters such as education and enfranchisement could wait.

A snail, crawling without a pause, would occupy fourteen days and five hours to travel a mile.

Dr. W. H. Ellis, former Dean of the Faculty of Science at the University of Toronto, was honored by the Toronto branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada yesterday.

Sa'di the Persian Poet

SA'DI, known as the Rose Poet of Persia, is a household word in both Persia and India, but his writings are little known in English-speaking countries, save among the small colonies of British and American Mohammedans. Of him Barbier de Maynard, in "La Poesie de Perse," wrote:

"Sa'di is, perhaps, the only one who can sustain in Europe the popularity which he enjoys with Mohammedan readers, because he combines in himself those qualities which modern taste requires."

His full name was Maslah-uldin so'di-al Shirazi, and he was born in Shiraz, the city of roses—his father being in the service of the governor of the province—in the latter part of the twelfth century, the date being variously given between 1184 and 1193. He studied at the College of Baghdad, which was afterward, in his lifetime, destroyed by Halaku Khan, a grandson of the terrible Genghis Khan, the founder of the Genghiskhanians, a Persian dynasty which supplanted the Kharizmians.

On leaving college, Sa'di started on his travels, though with a light purse, throughout the eastern world, becoming familiar with Damascus and Jerusalem, Egypt, Turkestan, Abyssinia, India, Baalbec, and other countries, and performing the Mecca pilgrimage fifteen times on foot. He joined in the Holy War against the Christians, and was taken prisoner by the Crusaders, who sent him to work at trench-digging at Tripoli. Here he was recognized by a former Aleppo acquaintance, who immediately redeemed him for the sum of ten dinars and married him to his daughter, with whom he gave a dowry of 100 dinars.

When his desire for travel and adventure had been satisfied he returned home to Shiraz, where he spent the last sixty years of his career in a hermit's cell. He produced three books, which to-day are textbooks in the Mohammedan and Parsee schools of Persia and India: "The Pand Nameh," or "Book of Counsel"; "The Gulistan," or "Rose Garden," and "The Bostan," or "Garden of Perfume."

The second of these three is, as stated, the best known. It was written in Persian, which language Sa'di, although generally known as the Persian moralist and poet, did not learn until his career was somewhat advanced. It is partly in prose and partly in verse, the story generally being told in the former and the latter pointing to the moral, although this rule is not observed rigidly. It is, however, as a moralist rather than as a poet that Sa'di has acquired his great reputation, particularly in Persia, one of the reasons for his great popularity being his simplicity and clarity of language and style. He sought by fiction to adorn, not to encumber, what is true. He was the poet of peace and gentleness, and was no warrior. In an address to a monarch, he wrote:

Be merciful, and learn to conquer without an army,
Seize upon the hearts of mankind, and be acknowledged the world's conqueror.

. . . .

Better in humble nook old clothes to men
Than write for new ones to a wealthy friend,
To enter heav'n a neighbor's vassal seems Worse than the red Gehenna of our dreams.

The true dervish, he held, was the one that lived in gratefulness, praise, worship, obedience, contentment, and charity, submission to the will of God, and the exercise of patience, whether he had or had not bound himself by vows to one or other of the many orders of dervishes. Living he regarded as of serious import, and youth alone as the time for play. Like all Mohammedans, he, in obedience to the injunctions of the prophet, set a high value on the acquisition of knowledge and regarded a thorough educational training as of the highest importance.

Once confusion filled Damascus,
Each one left his quiet corner;
Learned sons of lusty peasants
Were the viziers of the Caliphs;
While the silly sons of viziers
Begged their bread through every village.

MRS. SANFORD'S MESSAGE TO WORKING WOMEN

Laurel, Miss. — "Eight years ago I was suffering with pains and weakness caused by a female trouble. I had headaches, chills and fevers, and was unable to do my work part of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and I took twelve bottles of it, and my health has been good ever since. I am able to run the machine and do dressmaking besides my housework. You are at liberty to publish my letter if it will help some poor suffering woman." — Mrs. J. C. SANFORD, 1237 Second Ave., Laurel, Miss.

Thousands of women drag along from day to day in just such a miserable condition as was Mrs. Sanford, or suffering from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, sideache, headache, nervousness, or "the blues."

Such women should profit by Mrs. Sanford's experience and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and find relief from their sufferings as she did.

For special suggestions in regard to your ailment write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their long experience is at your service.

TURNBULL'S

Made-in-Canada Week

MAY 15--22

STORE HOURS
8.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m.

SATURDAY
8.30 a.m. to 9.30 p.m.

During this week, Saturday, May 15th, to Saturday, May 22nd, we are making a special showing of Made-in-Canada goods. Special prices will be featured on different lines, but the main feature of this week is that every item advertised is a product of some Canadian factory. If one would stop for a moment and run over, mentally, the diffeent articles that are produced by Canadian manufacturers, you would be surprised to find that Canada is advanced so far in the productive world. Not only that, but if everyone were to put forth an extra effort and purchase, when possible, Canadian-made goods, it would greatly help to build up a better, bigger and stronger manufacturing nation out of our Canada. Every purchase of Canadian-made Goods is a boost for Canada.

In order that we all might know just how much of and of what quality Canadian-made goods are compared with others, we are holding a "MADE-IN-CANADA" Week and advertising nothing but home products. The green maple leaf price tickets throughout the entire store will be your guidance for these special items and prices during this event.

DURING this Special Event, all Spring Suits will be Malked Exceeding Low. Not just a few Odd Lines, but everyone regardless of Color, Quality or Material. An opportune time to procure a Spring Suit at a remarkable Low Price.

OBITUARY

ROBERT CALLUM

Robert Callum, aged 85, an old veteran of Manitoba, and at one time farmer at Headingly, died Sunday morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. D. G. McSkimmings, 89 Lipton street, Toronto. Mr. Callum was born at Peterboro, Ont., and came to farm in Manitoba in the eighties. He settled at Headingly and was considered one of the pioneers of the district. He retired from active work in 1910 and has been living with his married daughter, Mrs McSkimmings, of Winnipeg; four sons, Percy, of Seattle, Washington; Eli, of Nascea, Sask.; Bert and William, of Fort Frances, Ont. Mrs Amelia Nelson, of Lindsay, a sister also survives.

ROBERT HENRY TAMBLIN.

The death took place last night at the family residence, 56 Victoria avenue, of Robert Henry Tamblin, in his 67th year.

The deceased was born in Belmont township, Ontario, and lived there for the greater part of his life until thirteen years ago, when he moved to Peterborough, taking up his residence on Victoria avenue, where he had resided continuously until the time of his death.

He was a highly respected member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, of which he had been a regular attendant since coming to the city.

DRURY GOVERNMENT WILL AID FARMERS

BILL TO MAKE LOANS UP TO $3,000 IN LEGISLATURE

Toronto, May 14.—Hon. Manning Doherty introduced a bill in the Legislature yesterday afternoon providing for the assistance in the marketing of farm produce. Under the bill, upon the recommendation of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, the Minister of Agriculture may make a loan of a sum not exceeding $3000 to any co-oeprative association incorporated for the purpose of cleaning, storing and marketing seed and potatoes. The money would be used for the purpose of acquiring lands, buildings, equipment and machinery necessary for the carrying out of the objects of the association. The loan must not exceed 50 per cent. of the appraised value of the property upon which the loan is made. The loan is free of interest for two years, after which 6 per cent. interest is charged. Repayment of the loan may be made at any time, but at least 50 per cent must be paid within five years, and the balance within the next five years.

Answering Hon. G. S. Henry, Premier Drury said that the proposed Hydro legislation was put into the hands of counsel this week. It is now being considered by a committee of the Cabinet. The legislation will probably be laid before the House on Monday.

it must have resulted from spontaneous combustion. The store room, in which the fire started, was used for keeping soiled linen and other articles until they could be removed to the laundry in the cellar. Whether or not the wiring was defective Dr. Hager was not prepared to say, although he believed the wiring had been in the building for 15 years.

Had No Fire Escape.

The store room, in which the fire originated, is at the head of the stairs. The walls of the third floor were lined with the thin wood material, highly inflammable, and this accounts for the rapid headway made by the flames. The house did not have a fire escape.

If the fire had not gained so rapidly exist to the roof of the ell, in the rear might have been possible. As it was the two women, frightened and weak, were trapped.

EAST AND WEST

It was on the twelfth of March, 1613, that the Jesuit 'Mayflower" — the little ship "Jonas" sailed from Honfleur for the new world. She carried a crew and passenger list of forty-eight sailors and colonists, including two Jesuits, the Fathers Quentin and Du Thet. She carried horses, too, and goats, and was abundantly stored with all things needful for the pious munificence of her patrons.

The voyage was the result of the unfortunate outcome of troubles that had arisen in the new colony. Brother Du Thet had made a previous trip to the colony on the Atlantic seaboard, and when he returned to France he told a graphic and stirring tale of the religious conditions across the ocean. Madame de Guercheville and her Jesuits were strong in favor at the Court, and they possessed the favor of many wealthy members of the Church, so it was an easy matter to arrange the finances for a voyage of misionary endeavor. So contributions were asked for the religious campaign that was planned, and the money poured in. It was therefore a well equipped expedition that sailed from Honfleur with the priests.

A courtier named La Saussaye, was chief of the colony; Capt. Fleury commanded the ship. On the 16th of May, the vessel touched at La Heve, where mass was celebrated, a cross uplifted and a memorial erected bearing the shield of Madame de Guercheville. Then the ship passed on to Port Royal, where a couple of priests who had remained in the colony were found in much privation. Then the ship sailed on up the Penobscot, but grave dangers were encountered through fog and reefs. Finally the anchorage they sought was discovered, but not before mutiny had broken out on the little missionary ship. But after that trouble had been righted the company went ashore, said mass and raised the Cross in the new land. Everything looked prosperous for the hardy adventures until a little ship was sighted far out to sea.

BLOCKHOUSES IN IRELAND SHORTLY

THIS IS INCLUDED IN THE PLANS OF NEW COMMANDER

London, May 14.—The plan submitted by Sir Nevil Macready, for putting an end to lawlessness in Ireland, includes, according to the Daily Herald, the establishment throughout the country of hundreds of blockhouses like those put up in South Africa during the Boer War, to be manned by from 30 to 50 soldiers with machine guns and bombs, provided with adequate automobile transport and equipped with wireless sets.

As soon as the force there is adequate, it will, under the command of Sir Nevil Macready, take over all police functions. In fact, it was said that Southern Ireland may then be placed under martial law. This would be nothing more or less than notice to the Irish volunteers that their challenge had been accepted and that the Government troops would meet rifle and revolver fire with machine guns and possibly shrapnel.

SAYS FARMERS WILL VOTE CONSERVATIVE

TORIES IN WEST WILL GIVE GOOD ACCOUNT OF THEMSELVES

Montreal, Que., May 14. — "The farmers of the Prairie Provinces have lost more money on their last year's crop though thei connection with the jobbing and tinkering wheat control as represented by the Co-operative Grain Companies of the West than they have had to pay in duty for the past twenty-five years on their agricultural implements," is the statement Hon. Robt. Rogers made yesterday.

"It is a mistaken idea that seems to have taken root in the East that the farmers' organization of the West will in any way affect the strength of the Conservative party. If thee are Conservatives in the farmers', they joined at a time when they were ready to join any organization in order to get a whack at the Union Government. The Conservatives of the West will give a good account of themselves."

Some people pose as earthly saints because they are too stingy to pay the price of an occasional good time.

Moving Picture in 1713.

Some paper printed recently an alleged newly-discovered manuscript by Aristotle philosophising on the movies. It was joking of course; but there is no joke about this extract from Swift's "Journal to Stella," dated March 27, 1713: "I went afterwards to see a famous moving-picture, and I never saw anything so pretty. You see a sea ten miles wide, a town on t'other end and ships sailing in the sea and discharging their cannon, etc."

A Landlord's Troubles.

In a certain Yorkshire town a landlord does not receive a very hearty welcome on Monday mornings, says Blighty, and a tenant in one of the houses there recently handed the landlord half-a-crown towards the rent. "Is that all you've got for me and you so much in arrears?" scowled the landlord. "Go on, now, and be satisfied," replied the tenant. "You wouldn't have had that, only my old man has been and sold the back door."

Electricity From Sunlight.

An interesting suggestion about the "power of to-morrow" is made by a writer in the British Nineteenth Century. He looks forward cheerfully to the day when all our electric power stations will be useless except for museum purposes. Admitting that there are difficulties in the way, he thinks that they may eventually be overcome, and that we shall derive our electricity direct from sunlight. When that takes place, industrial supremacy will be transformed to tropical countries. Meanwhile, Sir Charles Parsons, the famous turbine inventor, has renewed his suggestion of finding unlimited sources of power from the heat of the earth by digging a hole eighty odd miles deep. British scientific imagination is clearly in a very active condition.

Efficiency in Japan.

That within five or six years the Japanese factory efficiency and skill in machine tools plants will be developed to a point where products will measure up to any turned out by American manufacturers, was the view expressed to U. S. Commercial Attache James F. Abbott at Tokio recently by an American iron and steelmaker of prominence.

Women in Temple Inn.

Of the five women who were permitted to dine at a recent banquet at the Inner Temple and Middle Temple of the ancient Inns of Court and Chancery, in London, England, thus breaking a custom of several hundred years, one of the women, Miss Helen Normanton, was the first woman to enter her name as a student at the Middle Temple.

Very Odd.

"How do you pronounce 'pneumonia'?" asked the French boy, who had come to England to learn the language.

His only chum told him.

"That's odd," replied the young Gaul. "It says in this story I am reading that the doctor pronounced it fatal."

DE LAVAL'S WENT DOWN TO DEFEAT LAST EVENING IN A SCORE OF FIVE-NOTHING

C.G.E. Football Team Outplayed the Separators in all Parts of the Field.

Outplayed in all parts of the field by the fast team of the C. G. E., the DeLaval football team went down to defeat last night by a score of 5-0. From start to finish there never was any hope for the losers but they deserve great credit for the determination with which they played against a far superior team. They were also weakened by the absence of a couple of their best players, but considering all facts they put up a good game.

Start Scoring Early

The C. G. E. commenced scoring early in the game and before many minutes of play had scored twice. The second counter was only gained after a battle with Jones the DeLaval goalkeeper The whole C. G. E. team seemed to be right on him but he repelled the attacks several times but could not get the ball far enough away into the field to break up the attack and they finally got past him for a score. He rushed to one side in an endeavor to secure the ball and pass it up the field bu the C.G.E. forwards, who played a fast game neatly passed the ball and scored right into an open goal.

Just about this time in the game it was noticed that the C. G. E. forwards were spoiling an otherwise good game by playing off side many times, but for the most part the referee seemed to be looking in other directions despite the indignant yells of the DeLaval fans.

During another attack on the DeLaval goal, Williamson attempted to [illegible] the [illegible] ball and all into the goal, but once again Jones was too much for them and the save was greeted with loud cheers. A few minutes later the C. G. E. again attacked the DeLaval goal and secured the third counter of the game on a kick into the corner of the goal when Jones fell in attempting to reach it in time.

Only Dangerous Once

The only time that the DeLaval were in any danger of scoring was towards the close of the first half when they were able to carry the ball right up the field for a short attack on the C. G. E. goal. For a few minutes the most sanguine of the DeLaval supports thought that a counter would have been secured but their hopes were soon swept away when the C. G. E. backs got the ball and brought it down the field in its proper place, somewhere in the vicinity of the DeLaval goal. Half time found the score standing at 2-0.

Jones Protests Penalty

The DeLaval team grew even more desperate and determined in the second half. The play was still all against them and they were outrun in all positions on the field but nevertheless they tried hard to keep down the score of a game which was already well lost. When Manders, the fast forward of the C. G. E. carried the ball right for the DeLaval goal for what seemed a certain score, Godfrey grew even a little more desperate than the rest and deliberately and inexcusably fouled him in order to prevent a score. He was successful in throwing Manders off his shot but a penalty was awarded and secured by Maiders. Jones, captain and goalie of the DeLaval objected to the penalty line at the time of the shot This was perfectly true and Jones was justified in his complaint but the fact that it was one of his own men who was behind the line weakened his case somewhat and the referee would not uphold his objections.

Good Goal Work

The remainder of the half was more or less of a storming of the De Laval goal and brought forth some fine play by Jones. On one occasion several C. G. E. players attempted to drive Jones into the goal after he had secured the ball but this simply was something that could not be done He wormed his way through them and sent the ball flying out of danger. A few minutes later the fifth counter was secured when Jones missed a comparatively easy grounder through the corner of the goal.

Support was lacking to Jones on every attack made against him and it seems a shame that such a good goalkeeper cannot get a little more support from the rest of the players. If any man plays well on the De Laval team it is the goalkeeper and friend and foe alike were ready to admit this.

NOTES ON TOMORROW'S BALL PLAYERS

Adams, Thistles centre fielder, is reputed to be a cracker-jack. Just arrived from Toronto a few days ago but has put in practice there. Played last year with the Central Ontario team and several years ago with Louis Yeote's team. Showed up well at the Central Ontario team practice the other night.

* * * *

Lowe, Thistles right fielder, was well known for his heavy hitting last year and has looked very promising in the practice this season. Likely to be on this year's Central Ontario team.

* * * *

Yeotes predicts that he will be a suralso well known to local fans Louis Yeotes predicts that he will be a surprise on the first sack this year and also at bat

* * * *

Murray, Thistles third baseman, is a game player and sized up by Kay to be the best third baseman in the city.

* * * *

* * * *

Morse, who will be behind the bat for the Great War Veterans tomorrow, is probably the best known catcher in the city. He caught for the 20th Battalion overseas and made a very creditable record. Several other City League teams have had their eyes on this man and the Veterans are fortunate in being able to secure his services.

* * * *

Wade, pitcher and incidentally manager of the Great War Veterans' team, is an old hand at the game. He was well known in the City League in the days before the war and he avows that he can do just as well as ever again this season. He will start the game for the Veterans' tomorrow.

* * * *

Rose, also pitcher for the War Veterans, pitched in the old Peterborough City League before the war and has done well in baseball since that time. It is likely that he will be given the privilege of finishing the game tomorrow.

Corrin, the nifty third base man of the War Veterans, is ready to dispute Yeotes' claim that he has the best third base man in the league. Corrin played in that position for the Matthews-Blackwell team last year when they won the championship of the City League and also played in the finals for the championship of the Central Ontario League. He has a reputation to live up to, not to make.

* * * *

Frost, who will pitch tomorrow's game for the Canadian General Electric, is a pitcher to be proud of. Frost pitched for the Matthews-Blackwell team, which made such a good showing last year and it is more than likely that he will find a berth on the Central Ontario team this year. He has lots of stuff and lots of speed and is not worrying over the fact that he faces the Thistles tomorrow

* * * *

Ross, who will be behind the bat for the C.G.E., made a great name for himself while serving overseas. He played in many regimental matches and made such a good showing in these that his services were secured for the Canadian team, which played the Americans. He is probably one of the best, if not the best catcher in the city.

Cheritt is reported to be one of the fatest short-stops in the league and a valuable acquisition to the C.G.E. team Not many teams are boasting about their short-stops just yet, but the C.G.E. claim that in Cherrett they have the goods as far as shortstop is concerned.

Ray Rose on second base and W Rose left field are both known to the Peterborough ball fans for their past performances, and if practices are anything to judge by they are again in form this year and will make a good showing tomorrow.

* * * *

McLintock, who will pitch for the first part of the game tomorrow for the Canadian Woollens, is a southpaw and a good one. Louis Yeotes made a real sacrifice in the interests of the league when he released him to the Woollens and showed his good sporting spirit. McClintock has played ball in Kitchener and around that district and has a wonderful reputation as a ball player in that part of the country.

Heenan, who will be seen in the left field for the Woollens, is reputed to be one of the best in the district. He appeared on the Central Ontario team last year and may figure on the team again this year.

* * * *

Shaw, who will play in the centre field for the Woollens, is an old-timer at the game, and in days gone by used to be a fast fielder. He has again proved his form during the practice and much can be expected of him. At one time he played on Louis Yeotes' Thistles.

LINE-UPS IN BALL GAMES TOMORROW

The line-ups announced for the baseball games tomorrow give promise of two very fast and exciting games for the opening day. The teams are all evenly matched, thanks to the resnuffling which took place at the last executive meeting and all is now in readiness for ye old familar cry "play ball," tomorrow afternoon.

The following will be the line-ups in tomorrow's games:

C.G.E.—Catcher, Ross; pitcher, Frost; 1st base, Jackson; 2nd base, Ray Rose; short-stop, Cherrett; 3rd base, Collins; c. field, McCarney; l. field, W. Rose; r. field, Connors.

War Veterans—Pitcher, Wade (to start), Rose; catcher, Morse; Anderson, ampbell, Legon. Corrin, Murphy, Fields, Jolly, Jackson, Rutherford.

At a meeting here yesterday the Canadian Racing Association dates were revised.

Rogers Hornsby lost nine points yesterday, and Lebourveau, the Philadelphia recruit, now leads the batsmen i nthe National League.

Manager Frank Shaughnessy of the Hamilton M.-O. team and Catcher Johnson of Flint were suspended for two days and fined fifty dollars for engaging in a fist fight on Wednesday.

TWO FOOTBALL MATCHES SATDY.

M. G. C. vs. CAN. WOOLLENS AT OVAL; G. W.V.A. vs. DELAVAL AT EX. GROUNDS

The football games tomorrow will again be divided between the north and south ends of the city. The M.G.C. will clash with the Canadian Woollens at the Oval and should present a good game and the G.W.V.A. will again meet the De Laval at the Exhibition Grounds. Last week a very good game was played between the two last named teams, the Veterans nosing a victory by a score of 1-0, and it is promised that tomorrow's game will be equally exciting. The referees for these games were announced in yesterday's paper and the line-ups will probably be as follows:

M.G.C.—Goal, W. Flowers; backs, Crowe and R. Perry; half-backs, Metcalfe, R. McLeish and Darling; forwards, R. Payne, J. Price, Fraser, J. Bell and Darling

Canadian Woollens—Goal, S. Caldine; backs, F. Barton and A. Styles; half-backs, A. Reid, H. Jackson and C. Clarke; forwards, E. Jones, T. Clarke, J. Montgomery, C. Th[illegible] and J. Caldland

G. W. V. A.—Goal, Hawthorne; backs, Gamble and Bishop; half-backs, Burrows, Ryan, Edwards; forwards, Curtis, Monks, Norman, Peel and Evans; reserves, McKinley, Jones and Piggott

De Laval—Goal, Jones; backs, Godfrey and McDougall; half-backs, Brown, Humpage and Akers; forwards, Hartshorn, Long, Nicholls, Lindsay and Abraham

A QUICK ARREST

Owen Sound, Ont., May 14.—A record for quick arrest was made here yesterday by Deputy Chief of Police John Thompson. At 3.30 in the afternoon the Chief of Police at Collingwood notified the local police that a man named Screve, wanted there on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences, was believed to be in Owen Sound. Ten minutes later Deputy Chief Thompson had the man in the lock-up and this afternoon sent him back to Collingwood.

The good intentions ground out by political machines ought to make excellent paving material.

EAST PETERBORO LEAGUE A FACT

MEETING NEXT WEEK WHEN OFFICERS WILL BE ELECTED

As was to be expected with Jake Salomon the moving spirit behind it, the East Peterborough League is now an acomplished fact, the last district having been heard from. Jake was awaiting some word from Norwood with reference to joining the league, and he heard yesterday from this district that Norwood and Asphodel were joining forces and that the club would go under the name of the Asphodel Baseball Club.

This completes a five team league which will be composed of Keene, Lakefield, Indian River, West Douro, and Ashphodel. A meeting of the League will be called some time next week, when officers will be elected and arrangements for the season completed. These districts should be able to provide some good baseball material and a fast league is almost a certainty.

ANNUAL MEETING

same time a welcome was accorded Miss Layton, her successor.

Miss Layton came from the Montreal Association bearing glowing credentials and in addition being a university graduate and an accomplished pianist.

Our president's dream of an industrial secretary has been realized and due to the efforts of her board members, and the generous response of their friends, a secretary in the person of Miss Jean Thomson, has been appointed, and her work promises to fill a long felt need in service in the truest sense of the word to young women engaged in the different industries of the city.

A fact which speaks in strong terms of the character of the work being done by the Peterborough Association is that two of the public staff are young women of our city and association. Miss Pearce who had a high standard to follow as successor to Miss Little field, is measuring up splendidly as proven by the excellency of the pupils at the recent gymnasium closing exercises. Miss Leta Brownscombe also [illegible] was engaged as assistant secretary and has quite justified her appointment.

Miss Payne, a young lady of exceptional ability and possessor of the bronze medaillon, silver medal and title of honorary instructress, is in charge of the popular swimming pool which opened for the season on March the first.

The sum of five hundred dollars has been voted for the renewal of house furnishings, and nearly three hundred has been spent in re-furnishing on the public side of the building, part of which went toward making an attractive club room.

Arrangements are already well under way whereby the summer camp which provided so much enjoyment for so many, may be conducted again this season.

Mrs. Morrison's name has come to be so well and favorably known as house superintendent that it is scarcely necessary to dwell further upon her virtues, suffice it to say, that admidst her heavy responsibilities and her anxiety and strain during the recurrence of the influenza epidemic, Mrs. Morrison and Miss Layton cared for some twenty-eight cases without faltering, and during the days previous to the passing out of two of the young women of the house, were their faithful attendants and comforters.

In September the board sustained a distinct loss when one who for years had been a valued membed was called to higher service. We refer to the late Mrs Nugent. While Mrs. Nugent took a deep interest in all the dpartments she was always foremost in adding interest to any social event, and her pleasing personality and kindly smile are much missed.

It was with genuine regret that the resignation of Mrs. Roger was accepted last month. As a token of appreciation of valuable assistance rendered during the past, Mrs. Roger was appointed honorary president to the board.

With a public and house staff so competent and with such a comingling of work and play and love and worship, our Young Women's Christian Association will still aim to develop in the girl of to-day the ideal womanhood of tomorrow.

T. DAISY CRUICKSHANK
Secretary.

Secretary's Report

The year 1919-1920 has been one of growth and development in the Young Women's Christian Association. More than that, it has been a year of co-operation among board members, secretaries and girls, and although there have been at least apparent failures, they but thrill us with the thought of conquering all difficulties and with the desire to be what our Blue Triangle poster says, "In service for the girls of the world."

The general growth of the association as shown in the opening of the summer camp and the organization of the Industrial Department, thesuccessful year in the boarding home, gymnasium and swimming pool, and the constructive program of the clubs combine to show the effective work the association is doing.

But there are still other ways in which we have tried to fulfil our purpose as an association. Because the Technical School seems to meet the need for regular educational classes, little has been done along that line. However, it was felt that with their growing responsibilities, girls and women should know more about the affairs and governing of their country, and to this end a very interesting course of lectures on laws was given by His Honor Judge Huycke. In the fall a six weeks' course was put on in the art of story-telling, and following that a small story-telling circle was formed for practising the art. Early in January, Miss Curlette very kindly consented to take a class in conversational French, and a little later Miss Kenny took charge of one for beginners. Although Miss Curlettae's class was both interesting and instructive, it was much interrupted by the influenza epidemic and was finally discontinued. Miss Kenny's class, altho gh small, is still being [illegible]

The religious side of Association work is a hard thing to define or describe. It should, and, we hope, does, permeate every activity, until the girls realize that true religion lies not merely in Bible classes or vesper services, but in the life that is lived, and until they see in the lives of secretaries, leaders, and each other the spirit of the Master. It is the spirit of Jesus Chist in an association, or lack of it, that makes it a success or failure. As to our definite religious work, this has been done chiefly through the clubs. Most of the clubs have had short Bible courses or talks. We attempted in the Fall to have a short, practical and inspiring vesper service Sunday afternoon, with tea and music afterwards, and later we tried to form Bible classes, but neither succeeded. However, a failure in one year but makes us strive the harder the next.

The closing clause of our purpose reads, "Thus to make the Association in co-operation with the church a social factor in the extension of the Kingdom of God." One part of the work that we have tried to emphasize is our co-operation with the churches. Under the auspices of the Inter-Church Girls' Council we arranged and carried out a six weeks' training course for leaders and teachers of teen-age girls. Besides addresses from Peterborough women, we had Miss Trotter and Miss Ziegle, authorities on the Canadian Girls in Training program, come down from Toronto. The regular C.G.I.T. work among the teen-age girls has been greatly hindered through lack of leaders. Until the older girls and women realize the great need of training these younger girls, very little can be done. It is right, however, that the churches should look to the Young Women's Christian Association for a certain amount of leadership and as far as we could possibly co-operate with them in this respect we have done so, especially in the way of speaking at their young people's societies and mission circles. The churches, on the other hand, have co-operated with us in various ways, but especially by giving us names of girls who have just come to the city or who need a little special friendliness on the part of some one interested in them.

This report, with those of the departmental secretaries, will give you some idea of the work the Association has done in the past year. And yet they give you not the slightest idea of the innumerable calls and demands on the general office — the telephone calls, the inquiries about all the different activities, the giving out of folders, the taking in of money, the requests for household workers, the posters that have to be made, the records of everything that must be kept—all these things go to fill up a day, and at the end there is little to show for the time that has been spent. And yet the apparently trivial things are the necessary things and the telling things, for frequently the spirit of the whole Association is judged by the atmosphere of the general office.

The year has been a hard one; how hard only those who have had "first years" will understand and this has been a "first year" for every one on the staff except Mrs. Morrison. But now that the rather trying time of becoming acquainted and getting adjusted to new conditions is almost over, we look forward to a year of real progress.

There comes to me a vision of what the Association some day will mean to the girls of Peterborough—a vision of an Association that fills the need of many girls for real, wholesome recreation, and, more than that, of one that leads all who come to it "out into the sunshine of God's love."

What is the Young Women's Christian Association?

It is not the building, but something that builds.
It is not the membership, but something that wins it.
It is not the budget, but something that raises it.
It is not the organization, but something that organizes.
It is not the achievements but something that achieves.
It is not anything on earth, but the spirit that lifts things heavenwards.
It is the spirit of sisterhood, uniting women of faith in fellowship and service.
It is the spirit of service, choosing not to be ministered unto, but to minister.
It is the spirit of sacrifice, preferring rather "to fall into the ground and die, than to abide by itself alone."
It is the spirit of youth, with the zest and freshness of the morning.
It is the spirit of womanliness, pressing forward with the mid-day heat and the burden.
It is the spirit of association — the girl, the woman, the Christ, in undiscouraged, irresistible co-operation.

Respectfully submitted.
CHARLOTTE H. LAYTON,
General Secretary.

London, May 14.—The Prince of Wales had a narrow escape at Greymouth, New Zealand, while motoring along a narrow, dangerous road skirting a ravine in Bullar Gorge, according to a despatch to the Central News. At one point the rear wheel of the Prince's car actually hung over the gorge and the earth gave way. The motor car, however, quickly recovered.

The front part of the engine struck him and inflicted but one wound on the head. Sergt. Beard, of No. 9. division, stated the gates were down. The identification was made from an identification card which was issued in 1917. The body was removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held.

WHO HERE KNOWS MICHAEL S. BASS?

FATHER SEEKS SON MISSING SINCE NINETEEN HUNDRED AND ELEVEN

The city clerk received a most touching letter this morning from a father in Chicago, whose son has been missing since 1911. He states that his son left him in that city to go to Toronto in 1911, and that after a few weeks he did not hear from him, and the letters he wrote were returned. He had heard that his son was settled down in Peteborough, and asked that publicity be given to his appeal for his return. His own words, reproduced from the letter received, are: "Michael, my boy, write to me, and for God's sake do it before it is too late."

The missing man's name is Michael S. Bass, and at the time of his disappearance he was 26 years of age. Ther are no names coinciding with the above in the city directory, neither is there any record of such a name in the city assessor's department. There is, however, a possibility that such a name might be included in the new city directory which will be released from publication shortly. The letter was dated May 10th, and signed by B. Bass, Apt. 21, 172 Sherman avenue, New York, N.Y.

MARTIAL LAW IS PROCLAIMED IN RUSS. PROVINCES AND ARCHANGEL

Bolshevik Government Order Twenty-Four Hour Work Day in Administrative Offices—Production of War Material to be Stimulated—Exportations are Restricted.

(By Canadian Press.)

Moscow, May 15.—A decree issued by the central executive committee, dated May 11th, proclaims martial law in the provinces of Central and Northern Russia and Archangel.

Protect Railways.

The provincial executive committee have full power to protect railways, military supplies, magazines, and depots, and to control telegraphic and telephonic communication

Work 24 Hours.

A 24-hour work day in the administrative offices is decreed, and means are to be taken to stimulate production of war material.

Punish Disobedience.

Until the abolition of martial law the executive committees are given the same power as military tribunals to secure the carrying out of this program, declaring punishment for disobedience.

Stop Exportations.

The decree is signed by Lenine and Malinin.

This inevitable interruption of the development of peace time industries through concentration in an effort to produce war material, it is pointed out here, will tend indefinitely to postpone the execution of plans for the resumption of importations and exportations on a large scale.

DEVELOP EXPORT TRADE AN OBJECT

CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS' ASS'N. CONVENTION AT VANCOUVER JUNE 7TH.

(By Canadian Press.)

Vancouver, May 15.—When the Canadian Manufacturers' Association convention opens here on June 7, official welcomes to the delegates will be voiced by Premier Oliver on behalf of the province and Mayor Gale on behalf of the city. The provincial branch of the association with the assistance of other organizations, is making every effort to present in the fullest form all information respecting the possibilities and resources of British Columbia, with a view to inducing Canadian capital to invest in the West. About 500 delegates, many of whom will bring their families, are expected to attend the convention which will be the largest "all Canadian" gathering scheduled for Western Canada for this summer.

Nearly everyone of the delegates is interested in the development of export trade, according to J. B. Thomson, chairman of the British Columbia division of the association. Added to these 500 delegates will be others attending the fisheries convention, which is booked for approximately the same time. Indeed some are intending to put in attendance at both conventions.

Frankfort, Ky., May 15.—Women of Kentucky have been assured of the right to vote for presidential electors in the coming presidential election, independent of the ratification of the federal suffrage amendment of the requisite number of states.

This opinion was given George G. Speer, State Banking Commissioner, by Attorney General Charles I. Dawson, who holds that an act of the Kentucky Legislature passed this year, to provide for woman suffrage in presidential elections, is valid and that under its provisions women may participate in the presidential election.

The attorney general said he could find nothing in the bill which would conflict with the constitution of the state of Kentucky or of the United States.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD OF B. C. RECOGNIZES NEED OF THE DAY

(By Canadian Press.)

Victoria, B.C., May 14.—At the sessions of the Presbyterian Synod of British Columbia, just finished, resolutions were passed favoring the present amended prohibition act and declaring that government control would impede the advance toward total prohibition, condemning corporations and individuals who amass fortunes by forcing upward the cost of living; urging ministers to study literature on social problems and publications such as the "Labor Gazette," "Social Welfare," and books suggested by V. C. Midgeley, secretary of the Trades and Labor Council of the One Big Union.

ASSAULT CHARGE.

Magistrate Took Lenient View and Dismissed Case.

In police court this morning a charge of assault was laid against William McKnight by one of his tenants, named Mallison. When the evidence was heard in court it was shown that the assault was aggravated by the fact that upon receiving notice to vacate the premises Mallison became enraged and proceeded to damage the property by placing soot on the ceilings, tearing the wall paper down and generally destroying everything there was to destroy. In view of these facts Magistrate Dumble was inclined to agree with the landlord in his punishment of McKnight and dismissed the charge.

$6.50 FOR POTATOES.

In a large market this morning potatoes continued to fetch $6 and $6.50 a bag and there seemed to be no great supply of them even at this price. Other prices have not varied since last Saturday.

Meeting at Hythe, England Most Satisfactory in Every Respect to Representative

(By Canadian Press.)

Hythe, England, May 15.—It was decided by Lloyd George and Premier Millerand of France at their conference her today that the Spa conference between members of the Allied Supreme Council and German leaders should be postponed from May 25 to June 21.

It is understood that Premier Millerand accepted the principle of placing a round figure for German indemnity on the ground that France should have priority in time of the first payment and that she should receive partial payment at the earliest possible date.

The meeting was regarded by both British and French representatives as most satisfactory. There was full discussion of financial matters.

GENERAL CARRANZA AND EIGHT HUNDRED MEN HAVE SURRENDERED

Were Cornered in the Mexican Mountains, According to Latest Despatch—President's Forces of Loyal Troops Fought Stubbornly—Carranza's Men Destroyed Trains and Considerable War Material They Could Not Carry.

(By Canadian Press.)

New York, May 15. — General Carranza and eight hundred men have surrendered to the forces surrounding them in the Mexican mountains, according to word received in this city today by way of Nogales.

Santiago Also.

This information was given out by Manuel de Lapena, self-styled commercial attache in this city of the new liberal machine government.

Resisted Vigorously.

Destroyed Material.

After abandoning their last positions Carranza's troops destroyed their trains and war material which could not be carried with them.

Further Upheaval.

El Paso, Texas, May 15. — With the expected arrival today of General P. Elias Calles, commander of the revolutionary forces of the southwest, another development of the new political upheaval was expected. RE-OPENING OF ST. ANDREWS

After worshipping in the Conservatory of Music for five weeks, St. Andrew's congregation returns to their church, corner of Brock and Rubidge streets, tomorrow for the eighty-seventh anniversary of the founding of this congregation. During these weeks the church has been thoroughly renovated, and all who have seen the results have been greatly pleased. St. Andrew's Church building is pure gothic, and the aim of the decorators has been to let the architecture speak. Stencilling has been eliminated, and the result is very chaste, pleasing and restful. The work has been done by Murray-Kay Company of Toronto, but this firm has employed Peterborough men extensively. The entrance floors have been laid by the Vermont Marble Works, Peterborough, with a result that is admirable.

It is regretted that the carpet which has been ordered for some time, cannot be had before the autumn. When this has been laid, St. Andrew's Church, with its splendid organ, will be very complete and satisfactory.

The services tomorrow will be conducted by Rev. D. N. Morden, of St. James' Square, Toronto. Mr. Morden is one of the outstanding preachers of the provincial capital. The choir, under the direction of Mr. John Crane, will render special music. Visitors and strangers will be cordially welcome.

HUGE SHELL FISH

Fossilized Remains Found at Berry Creek, Alta.

(By Canadian Press.)

Calgary, Alta., May 15.—While excavating at Berry Creek, Alberta, a resident found the fossilised remains of a huge shell fish and those of a big fish. The iridiscent, phosphoric hues still were retained in the solid rock formation and a crust of limestone had been broken off to show the true lines of the mollusk and those of the fish. In fact the fish's ribs were clearly marked.

FIRE LOSS $900,000

(By Canadian Press.)

Winnipeg, Man., May 14.—Manitoba's fire loss for the first four months of 1920 was $900,000, or $1.50 for every man, woman and child in the province, according to Charles Heath, provincial fire commissioner. This is slightly more than double the loss for the corresponding period in 1919.

HUGE AIRPLANE ROUTE PROJECT

DIRECT LINE FROM PACIFIC COAST TO THE AMAZON

RAPID TRANSIT NEEDED

WEEKS JOURNEY COULD BE ACCOMPLISHED IN THIRTY MINUTES

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 14.—Establishment of an aerial route from the Pacific to the Amazon as a means of surmounting difficulties of road travel among the Andes, is advocated by G. M. Dyott, until recently a squadron commander of the British Royal Naval Air Service.

"There is no serious difficulty in the way, so far as the scheme's practicability is concerned," Mr. Dyott told the Royal Geographical Society. "We have heard of the great height of the Andes, but there are low altitudes at which they may be crossed. One of the Andes ridges can be negotiated at a height of 7,000 feet, but there is another rising to 15,600 feet.

"Peru," he continued, "is peculiarly suitable for aerial traffic. Aerial highways will undoubtedly play a large part in thefuture development of that country. It is of importance that rapid communication should be established between the interior and the coast, and in order to do this the airplane must come to the rescue."

Discussing the difficulty of travelling by road, Mr. Dyott said that it took him five days to travel from one part in the Andes to another, whereas the airplane would cover the distance in fifteen minutes and in another stage of the journey it took him exactly a week to travel a distance which would be negotiated by the airplane in 30 minutes.

TREE PLANTING UNDER WAY SOON

PRAIRIE PROVINCES TO ORGANIZE COMMUNITIES FOR THIS PURPOSE P

(By Canadian Press.)

Winnipeg, Man., May 15.—It is hoped to get tree planting actually under way in the prairie provinces by organizing each small community this summer, and there will be close co-operation with the Dominion Government's tree planting nursery at Indian Head, Robson Black, executive secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association, stated on a recent visit to this city. With the idea of demonstrating to the farmers the advantage derived from planting shelter belts of trees, so named because they shelter the early grain from the hurricane winds which blow across the prairies, the Canadian Forestry Association will send a "tree planting demonstration car" through Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Instructive talks and motion picture displays of tree planting will be given.

VERY ELUSIVE "NICKEY" ARNSTEIN ARRESTED IN ATTORNEY'S OFFICE

Alleged to be "Master Mind" in Five Million Dollar Bond Theft.

(By Canadian Press.)

New York, May 15. — Jules W. ("Nicky") Arnstein, "master mind" of New York's five million dollar bond theft plot, was arrested here today in the office of the district attorney when he apepared there with his wife, Fanny Brice, actress. Arnstein told the reporters that he had been in Pittsburg all the time the police had been looking for him.

Surrendered Himself.

The elusive "Nicky," for whom the Canadian and American police from coast to coast have been seeking since last February, in finally fulfilling his oft-repeated promise to surrender himself, appeared at the district attorney's office bright and early.

Waited Officers' Arrival.

Besides his wife he was accompanied by Wm. J. Fallon, his lawyer. They seated themselves, and patiently watched for the attaches of the office to show up for the day's work. Five minutes after their arrival Detective Edward Rayens, attached to this office, walked up to Arnstein, and by order of Assistant District Attorney Rorke, placed him under arrest.

NEW INSURRECTION IN GERMANY IS FEARED BY HERR VON GRAEFE

Debating on Slaughter of Wives and Children of Landowners by Communists—Stateman Warns Government Against Frightfull Scenes in Preparation at Mecklenburg.

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 15. — German communists are planning a new insurrection, which may be attended by wholesale murders, according to a Berlin despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, quoting a statement by Herr von Graefe, Conservative member of the Reichstag.

Slaughter Women?

The despatch says that Herr von Graefe has advised the Ministery of Defence that meetings of communists are being held regularly in Mecklenburg, and that the question whether land holders alone should be put to death or whether their wives and children should meet a like fate, is being discussed.

Frightful Scenes.

He maintains, it is said, that "there is no doubt that Mecklenburg will be the scene of frightful slaughter."

MORE PARKING FOR MOTORCARS

CENTRE OF SIMCOE STREET BETWEEN GEORGE AND AYLMER STREETS.

A great deal of routine business was accomplished at the meeting of the Legal Committee of the City Council last night.

Ald. Gordon brought forth the suggestion that the traffic bylaw should be amended so as to make it obligatory for vehicles to turn round only at street intersections. Ald. Gordon believed that this measure would be in the interests of public safety.

Following upon this suggestion a motion was introduced by Ald. Gordon and seconded by Ald. Turner that a bylaw be prepared to amend the traffic bylaw so as to compel vehicles to turn round only at street intersections, and also that the parking of cars be permitted in the centre of Simcoe street between George and Aylmer streets, and that on this street between the two named points, cars sholl not be permitted to remain against the curbing.

Mr. J. F. Strickland appeared in behalf of Mr. N. J. Laplant and requested that the unopened street between block E and lot one, north of Perry street and east of George street, be closed and sold to Mr. LaPlante.

Ald. Gordon moved that the committee recommend the closing of the street mentioned, and the leasing of

WERE NEVER IN BIG CITY TILL LATELY

INDIANS THOUGHT BICYCLE MOST WONDERFUL THING IN THE WORLD

(By Canadian Press.)

Winnipeg, Man. May 14.—Many Indians, who were brought to Winnipeg from the far north to participate in the Hudson's Bay anniversary pageant, some of whom had never been in a large city before, when asked what they thought was the most wonderful thing witnessed here declared it to be the bicycle. The reason for this, it is said, is because he can see the working of the bicycle, whereas he fails to understand in the slightest the wonderful mechanism of the locomotive engine of the airplane, the automobile or the immense structures of the city. The bicycle with its simple mechanism appeals to the Indian's mind, and interests him much more than the more complicated machinery of modern civilization.

IS OPPOSED TO GENERAL STRIKE

ORGANIZER HOOTED DOWN WHEN OBJECTED TO SYMPATHETIC MOVEMENT.

Hamilton, May 15.—"The outlook is very dark at this moment," said Frank Healey, the international organizer, who was twice hooted down at a meeting when he protested against a sympathetic strike, as it would throw thousands of innocent people out of work, and entail much suffering.

"I am strongly opposed to a sympathetic strike," he said today. "If I can influence the engineers against such a course, I will. However, I am bound by the constitution of the union, and by the will of the majority of the engineers."

Inflamed Men.

Mr. Healey declared the letter of Robert Hobson to Mayor Booker had inflamed the men to a fighting pitch. The attitude of the company was to be deplored, and he stressed the fact that Controllers Davis and O'Heir roundly condemned the stand taken by the steel directors.

He said Robert Hobson refused to see him.

"I wrote him a letter which at some future time I may have occasion to make public, and it will show how anxious I was to avert trouble," said the organizer.

Twenty-three engineers from the Dominion Power and Transmission Company's plant would be affected in case of a general strike, and this would mean closing down many factories dependent on this plant for power.

VOTE FOR THE BYLAW.

ONCE AGAIN Peterborough ratepayers have an opportunity of fostering this community's industrial growth by endorsing a proposition which Council's manufacturers' committee, after thorough investigation, can confidently recommend as beyond the average in desirability. We refer to the bylaw authorizing encouragement to the Canadina Raybestos Company, Limited, to locate here, and which bylaw will be submitted to the people Wedensday next, May 19th. Peterborough citizens heretofore have been keen to co-operate with their Council in any measure which promises to add to their city's prosperity, and this occasion should prove no exception to that rule. This city's expansion depends on new industries, and in the Canadian Raybestos Company we are offered a factory certain of its own gowth. The parent concern in the United States is an industry of considerable magnitude, and as the market in Canada for the products which the new Canadian factory will produce is ever growing by leaps and bounds, there is no reason to doubt a prosperous future aread of the Canadian company. It is industries of such promise that Peterborough must not let slip past its doors when preference comes its way.

This company, a purely Canadian company incorporated under a charter of the Dominion Government, has agreed to purchase the Lundy Shovel and Tool plant and will use Stewart street and the Edwards lot to the west of it on which to construct two new buildings. The repairs to the Lundy Shovel and Tool building, including the sprinkler system, new floors, and changing the character of the building, besides putting in a heating system, is costing approximately $25,000.

Like the parent plant, the company will manufacture moulded clutch facings, asbestos sheet packing, millboard, brake linings, and asbestos products of various kinds. The American company shows assets of three millions and a half in a little over ten yeas of existence.

The Canadian General Electric Company of this city uses a large amount of asbestos yarn for insulating purposes, and this new industry will manufacture such yarn. Electric insulation is becoming more extensive in Canada through the growing use of electricity; automobiles grow in number with each year; and as the new factory will engage in producing material needed for both electrical appliances and motor cars it can safely be assumed that a large and increasing demand awaits the Canadian Raybestos Company.

This company intends to make the Peterborough plant the exporting factory for the English and European trade on account of this city being fairly close to the Canadian ocean ports on the east. It will be the only plant the Raybestos Company has in Canada, which uses over half the asbestos mined in Canada.

One big factor in favor of this new hoped-for acquisition to Peterborough's industries is that nearly all the employes will need a certain amount of training, after which their skill earns for them good wages.

The American Raybestos Company in 1919 erected a number of homes for their employes, and, if necessary the concern is financially strong enough to adopt the same policy in Peterborough. Just so soon as the bylaw carries, the company will lay down sufficient machinery as obtainable to start operations with twenty-five employes, and at the expiration of eighteen months will employ and keep employed at least ten months each year seventy-five hands for a period of at least eight and one-half years.

As an inducement for this company to locate here the city agrees to convey to them the late E. B. Edwards' land west of the old Lundy Shovel and Tool factory and to fix the assessment of the company at $10,000, exclusive of school taxes and local improvement rates, for a period of ten years. The company agrees to expend not less than $50,000 in acquiring and reconstructing the Lundy Shovel and Tool building and land to suit their purposes, and for machinery.

This proposition should commend itself to the ratepayers, and undoubtedly will do so. Apart from the industrial advantages to be had by the location of the plant here, the gentlemen at its head are public-spirited men, accustomed to take active interest in their community. Such gentlemen are an asset in themselves.

FOSTER SPIRIT OF GOOD WILL.

TO MAKE New Yorkers better acquainted with Canada and Canadians, and to promote and foster the spirit of good will and friendship which already exists between the two countries, are, according to the Canadian Press, among the chief aims of the new organ of the New York Canadian Club, "The Maple Leaf," as stated in the editor's announcement in the first number published today.

The name of the new publication, "The Maple Leaf," is a good one, well chosen to meet with approval from Canadians in America's great metropolis, and Americans generally.

The journal's aims and objects are truly ideal, refreshingly so when we read of a proposed bill for Congress to place an embargo on export to Canada of coal—of which the United States has plenty and to spare—in retaliation for Canada's embargo on export to the United States of pulpwood and paper, of which under present conditions Canada has not enough for herself.

However, the new magazine, while primarily published in the interests of the Canadian Club and intended as a medium for the dissemination of the news of club events among the members, will also publish news of the doings of other Canadian organizations and articles on Canadian affairs of interest to former citizens of the Dominion now resident in New York.

The editor is Mr. Arthur Elliott Sproul, a well-known New York newspapermen, born in the United States, but the son of a Canadian. His notable work in connection with Canadian-American matters has attracted attention on both sides of the line. In his editorial announcement, after referring to the necessity for combatting "the deplorable ignorance of every nation on the face of the globe in respect o all other nations," in order to bring about international respect, good feeling and permanent peace, Mr. Sproul says:

"What mental picture confronts the United States citizen when he encounters the word 'Canada' in his reading or when he hears it spoken in conversation? Does he think vaguely of a land of snowy, wintry conditions—of ice palaces, dog sledges and voyageurs—of a species of picturesque wilderness, in short? Or does he visualize great cities, handsome public buildings, throbbing factories, fine houses, extensive railroads, enormous field crops, big banks, capacious seaports, vast forests, wonderful scenery, enormous water powers, universities, hospitals, churches, important and profitable newspapers, paper mills, fisheries, mineral deposits—and all of these as the background for a social life of refinement, of culture, and of the highest charm to those within its scope?

"In other words, is it realized fully that Canada is not a mere sweep of the mapmaker's color brush in the area to the north of us, but that it is a nation—big, progressive, growing—a very real and important neighbor of ours?

"How generally is it known, for example, that Canada buys vastly more from the United States than is bought from us by the whole of South America—that is to say by Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Falkland Islands, Guiana (British, Dutch and French), Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela combined!

"The 'Maple Leaf' recognizes these things. It recognizes the immense size of the task of conferring international benefit by spreading international information. It recognises the need for the increase and the perpetuation on this continent of neighborly good feeling, based upon neighbordly acquaintance—and that, in turn, upon neighborly information."

THE SUGAR BEET.

A RECENT BULLETIN by the Department of Trade and Commerce on the sugar industry in Canada states that 204,017 tons of sugar beets were used in sugar manufacture in 1918. The cost of the beets at the works was $2,593,715, or $12.22 per ton.

In 1918 Canada had 18,000 acres in sugar beets, which yielded ten tons per acre, at a value of $10.25 per ton. In 1919 the acreage was increased to 24,500, the yield averaged 9.80 tons per acre, and the price advanced to $10.85 per ton.

In 1919 sugar was approximately 11 cents per pound; at present granulated sugar is 23 cents per pound and may be higher.

In Europe conditions have so changed that for years that continent will not reach her pre-war production of sugar from beets. This and the shortage of sugar should encourage Canadian farmers to substantially increase their acreage of sugar beets.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

THE REAL REASON.

(Kingston Standard.)

An American paper says that "the ultimate consumer has his back against the wall," and the Observer ventures to remark that the reason is because he has a rent in the rear-ward region of those pants he has to wear, with new clothes ascending skyward in price.

WELL PUT.

(Financial Post.)

Too much government in business and not enough business in Government, is the way Senator Edge puts it—and a great deal less has often been said in much more space.

THE CASE OF FOUR MEN.

(New York Tribune.)

Leonard Wood was the son of a poor country doctor. He worked his way through the Harvard Medical School on a scholarship, doing odd jobs to earn his keep.

Herbert Hoover went through Leland Stanford by waiting on his fellow students in the college dining hall.

Frank A. Lowden was the son of a Minnesota blacksmith. He tended furnaces and did other chores to earn his way through Iowa State University.

Calvin Coolidge was the son of a poor Vermont farmer, and had to make his own way from the very start.

FAKED INTERVIEWS.

(Manchester Guardian.)

Mr. H. G. Wells has been complaining bitterly of the publication in America of faked interviews with himself, but it may be noticed that he is only one in a long list of sufferes. The particular nuisance, at least, is no development of the newest journalism. Many years ago Charles Dickens had something to say on the subject in "Martin Chuzzlewit." It may be recalled how Martin asks the editor of the "New York Rowdy Journal" whether "the popular instructor often deals in forgery—in forged letters, for instance, solemnly puporting to have been written at recent periods of living men." The editor admits the occasional happening of such things, and, to Martin's inquiry of what the public does about them, replies laconically, "Buys 'em"—which may be said to sum up the whole question. Writers of popular fiction are particularly susceptible to this sort of thing, because it is always possible to extract opinions expressed by one or other of their many characters and label them as the opinions of the author himself. This is an especially easy device where the story is told in the first person, for, however roundly the author may deny the imputation, there is the too convenient "I" prefaced to all kinds of opinions, and lending itself admirably to the faked interview.

LEMNOS.

(Herbert J. Meldrum in Canadian Magazine.)

And now the war is done, the fighting o'er,
Departed are the ships and busy throng
That filled the isle with action and with life.
Now doze the natives as of yore;
For thousand years they lived the same,
No change to mark the passing of the time)
But now they have a trust—to guard
The graves of those that stayed behind:
Neat mounds, row upon row, and each
Its wooden cross that bears the honored name
Of one that died in honor's cause.

Here they shall rest, and in the years to come
Shall pilgrims journey from a thousand ports,
To pay their homage to the sacred dust!

Beneath the pale white brilliance of a tropic moon,
That soaks the scene in its transparent night,
Outlined by shadows, floating velvet gloom,
There lies a waste of rocky barrenness:
A vibrant silence fills all space with dread,
And thousand soldier spirits seem to roam
Between the glistening waters and the hills
That guard the land-locked harbor from the sea.

Chats About Books and Their Authors

There is nothing more fleeting than the popularity of a book. From a list lying before me of home 1700 works of all kinds, mentioned by the compiler as "notable", it would be hard to pick out 200 which today are read, or one third of the entire number which are even known by title to present-day readers.

Yet the list is realy a fine one of what was considered excellent general reading some twenty or twenty-five years ago. It seems to be much the same with leterature as with fashions. Constant change is needed to keep alive the trades on which so many millions depend for their living. In all the crafts fresh creations have to be constantly placed on the market. If milliners and tailors, for instance, did not exert their brains to produce new effects in headgear and clothing, women would be "hatted" and garbed in the styles of centuries ago and perhaps in some cases it would be a blessing if they were. It is much the same with literature. Publishers could not live and the printing trades would languish if fresh authors were not continually cropping up in an endeavor to woo the world's favor. In the last 125 years great changes have taken place in public taste in the matter of fiction. First there was the epoch of sentimental gush and briny tearfulness as exemplified in the novels of Fanny Burney. Then came the wild and hair-raising melodramas of "Monk" Lewis and of Mrs. Radcliffe; these again were followed by the three-volume society novels beloved of our grandfathers and grandmothers and today we have pseudo-society novels, which take in their scope every peccadillo and crime known under heaven. It is not a marvel that so many changes have been manifested in public appetite, nor when one comes to think of it, is it much of a disaster that only such authors as Scott, Dickens, Thackery and a few others have survived the great ordeal. Still there are many other books, fiction and non-fiction, which did not deserve such a fate and whose intrinsic excellence it would be wise to recall in these days of hurry and bustle. How many, for example, have read "The Amateur Poacher," by Richard Jeffries, one of the finest writers on rural life that England has produced? His book "Wood Magic," has been lauded as containing one of the finest prose poems in the language. It is to be found in the last chapter, entitled the Dialogue of Bevis and the Wind. Jeffries was one of those who suffered from lack of recognition and who well-nigh starved in enriching his country's literature. How many today know even by title, "The Amenities of Literature," by Isaac Disraeli, the father of Lord Beaconsfield? It was published when the author was 75 years old. A wonderfully interesting book it is and leads the reader into many half-hidden bypaths of English literary history. The Druidical Institution and many other subjects ase tseated in its pages. The "Annals of the Parish," by John Galt is another book which nobody reads nowadays, and yet in its own day it was looked upon as a fine production. The author is interesting to us, as Canadians, owing to the fact that he was the father of Sir Alexander Galt, at one time Finance Minister of the Dominion, and also because he was the founder of the city of Guelph. He was sent from England to Canada to act as agent for the claims of Canadians for losses entailed during the war of 1814. The government rejected his suggestions but the men for whom he had been laboring retained his services and formed the well-known Canada Company, of which they appointed him secretary.

"Ginx's Baby" was a book which in its day did its best in helping along social reform. I came across it the other day in the library and hailed it as an old friend. Its title is deceiving. It is really a satire and a very clever one on the way that the English Poor-laws and certain charitable organizations used to be administered. The author, Edward Jenkins, was born in Bangalore, India, but was educated at McGill University and at the University of Pennsylvania. He afterwards entered the English Parliament. The book ran through several editions both in England and America and excited widespread controversy.

In the field of humor we have many books and the unfortunate truth must be told that as in other departments, the old favorites seem to be drifting fast into oblivion. Josh Billings, Bill Nye, Artemus Ward, even Mark Twain, are not read to the extent that they were a few years ago. With the exception of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, Mark Twain's books lie neglected on the shelves and it is doubtful if any of the others go out more than once or twice a year. The reason is, I suppose, that taste in humor changes, like everything else. As the younger generation grows up it seizes on the favorite of the hour and allows the older writers to be forgotten. At one time Artemus Ward, or to give his right name, Charles Farrar Browne, was regarded as the prince of humorists, both as lecturer and writer. His lectures on the Mormons used to bring tears of laughter to the eyes of his audiences. But when his personality was withdrawn by death, his writings soon lost their appeal.

Josh Billings said a good many wise things in his time and some rather enigmatical ones and, like Artemus Ward, relied upon erratic spelling to make them more striking.

"It win't dew tew stir a man up when he is thinking, enny mire than it will a pan of milk when the cream is rising" was one of them.

Politicians anxious to acquire success should take notice of the following:

"Tew be a suckcessful pollytisian a man shud be butterd on both sides and then keep awa frim the fire."

"Woman will sometimes confess her sins but i never knu one to confess her faults."

There are tastes in humor as in other classes of writing and the most engrossing to many is that which is to be found in reading the lives of men like Sydney Smith and Sheridan or any of that galaxy of genius and talent which brightened the reigns of George the Third and Fourth and of William and Victoria. Anecdotes of the wits are amongst the most interesting things in literature, for they help as much as anything to divulge a man's character and the social life of his time. Stories like the following, which is to be found in Forster's life of Goldsmith, teem in many biographies. Goldsmith was in troduced to the Robin Hood Debating Society by Samdel Derrick, when Caleb Jeacolke, a baker, was president. He was so impressed by Jeacocks's imposing appearance that he whispered to Derrisk that nature must have intended such a man for Lord Chancellor. "No, no," replied Derrick, "Only for Master of the Rolls'.' Samuel Derrick is well known to us as being Boswell's tutor in the ways of London and also as havin called forth a characteristic judgment from Dr. Johnson. He was a poor writer, and on the sage being asked whether Derrick or Kit Smart was the better poet he made the reply, "there is no settling the point of precedence between a louse and a flea" Johnson seems to have liked him, however, and he certainly enlisted his help in obtaining material for his life of Dryden.

Mention was made last week of the valuable series of books dealing with old Greek and Roman writers which we have in the library. The subjject is of sufficient importance to return to for there is a lamentable lack of knowledge amongst us concerning these old writers and their times. One thing noticeable on looking through these volumes is the startling manner in which history seems to have repeated itself through the centuries. In the time of Juvenal for instance, there was the same lack of accommodation for the public which we are experiencing in these days. Houses were scarce and the poor were compelled to hive together The nobles and wealthier familtes lived in seclusion in the midst of vast estates. Rome swarmed with "bloods" of a type closely approximating to the Mohawks and Hectors who at the close of the 18th century used to make night hideous in towns and lities, by breaking windohs, upsetting sedan chairs and molesting quiet citizens. Women made themselyes conspicuous by appearing at gladiatorial combats, jjust as after the lapse of centuries they are commencing t doo today. There was patronage of literature as in Dr. Johnson's time and much the same sort of callousness on the part of patrons towards struggling and suffering authors. Then, as now, poets sometimes fosook lyric and ode and turned for a surer livelihood to writing for the stage.

WAS ONCE A CONTINENT.

Fossil Animals Found In Cuba and Porto Rico.

Assemblages of fossil mammals of ancient types and strange ancestry, found recently in Porto Rico and Cuba indicate the possibility that at one time the West Indies had a much larger mammal inhabitation than today, according to Capt. H. E. Anthony, associate curator of the department of mammals of the American Museum of Natural History, just back from an exploration trip through the West Indies.

"These fossils," Capt. Anthony says, "strongly suggest if not the existence of some mainland connection far back in the geologic age, at least the union at some time of most of the Greater Antilles into a large Antillean continent. This continent, if it existed, must have lain in the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea, with the longer axis east and west, and must have been an important land mass with large rivers and mighty mountain ranges rising, perhaps, as high as 20,000 feet or more above sea level."

This theory of mountains and rivers rests on Spencer's studies and charts of the ocean floor of the region, he explained.

"Spencer concluded from the conformation of the sea bottom that in tertiary times there must have been an elevation of this surface of somewhat between 1⅓ and 2⅓ miles. As the ridges of the sea bottom seem to follow out the general direction of the mountain ranges at present existing on the islands, he derived the theory that the under-sea ridges were originally parts of the same system. As the island ranges have an altitude from 7,000 to 8,000 feet, the mountains of the now disappeared continent would have been something like 20,000 feet high. The channels in the undersea surface, running at right angles to the ridges seem to have been cut by great rivers flowing down the mountain sides."

As to the probable extent of the continent, Capt. Anthony said that he believed it must have taken in the recently acquired Danish West Indies, to the eastward and, to the westward, what is now Central America.

Because of the strategic position of Jamaica in its relation to the Central American mainland and to such a hypothetical Antillean continent, Capt. Anthony considered it to be important to explore the fossil fauna of that island. He was successful in its exploration and secured several fossil mammals new to natural science, which, found in Pleistocene formations, must date back apprpximately 100,000 years. Most of these specimens were found imbedded in the hard limestone of caves, and were extracted only after hours of slow and laborious quarrying.

Much of the collection was brought to the museum on blocks of limestone, and much time and labor will be necessary to identify them. It has been determined, however, that Jamaica was formerly the home of one or two gigantic rodents, larger than are known to-day, whose closest ancestors lived away back on the Santa Cruz formation of Patagonia. Fossil terrapins, tortoises and crocodiles were also found.

What the explorer considered to be a surprising feature of his discoveries was the failure to find any mammals closely related to those found either on Cuba or on Porto Rico, which suggests the possibility that Jamaica may not have formed a part of the old Antillean continent, but may have existed as an eastern peninsula jutting out from Honduras. Another theory, which has few adherents, however, is that Jamaica was isolated from all other land and received its mammals as waifs on rafts, floating masses or vegetation swept down the large continental rivers.

Prohibition In New York.

Smith—Do you realize that we are beholding the completion of a great cycle in history? Jones—Explain. "Three hundred and six years ago the island of Manhattan was bought from the Indians for six quarts of whiskey." "Well?" "Well?—Within six months, maybe, the descendants of those Indians will be able to buy it back for the same price."

Teach the Children to Save

Habits are acquired early in life. Children, who are taught the value of money and the habit of saving, grow up into good business men and capable women.

The easiest way to teach children to save, is to start a Savings Account for each child ($1.00 each is sufficient). After a child has saved another dollar to make an additional deposit, he or she will have a better appreciation of just what a dollar stands for, and how much work and self-denial it represents.

OUR MINERAL WEALTH

VAST AREAS STILL UNOPENED IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Canada Will Be Silver Centre, and the Potentialities of the Precious Metal Contained in the Earth Cannot Be Over-estimated—Valuable Coal and Coke May Also Come From the Far West.

ONE outstanding feature of mining in British Columbia naturally appeals to all interested in the development of metalliferous ores, as well as coal and coke, namely, the vastness of mineral areas. Hundreds of miles have been traversed by exploring prospectors, and in a majority of instances discoveries made, now awaiting capital and active development.

The following official table (omitting a few minor districts not yet explored or worked) conveys practical proof that the above statement is in every way credible:

Cassiar and Omineca district.
Boundary-Yale district.
Slocan mining division.
East Kootenay district.
Trail Creek mining division.
Ainsworth mining division
Nelson mining division.

The ores yielding gold, silver, copper, lead, zinc, shipped from various properties within the zones above enumerated, average about 3,000,000 tons annually, while the fact that new silver fields on Salmon river and Alice Arm, in the vicinity of Portland Canal, less than seven hundred miles north of Vancouver and about 80 miles northwest of Prince Rupert, are already yielding good values in remunerative bulk, establishes the fact that metalliferous ores in paying quantities exist throughout the province.

This is no random statement, but a tangible certainty; no mere lure of treasures undiscovered, but palpable entities worthy of consideration, because Canadians must discipline themselves to appreciate a heritage worthy of conservation and exploitation by Canadians, for Canadian interests, and with responsibilities entailed thereby. Home capital lays deep and strong the foundation of self-reliance, self-confidence, progress and prosperity.

Self-preservation has been termed the first law of nature—why not of nations? Hence, with marvellous wealth awaiting the garnerers, with gradual shrinkage of supplies in other spheres, why should Canadians hesitate at the requisite efforts to utilise the situation, particularly during a period of high values, and at a time demanding concentration of energies towards replenishing domestic and national exchequers?

In presaging the possibilities of Canada becoming a great silver centre, one is reasonably assured even by cursory investigation. Sixteen years ago, Cobalt, whose revealed treasures placed the Province of Ontario in the front rank of mineral producers, a slip of broken country four miles long and four miles in width, was accidentally discovered during railway construction. Since then (1904) that area has yielded fully one hundred and thirty million dollars in silver, and incidentally pointed towards Porcupine, with its output of more than fifty million dollars in gold. Next to Ontario, British Columbia is a silver, gold, copper and lead producer, as the following figures, gleaned from official records and supervised by the very able provincial mineralogist, Mr. W. Fleet Robertson, in his annual report, will show. The tabulated statement includes the total yields of metalliferous products and coal, coke, miscellaneous metals and building materials of mineral origin:

Placer gold to date	$ 75,722,607
Lode gold 1894-1919	100,052,151
Copper 1894-1919	134,373,275
Silver, 1893-1919	50,710,194
Lead ——1919	43,952,572
Zinc, 1909-1919	15,994,360
Miscellaneous minerals	680,006
Coal and coke, 1919	196,287,653
Building stone	29,000,000
Total	$666,872,808

This is a fair showing when the seemingly insurmountable obstacles such as the absence of the necessary pack trails, in fact trails of any description, hampered prospectors at every step; added to this freshets and no bridges, long distances over precipitous passes and a score of other impediments were to be overcome. When the Canadian Pacific, with spurs and subsidiary lines through every part of the province made things easier, giving heart to the intrepid explorer, travel and ore transport became easier; each year brought and still brings improvement.

Iron exists in immense quantities, yet to be thoroughly tested according to the "Bessemer" [illegible] Platinum is found in the Similkameen district, arsenical iron, manganese, chromite, and many non-metallic minerals. More than this—the Province of British Columbia—providing the people employed in every branch of industry, appreciate conditions and concentrate energies—is beginning a new era, and one of her greatest assets will be new discoveries of metals and with this, continuity of output.

On the other hand, it must not be overlooked that mineral wealth in the United States is declining, the volume of silver ores shrinking, that gold hoards are falling off, and mining magnates are turning towards Canada.

The annual silver output of the United States yields not more than 75,000,000 while her exports are only 239,021,054 ounces, the bulk being distributed as follows:

	Ounces.
China	77,588,367
Hong Kong (British free port)	20,245,301
England	15,637,386
British India	109,180,715
Total ounces	222,649,772

The world demand for silver has reached and will doubtless exceed 345,000,000 ounces. This is the opportunity Canada should turn to advantage, for the silver output in North Ontario and British Columbia, while gratifying, can by unceasing and well-organized prosecution of work be more than trebled within the next six years. British Columbia should produce at least 16,000,000 ounces annually, and when new districts in Ontario are developed it is no dream to anticipate immense additions both of silver and gold, to the splendid results already attained. Nor must the past be forgotten in estimating probabilities; for instance, the Dominion volume of metal and mineral production from 1916 to 1919 (four years inclusive) totalled $745,150,355, an average of $186,287,355, with vast fields remaining for exploration and systematized development.

It is true that Cobalt's enormous output fell short in the past two years; even so—is the area exhausted? Is Algoma barren? By no means, and no doubt the Provincial Government and eastern capitalists will awaken to the situation, and so doing, garner rich harvests from the extensive and promising zones awaiting the advent of the pick, explosives, machinery and competent mining engineers and geologists.

Up to December, 1919, practically no mines exclusively silver, have been discovered in British Columbia. The silver ores of Slocan, Lardeau, Nelson, Ainsworth, Boundary-Yale mines in the southern coast, carry gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc. During the last two years, Skeena district, Northern British Columbia, has proved a legitimate mining area, both silver and gold; noticeably the "Premier" and "Dolly Varden." The Granby Consolidated Co.'s ores are smelted at Anyox—the total annual output from these mines so far and under normal conditions, exceeding 500,000 ounces. Up to the close of 1919, Slocan district and environment was credited with 52 per cent. of the province's silver production.

This is the story, in brief, illustrative of British Columbia's mineral potentialities.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

Saw George Eliot's Ghost.

The death of Mrs. Katherine Macquoid, the veteran novelist, at the great age of ninety-three, severs another of the few remaining links with the Victorian past. A contemporary of George Eliot, Mrs. Macquoid used to tell how she once saw the famous writer in a vision.

When George Eliot went to live at Chelsea Mrs. Macquoid proposed to go and call on her. But before she could do so a remarkable and tragic thing happened.

One night Mrs. Macquoid awoke suddenly, and saw the figure of George Eliot standing between the bed and the wall. The apparition was distinct and unmistakable. On the following evening Mrs. Macquoid learned of George Eliot's death.

Admiral Von Tirpitz Has Written Very Bitter Book

—Defending Naval Policy

HERE comes "the old pirate, Tirpitz," revealing a personality that has been a storm centre in his own country and anathema in the lands beyond. There is no doubt as to what this personality is. As we read his recently published book, "My Memoirs," the impression grows that we are listening to the last of the Ichthyosauria, looking upon a world that knows his kind no more—and despising it. His political opinions, especially, are fine, crusty specimens from the age of Frederick William the First. The very word "democracy" he fairly spews out of his mouth. He notes the deterioration of manners in the British naval officers during the years immediately preceding the war, and says it was due to "the lowering of the social standard among the recruits." In other passages the word makes him savage. And yet he goes on to prove in great detail how disastrously the German autocracy failed in its management of the navy on account of the division of authority and the constant interference of the kaiser. It is comforting to learn from the mouth of this old Bourbon how badly things can go in a beautifully efficient autocracy like the late German Empire! Hereafter we don't need to feel so apologetic about the blunders of democracy.

ADMIRAL TIRPITZ.

But he has more than prejudices to express. Snubbed by his Emperor, opposed by the Chancellor and the other officials in power, attacked by the democratic element in the press and the Reichstag, he has certain definite theses to bring forth for the benefit of his own people. First, he is vehement in his assertion that the war was not due to his naval policy. If Germany had had no strong fleet she would have had no "alliance value," and her great overseas trade would have lain at the mercy of England. Just what England was going to do to German trade is rather hazy, but there was something dreadful impending. And, of course, he falls back upon Mahan to prove that a large commerce needs a large navy to protect it.

His main point is that the German navy, created by Tirpitz during a lifetime of devotion, was not permitted to do what it could have done. He entered the Prussian navy in 1865 and it was largely due to this man that the German fleet grew from practically nothing to a rank second only to that of Great Britain. When he speaks of the possibilities of his fleet he is likely to know whereof he speaks. And it seems extraordinary that he should have been permitted so little influence in the naval policy of the war. There was no unity of administration for the navy. Apparently, the Chief of Staff, in connection with the chancellor and the Emperor, did the directing, while Tirpitz as "Secretary of State for the Navy" had little to do but offer advice that nobody paid any attention to.

Naturally, as inheritors of the accursed race of "Anglo-Saxons," we are not likely to find much common ground of sympathy for the point of view of this bitter old man, but one cannot close the book without a feeling of pity. All his life he gave to his country and her fleet. He believed passionately in the Hohenzollern empire, but he has lived to see that empire in ruin, [illegible] in his own people.

To Photograph Star.

A discovery may be made photographically by some astronomer this fall or winter in the constellation Gemini, according to Isabel M. Lewis of the United States naval observatory. It will be a star of the fifteenth magnitude in an elliptical orbit that has been difficult to find and identify because in the Milky Way there are countless others that are brighter.

The orbits of all the planets excepting Mercury, are nearly perfect circles, and discovery of a planet exterior to Neptune that travels in a greatly elongated ellipse will strike one more blow at the nebular hypothesis, which assumes, says Miss Lewis, that the planets' almost circular orbits are due to the fact that originally they were thrown off as rings from a contracting solar nebula.

Irregularities in the motion of Neptune indicate that the unseen planet is drawing near to Neptune and during this period of conjunction astronomers hope to determine the mass of the new body.

RELIEVED HIS MIND

Sumner Shaw Tells of His Defeat of Insomnia.

Possibly There Are Others Who Would Sleep More Peacefully if They Squared Up With Conscience, as He Did.

The schoolmaster, who with others was whiling away an hour in Squire Marr's office, complained that he had not been sleeping well lately. He dignified his trouble by calling it insomnia. As might have been expected, the squire had a specific.

"The thing to do," he said, "is to make your mind as near a blank as possible. When I find that my mind is disposed to work overtime, I resort to the old nursery jingle 'The House That Jack Built.' I repeat it rather slowly from beginning to end, and go over it again and again. To me the rhythm is very soothing, and the pictures that the words call up are constantly changing, just as in dreams. Presently I begin to get a little tangled up, so that perhaps it will be the priest all shaven and shorn that milks the cow with the crumpled horn. It is not long after that before I drop into real slumber that lasts until I am awakened; may be, by the cock that crows in the morn."

"Did you ever try reckoning interest as a means of inducing sleep?" asked Sumner Shaw, the carriage maker.

"As a rule, I'm not much subject to insomnia," he went on. "But I got an inkling of what it is like when I was staying overnight at my nephew's in the city, four years ago, or so. They make long evenings, and it must have been close on to ten before I got off to bed.

"'Remember that you don't have to get up at some unseemly hour, Uncle Sumner,' says Susie. 'We don't have breakfast until eight.'

"Well, I slipped right off to sleep, same as usual; but when I woke up and turned on the electric light at the head of the bed, I found it was only three o'clock.

"'Now, then,' says I to myself, 'I'll have to get another nap.'

"But that was easier said than done. The harder I tried the wider awake I was. I guess it was insomnia, fast enough. Finally I got to thinking over my past life. Well, probably I'd done worse things in my life, but what I seemed to fasten on was a little business transaction with the Widow Wiggin. I sold her a sleigh at my own price; and the very next day I sold one just like it to Cap'n Gray, and he beat me down five dollars, and I made something at that. In the circumstances I felt as if it would be no more than fair to go to Mrs. Wiggin and make her the same discount. But you are apt to let such things go, and pretty soon she took sick and died. She had no immediate family, and the property went to distant connections out of the state. So I kind of let the thing slide, as being of no great consequence, anyway.

"But it loomed up big there in the dark, and at last I had to promise myself that if I lived to get home I'd get clear of that five dollars somehow. At that time a Belgian relief fund was being raised, and I concluded that it would please her as much as anything, if she could know it, to put down a subscription in memory of Mrs. Mar'n Wiggin.

"Having settled that I felt easier, but not real sleepy; as it still seemed a long ways ahead to breakfast time. Then it occurred to me that about eighteen years' interest ought to go with that five dollars, and I fell to considering how much that would be. I am pretty good at figuring in my head, and I could have worked out the simple interest easily; but compound interest is another matter. However, I began casting it up, and I got as far as the fifth year. Then the next thing I knew Susie was singing out: 'Breakfast, Uncle Sumner!'

"So you see, reckoning interest got the better of insomnia that time. Mebbe, though, purging my conscience had something to do with it. You are welcome to both of these remedies, Mr. Jenkins," he added with a friendly wink, "in case the squire's doesn't work."—Youth's Companion.

Safe Light for Miners.

Nowadays the up-to-date miner carries a package of electricity about with him while underground. It is a small storage battery attached to the back of his belt, and is connected by a cord with a lamp fastened to the front of his cap.

The lamp, provided with a reflector, throws quite a flood of light in front of the miner. But its chief advantage is absolute safety.

In olden days miners (who must, of course, have light) carried about with them open-flame lamps. These caused innumerable disastrous accidents through ignition of coal dust or gases. Sir Humphry Davy's invention of a safety lamp whose flame was protected by a wire gauze saved an immense number of lives. It is in common use today, but the electric mine lamp is better and more convenient.

Mountain Grown Orange Pekoes are Best

Orange Pekoe Teas are plucked from every tea bush.

So there are poor Orange Pekoes and those of fine quality. Low price and high price.

The best Orange Pekoes are plucked from tea bushes grown from selected seed in the carefully cultivated soil of mountain side gardens, and gathered at a certain time of the year when the flavor is most fully developed in the leaves.

Naturally these command the highest price.

They are worth it, as you will agree when you taste their exquisite flavor in our Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea---the new and higher priced tea for those who are willing to pay a little extra price for a tea of extra quality.

There are numerous packages of Orange Pekoe teas on the market. See that the one you buy has the name---Red Rose Orange Pekoe Tea---on our waxed board carton.

Music in the Home

SURROUNDING THE CHILD WITH MUSICAL ATMOSPHERE

The significant thing about the player piano is that it does not limit its work to cultivating the desire to hear music but is equally effective in stimulating the desire to produce it. The child soon wants to master the technique and create the music himself. It is the instinct to do—the impulse which once awakened, is the teacher's most potent ally. It means that the child will begin his music lessons voluntarily, not simply under parental compulsion; that he will persevere in them because he has a vision and an aim, that vital motive which no mere sense of duty or plodding industry can replace.

To surround the child with an atmosphere favorable to awakening the instincts we wish to cultivate, then to take those instincts in hand and develop them in the way they should go, is the whole theory of the modern organic or "natural" education. Growth from within is the watchward superimposition from without the taboo. Even the most conservative educators admitthe advantage of the new conception. The only objection to it, that it is not practicable where large groups of children are concerned, falls away entirely in the case of private music teaching.

Surely if the player piano can foster this precious "growth from within" it has established its right to more than mere toleration from the music teaching profession.

BABIES AND MUSIC

At birth there is no sense of melody, no apparent consciousness of rhythm. The infant will, however, jump nervously and sometimes cry at loud or sudden noises and will soon begin to smile or coo at soft, sweet sounds. It is very important, therefore, to shield babies from loud, sudden discordant noises, and to surround them with melodious sounds that naturally pleases them. Indeed, a nervous fretful baby can often be soothed by soft music.

Music, is as natural to the human being as speech. Do not let your child's musical instinct starve in his infancy. Root his babyhood in music, that his manhood may enjoy to the utmost this God given heritage.

STUDY OF MUSIC CULTIVATES ACCURATE THINKING

A school trustee who was once opposed to granting more time on the school curriculum for music study, but who now is heartily in favor of it owes his change of attitude to being shown the value of music study as an educational subject the same as arithmetic, grammar, geography or any other regular subject, in addition to the cultural and recreational side of music.

The case for music is well put by a school music supervisor who makes this observation: "While the main purpose of music education is to cultivate an emotional reaction for the beautiful, yet the intellectual discipline which goes hand in hand with well-organized music study may easily hold its own with that developed by mathematics or science. What subject lays such stress on quick perception? The young child is taught to think through his ears first. I wonder how many music teachers realize that their success depends directly upon correct hearing? I feel that public school teachers have grasped this truth much in advance of teachers of piano and orchestral instruments. After the child has had much training in thinking through his ears, then he is taught to think through his eyes. For training in precision, regularity, form, restraint and control music has no peer. What demands more accurate, quick thinking than music reading? In mathematics the pupil he thinks in rhythm, and the mind must be alert.

"Music study which scores in intellectual discipline as well as in emotional reaction demands more time in the daily program and better trained teachers than many school systems now have, but as soon as we prove to school authorities the possibilities of music as an intellectual stimulus they will give it more consideration in the school program.

TROMBONE PLAYER OUT JUGGLED CHINESE

Those who had charge of the Chinese coolies in France during the war found them very human. Away from their homes, many of them suffered greatly from loneliness and homesickness. Some were even known to commit suicide, and no other cause but loneliness or homesickness could have been alleged.

To combat this loneliness and keep up their morale taxed the ingenuity of the men incharge. One enterprising young Canadian missionary, who had been placed in charge of a company of Chinese, arranged an exhibition of sports in which Chinese coolies and Canadian soldiers entertained each other. Both parties participated heartily and both sides had their bands with them. The Chinese found it hard to discover any music in the performances of the Canadian band, while the Canadians bluntly declared that there was no music in the production of the Chinese band. But the Canadian soldiers were greatly interested in the juggling tricks of the Chinese, applauded them heartily and called for encores and "repeats." On the other hand, while the Chinese did not see any music in the performances of the Canadian band, the trombone player greatly interested them.

Round him the coolies clustered They watched him eagerly, tittered, chattered and made many motions like mimicking him. They called for him to play again and again and seemed more and more amused. The company round the trombone player became a crowd, and the newcomers wanted to see what the others were interested in. They saw, and they also joined the company of titterers, chatterers and mimics. At last the trombone player lost patience, became angry and said that he would not play again for them. His anger was so great that it looked as though he would precipitate a fight. Word was sent to the young missionary who hastened to the spot of danger.

"What's the matter here," he asked.

"Your Chinks are making fun of me," said the trombone player, angrily. "They want me to play and play for them; and the more I play the more they laugh at me and mimic me. I'll knock the head off the first one that comes near me."

The Chinese had drawn away from the angry man, and the missionary went over to see what their version of the affair was. And when he heard it took some time to recover from the fit of laughter that seized him. As quickly as he could recover himself he hastened to the offended bandsman and explained the viewponit of the Chinese to him.

"Those Chinese are not making fun of you," said the missionary. "It is your instrument and the way you play it that they are interested in. Those fellows think that you have them all beat. You are interested in their juggling tricks, but they think that you are the greatest juggler of them all. Every time you shove your trombone in they think you swallow your instrument; and then you thrust it out, that you pull it up again."

CHILDHOOD CONSTIPATION

Constipation is one of the most common ailments of childhood and the child suffering from it cannot thrive. To keep the children well the bowels must be kept regular and the stomach sweet. To do this nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative; are absolutely safe and never fail to relieve constipation and indigestion; colds and simple fever. Concerning them Mrs. Jules Fauquereau, Normininque, Que., writes:—"My baby was terribly constipated and suffered day and night. I was advised to give him Baby's Own Tablets and from the first they helped him and now at the age of thirteen months he is a big healthy, happy boy." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

London, May 14. — Rioting in which five persons were killed and several other injured, followed a meeting at Iglesias, Sardinia, held in protest against the high cost of living, according to a Reuter despatch from Rome. After the crowds were quieted, the report adds, a protest strike was launched.

Great Britain Stirred By Prohibition Campaign

By "Pussyfoot" Johnson

A FEW months ago one of Lord Northcliffe's "bright young men" adopted "Pussyfoot" Johnson as a promising newspaper "stunt." In her Plymouth Parliamentary election Lady Astor was supported by Lord Northcliffe. Now she supports Mr. Johnson. "Pussyfoot" has gone away for a long vacation, but before he went he started something.

Journalists, politicians and publicists are all working overtime to make good those fatal mistakes. Britain to-day, thanks to their combined—and unstinted—efforts, bears the appearance of a nation of circus proprietors. Lurid advertisements smother the streets and subways; enterprising newspaper reporters and cartoonists have dedicated literally columns to a watery grave — "Pussyfoot" will never make England dry, but at least he has been the first to make her lose traditional dignity; while swarms of hired speakers stump the country, equipped with banners, "movie" pictures and much fiery eloquence—all directed against prohibition.

But the members of Parliament are the funniest. Only the other day, Ben Tillett, Labor member, assured an audience that the Turks who were the only "dry" nation in Europe, were easily the most bloodthirsty, and that 80 per cent. of the British conscientious objectors in the war were teetotalers.

B. E. JOHNSON.

Lady Astor, said another politician at another public meeting, had said that drink promised a man heaven and gave him hell. But judging by the law reports the same might be said of matrimony, and she did not propose to prohibit that.

For all that, in a tour of the British Isles to-day one detects three distinctive states of mind in relation to prohibition. In Ireland "Pussyfoot" is frank, free farce. In Scotland be is being taken quite seriously. In England there is a tendency to raise the Falstaffian tankard and to say uncomplimentary things about the intruder, and yet all the wiser men are adding: "We've got to look out!"

To mention prohibition in England eight months ago was to encounter howls of derision; to-day, with the gathering of fresh forces almost hourly in the interim, Britain stands confronted with an estimated prohibition vote of several millions.

Lady Astor's advent on what is mooted in many quarters to be a prearranged prohibition mission, backed by more than one powerful statesman: the union in this liquor matter of the Presbyterian, Baptist, Congregational, Methodist and other churches—other than the Church of England and the Roman Catholic Church—the desperate conditions of housewives' affairs owing to the continued high cost of living and the certainty that the reduction in one member of the family's drink bill would simplify matters considerably; the further certainty that benefit accrues to the public health by abstinence from strong drink; widespread recoil from drunkenness and before the existing public house, and also before a good deal of the bad liquor being sold in Britain; the fear among business men that they may be unable to keep pace with "dry" toiling America — these are some of the things one finds propelling and directing the British public's mind to-day in the liquor question.

The Prohibitionists have not yet started serious operations in England. They will do so next year, first of all in Wales. The principality will be asked to vote local option (i.e., the right to vote away public houses from any local area). The beneficial results achieved in certain "dry" areas in Scotland will be trumpeted abroad, regardless of the fact that these areas will not be dry at all. They will be getting stuff in from "wet" areas next door.

Some of the solutions of the drink problem recently put forward are:

Drinkers should be given ration cards.

Inspectors should check the quality of all liquor brewed.

No one under 20 years of age should be served.

Ostriches are polygamous, each male having three or four "wives."

Evaporation of the oceans would leave a layer of salt 235 feet thick.

JAPAN CORNERS SILKS

Manufacture of Ladies' Waists—Rotarians Meet at Luncheon.

Toronto, May 15.—As the result of the war Japan has cornered ninety-five per cent. of the silk market, stated Mr. W. Frank Goforth, vice-president of the Rotary Club, at a luncheon yesterday in the King Edward Hotel, in speaking on "The Manufacture of Ladies' Waists." There is practically none produced in Canada. He was trying out, and advocated better working conditions for employes, which would make them happy and contented, believing that the profit-sharing scheme, and departmental heads carrying responsibility, would ultimately be best in the interest of any firm.

R. J. W. Barker and B. A. Trestrail gave a burlesque demonstration of mind-reading which was a series of jibes at many members present.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralysed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Everyone cordially invited to the "church of the cordial welcome."

MRS. NELLIE PECK, of Kansas City, who says her little boy never had a well day until he began taking Tanlac. Declares she will never be able to pay the debt of gratitude she owes the medicine.

"I will never be able to pay the debt of gratitude I owe to Tanlac for what it has done for my little boy and me," said Mrs. Nellie Peck, No. 1421 Charlotte St., Kansas City, recently.

"My little boy Curtis is fourteen years old and never in his life had he seen a well day until he began taking Tanlac. I worried and worried over his condition, but in spite of everything I could do he didn't seem to gain any strength and was weak and delicate practically all his life. He seemed to have a very weak stomach. It just looked like he couldn't eat anything and digest it like other children.

"He had no appetite at all and what little he did eat seemed to sour on his stomach. Sometimes his heart would palpitate terribly and he would get so dizzy he could hardly walk and as I stood and looked at him I thought he would surely fall over. He would have had headaches and was nervous and could never sleep well at night. At school he was never able to keep up his work and he had to stay out a great deal on account of poor health.

"I had heard so much about Tanlac I decided to try it and see if it wouldn't help him. Well, you just can't imagine how overjoyed I was when he began to improve. I kept right on giving him the medicine until now it is hard for me to believe he is the same child. His health is better than ever before in his life and he is bright and playful all the time and he enjoys going out and playing with other boys. He has a splendid appetite and I let him eat anything he wants. He is not the least bit nervous any more and is asleep as soon as he goes to bed. In fact, he is perfectly well in every way.

"After seeing what Tanlac did for him I began taking it myself as I have been suffering from stomach trouble, headaches and dizziness for five years. Since taking this grand medicine I am now happy to say that I never suffer any more with these troubles.

"Tanlac has been one of the greatest blessings that ever came into our home and I expect to praise it as long as I live."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by The Warne Drug Co., and by the leading druggists in every town.

The Quai d'Orsay, where the peace delegates gathered, contains soft, sumptuous carpets, gilded chairs, heavy square armchairs, artistic marble tables, wonderful damasks, which have so often figured in former descriptions of brilliant assemblies since the early days of the third Napoleon. Some connoisseurs of these objects demand that the sumptuous carpet be covered or removed, in order to allow the plenipotentiaries of those heroic countries to smoke cigarettes at their ease, even when absorbed by passionate debates.

Make 2,000 Ukeleles a Month.

The ukulele, the Hawaiian musical instrument, which has attained considerable popularity in the United States the last year or two, was first produced by a Portuguese at Honolulu, and it at once made a hit with the natives. It is made chiefly from a native wood known as koa wood. The peculiar tone is obtained only when well-seasoned wood is used, properly prepared and fitted. In the islands the instruments sell at from $3.75 to $20 each, according to quality and decoration. In the past year the monthly production of instruments has trebled, that for September amounting to 1,800. A company was recently organized at Honolulu to manufacture 2,000 ukuleles a month; it is estimated that the total output in the coming year will be about 40,000.

Reclaiming Waste Places.

Twenty years ago a news story from Washington says land in the Louisiana parish of Tangipahoa was worth 50 cents an acre and human life was worth scarcely anything at all. It was a case of cause and effect.

Then the immigrants came. They were chiefly Italians and Hungarians. They had lived at home on land that was poorer than the Tangipahoa. They practiced intensive cultivation. Today their parish is one of the greatest strawberry farming districts in the United States.

Land that sold for 50 cents is now worth $100 an acre. And the school authorities have practiced intensive cultivation on the human products of that land. Americanization has made life worth more there than it ever was before.—Binghamton News.

ULTIMATUM FROM HYDRO WORKERS

MASS MEETING DECIDES TO STRIKE ON MONDAY NEXT

Niagara Falls, May 14.— A strike of the Hydro employees here will go into efect, Monday morning at ten o'clock, as the result of a mas meeting in the Queen Theatre last night. For a time it looked as if moderate opinions would carry, but towards the end of the meeting the men showed that they were in favor of a strike unless the commission in the meantime take the necessary steps to call a board of arbitration. At one time it looked as if there would be a stoppage Friday night at five o'clock but after a heated decision that was lost. An engineer claimed that the strike is favored by Sir Adam Beck and would play into his hands. He quoted Mr. Gaby to the effect that the Chippawa developement would be finished by schedule time, August 1921; that he claimed was absolutely impossible. He also claimed that thousands of dollars had been wasted in wages in overtime. President McSween, president of the Niagara District Trades and Labor Federation, pressed as to the support which would be given by the employes of the power house said it is not the present intention to call them out and shut down the premises. That would be as a last resort if other methods failed. Overtime has been cut out today and it was said that even if there had been no new schedule proposed there would have been overtime cut down.

The hall was packed to capacity and the men seemed to be unanimous in the decision. They have been working on an eight-hour day, paid for at the rate of time and a half. That is being cut down, and naturally there will be a considerable cut in the pay envelope. The Hydro has made all arrangements and will be in shape to shut down in every direction. The members of the federation were practically all of the opinion that the strike should be averted until every possible means have been exhausted for a settlement. The proposals of the commission call for practically a general increase of 1 cents per hour and double time for overtime. The latter system, however, will be done away with, and no overtime will be worked unless in cases of emergency. A resolution was pased as follows:

Resolution Passed.

"Whereas during the past few weeks your committe appointed by the several local unions affiliated with the Niagara District Trades and Labor Federation have made every possible effort by negotiation with the Hydro Electric Commission to bring about a satisfactory settlement as to rates of wages, working hours and other conditions; and whereas as an agreement has been reached as to the working hours and other conditions excepting the rate of wages, an effort has been made by mission to agree to submit the matter your committee to induce the commission agree to submit the matter of the rate of wages to a conciliation board under the Industrial Disputes Act, and have not succeeded, the commission having refused, therefore be it resolved that this mass meeting of employes of the Hydro Electric Commission held in the Queen Theatre, Niagara Falls, Canada go on record as determined to go on strike Monday, May 17, at 10 o'clock a. m. unless in the meantime the necessary steps have been taken by the Hydro Electric Commission for the appointment of a conciliation board.

STYLES KEEP WOMEN YOUNG

Desire for Latest and Prettiest Things an Evidence of Wisdom, According to Authority.

"Woman has gained her political and intellectual freedom," said Emil W. Kohn in an address before the New York Retail Jewelers' convention at Saratoga. "She has declared in public and in private that never again will she be the slave of men. But I venture that she will remain the willing slave of fashion.

The woman who declares she would rather be dead than out of fashion expresses a thought in every woman's mind. As it is a man's privilege to pay the bills, he may at times express displeasure. That man, however, who is permanently and chronically displeased at or indifferent to milady's pretty hat, becoming gown and beautiful jewelry is a brute and should be caged with other wild animals.

"To be contented with the thoughts and things of yesterday is to stand still, and stagnation breeds decay. To be sensitive to new ideas is to be youthful. Woman's desire to possess jewelry that is new and fashionable and beautiful is an evidence of growth, and growth is the law of life."

A Forgotten Language.

"Tee crowfoot girdle treetop turtle," said one gentleman to another, as reported by the Minneapolis Journal, in an office in that city. "Scalp thirty reel blaze," he continued, reading from an old leather-bound ledger. "Scalp thirty reel blaze," repeated his companion, and wrote it down on a sheet of paper. The two gentlemen, says the Journal, were talking a language once used but now forgotten in Minnesota, for they were respectively a former surveyor general of logs and lumber and his assistant, busy identifying some ancient logs that had been a long time sunk in a river. The strange-sounding sentences were composed of identification marks, of which at least 6,000 have been recorded since the pioneer days when logs were first cut in Minnesota forests. Billions of feet of lumber from the great forests have been thus marked, and once in a while some old logs are recovered from the river bottom, and the old ledger of bark marks and stamps on the ends of the logs is again referred to.

Raising Skunks for Fur.

As wild fur-bearing animals have decreased in numbers and the scarcity and prices of furs consequently increased, many individuals have been led to undertake the rearing of fur-bearers in captivity, as for example the efforts to breed foxes in Canada and parts of the United States, and the widespread interest in skunk raising. It is of significance that in one state alone the game warden, within a period of two years, issued more than fifty permits for breeding skunks in captivity.—Robert K. Nabours in the National Geographic Magazine.

Energy From Common Powder.

Common black sporting powder is a source of momentary energy in some railway machine shops and is used for such purposes as loosening nuts and bolts, breaking up scrap iron and steel, forcing a rusted locomotive piston, and wrenking metal cooled in a furnace. It is employed in steel guns 5 to 12 inches long and of proportionate diameter. The powder is held by a plunger without wad, and it is fired with the mouth of the gun about an inch from the work. An ounce charge is the average required for an ordinary locomotive nut or bolt.

EARLY SYMPTOMS OF BLOODLESSNESS

SHOWN BY PALLOR OF THE FACE AND LIPS—HOW TO OBTAIN NEW BLOOD.

Anaemia, or lack of blood, is so gradual in its approach that it is often well developed before the patient is sufficiently alarmed to consult a doctor or take proper treatment to restore the blood to a healthy condition.

The earliest symptom of anaemia is loss of color, especially in the lips, gums and membranes lining the eyelids. Then comes shortness of breath on slight exertion, such as going up stairs, palpitation of the heart, increased pallor of the face and lips. If this thinning of the blood is not corrected it will proceed rapidly until a complete breakdown in health follows, when there may be disorders of the stomach, headaches and backaches, dizziness and fainting spells. The most effective and prompt way to increase and enrich the blood at a time like this is through the fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have restored to good health thousands of weak, anaemic people, among them Miss Mae Johnston, of Port Arthur, Ont., who says:—"Between the ages of sixteen and eighteen I worked in a telephone office, and it was very trying to the nerves and health. I became bloodless, and so pale that friends often said I looked consumptive. One night I had to be taken home from the office, and a doctor was called in who told me I must not go back for a time. Sometimes I would faint, and to walk up stairs would leave me utterly breathless. As I did not appear to be getting any better one of my girl friends, whose mother had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with great benefit, advised me to try these. I took the pills very faithfully for some time, with the result that they restored me to good health, and now when anyone tells me they feel weak or rundown I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as I feel so thankful for the help they gave me."

If you have any of the symptoms described by Miss Johnson try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Eat nourishing food, exercise a little in the open air daily and watch the color return to cheeks and lips. You can run no risk in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial as they can not injure the most delicate system. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A COLUMN FOR VETERANS

(By Mike.)

Local veterans read with pleasure the recent announcement of the appointment of their leader, Sir Arthur Currie to the principalship of McGill University. They regard him as being the one man at the present time deserving of so high an honor.

• • • •

The veterans are a little mystified at the reception their offer with regard to the band question was given at a recent meeting of the Committee of the Whole. They cannot understand any hesitation in accepting what seems to them to be a most magnanimous offer fro mthem. The veterans themselves have little to gain and everything to lose by the proposition, and the entire proposal was drafted through considering only the general good of the community. If accepted, it will cost them $1000 to start out with, to say nothing of free light, heat and quarters, and the oinion gains ground that nought but selfish reasons could account for a refusal of the offer.

• • • •

Let Ald. Crowe and others of the same opinion understand right now that there will never be any such thing as an amalgamation of the 57th Regt. and Veterans' bands, as opinion among the veterans themselves against any such suggestion is surprisingly strong. Whatever talk there may be of amalgamation, the question nevertheless is narrowed down to a choice between the two bands, and in this case all that the veterans ask is to be considered on their merits. That is nothing more than good business. Surely Ald. Crowe will not attempt to say that the 57th Band compares either in numbers or organization to the Veterans' Band, and if he does, well let them go out and prove it as the veterans proved their worth at a recent recital.

• • • •

Accept the propositoin put up by the veterans, and the other band may then join it if it so wishes. That is the only form of amalgamation posisble under the circumstances.

• • • •

The football team won their first victory on Saturday last and played well to win it. It is just the bit of encouragement that the team required, and we may expect to see some more victories following it. The team is certainly getting into better shape than it was at the first of the season.

• • • •

The Veterans' baseball team enters the City League arena this afternoon in a match against the Canadian Woollens. Rumor has it that the Canadian Woollens is not over strong, and the Vets, therefore are anticipating a victory. It is to be hoped that the team meets with a little more success than did the football team in its first few games.

The local branch has taken the expected action of demanding the resignation from the Pensions Board of General McLean, but in the meantime the obliging General has retracted and apologized. The question now arises, does the local command stand by its demand in view of the apology forthcoming or is it to follow the action of several other branches and refuse to accept the General's belated aplogy?

• • • •

Winnipeg, May 11.—Blunt refusal to accept the apology tendered by Brig.-Gen. H. H. McLean at Ottawa for his remarks about the wives of soldiers, was the keynote of a resolution passed at a meeting of the central branch of the G.W.V.A. tonight. The Women's Service League of the same body passed a similar resolution.

• • • •

Lindsay, May 13. — Secretary Bruce of the G.W.V.A. wrote Council last night regarding the poll tax imposed on war veterans being remitted. Some of the veterans had only returned home this year. It was pointed out that the imposition of the tax was for 1920. Mr. Bruce was informed that in exceptional cases an appeal could be made to the court of revision.

• • • •

The resignation of Col. C. W. [illegible], V.C., and Col. R. C. Cooper from the Pensions Committee of the House of Commons have been withdrawn. A statement from Brig.-Gen. H. H. McLean apologizing for any offence which his words may unintentionally have caused to returned soldiers, their wives or widows, was made at a public meeting of the committee, and the whole "McLean incident," which for a time threatened to disrupt the committee, has been settled.

• • • •

With reference to the much-debated band question, the latest information which comes from reliable sources, is to the effect that in the event of the refusal of the City Council to accept the Veterans' proposal, the G.W.V.A. will as an association finance and run the band and compete with any other bands in the city. If there was any idea on the part of Ald. Crowe or others that in the event of the 57th getting the grant the Veterans' Band would disband and the players be available for the regimental band, this news will effectually dispose of that idea.

THE FUR TRADE OF CANADA - PAST. PRESENT & FUTU

BY COURTESY OF C.P.R.

FUR HUNTERS

The possibilities of the Fur Trade of Canada may be said to have had its first publicity from the visit to London of Pierre Radisson and his comrade the Sieur Groseilliers. These two intrepid French explorers arrived in the great metropolis after a long period of adventurous exploration into the primeval North West, and it is to their enthusiastic reports that the "Honorable Company of Merchants-Adventurers Trading into Hudson's Bay" owes its inception. This company was incorporated in 1670, and obtained its charter by the patronage of Prince Rupert, who was looking for some reward from King Charles at that time in return for his military services in Europe. A request for money would have sadly embarrassed the "Merry Monarch", but with his customary generosity in all things not affecting his private purse, he cheerfully signed away the trading rights of a continent. Fortunately for Canada this monopoly fell into good hands, and the outcome of this and a similar charter granted the East India Company have had such enormously favorable results on the Empire's trade that little further tribute is required in favor of well protected private enterprise. That the Hudson Bay Company has successfully survived many opposition concerns, may be largely attributed to the fairness of their methods with the Indian trapper. Unscrupulous traders, principally from the border states of America, were in the old bad days, very glad to barter cheap whiskey for expensive pelts, a pernicious practice that was at last stamped out by the North West Mounted Police.

While the Hudson Bay Company's organization entails the maintaining of big stores of commodities in the remote places of the North, the actual trading with the trapper is done with Canadian dollars, these pieces of paper being held in great respect by the Esquimaux, however rude and unlettered. Most of the big cities in Canada were originally the site of a Hudson Bay Trading Port, among others, Winnipeg, Calgary, and Vancouver, and it was mainly due to the enterprise of two Hudson Bay Traders that these cities eventually became linked up by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Donald Alexander Smith, and George Stephen learnt the "Conduct of Life" in a hard school, but from their long periods of isolation in the barren, icebound vastnesses of the North they gained that breadth of mental outlook which comes to man in no other way. In his lonely fur trading post in Labrador, Donald Smith had ample opportunity to acquire the shrewdness, the true introspection necessary to his tremendous work connected with the Canadian Pacific Railway; and as Lord Strathcona, [illegible] of young Canada from a Crown Colony to [illegible].

The fur trade of Canada is not the most valuable of [illegible] assets, but the [illegible] value of the pelts, [illegible] Canada is still one of the most productive areas for the [illegible] fur is attracting a [illegible] of interest [illegible]. It has been [illegible] Canada, and the value of pelts of all kinds exported has risen from $5,837,383 in 1917 to $14,000,000 during the fiscal year 1918-1919. Beyond the taking and trapping of furs however, the various phases of the industry have, until quite recently, passed entirely out of Canadian hands. Statistics have proved that the American markets are absorbing an increasingly larger proportion of Canadian furs, New York taking $9,748,464 worth last year as against $3,763,955 to Great Britain, and $230,202 to other countries. A considerable quantity of these are re-purchased and brought back to Canada, both in the raw pelt and in the finished garments, this anomalous situation entailing a considerable monetary loss to Canada every year. The fur interests of the Dominion have been aroused to the point of action and in future the Montreal Fur Auction Mart., a co-operative concern with $5,000,000 behind it, will undertake the disposal of these valuable skins in the country of their origin. It is to be hoped that this indispensable adjunct to not only the furs indigenous to not only the furs indigenous to Canada, but also the skins of other animals from other lands, so that the market may become a representative one, as in this way the numerous important trades necessary to the finished article will quickly develop in its train. It is proposed to hold three auctions a year, the first of which has already been held and proved a great success. Enhanced prices and an enormously increased demand have occasioned a somewhat ruthless exploitation of the natural supply of Canada's rarer furs, and there are some persons who predict the complete extinction of some species of fur bearing animals in consequence of this. Considerable attention has been given during the last thirty years to the possibilities of fur farming, and it can be safely assumed that this branch of the fur trade will be considerably developed in the next few years. An extension of the experimental fur farms established by the Government of Canada on P.E.I., and the inauguration of similar institutions in other parts of the Dominion is highly desirable.

MILLS OF BELLEVILLE AN EXPERT CATCHER

REFUSED PROFESSIONAL ENGAGEMENT AND GUARANTEED JOB.

MacLean's Magazine for May contains an exceedingly interesting article on "Baseball in Canada" by George W. ("Knotty") Lee, manager of the Brantford team in the Michigan-Ontario professional league.

Mr. Lee tells of scouting around for players last year and makes the following veiled allusion to Catcher "Peany" Mills.

I have done a lot of scouting for my own teams and also for the Toronto International Club. My itinerary has generally been south from Montreal through the New England States, down through New York and along Michigan and Illinois, ending up around St. Paul. Frankly I have seldom put in much time in Canada on the hunt for players. And at that there is just a good raw material in Canada as elsewhere.

Last year I was tipped off that a certain amateur team in Ontario had some good material. The catcher, I noticed, was handling himself in beautiful shape. He was a natural stand-up-to-the-plate batter and he had a grand throwing arm. But quite apart from this, he was dong things that you never or seldom see done in an amateur game. For instance he made splendid throws to second and caught the runner cold each time. The crowd applauded like mad. After that nine catchers out of ten, would have thrown their arms off, pegging them down to second to get more of the hand-clap stuff. But not this chap. I saw that he passed up any effort to throw to second a couple to anyone who knew the game that the runner would make it "Using his head," I told to myself, "It takes a professional to pass up the chance for applause."

Then I noticed another trick of his. He came to bat with a runner at first and none out. The first ball was rather wide and high and he made a very effectual effort at a bunt. The pitcher promptly put the ball back in about the sameplace and my man promptly squared away and jammed it to the fence for a three-bagger. All through the game he did things that did not show through the surface, but indicated that he was thinking all the time and thinking quick. The way he squatted behind the bat, the way he threw, his quickness once in throwing a bunted ball to third instead of first, everything he did was right. "An old ball player," I said to myself.

Much to my surprise I found, on talking to him after the game, that he was not only young but had actually never seen a professional game. He was a natural-born ball player. I offered him a job on the spot, but he passed it up without any hesitation.

"I've got a good, steady job," he said. "I don't feel like gambling on making good in baseball."

"Listen son," I said. "It would not be any gamble. I'll guarantee that in two years you'll get into the big league. You'll be making six thousand a year in no time."

But he couldn't see it that way. He was getting a hundred dollars a month and liked his work and he had a good chance for promotion. So there he is. If any big league scout wants a line on a catcher who would develop in time into another "Mooney" Gibson or "Chief" Myers I can give him the address.

But I don't think it is any use trying to get this lad into the game.

LOVE AND POETRY

Combination Long Prominent in Japanese Wooing.

Custom of Utagaki First Mentioned in Fifth Century, Though Believed to Be Much Older—Devoted to Verse Making.

One of the prettiest customs of old Japan that has survived the new order is the Utagaki, or gathering of Japanese young men and women in flower season to compose odes to the blossoms and to the moonbeams, forming friendships that often endure through life. It is first mentioned in the time of Emperor Yuryaku in the fifth century, although no doubt much older.

The Utagaki, or primitive form of wooing, according to which Utagaki was most fashionable, took place at Tsuwakinoichi in Yamato, in the vicinity of Mount Utagaki. At these happy gatherings, if a man failed to win the heart of the lady he was bent on winning, the others made a laughing-stock of him and jeered him to indignation. Consequently, suitors were persevering in order to escape ridicule.

As the meeting came to order, if there was order, each of the participants selected a theme for the ode to be composed. After the composition was completed, the man recited his achievement to the company, and a lady was asked to recite hers; and so it went, men and women reciting in turn, until all had done.

Those whose verses pleased the audience most were then commended for their efforts. The man whose verse won most approval was to have the lady whose verse was deemed best. At least it was easier for the ladies to like the men who were most expert in these odes, which created jealousy among those not so expert. The upshot of it all usually was that all finally mated before the festival was over.

This custom of Utagaki continued popular for centuries. Competition in poetry and love was considered worthy of emulation. One does not wonder that it frequently led to war.

As a rule the higher classes did not allow their daughters to go from home unattended; but the Utagaki was always considered an exception to the rule. Nor is it remarkable that we often read in the literature of this period such expressions as "fell in love at first sight," and so on. It was only natural that in time, as civilization advanced, the custom of holding Utagaki should fall into disuse.

There is a belief in Japan that the custom of holding these poetic love meetings is as old as the first emperor. It is said that an incident in the life of the imperial house gave rise to the custom of Utagaki. In those far-off days marriage, in 99 cases out of 100, took place by the exchanging of odes, which were expressions of love.—Japan Magazine.

The Lost Page

By CECILLE LANGDON

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

There came a call from mother downstairs, just as Lucy Barton had finished a letter to a friend at the seaside. It was six pages in length and, in gathering up the loose sheets and folding them later, Lucy Barton did not notice that one of them, the last, was missing. The wind had blown it away.

That last page bore the final paragraph of the epistle and read: "I shall not visit Ocean Beach this season, Winnie, dear. I suppose it is because I am a little homelike being and too closely analyse the superficial beaux and belles of idle social life. My dream is a modest one—a sweet little cottage, covered with roses, a cuckoo clock and a dairy. As to the life partner, with all this happy beauty he must simply love me."

A shy, retiring young man passed the place an hour later. As he neared the Barton home he walked slowly and saw to it that his cuffs were adjusted and his necktie smooth and neat. He looked disappointed as he peered past the trees and shrubbery of the garden. Gordon Heath had met Lucy Barton twice and longed earnestly to meet her again. As he reached the edge of the lot a sheet of paper, caught up from the garden by a fitful breeze, almost blew into his face. He caught it in his hand and was about to throw it away when he noticed the words, "Your faithful friend, Lucy Barton."

It made the finger tips of shy Gordon Heath thrill to come in contact with words the adorable Lucy had written. His glance rested on the paragraph preceding the signature. Reverently Gordon folded the rose-colored, violet scented page, placed it in his pocket and half a mile further on sat down on a bench in a little park and was lost in deep reflection.

That evening he met Lucy at a little social function and was her escort home. As they parted Lucy read his eager, though mute, wishes aright. She invited Gordon to call at the house and he went away blissfully treading on air.

Lucy was amazed at the liking she began to conceive for this casual acquaintance who soon developed into a regular escort. He had not the courage to seek the initial situation that would give him the right to speak out his sentiments, and Lucy did not award it. One day there was a revelation. Arrangements had been made for a tennis party at the Barton place and half a dozen of those invited had arrived. They were chatting animatedly when Neil Brown caused Lucy to flush slightly as he observed: "I say, who can solve for me the mystery of Gordon Heath's latest thrift movement?"

"Why, what is it?" propounded his sister.

"Dacre, the real estate man, told me today that he had sold the Morse cottage to Heath."

"Aha! That solves a branch mystery," broke in Ray Telford, "I saw Gordon up at the nursery last week ordering enough rose bushes to cover a farm."

"And a carpenter came into our place this morning and arranged for material to put up a little up-to-date dairy on the place Heath has bought," said Val Endicott. "He's certainly going to get married. Lucy, how is that?"

Lucy was growing as red as a peony. "Why do you ask me?" she fluttered; but just then a new arrival was observed at the gate and Gordon Heath approached. Mercy Brown, tense that she was, advanced to meet him.

"Oh, Mr. Heath, the secret is out!" she cried.

"Why, what do you mean?" interrogated Heath.

"Cottage—roses—dairy! We are all wild to know who you intend to put in that pretty home you have bought."

"Why—that is I—I purchased it as an investment."

"Nobody believes that, and while we are waiting for the others there is time to run over to the cottage in question."

He looked quite uncomfortable as the imperious group forced him to lead the way. He never addressed so much as a word to Lucy, at his side.

All about his "investment" rose bushes had been set. Behind it was the frame structure that was to be the dairy. Lucy and he stood on the porch. The others scattered about the place as he unlocked the front door.

"There are five rooms—" began Gordon, when Lucy uttered a quick gasp as her eyes fell upon a clock on the mantel.

There was an interrupting snap as a little door in the clock sprung open and a little bird ran out, ran back again and chirped:

"Cuckoo!"

It recalled to Lucy's mind her letter to Winnie. She noticed Gordon groping in his pocket. He brought to light the lost sheet.

"Miss Barton, I found this near your home. You can guess the rest. Has the cuckoo and myself got to lead a lonely life?" he spoke.

"Why, I like cuckoos," replied Lucy, delightfully candid; "and I like [illegible] too."

Her glowing eyes told the rest of the [illegible] and between them there passed their first kiss in their future home.

Things Looking Up in Serbia.

There are many evidences of bettering conditions in Belgrade, Serbia. Belgrade university opened a short time ago. The American Red Cross is now erecting barracks to house the students during the summer.

In the spirit of the people there is a marked change for the better in the last few months. Social gatherings are more frequent, and a few moving picture theaters are in operation.

Shops in the city are gradually refilling with stocks. Prices are high. Reports from the interior indicate a large grain harvest with a possible surplus for export in South Serbia. These reports have had encouraging effect on life in the capital.

China to Make Cement.

The cement requirements of North China will probably soon be supplied by domestic production. One large concern is said to control this industry in North China, and its plant is located at Tangshan, a small town about 100 miles northeast of Tientsin, on the Peking-Mukden railway. It is equipped with modern machinery, and secures its supply of limestone on the site of the works.

Will Develop Island Property.

Evidently there is one man in England who is not seriously disturbed by the idea that the ownership of large estates will progressively give way to the division of land into small holdings; at any rate Lord Leverholme has not hesitated to purchase Lewis island, which, next to Great Britain and Ireland, is the largest of the British isles. Lewis island covers some 770 square miles, off the west coast of Scotland, and has a present population of about 30,800 people. This, however, it is said, the new owner regards as quite an inadequate population for his island, which he thinks should reasonably support 300,000. His idea is to make his property the center of the British fishing business, and he has already shown his ability on the Mersey.

A Peer as a Corporal.

Lord Crawford, chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, whose principal house is Haigh hall, Wigan, has applied as "Corporal Crawford" for membership in the Wigan branch of the Comrades of the Great War. In the early days of the war he enlisted as a private in the Royal Army Medical corps, served in France as a private, and was later promoted to a corporal, which rank he still retains.

GUN COTTON BASIS OF SILK

French Inventor, After Long Study, Has Evolved a Truly Wonderful Artificial Product.

According to Count Hilaire, inventor of artificial silk, which is now produced by vast factories in Switzerland, Belgium, France, England and the United States, it has for its basis nothing less than gun cotton. One of the greatest problems he had to solve in perfecting it for everyday use was to render it nonexplosive.

The gun cotton under the chardonnet process is first dissolved in a mixture of alcohol and ether and then spun through fine capillary tubes by means of hydraulic presses.

Other chemical processes give it incombustible and nonexplosive qualities, together with the consistency and the transparency of the finest silk from Japan or China.

It took just 30 years of the 80 which Count Hilaire has completed to perfect his discovery and render it of actual and practical commercial value.

The illustrious chemist and scientist has just been elected to the supreme honor of membership in the French Academy of Sciences for his discovery of how to put one over on the silkworms. During the war he had been decorated by the French minister of war with the Cross of a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor for discoveries relative to the manufacture of high explosives growing out of his researches made primarily to render artificial silk stockings nonexplosive.

TYRONE POWER AT GRAND ON THE 24TH

WILL BE SEEN IN POWERFUL DRAMA OF LOVE AND SACRIFICE

Mr. Henry Moss, business manager for Mr. Tyrone Power, is in Peterborough today concluding all arrangements for the return visit to this city of this distinguished actor at the Grand Opera House for one night only, Monday, May 24th (Victoria Day).

When the eminent English actor Mr. Tyrone Power, and his excellent English company were seen in "The Servant in the House" a few months ago at the Grand Opera House, local theatre-goers were given a rare artistic treat, which will be remembered for a long time to come, and it is owing to the phenomena success which Mr. Power and his company has achieved that Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, will play a return engagement in this city at the Grand Opera House on Monday, May 24 (Victoria Day), and for this occasion Mr. Power will be seen in the powerful drama of love and sacrifice "The Little Brother," from the joint pen of Milton Goldsmith and Benedict James.

"The Little Brother" is the powerful story of the conflict in religions between a priest of the Russian church and a Rabbi of the Jewish faith, which has its inception in Russia and which ends in a truce of souls in New York. When Mr. Power first produced it two years ago, his portrayal of the little brother, a fanatic of the Greek church faith, was so vivid and so impressive as to create a sensation closely paralleling that which he made as the "Drainman," in "The Servant in the House."

In this play there will appear a young and rising actress, who will be welcomed by many who know and admired her distinguished father. Miss Edna Holland comes of notable acting stock, for the late E. M. Holland was in his day on of the most illustrious figures upon the English-speaking stage. Miss Holland possesses natural historic gifts of a high order and bids fair to win something of her famous father's popularity.

The cast selected to support Mr. Power will be exactly the same as was seen here in "The Servant in the House," which includes Mr. Harvey Hays, who for three seasons was Mr. Faversham's leading, Mr. Walter Edwin, Mr. Harold De Becker, Mr. J. Irwing White, Mr. Robert Taber, Miss Alma Chester and Miss Chela Knight.

The presentation of "The Little Brother" will mark the second initial production send out by Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited.

CAUGHT RED HANDED.

Stealing Flowers from St. John's Grounds and Victoria Park.

Children have been causing much annoyance by stealing flowers from St. John's lawn and Victoria Park. Yesterday a party on Sheridan street was caught red handed and let off with a warning. It was announced from police headquarters this morning in this connection that there would be no such thing as a warning and that prosecution would undoubtedly follow upon the next occasion when flowers were taken from the public parks.

CONCILIATION COM. OF THE CITY COUNCIL DOES SPLENDID WORK

Brings Parties in Industrial Differences Together Which Results in Agreement Being Reached.

Mr. W. H. Harper, the machinists' organiser in the strike which has just been settled, speaks in glowing terms of the work of the City Council's Conciliation Committee, especially of Ald. Whitehouse

After outlining the negotiations from beginning to end, he said the men felt that the appointment of a committee by the City Council was a step in the right direction as it meant getting together the three parts of the community—labor, capital and civic government. It was a ste pwhich could well be followed by other sections of the country, as it brought both parties of the controversy together

Mr. Harper stated that he had found that in many committees where, without investigation, labor was branded as Bolshevism, whereas if the method adopted in Peterborough had been followed it would have been shown that in most cases labor's attitude was fair.

The following words of Mr. Harper speak for themselves of his opinion of the work of the City Council in affecting a settlement: "In my opinion we have found in Ald. Whitehouse one man on the committee of impartial views who has worked night and day to bring about an adjustment of labor troubles in the city, and who has been an outstanding figure in bringing about a settlement of the C.G.E. strike. Through his efforts in coming in contact with the industries he has been able to express their views in such a way that he quickly brought about an adjustment. He impressed upon us thatthe men must get together and state the lowest upon which they were willing to settle up. This was done and inside of 20 minutes after meeting the officials of the company a basis of settlement was arrived at."

The basis of settlement was as follows:

Semi-skilled helpers — Minimum rate of 50 cents an hour.

Where the men were getting above these rates they are to receive an increase of 5 cents an hour. It was also decided that work in the machine shops, brass shops, tool rooms and fitting floor should be classified. This work will be undertaken by a committee composed of two representatives of the men and two company officials. These four will classify all the work, and if they fail to agree they shall appoint a fifth man whose decision shall be final. Other conditions affecting overtime rates, etc., were left as granted by the conciliation board of 1918.

Mr. Harper stated that the feeling now existing among the men was that in gong back to work under the new conditions they would be able to co-operate with the company better and to show that under these methods better production would be secured, and that a feeling would be created in the minds of the company that they had not made a mistake in granting the conditions which they have granted to the men.

The following is an exact copy of the agreement made between the company and the men:

The Agreement.

PROTECTION BY PASTEURIZATION

Your Protection is in Pasteurization

Ask your milk dealer if he Pasteurizes his milk, because only by this process can the deadly bacilli that lurk in the very cows themselves be destroyed.

"No raw milk should be given to children unless it is known to be produced under clean conditions. If such milk cannot be procured it should be Pasteurized. We guard with great care, as we certainly should, our public water supplies, but disease germs do not multiply in water as they do in milk; in fact, cream and milk are very suitable media for the growth and rapid increase of many pathogenic germs."

Unless one knows beyond question of a doubt that the cows are in perfect health, that every step in its handling is such that there can not be any infection,, ulessa these requirements be met absolutely, use only properly PASTEURIZED MILK.

OUR MILK IS CLARIFIED AND PASTEURIZED.

Clarified is Clean—Pasteurized is Pure.

OUR MILK IS CLEAN, PURE AND SAFE.

FRENCH AND BRITISH PREMIERS AGREE TO ISSUE OF GERMAN BONDS

This Method of Covering Indebtedness for Reporation Would Enable France to Discount Part of Her Claims on Germany and Settle Former's Debt to Allies

(By Canadian Press.)

Paris, May 17.—It is understood it was decided that Germany would be permitted to issue bonds covering thirty billions of indebtedness to the Allies, payable in annual installments. Such action, it is pointed out, would enable France to discount part of her claim on Germany, and permit her to settle her debts to the United States and the Allies.

Definite Conclusions.

This decision together with the action taken postponing the Spa conference with the Germans to June 21 comprise the definite conclusions reached by the French and British Premiers and their advisers, according to the understanding here.

Special Conference.

All other details of arrangements to settle are in the hands of financial delegates, who are still working upon them. A special conference of the Allies will be held at Ostend to consider the financial question, it was stated. The date of this conference remains to be fixed.

$20 FINE FOR SPEEDING

Local Man Must Pay for Scorching Down George Street.

In the Police Court this morning a local motor car speed artist was fined $20 and costs for scorching down George street on Friday night. It was bad enough to speed at all but to speed on busy George street was worse. The accused decided to waste no time and plead guilty in consequence of which the above fine was imposed upon him.

The local youth who the other morning was charged with stealing an overcoat and also with stealing the sum of $6 and whose case was remands until today was let out on suspended sentence on the payment of the costs of the court and the condition that he report regularly to the chief of police. He seemed to be well pleased with his good fortune.

A local man pleaded guilty to a charge of being intoxicated and paid the usual ten dollars and costs.

BREAD GOES UP ONE CENT TODAY

The high cost of living received one more boost this morning. This time it was from the bakers, who increased their prices one cent on the small loaf and two cents on the large loaf. These prices took effect this morning, the retail charge now being 14 cents and 28 cents respectively.

When questioned on the matter the bakers were inclined to pass the buck on to the mills, stating that their prices had only been increased to cover the recent increase in the price of flour.

FIVE HUNDRED ACRES BURNING

BUSH ON RANCH OF JOPLING BROTHERS CATCHES FIRE.

On Saturday afternoon a bush on the ranch of Messrs. Jopling, butchers, George street, and also on a neighboring ranch belonging to Mr. Cullen, just this side of Buckhorn, caught fire and burned fiercely. At the time of gong to press some 500 acres had been covered by the blaze and the fire was still burning, although well under control.

Mr. Jopling stated this morning that he believed there had been an old lumber camp in the bush and that the blaze started from there. There were 85 head of cattle in the bush at the time, all belonging to Mr. Jopling, but he thinks that they may all have escaped through Mr. Cullen's property.

Soon after the fire was discovered neighbors and farmers from far and near came to help stem the progress of the blaze and during yesterday there were more than a hundred amateur fire fighters, some with extinguishers and chemical tanks and others with picks and shovels.

Mr. Jopling said that if the fire had happened a few months later with the crops in the fields, the losses in the district would have been very heavy. As it is the loss is trifling and confined mostly to a few fences and the bush unless any of the cattle have been unable toget away.

Yesterday afternoon many motorists went out from Peterborough to see the fire the reflection of which could be seen for some distance around.

VETS WILL NOT MEET

The regular meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association, which was to have been held this evening, has been postponed until tomorrow night on account of the fact that the City Council is meeting to-night and will likely take up the land grant question. The officials of the association felt that the meeting should be postponed so that the members would be able to know just what was going to be done in the matter when they met and would be able to govern themselves accordingly.

RIOTOUS DEMONSTRATIONS ARE AGAIN RESUMED IN LONDONDERRY STS. TODAY

Nationalist and Unionist Mobs in Fierce Street Encounters Bottles, Bricks and Pistols Resorted to—Ex-Soldier Killed, Several Wounded—Police and Military With Machine Guns Ordered to the Scene—Troops From England Arrive at Bantray.

(By Canadian Press.)

Londonderry, May 17. — Rioting last night between Nationalist and Unionist mobs was even fiercer than Saturday's fighting. Bottles, bricks and pistols were again freely employed by the combatants.

Threw Stones and Bottles.

Groups of men and women in the Unionists' quarters of Fountain street, and similar groups in the Sinn Fein quarters of Bridge street, followed an exchange of party cries with stone and bottle throwing.

Ex-Soldier Killed.

In addition to killing an ex-soldier named Doherty, three others were wounded when hostilities broke out. The police in the disturbed districts were withdrawn and for four hours the mob was supreme.

After two nights of rioting, Londonderry was again the scene of riotous demonstrations today. The city was in a state of high tension, and hundreds of men remained absent from work, walking about the streets, where many individual encounters occurred between the Sinn Feiners and Unionists. There was considerable stone throwing, and at one point the Sinn Feiners, the police reported, fired at two ex-Unionist soldiers, but missed their mark.

Machine Guns and Police.

Hundreds of military with machine guns, and police with rifles were ordered to the vicinity of Bridge and Fountain streets.

Troops At Bantray.

Cork, May 7. — Two thousand troops from ngland were landed at Bantry on Saturday and immediately distributed throughout West Cork where they will be stationed at points five miles apart.

Troops to the number of 150 also arrived at Skibberen. They commandeered several buildings there including the town hall, which was made their headquarters.

CONSECRATION AND CONFIRMATION AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH BY BISHOP W. D. REEVE

Sacred Edifice Free of Debt Canada Urged to Maintain Her High World Position

The service at St. John's Church last evening was of a dual nature, the occasion being the consecration of the beautiful chancel and confirmation of twenty-five young people by Bishop W. D. Reeve, assistant to Bishop Sweeney, of Toronto diocese.

The service was impressive and appealing to a large congregation.

St. John's chancel was re-constructed in practically its present form on All Saints' Day, November 1st, 1882. Last night at its consecration Bishop Reeve declared the chancel, the whole church, Sunday

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH, PETERBOROUGH.

Now free of debt—Chancel consecrated yesterday by Bishop Reeve of Toronto.

School and grounds free of debt. His Lordship congratulated the congregation upon having by their contributions last Easter paid off the only remaining mortgage. "This congregation," he said, "should be a matter of thankfulness and gratitude to that God, whose house of worship this church is, for it is none other than the house of God and the gates of heaven. If we had more such churches scattered throughout the country we should have better representatives in Canada than at the present time.

While not reflecting on other denominations in any way, the Bishop contended that the Church of England should lead because of its past history, its traditions, splendid order of service and devotion. He enlarged on the fact that the Church of England services embraced more scripture than those of any other church services which every man, woman and child can take part in Touching on present day conditions, Bishop Reeve pointed to the high position Canada is enjoying in the world today—a position due to the heroism of her brave sons at the front—and the question now arises, "Is Canada going to maintain that position or allow it to be gradually lowered?" He urged the fear of God and practice of righteousness; in maintenance of the right in world-respect and admiration, at which Canada now stands.'

Turning to the Forward Movement, he hoped Anglicans would not rest content with having reached their financial objective, but would live up to their obligations and carry on toward that greater objective of spiritual uplight in this country, through example and suasion. Churchmen and churchwomen should show that they are better men and women by doing their religious duty thoroughly in the sight of God.

OFF TO A GOOD START

The Salvation Army campaign, which has as its local objective the raising of a sum of $5,000 for the good causes of the Army, got away to a good start this morning. The canvassers were all out bright and early, and one and all were most optimistic that the objective would be reached in the period alloted for the canvass.

SAXON CAR BURNED.

Caught Fire While Loading up With Gasoline Yesterday.

Some excitement was caused on Charlotte street on Sunday afternoon about 2 o'clock when a Saxon car owned by J. M. Johnson caught fire and was completely demolished.

Johnson was having the gasoline tank filled at Hicks' service station and the tank overflowed, the gasoline spreading to the engine. When Johnson went to crank up a short circuit was formed and a spark from the top of the spark plug ignited the gasoline on the outside of the engine. The front portion of the car was saturated with gasoline, and the flames spread like lightning until the whole car was enveloped.

The fire department was called to the scene, and laid a line of hose and drowned the flames out, but not before irreparable damage had been done to the car. Fear was at first entertained that the flames might cause an explosion in the gasoline tank at the service station, and willing hands assisted to move the burning car from the vicinity of the storage tank. This was difficult as the brakes wer on.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH REOPENED AGAIN SUNDAY AFTER EXTENSIVE RENOVATION

Anniversary Services Conducted by Rev. D. N. Morden an Eminent Divine.

Anniversary services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday were conducted by Rev. D. N. Morden, pastor of St. James' Square Church, Toronto. The church was crowded for both the morning and evening services. It has just been redecorated and the service yesterday were both anniversary and the re-opening.

Over 87 years ago St. Andrew's Church was first organized and it is now 36 years since the erection of the present building.

Rev. D. N. Morden at the evening service took for his text the words. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things (meaning clothes, food, meat, drink, etc.) shall be added unto you." During his address he laid particular stress on the necessity for more emphasis being laid on the scriptural of the kingdom of God as written both in the Old Testament and in the New Testament. It was a kingdom in which God ruled, the laws of which expressed the will of God. The seeking of such a kingdom and the establishing of it would bring about a condition of society in which no one would need to have any more fear about food, drink and the other so-called necessities physical of life.

Today the mistake had been made of thinking of religion as being exclusively concerned with the spiritual salvation of individual souls whereas to the prophets and Jesus Himself the physical conditions of life, such as justice, mercy and righteousness, were of first-rate importance, not only in their bearing on the soul of man, but also in their bearing on the physical aspect of life.

Rev. Mr. Morden is an eloquent speaker and created a wonderful impression on the crowded congregation who heard him.

HYDRO STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

FIFTEEN HUNDRED MEN LEAVE QUESTION WITH LABOR MEMBERS.

PUBLIC AGAINST A STRIKE

ASK COMMISSION TO ENQUIRE INTO DISPUTE AND PROPOSE REMEDY.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 16. — There will be no strike on the Chippawa development work of the Ontario Hydro-electric Commission here tomorrow.

By a practically unanimous vote, 1,500 workers, who crammed the Queen Theatre here, decided to allow the Labor members to put a resolution before the Legislature tomorrow which will call for the appointment of a Commission to inquire into the causes of the dispute and propose a remedy.

The members were given carte-blanche by the men to take what time was needed for this.

A resolution calling for the time to be limited to one week was defeated, and another suggestion that the men go out on Tuesday unless the resolution passed the House tomorrow was also passed by.

Labor Members Thank Men.

When the resolution passed C. F. Swayze, M.P.P. for Niagara Falls, thanked the men, assuring them that they had done a wise thing.

Mayor M. M. MacBridge, M.P.P., for Brantford, also tendered his thanks. "They have been accusing Labor men of being Bolshevists, but you are sending out a fine, sane message to the people of this Province by your decision here to-night," he declared.

Vera Cruz, May 17.—Mexican revolutionary troops commanded by Generals Sanchez and Aglar are pursuing President Carransa and troops which fled with him from the battlefield at San Marcos on Friday.

Capture 3,500.

Government forces numbering 3,500 were captured by revolutionary troops following the escape of Carranza.

General Liberate Torres, who was wounded in the fighting on May 13, and was brought to this city, is dead.

Trying to Reach Carranza.

General Candido Aguilar, Governor of Vera Cruz State, and son-in-law of President Carransa, who has been virtually a prisoner of the revolutionary forces near Orizaba, escaped last night.

It is believed he is trying to reach President Carransa, who fled into the mountains near Chalchicomula on Friday, and who so far as is known, has not yet been located.

Danger of Captive.

"Gen. Obregon, at Mexico City, has reported by telegraph to President De la Huerta, that after a sharp engagement yesterday in the vicinity of Linconada, Carranza's column broke and fled abandoning trains and leaving in the hands of the de facto government numerous autos, four guns of large caliber, two mountain guns, an enormous quantity of munitions, including rifles, one air plane and an entire train of general supplies.

"In imminent danger of capture, Carranza, accompanied by a few admirers, took flight under the protection of a small escort of cavalry in the direction of Perote Castle and the mountains of Vera Cruz.

"At the same time the forces of a large number of prisoners, bars of gold and silver in considerable quantities and several families who had left Mexico City with the ex-President. During the engagement Carranza burned all his records and archives and endeavored to set fire to his military train, which, however, was saved. All prisoners are being well cared for."

All of the members of Carransa's Cabinet had been captured and sent to Mexico City, according to a message said to have been received today by revolutionary agents here from General Alvaro Obregon, who at present is in Mexico City.

CREDIT DUE OUR UTILITIES COMN.

Through the city they have the best electrical and mechanical working equipment in Central Ontario district. One of the latest additions to this fine working outfit is a three ton log wagon equipped with a derrick. The whole device is very portable and will either raise or lower the heaviest pole in a few minutes with absolute safety.

By means of this up-to-the-minute outfit, the 20 poles on Charlotte street from George to the Grand Trunk were all taken down in a few hours this morning. Many of us can remember in days gone by when a gang of men worked all day on George street to lower two poles, and when the poles were safely landed to the ground, many would have a sigh of relief that no accident so far had happened.

This section of Charlotte street now presents a real live city appearance, with its power wires strung along the tops of the electrical light iron standard poles as intended in this style of standard.

MISCARRIAGE OF FORTUNE.

PRESENT AND FUTURE power of currency should enter into one's calculations now and at all times, for there are in this connection both benefit and injustice, quite legitimate, and over which neither the individual beneficiary nor the loser has any control. It simmers down to the actual value of currency with the passing years, as strikingly exemplified in those Bolivian loans made by the French.

Before the great world-wide war France made two loans to Bolivia, aggregating 50,000,000 francs, and worth $10,000,000 in gold. This money, it seems, was the savings of prudent and even self-denying French people. Now, however, when payment of these loans by Bolivia is due—and such payment can be made through the American exchange market in gold—those 50,000,000 francs or more are worth but $3,500,000 in gold. And so the borrower makes a clean profit of $6,500,000 by paying off his debt.

"This is a special of repudiation which in no way reflects upon the debtor," says the Sun and New York Herald. "The borrower pays exactly what he contracted to pay—50,000,000 francs—in exactly the money he agreed to pay it and was specially bound by the contract to pay it. Yet in the actual result he pays off his obligations on the basis of thirty-odd cents on the dollar.

"And at the very time when such French lenders of seven and ten years ago are now getting back only a third of what they put out in loans, French borrowers of today, whether the government, or manufacturers, or merchants, are compelled to borrow in francs but must contract to pay back in gold.

"It is a sorry dividend upon prudence, frugality and self-sacrifice of the past that here and the world over there is a similar injustice differing only in degree from what those French investors in the Bolivian loan have suffered. The insurance policy of $10,000, to pay the premiums on which some father and husband raked and scraped for years, was invested after his death, say, at four per cent. for his widow and orphans. In all those years he counted upon it to yield them some $400 a year. Now it yields them in effect only $200 a year, because the dollars of income out of that policy will buy for the widow and orphans only half what the husband or father carrying the policy through the years believed it would buy for them. And so for the time being it is with all the invested savings of the past—with the endowment funds of schools, churches and hospitals; with funds carefully and lovingly put away for the support of the blind, the crippled and even the hopelessly insane."

While all this is a miscarriage of fortune, the same principle of fluctuating currency value has always obtained. What was competency before the war is poverty these days, and among those, who suffered most during the war and now, were and are people who thought they had sufficient means to keep the wolf at a comfortable distance from home without engaging in either labor or business. Their settled incomes would and do not go far enough.

But there is a reverse side of the principle also. And that is, earners today who have saved during the war and are saving now, can safely rely on the day coming when those savings will represent twice what they do now. That is to say, inflated prices must drop sooner or later, and with cost of living depreciation the value of those dollars accumulated will increase. These are days for making hay while the sun shines. Eliminate extravagance and save what can be saved, not only for a rainy day, but in anticipation of that time so surely coming when under normal conditions one dollar will have the value of two. This is a duty which every man owes to his family.

FARM HELP.

THE CANADIAN FARMER complains bitterly that he cannot get help. From Manitoba comes the cry that much land will go uncultivated this year because of manual labor not being forthcoming. And why is it that farm labor is short? Can farmers expect to continue indefinitely hiring help just for a few months in a year and dispensing with it as soon as the snow flies? Such is the general rule which obtains, although there may be exceptions. A small army of farm laborers have suffered in the past from such conditions, and can it be wondered at that after getting positions in industrial centres during the winter months, where such positions are open to them the year round, they refuse to go back to farming again with its prevailing see-saw principle of hire and discharge? No, and the farmer must rise to the occasion and resort to intensified farming and stock raising to find employment for steady help, or this shortage of labor will grow more and more acute. Too much land and opportunity is wasted by the majority of farmers. Education in this regard, and in greater production from a given acreage, is offered by our agricultural colleges if farmers and farmers' sons will but take advantage of it.

The successful farmer in the Old Country cultivates every bit of his land and resorts extensively to fertilization. For his married help, and he hires for all the year round, he has a cottage with a bit of land sufficient for its tenants' maintenance in garden produce. He finds permanent work for his hands, and, while the wages are small compared with those paid here, yet permanent employment and other conditions assure in the main content and help supply.

We have come across farms in Canada, patterned considerably on those in the Old Land both in regard to intensive cultivation and steady employment, and those farmers had certainly no cause to complain of lack of prosperity or of help. But they are all too few. Unless the Canadian farmer can order his method of operations to provide for a greater degree of permanency for his help, he need not expect to find a sufficiency of men waiting each recurring spring to work from sunrise to sundown, with the certainty of being discarded in late fall like a worn-out shoe. Both young men and married men these days are looking for a life worth living, and are not satisfied with merely a precarious existence.

SOLDIERS' RE-ESTABLISHMENT.

THE SPLENDID SERVICE of the C. P. R. in re-establishing soldiers in civil life is the subject of a special article in the April number of the Veteran, which says:

"The re-employment of returned soldiers has been carried out by the C. P. R. so whole heartedly that according to the official records up to the end of February, actually more returned soldiers have been given employment than left the company for service overseas. The exact figures are as follows:

Total reported as joining the army.	10,955
Dead	1,069
Wounded	2,054
Re-employed in the service	6,687
Other soldiers given employment	9,224
Total soldiers given employment to date ...	15,911

"In finding employment for returned soldiers, the C. P. R. has found by experience that in most cases it is advisable to reinstate them in the same department as that in which they worked previous to enlistment."

AS OTHERS SEE WILSON.

IN ASKING what it is, apart from malice or prejudice, or even mischief-making, which has again aroused ill-feeling between two nations of professedly the same blood and traditions—England and the United States—Muriel Harris in an English exchange says, in part:

"First and foremost, Americans are darkly suspicious of British designs since the armistice. It is the suspicion largely of inexperience, of provincialism, in many cases of ignorance. It is the feeling which Anglo-Saxons are wont to have against Latins—that their own directness is disadvantageously opposed to subtlety, even to tortuousness. The British are held to be astute diplomatists constantly outwitting the honest American. Even if this is not put into words—and many Americans love England, and, when possible, tell you of their English descent—the feeling is there. Nor is this vague discomfort unsupported by tangible proof. England accepted the Fourteen Points. Now the Peace Treaty may or may not be in conformity with the Fourteen Points; what is quite certain, in American eyes, is that England has since acquired enormous gains of territory; that, fighting for the rights of small nations, she still has her Irish question, that, in spite of an adverse exchange, her export trade has never been so good, and that the adverse exchange somehow—it is difficult to say just how—is profiting England, the debtor, rather than America, the creditor. Further, England has obviously much to gain from a friendly America. What has America, rich, immense, self-contained, to gain from any arrangement with a Europe which seems to her nothing better than a sort of Balkan question, in which she may lose much—especially in dealing with those astute Europeans—and gain nothing.

"Then President Wilson has unconsciously been a bad friend to the furtherance of an Anglo-American understanding. 'The best President England ever had' someone described him bitterly. He is the most disliked man in the United States just at present, whether by the Republicans, his natural enemies, or by the Democrats, who feel that he has betrayed them. And this well-hated man is suspected of being fundamentally Anglicized. This belief is well fanned by both Irish and Germans. Perhaps almost any other man could have carried the Senate with him over the League of Nations. As it is, the League, which in Europe is regarded as Wilson's particular affair, is here regarded as England's particular affair, piloted by Wilson. It is—not a plot, since England acts unconsciously always in her own interest—but a means by which England may remain the real arbitrator of the world—and not America, as England is always politely saying—may tie up and shackle the simple giant. America, before she has come to a realization of her full powers and perhaps constituted herself England's most formidable enemy. There is a real admiration among most Americans, even if it be unwilling, for England's share in the war. This admiration they are disposed to give, but they do not at all like the airs of superiority which are assumed by some Englishmen in response. Coupled with the great distance between the two nations, over which many matters have ample time for misunderstanding, these causes are some of those which are making for dislike between England and America. No compliments, no ringing of the Anglo-Saxon changes, no outside methods, can much affect what is fundamentally due to differences of temperament, coupled with lack of knowledge on both sides. America has immense problems of her own to solve, and she is greatly worried by them. She doesn't at heart feel capable of dealing with any more, but she doesn't like saying so. Propagandists of Anglo-Saxon unity have made a supreme mistake in narrowing their appeal. It is not for the countries concerned that Anglo-Saxon unity is most necessary, but for the benefit of the whole world. In both countries the wider conception would serve to dissolve much of the ill-feeling and misunderstanding, which are regretted by the better elements in both."

THE KNOT OF GRASS.

Year in, year out, by lonely roads,
 Red farms and merry fairs,
We shouldered, in good fellowship,
 Our humble basket wares.

And we took a separate path,
 I'd look to see you pass
At sunny crossroads where you set
 Our token knot of grass.

No more it points the way you went;
 Whatever road I take,
I shall not find you at the end
 Until that good day break.

When footsore travellers tread soft
 a green turf by green streams,
When all life's twisted, tangled ways
 Shall seem but dusty dreams.

For me, I know, the roads of Heaven
 Still keep the old surprise:

BACTERIA IN THE MILK

Bacteria, Yeasts and Moulds Greatly Influence Milk.

Most Bacterial Changes Are Hurtful—How Bacteria Gets Into Milk—How to Prevent Injury to the Milk.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

BACTERIA play a very important role in the milk and dairy industry. Practically all the natural changes either good or bad that take place in milk from the time it is drawn until the time it is consumed, or otherwise used, are due to the action of the various species of bacteria that gets into it, though sometimes yeasts and molds are involved.

If the milk is to be consumed as milk, then most of the changes that take place in it, as a result of bacterial action, are injurious. Exceptions to this are found in the prepared fermented milk, as Kephir, Koumiss and Bulgarian milk; in these, however, the bacterial action is controlled and cultures of certain species of bacteria are added to the milk to bring about the desired changes.

Everybody knows that if a sample of ordinary milk is kept for a few days, particularly if it is not kept cold, it will sour or become gassy or ropy or putrid. This souring, ropiness, gas production and putrefaction, is brought about by different species of bacteria in the milk. As the changes in the milk which these bacteria produce are injurious and undesirable, everybody who has anything to do with the handling of milk should know how to prevent their occurrence.

In the ordinary methods of obtaining and handling milk it is impossible to prevent some bacteria from getting into it. With proper care, however, a large percentage of the bacteria that ordinarily get into milk can be prevented from getting in, and with proper handling of the milk the few that do get in can be prevented from producing any marked changes within a reasonable time. It is desirable, then, that those who have to do with the production and handling of milk should know how to prevent, as far as possible, the bacteria from getting into the milk and also how to prevent those that do get in from bringing about the changes which result in the spoiling of the milk.

How Bacteria Get Into Milk.—Unless the cow's udder is diseased very few bacteria are present in the milk as it is drawn, and those that are present are of very little consequence. Thus the bacteria found in raw milk get into it during the milking operations and during the later handling of the milk.

Bacteria of many kinds are present in large numbers in a dusty atmosphere, on bits of hay, straw, cow hairs, manure, flies, dirty hands, dirty clothes, and in milk pails, cans, bottles, strainers, and other milk utensils that are not thoroughly washed and scalded. Consequently, if we are to keep bacteria out of milk we must prevent the above-named substances from getting into the milk, and we must pay particular attention to the washing and thorough scalding of all milk utensils and to having clean hands and clothes.

It is generally considered that provided the milk is passed through a strainer when being filled into the cans from the milk pail all the objectionable materials are removed from the milk, as dirt, bits of hay, straw, manure, cow hairs, flies, etc. This is a great mistake as the bacteria which were present on these when they dropped into the milk pail are washed off into the milk, and these bacteria pass readily through the finest strainers used. Consequently, steps must be taken to prevent these materials getting into the milk.

1. The atmosphere of the stable must be free as possible from dust during the milking operations. Any feeding, bedding down or cleaning up should be done at least an hour before, or left until after milking.

2. Cover-top or sanitary milk pails should be used instead of the wide open-top pails.

3. Doors and windows should be fly screened.

4. Cows should be kept clean and groomed so that bits of dirt, manure, hairs, etc., shall not fall from the cows' flanks into the pail during milking.

5. All milk utensils should be thoroughly washed and scalded every time before use.

How to Prevent Bacteria From Spoiling the Milk. Even after all reasonable care has been taken to prevent bacteriological contamination of the milk as outlined above, some contamination will occur, that is, a few bacteria will get into the milk in some way or other. If these are allowed to multiply in the milk they will spoil it.

The best way to prevent their rapid multiplication in the milk is to chill it immediately in the cooling tank or refrigerator, and keep it cold until used. A small amount of bacterial multiplication will take place, even at refrigeration temperatures, and this will show itself in the condition of the milk in course of time. But milk that has been obtained under clean conditions and has been kept cold should be in excellent condition even after forty-eight hours.

Summary of Milk Contamination Preventive Measures.—Prevent dust, cow hairs, bits of hay, straw, and manure, flies and drops of dirty water from getting into the milk during milking operations as outlined above. Thoroughly clean and sterilize all pails, cans, bottles and other utensils. Cool the milk at once down to refrigeration temperature and keep it cool and covered until used.—Prof. D. H. Jones, O. A. College, Guelph.

She Was Once the Empress of France.

Is it more bitter for a nation to lose a province than for an empress to lose a crown? Is revenge sweeter to a nation than to an individual? Does revenge matter at ninety-three? Nations may be chastened and learn by bitter experience. What about an empress?

Eugenie, ex-Empress of the French, ninety-three years old, walking with a cane, wanders through the Tuileries Gardens, plucking withered autumn flowers from the beds that were once laid out at her command. Fifty years ago, France lost Alsace-Lorraine, and she lost her crown. France has had her revenge on Germany, and France's revenge is Eugenie's. France's joy over victory was delirious. Eugenie walks though the Tuileries Gardens followed by a single maid. She speaks to no one. No one knows her thoughts.

Even the facts of her origin are now disputed, and a legend has grown up that her birthplace was not Spain, but Italy, while her mother was a Bourbon and not the daughter of a Scottish wineshop keeper in Malaga.

The story is that before Christine, daughter of Francis I. of Naples, became the fourth wife of King Ferdinand VII. of Spain she had been secretly married to an English painter named Ward and had three children. Queen Christine disposed of them by giving the two girls to the Countess de Montijo, while the boy was left as a foundling at the gates of the palace of the Duke of San Fernando in Madrid.

The boy was adopted by the duke and his wife and brought up as Don Alessandro Soler; and was always treated by the entire royal family of Spain as a non-royal relative, and when he died, a few years ago, left his extensive fortune to King Alfonso. Of the two girls the elder, Paca, became the Duchess of Alba and the younger, Eugenie, Empress of the French.

Hardly less romantic is the official version. This begins in the wineshop in Malaga kept by the broken-down Scottish exile, William Kirkpatrick. He had married a Spanish woman, and his daughter, Manuela, was dancing on the tables for the amusement of the customers when Don Cypriano de Guzman became a frequenter of the place. The latter married Manuela Kirkpatrick, succeeded to the title of his brother, Count de Montijo, and died, leaving two daughters.

Whatever may be the facts of their birth, Eugenie and her sister were taken to Paris by the Countess de Montijo and educated in the Convent of the Sacred Heart. Their education completed, the two girls were taken back to Madrid.

Eugenie, a stunning beauty, dazzled Madrid, but she did not gain the royal favor. There was too much of the gypsy in her conduct. Paca captivated and married the Duke of Alba. Eugenie refused all suitors. Louis Napoleon, who was Napoleon III., Emperor of the French, became wildly infatuated with Eugenie. He married her January 29, 1853.

Still, though an empress in name, Eugenie was not treated as an empress in fact, but rather as an adventuress.

The emperor and empress determined on a visit to England in order to try to establish themselves in the courts of Europe. Napoleon and Eugenie were received with great pomp and ceremony in England, and when they returned to France they knew what was lacking at the Tuileries.

The French court went better after that, and the period of its real magnificence began.

After the defeat of France by Germany in the war of 1870, the empress fled to England, where she had placed a large fortune. She went to live at Chislehurst and there was joined by the Prince Imperial, a lad of sixteen, who had not followed his father to Sedan, but escaped to Belgium. Thither also came Napoleon after his release from imprisonment at Wilhelmshohe and the plans were ripe for another "return from Elba" when the schemes were brought to an end by Napoleon's death, January 9, 1873, at Chislehurst.

The ex-empress now lived only for her son, the Prince Imperial. But she still treated him as a boy and, though she had an income of $400,000 a year, allowed him only $10 a week for pocket money and took possession of a legacy of $60,000 a year that had been left to him. Fretting under the maternal restraint, the young man joined the British expedition to Zululand in 1879 and was there killed, stripped and mutilated by the savage warriors June 1, 1879.

Eugenie never recovered from this blow. She sought a suitable site for a mausoleum for her husband and son and bought Farnborough Hill, near which she erected a memorial chapel at a cost of $500,000. Napoleon III. and the Prince Imperial are buried there and a place is left for her. She assumed the title of Comtesse de Pierrefonds after the death of the Prince Imperial, and under that name makes periodical visits to Paris, where she occupies rooms in the Hotel Continental, overlooking the gardens of the Tuileries, the site of the palace destroyed by the Paris mobs in their rage against her.

"Silencers" on Ships.

Eight ships now sailing the Pacific Ocean are equipped with great silencers, weighing 8,000 pounds each, the invention of Hiram Percy Maxim, famous as the inventor of the gun silencer bearing his name. If successful, this newest "Maxim silencer" may stimulate the tendency toward general substitution of the speedier, more economical, oil-burning vessels driven by the super-powerful engines of the Diesel type, for the present-day steamers.

"The motor-driven ship is the ship of the future," said Mr. Maxim recently. "However, in the past there has been one great disadvantage, the terrific noise of the motors. The new silencer we expect will solve that problem."

Mr. Maxim said that, inasmuch as his patents have not been issued, he cannot disclose the construction of his new invention. However, in general principles it is not unlike other Maxim silencers, depending on accomplishing its work by absorbing the recoil and hence silencing the terrific exhaust. Mr. Maxim says it is not dissimilar in design to the smaller Maxim silencers on the market for several years for use on motor and power boats.

LOOK TO SARDINIA FOR CORK

World Turning to That Island for Production of Material So Much in Demand.

Cork has probably passed olive oil as the leading export of Sardinia, and Commercial Attache A. P. Dennis states that recent production has been so stimulated that a large factory at Tempio is quadrupling its capacity. The bark is stripped from the tree once in nine years. At the Tempio factory the dried bark is first thoroughly steamed and flattened out by hydraulic pressure; it then remains in piles about 30 days, when it is taken out covered with blue mold, and is carefully scraped on both sides and cut into widths varying according to the lengths of the cork stoppers desired. The strips are cut by hand into cubes, a process requiring highly skilled labor, with much care in picking out defective pieces. The corks have been rounded and tapered by high-speed cutting machines, but a new abrasive process is claimed to reduce the waste of this finishing from 20 to 30 per cent. Before the war the fine dust sold in Germany for unknown use for about $80 a ton. At Terranova the cork is differently utilized, the best being baled in sheets for shipment, while the inferior is coarsely ground and used with a magnesium surface for walls and floor coverings. The war demand was for cork trench mattresses, which were both light and afforded protection from cold and moisture.

MOTOR CARS ON STAGE LINE

Old Four-In-Hand Vehicles on Nevada Roadways Succumb to March of Improvement.

Stage lines in Nevada have abandoned the time-honoored four-in-hands of horses in favor of high-powered motor busses.

Daily, with clocklike precision, these big cars pound along the 100 miles of sun-bitten alkali roadway carrying passengers and mail. In much less time and far greater comfort the ranchers and business men of today speed over the same roads where once rattled the four-in-hand stage, slow, jolly and not at all certain of reaching its destination.

The cost of transportation by motor bus compares favorably with operating expenses of the horse stage. The proprietors of the lines are thorough business men and can tell to the penny the gasoline mileage of every car, the oil consumption and just how much service is obtained from tires.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Land Reclamation Scheme.

The British board of agriculture has inaugurated a scheme for the reclamation of land on the Lincolnshire shore of the Wash. A bank is being constructed from Wainfleet, a little below Skegness, to Freiston, near Boston (Lincolnshire), commencing at the Wainfleet end, and by this means it is hoped to recover about 12,000 acres. The work is in charge of a resident engineer in Wainfleet and will employ a large number of men, who will be selected from demobilized soldiers and sailors, and thus obviate the taking away of labor from agriculture. It is said that in the middle of the last century a reclamation scheme was started, and it was then estimated that a sufficiently large area would be redeemed from the Wash to form a new English county. The enterprise was abandoned, but experts have always maintained its practicability, which is now in the course of being tested.

Food Value of Fats.

The heat values of butter and other fats are fairly constant. The values given are: For butter fat 9.212; for fat of animal tissue, 9.372, and olive oil, 9.384 calories per gram. The nutritional value of a food is, however, also determined by the presence or absence of certain vitamins. The fat-soluble accessory growth substance is present in beef fat and "oleo-oil," and margarines prepared on such a basis are probably the nutritive equivalent of butter.

Cocoanut oil, cottonseed oil, peanut oil, olive oil and nut and vegetable oils in general contain little or none of this accessory substance and margarines prepared from these are not the nutritive equivalent of butter. With allowance for metabolic products, the co-efficients of digestibility have been found to be: For butter fat, 97 per cent.; for beef fat, 93; for olive oil 97.8, and for cocoanut oil 97.9 per cent.

French Reconstruction.

It has been estimated that for building work alone in the reconstruction of France it will require 22,000,000 tons of material and the labor of 700,000 persons for one year. One hundred thousand houses are to be entirely rebuilt requiring 5,000,000,000 bricks, 1,000,000 tons of lime, 13,000,000 square miles of tiles and great quantities of sand and wood. The reconstruction of railroads and highways will require 3,000,000 and the labor of 15,000 men for one year.

A Hun Joke.

Daddy dandles little Fritz upon his knee for a while, according to Der Brummer of Berlin, and then Fritz exclaims: "Do you know what, daddy?" "No, what is it?" "I would like to ride on a real donkey."

Methods Enough.

The Bank of England is said to have 32 different methods of detecting forged bank notes.

THIS WOMAN'S RECOVERY

Shows Remarkable Curative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Chesley, Ont.—"Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had terrible pains in my sides and was not regular. Finally I got so weak I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest half way up the steps. I tried two doctors but they did me no good. I saw your medicine advertised in the newspapers and thought I would give it a trial. I took four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and was restored to health. I am married, am the mother of two children, and do all my housework, milk eight cows, and do a hired man's work and enjoy the best of health. I also found Vegetable Compound a great help for my weak back before my babies were born. I recommend it to all my friends who are in need of medicine, and you may print this letter if you wish."—Mrs. HENRY JANKE, R. R. No. 4, Chesley, Ontario.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

Observed Father's Wish.

Thackeray's daughter, Lady Ritchie, the widow of Sir Richmond Ritchie, died recently at the age of eighty-two. She had endeared herself to a wide public by her delightful reminiscences of her father and of the other famous Victorians among whom her early life was spent.

If as a novelist she achieved no popular success she was incomparable in relating anecdotes of the sort that illuminate, about the many remarkable men and women whom she had known intimately. It is much to be regretted that, in obedience to Thackeray's dying wish, she was precluded from writing her father's "Life."

Ritchie's "Thackeray" would have ranked with Lockhart's "Scott." Lady Ritchie's charming introductions to the biographical edition of "Thackeray" tantalize without satisfying his devotees. The reader wants more.—Living Age.

His Double

By OTILLIA FRANCES PFEIFFER

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

Two men stood facing one another, each dripping wet. One was dressed in the height of style and was the owner of an automobile standing in the road a few hundred feet distant. The other, while respectably attired, showed no evidence of wealth. He was half dragging, half supporting the other. Now the latter braced up somewhat. He had fallen into a deep quarry pit while seeking to secure some rare flowers growing near to its edge, and the other, a casual passerby, had leaped in and rescued the imperilled adventurer as he was sinking for the third time.

For the first moment the two stood full face to face. There was a start, a stare, a void of stupefaction in either countenance and for the space of half a minute the two men regarded one another mutely.

"I say!" abruptly burst forth the better dressed man, "we look near enough alike to be brothers!"

"That dawns upon me forcibly," less animatedly responded the other.

"Come," spoke the rescued one impetuously, "you have risked your life to save mine. It is a debt I can never repay. Get into the auto and we can reach Mayville inside of thirty minutes."

The other drew back. "I do not care to go to Mayville," he said with a seriousness and decision that had a tinge of mystery to it.

"Then Brocton lies ten miles in the other direction. Don't dally- we are both wet and chilled through. When we get back to normal we want to know each other more fully. I am Adrian Purcell."

"And I Roy Dyson," said the rescuer. "I don't want you to make anything extraordinary of my trying to see if I still know how to swim."

"That won't go!" spoke Purcell with warmth. "I'm not likely to soon forget you."

"I'm not much to remember," smiled Dyson glumly, and with some bitterness as though life's awards meant very little to him. He seemed anxious to get on his way alone, resenting gratitude and patronage on the part of the other. He, however, reluctantly got into the machine and Purcell taking the wheel they soon reached Brocton. As they were shown to a room in the hotel Purcell gave their attendant a variety of orders.

"There is no mistake about our resembling one another, is there, now?" he said. "I look a trifle older than you, but we are the same build and height and we tally even as to facial expression. Tell me something about yourself, won't you?"

But Dyson was averse to giving much of his life history. As to Purcell, he was a young man of fortune who insisted that he owed his life to Dyson and wanted to adjust the score in some way. Purcell was so insistent as to this feature that Dyson finally [illegible]

"Since you will have it that you wish to do something for me, I might suggest—"

"Just name it and command me."

"Very well, then; two years ago I left Mayville with the promise to the girl I loved, Mary Smith, that I would go out in the world to try and better my fortune. I returned last night and visited the village. I overheard some people gossiping. Mary Smith had married a year ago and is now Mrs. Mary Bartley, and not six months since I received from her a letter protesting her undying love for me."

"That was indeed a hard blow," said Purcell, genuinely sympathetic.

"I at once turned my back on the town, never to return to it. Now I have met you, we look alike. Because of pride, because I wish to punish the perfidy of Mary Smith, it would be an immense satisfaction to me to have you go to Mayville, register as myself, play my part, boast, overawe the town with your automobile and fine attire and great wealth. Flit at the end of a week, leaving the town persuaded that I have indeed made good, and Mary Smith with a bitter knowledge of what she has missed."

"I declare!" smiled Purcell. "That is an original proposition. Good! It's a bargain. I'll play the part if you will remain here until I return."

Two evenings later Dyson was aroused from a reverie by the unexpected appearance of Purcell.

"You're to go to Mayville," he announced.

"What's that?" demanded Dyson sharply.

"Yes. Say, I played my part grandly, and then yesterday I learned that Mary Smith was coming to see me at the hotel and I bolted."

"You mean Mary Bartley," suggested Dyson.

"I don't," dissented Purcell with vigor. "I mean your own and only Mary Smith. Why, man, I learn that your lady love has pined and waited, and would still wait if you haven't a dollar. The Mary Smith who became Mrs. Bartley was a new arrival at the town. Now then, I'm going to disappear and you forget me, but first I'm going to stake you for a few thousands and be happy in feeling that I have done something for the brave, self-sacrificing fellow who risked his life to save my own."

In vain Roy Dyson demurred, but Purcell was determined. The next day the former went back to Mayville and —Mary.

THEIR GREAT MOMENT GONE

Writer Has Little Expectation of Creative Ability Being Displayed by Returned Soldiers.

The spiritual point is this, writes John Galsworthy in Scribner's. In front of a man in ordinary civilized existence there hovers ever that moment in the future when he expects to prove himself more of a man than he has yet proved himself. For these soldiers of the great carnage the moment of probation is already in the past. They have proved themselves as they will never have the chance to do again, and secretly they know it. One talks of their powers of heroism and sacrifice being wanted just as much in time of peace, but that cannot really be so, because peace times do not demand men's lives—which is the ultimate test—with every minute that passes. No, the great moment of their existence lies behind them, young though so many of them are. This makes them at once greater than us, yet in a way smaller, because they have lost the power and hope of expansion. They have lived their masterpiece already. Human nature is elastic and hope springs eternal, but a climax of experience and sensation cannot be repeated; I think these have reached and passed the uttermost climax, and in Europe they number millions.

This is a veritable portent, and I am glad that in America you will not have it to any great extent.

Now how does this affect the future? Roughly speaking it must, I think, have a diminishing effect on what I may call loosely creative ability. People have often said to me: "We shall have great writings and paintings from these young men when they come back." We shall certainly have poignant expression of their experiences and sufferings, and the best books and paintings of the war itself are probably yet to come. But, taking the long view, I do not believe we shall have from them, in the end, as much creative art and literature as we should have had if they had not been through the war.

Will Go Back to Work in France.

If Charles W. Bradlee, Jr., formerly a teacher of manual arts in Worcester academy, Worcester, Mass., hadn't been an obliging sort of gentleman, he wouldn't be carrying a shell splinter today under his right cheekbone, so cunningly lodged there that physicians hesitate to operate for fear of his face becoming paralyzed.

While a worker with the Foyer du Soldat in France, Bradlee consented August 7 to replace another worker on the front line at Lhery. The other welfare man was away on leave so Bradlee, with his knapsack filled with Y. M. C. A. supplies went up near the front line. At that time a jagged scar caused by a shell splinter was healing on his forehead. He had been working only a short period at Lhery when a Hun shell burst and he was given another memento of service. This time the sliver of a flying shell lodged in his cheek.

Bradlee learned to love the French and will return to Flanders to work among them in the devastated sections as a member of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. He said that he feels he will be able to aid permanently wounded men in learning new occupations.

400,000 Stars.

Harvard University, in its work of studying the stars, uses a huge and specially built camera which photographs great areas of the sky. A sixteen-inch doublet telescope, constructed by Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, an astronomer of repute, is used with the specially contrived photographic apparatus.

A photographic plate inserted below the telescope is exposed for hours to the starlight, the scope moving across the heavens to allow for the movement of the earth and stars. Owing to the size of the plates and the great distances involved, it was found that stars around the edges were blurred. To counteract this, the plate, while in the holder, is pushed into a curved form by air pressure, thus remaining at all points equidistant from the focal point of the telescope.

The principal object in using the camera is to photograph sections of the heavens so that the various areas may be studied at leisure, and for as long a time as desired.

On one photograph made with this new camera over 400,000 stars have been counted by astronomical authorities of the university.—Illustrated World.

GUN COTTON BASIS OF SILK

French Inventor, After Long Study, Has Evolved a Truly Wonderful Artificial Product.

According to Count Hilaire, inventor of artificial silk, which is now produced by vast factories in Switzerland, Belgium, France, England and the United States, it has for its basis nothing less than gun cotton. One of the greatest problems he had to solve in perfecting it for everyday use was to render it nonexplosive.

The gun cotton under the chardonnet process is first dissolved in a mixture of alcohol and ether and then spun through fine capillary tubes by means of hydraulic presses.

Other chemical processes give it incombustible and nonexplosive qualities, together with the consistency and the transparency of the finest silk from Japan or China.

It took just 30 years of the 80 which Count Hilaire has completed to perfect his discovery and render it of actual and practical commercial value.

The illustrious chemist and scientist has just been elected to the supreme honor of membership in the French Academy of Sciences for his discovery of how to put one over on the silkworms. During the war he had been decorated by the French minister of war with the Cross of a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor for discoveries relative to the manufacture of high explosives growing out of his researches made primarily to render artificial silk stockings nonexplosive.

Fewer Sea Eagles Seen.

That the monarch of the air, the sea eagle, has disappeared from Caithness, as well as from the Orkneys and Shetlands, is a well authenticated fact. The sea eagle is not very uncommon in the West Highlands and still builds its nest on various bays abutting on the cliffy coast. The sites of the nests are on the edge of some large and well-stocked sheep farms. The birds have always been accused of killing lambs, as well as hares and winged game, but the charge would be difficult to substantiate.

Eliminating Poison Ivy.

The cheapest and most effective method of eliminating poison ivy, according to experts of the United States department of agriculture, is the simple one of rooting up the plants and destroying them. If the poison ivy is in large fields it may be necessary to plow and cultivate the land. Ivy on large trees, stone walls and buildings can be killed by arsenate of soda, at the rate of two pounds to ten gallons of water. Two or three applications are sufficient.

Plea for Natural History.

We content ourselves with a knowledge of the tongues, and a little skill in philology or history, perhaps, and antiquity; and neglect that which to me seems more material, I mean natural history. Nation's "Balance of Trade."

"Balance of trade" is an expression used by political economists to indicate the difference between the value of the exports and imports of a country. This theory of the balance of trade grew out of the mercantile theory, which considers the possession of gold to be the chief object of trade. Hence there rose the belief that a nation increases in wealth to the extent that the money value of its exports exceeds that of imports.

Orchid Hard to Secure.

Nearly all the orchids found in Burma can be grown with a little care and attention in private gardens. There is one exception, a sweet-smelling species called tazin by the Burmese, and which is usually brought to market in Christmas week in Rangoon. It only seems to flower in the most malarious and least frequented localities, and at a time of the year which is the tigers' mating season, and when they are most dangerous to human beings. It is in great demand by Burmese and sells for its weight in silver.

What Mother Wanted.

I heard a knock at my door the other morning and on answering it found my neighbor's small son.

"Mother wants to borrow your lemon—lemon— —" I at once knew he wanted my lemon squeezer, but as he always finds some way to express himself I did not offer to help him out.

Again he started and, with suggestive motions of his hands, said: "She wants your lemon—O, I know now—your lemon hugger."—Exchange.

Things Looking Up in Serbia.

There are many evidences of bettering conditions in Belgrade, Serbia. Belgrade university opened a short time ago. The American Red Cross is now erecting barracks to house the students during the summer.

In the spirit of the people there is a marked change for the better in the last few months. Social gatherings are more frequent, and a few moving picture theaters are in operation.

Shops in the city are gradually refilling with stocks. Prices are high. Reports from the interior indicate a large grain harvest with a possible surplus for export in South Serbia. These reports have had encouraging effect on life in the capital.

China to Make Cement.

The cement requirements of North China will probably soon be supplied by domestic production. One large concern is said to control this industry in North China, and its plant is located at Tangshan, a small town about 100 miles northeast of Tientsin, on the Peking-Mukden railway. It is equipped with modern machinery, and secures its supply of limestone on the site of the works.

Gem's Romantic History.

Truly romantic is the story of the Braganza diamond, a stone of 1,680 carats, and "as large as a goose's egg," which, for more than a century, has been the proudest possession of the Portuguese crown. This amazing stone, which Mr. Streeter, the great authority on gems, has valued at £58,000,000, was picked up by three Brazilian outlaws in the half dried bed of the Abalte river, in the province of Minas Geraes.

The outlaws took the stone to the nearest village priest, who obtained access for them to the governor, into whose possession it was given. The diamond, the largest and finest hither to found, was dispatched to Lisbon with the result that the three outlaws received the royal pardon and a rich reward, while the padre to whose friendly offices they owed their good fortune was given high preferment in the church.

Flower Gardens of Holland.

It was only after the fall of Constantinople in 1453 that Holland became such a gay land of flowers as it now is. Many Dutchmen went to the East during the years of the great crusades, and those of them who loved beautiful things brought seeds with them. When these were planted in the rich soil of Holland such wondrous flowers appeared as had never before been seen in that country. The people became wildly enthusiastic over the new colors and scents and foliage brought to them from the East, and in Holland there sprang up a great love for gardening.

Ancient "Breadfather."

Of what great importance the loaf, which before 1200 was the name of bread, was a daily food can be inferred from its relation with the word "lord." For lord, A. S. hlaford (hlaf, bread, loaf; weard, a keeper), is probably a contraction of hlaf-weard, literally "loaf ward" and therefore, originally signified the keeper or dispenser of bread—in short, the breadfather, to whom the members of the family had to apply for their daily bread.

How to Conquer.

Infinite toil would not enable you to sweep away a mist, but by ascending a little you may often look over it altogether. So it is with our moral improvement; we wrestle fiercely with a vicious habit, which could have no hold upon us if we ascended into a higher moral atmosphere.

The Kindly Heart

By JESSIE E. SHERWIN

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"There goes a fine woman, Martin. She'd make a good wife for somebody."

Saul Espy and Martin Bross were conversing when the lady designated by the former passed down the road. Martin looked after her with a certain fond and longing expression in his eyes, but he sighed deeply.

"Yes, she's a very superior lady," he assented. "I have often thought she would grace and deserve a pleasant home, but good fortune has not come her way. She just manages to eke out a living for herself and her little child, Winifred. As to myself, you know father left the property to me only, and that is badly mortgaged."

"Queer about that, Martin. You know your father certainly had some money and securities before he died, for I borrowed and paid him [illegible] on a mortgage."

"Well, towards the last he acted very strangely, as you know, and seems to have lost what he had."

Saul Espy passed on his way and Martin entered the ramshackle old house where he had been born. It had been a lonely home to him. His mother had died when he was a child and at twenty-two he had found himself saddled with a badly run-down little farm, heavily encumbered. His nearest neighbor, Mrs. Mary Reeves, a widow and her little child were about all the company he had or sought. Mrs. Reeves was about his own age and they had become true friends.

Martin went into the house to pause, listen and smile. A whirring sound directed him to a corner of the kitchen where a mouse caught in a trap was speeding round and round in the treadmill wheel attached to the cage.

"Most people would drown you, little fellow," observed Martin taking up the cage and eyeing indulgently the sleek little frightened captive within, "but I haven't the heart to. There you are—now run, for it."

The kindly Martin carried the trap to the open doorway and shook out the tiny prisoner, who at once scampered for cover. There was a slight scream and Mrs. Reeves stood ten feet away shaking her finger playfully.

"Is that the way you greet a neighbor bent on bringing you a fresh pan of biscuits?" she cried.

"Why, are you that timid?" smiled Martin, taking the mild scolding genially. "It was the smallest mouse possible and if you had looked into its innocent, pleading eyes as I did you would have let it go, too."

"To come back into the house and bother you again," retorted Mrs. Reeves. "Well, I suppose you can't help being tender-hearted. It's the talk of the town that you sat up nursing old Carlo two nights before he died?"

"What! neglect the faithful guardian of the home, almost as old as myself?" spoke Martin stanchly. "As to the mouse tribe, Mrs. Reeves, one night when I was playing my flute two of them came creeping cautiously across the floor and stood there almost human until I ceased playing."

Martin accepted the covered dish proffered. "Wait until I get a cake of honey for you," he said, and as Mrs. Reeves departed he stood gazing after her with a quickened gleam in his eyes.

He stopped outside his pretty neighbor's gate the next morning and nodded cheerily to Mrs. Reeves and little Winifred. "I shall be gone all day and over night at Riverton," he said. "I wonder if you would take the key to the house and step over and feed my canaries?"

"And let out any stray mouse there may be in the trap?" intimated Mrs. Reeves, with twinkling eyes.

"Yes, that too, if you please," replied Martin.

He got back home the next afternoon to find a desultory crowd viewing a heap of ruins.

"It burned down yesterday," lisped little Winifred "and mama says you are to come over to our house till you build a new one."

"It was your friends the mice who are accountable for the fire," the widow declared. "When I went into the house I found a box of matches scattered all around. I gathered up all I could, but the mice probably carried some away to their nests and ignited them.

"Did you ever see that before, Mr. Bross?" She had led the way to the sitting room. There lying on the floor was a blackened old tin box.

"Why!" exclaimed Martin. "It's the old bread box that my father used to keep his papers in. I haven't seen it since he died."

"No, for he had it hidden away in the attic and I found it among the ashes after the fire. Mr. Bross, the only one I've told is your lawyer. It's full of gold. He says it must be the missing fortune your father hid away and it holds over five thousand dollars in gold and silver."

"Then the mice have proven my best friends!" cried Martin, roused out of himself. He gazed raptly at the widow. His eyes sparkled. Then he picked up little Winifred and kissed her.

"Mrs. Reeves," he said, "when I build my new house I want you to promise to let this sweet little friend come to live with me."

"Oh, dear! I should miss her—"

"And you with her," added Martin with yearning eyes.

FROM DAVY JONES

Inventor Is Confident He Can Wrest Riches.

Simon Lake Is Man Who Claims He Has Devised Perfect Salvaging Submarine—Will Seek Gold Long Under Water.

With the waters of the Atlantic ocean swashing over his head, Simon Lake, submarine inventor, expects to excavate the bottom of Long Island sound, off Port Morris, N. Y., and try to salvage $5,000,000 gold bullion from the treasure chests of the H. M. S. Huzzar. The treasure has nestled on the bottom for 140 years.

If Lake desires, he says, he will be able to smoke a cigar, sing a song and twang a ukulele on the bottom of the ocean while the treasure is being recovered with a new salvaging submarine machine which he has just perfected.

The story of the Huzzar and its buried gold is as romantic as any sea yarn ever spun by Jules Verne or Robert Louis Stevenson. It begins at a date when pirates roved the Atlantic, and promises to end with a submarine climax.

Chapter 1 shows the British warship Huzzar, launched about the year 1760, to the pop of a wine bottle. From this point the story carries the windjammer through the adventurous times when Captain Kidd might be found at any time hiding behind the next wave, and narrates her exploits as a utility vessel in the British navy.

The last trip of the proud Huzzar was when she started to the American colonies in 1780, carrying a cargo of golden wealth in her hold. In making the waters of the harbor at a time when Hell Gate was not adequately charted, she struck a rock and stove a hole in her bottom. She tried to make shore, but didn't, and sank off Port Morris. The treasure which was to have paid off the soldiers of the crown sank with her.

Thirty years ago a company was organized on Staten island to attempt the salvage of the Huzzar gold. The most accomplished diver of the day spent much time in the water. He succeeded in bringing up a hard oak rib of the ship and a few coins of little value, and then was forced to give up his efforts. The experiment cost the salvage company $20,000.

The oaken rib of the good ship Huzzar was worm eaten, but it was sawed diagonally, and just enough good wood was recovered to make two canes. One of these canes is now in the possession of C. F. Lester of Brooklyn.

Just when Simon Lake will begin operations to salvage the Huzzar gold has not been made public.

Millions of Miles of Desert

The great Sahara desert covers the major part of northern Africa, consisting of 2,500,000 square miles—an arid region as large as the whole of Europe. From 100 feet below sea level it rises in one instance to 8,000 feet above, and some of its elevations are covered with snow for three months of the year. Most of it, however, is a dry, sandy waste, dotted here and there with an oasis where drink may be secured. The winds are all very hot and dry, while rain is almost unknown.

The ostrich, camel, jackal, horned viper and numerous lizards are the principal animals of the region. Several varieties of hardy birds are also found. Arabs, Moors, Jews and negroes jostle each other on the caravan routes and the fierce-looking Arabs who bring their produce to the Egyptian markets are probably robbers and cutthroats in their desert homes.

It is impossible for travelers to get off the road, as the caravan routes are bordered with the bones of countless camels which have fallen by the wayside during the thousands of years these trails have been traveled.

Hotel's Famous "Royal Suite."

On the wall of the so-called "royal suite" in the old Revere house, Boston, Mass., hung a decorated shield bearing the names of distinguished guests: Jenny Lind, 1850; Daniel Webster, 1850; prince of Wales, 1860; Patti, 1860; Parepa, 1865; Christine Nilsson, 1870; Grand Duke Alexis, 1871; King Kalakaua, 1875 and Emperor Dom Pedro, 1876. But, even if the hotel had remained in operation, the present prince of Wales, coming to Boston, would hardly have gone there for his temporary dwelling place. For a good many years the old hotel has stood as a survival, in a part of the city where distinguished travelers were no longer among the common sights; and now it goes out of business. But, in its time, it was proud of that "royal suite."

Centuries-Old Images Found

Investigations by the Mexican government to find out who built the great pyramids at San Juan Teotihuacan, 27 miles from Mexico City, have brought to light two great granite heads of the ancient Mexican god of the air, Quetzalcoatl.

These heads are almost perfect specimens, bearing all the symbolic markings.

The long-disputed point as to who erected the pyramids is, as yet, unsolved. These huge mounds, one to the sun and the other to the moon, the former being 761 by 721 feet at the base and 216 feet high, are generally attributed to a tribe that preceded the Toltecs, probably dating from about the sixth century.

Leakage.

Ingenuity in advertisement is responsible for quite a deal of street entertainment. The latest thing in London is a large shop window in Queen Victoria street round which an unending crowd surges, attracted by two ordinary sacks of oats the only exhibits of any kind in the spacious shop-front, except two little mice, which pop in and out of sight and occasionally nibble at the oats, which can be seen through two holes at the bottom of each bag. A notice is displayed—"Stop That Leakage," and an invitation is given to step in and inspect patent weighing machines.

Lighthouse as a Home.

The housing problem in England has reached such an acute stage that every conceivable kind of abode is being utilized for living quarters. Even old lighthouses are being used for this purpose.

One of these, the South Foreland Lighthouse, lying between Dover and Deal, has been converted into a private residence and is now for sale. This structure is about one hundred years old. The former light room has been turned into a comfortable smoking apartment.

The Scenery.

The Towers had begun to look like being a white elephant, so far as the agent was concerned, even in these days of house shortage, according to London Answers. But this time it really did look as if there was a chance of selling the property. Little Mr. Brown and his wife had tramped wearily around the tiny estate, the agent at their heels. "There's architecture for you!" cried the latter. "There's country! I tell you, sir," he added, waxing eloquent; "there isn't a finer residence on earth than this! Just look at the wonderful scenery!"

"The scenery's all right," gloomily responded little Mr. Brown, who was looking for a home. "The only trouble to my mind is that there's too much of it between here and my office in the city."

For One Lone Blossom.

If you are in need of decorations and find but one lone, short-stemmed rose on your bush, do not despair. Pick the flower with as long a stem as possible. Then either tie or wire the short-stemmed blossom to a longer stem of another flower; in this way there is no waste on account of lack of stem. If you have no other flowers whose stems you can use, try a bit of the branch of the plant, or, in lieu of better avail yourself of the hollow stem of an artificial rose.

Garnet Is January Stone.

The garnet is the birthstone for January. Consequently it is the luck stone for all born in that month. According to old authorities "the garnet exercises a calming influence and takes away anger and discord. It is likewise a sovereign remedy for hemorrhages and protects the traveler from all dangers when traveling. When the figure of a lion is engraved upon a garnet, it will protect and preserve the health of the wearer and cure him of all diseases."

Salmon Arm the Garden of B.C.

(1) View of Salmon Arm, Shuswap Lake.
(2) View of McGuire's Lake on McGuire Ranch, Salmon Arm.

Salmon Arm, on the beautiful Shuswap lake, 1,300 feet above sea-level, in South-central British Columbia, is the centre of a region so fertile that is known as the "Garden of B.C." Situated at a point where the Salmon river empties into the Salmon Arm of Shuswap lake and [illegible] main line of the C.P.R., 316 miles east of Vancouver, it has excellent facilities for shippin and travelling. The resources of this favored district are many, unsurpassed richness of soil, with its resulting enormous crops, genial healthful climate, with abundant rainfall and mild summers and winters. It is the "hearts' desire" to the man who wishes to devote particular attention to fruit growing, market gardening, dairying or poultry raising.

The town of Salmon Arm is the business centre of the Salmon Arm valleys, with their great diversity of soil, which makes a strong appeal to the farmer. In these rich pastures, dairying is promoted on an extensive scale while corn root crops and celery are grown. The upper bench lands are especially suited to fruit culture and excel in certain varieties of apples, the "Wealthy" and "Northern Spy" having extensive culture.

Salmon Arm provides, always the inspiring and ennobling influence of nature at her best, with hill, valley, woodland, lake and river. The undulating nature of the land, adjacent to the lake, secures some lovely home-sites and the inspired pen were needed to describe the beauty of the gorgeous panorama ever before the dwellers in this peaceful spot. The broad lake mirrors gently swelling mountains that march on to a purple mist, while to the rear are verdant orchard covered slopes, park-like in the beauty of their setting, Mount Ida towering in the near distance. Do not miss a view of the sunset on the Shuswap when lake and forest are flooded with gold and rose or when the young moon hangs low over the lake, shooting bars of silver across the placid waters and the glories of earth and sky are reflected in the shimmering expanse. A steamer will operate on the lake during the coming season, giving passenger and freight service as far east as Sicamous.

REPORTS OF Y.W.C.A. YEAR'S WORK

Junior Club Report.

As leader of the two Junior Clubs of our Young Women's Christian Association, I beg to report the following:

The Saturday afternoon clubs are composed chiefly of school children who desire some of the privileges of the Y.W.CA., but who perhaps cannot afford to join any of the regular classes. This year we have attempted to give them a little more varied program than in the past when the work was chiefly gymnasium.

The total number enrolled is 26 with an average attendance of 24.

In February it was found necessary to divide the club into two smaller groups. Since then Mrs. McKenzie has guided the work of the Ever Bright Club. Her faithful service and loving, big sister interest is much appreciated. The children never tire of stories or of making things. They have just finished twelve neatly made and very pretty scrapbooks, which they are sending to the sick children in the hospital.

In all our clubs the purpose of the Young Women's Christian Association is ever before us and we as leaders desire above all else that the girls grow into the fullest and best life and take for their ideal Jesus Christ.

The girls from eleven to fifteen years chose for their club name "Sunshine" and their purpose is "To become all-round girls and to spread sunshine wherever we are." They are following out the program of Canadian girls in training with its four-fold standard—physical, intellectual, religious and service.

In their meetings they are learning how to conduct a business meeting, the duties of officers, committees, etc. They have some time devoted each Saturday to Bible study, where we aim to make the teachings of Christ of real value in their lives. Their program for each meeting includes also a practical talk, debate or discussion, on some subject followed by some activity. They have just completed a six weeks' course in cooking, which they all enjoyed very much, and are now looking forward to sewing and fancy work.

The two clubs have several things in common which keep up their interest. Each Saturday afternoon they have spent an hour in gymnasium work and games, where fair play and group spirit are developed. In February they invited their mothers to a Valentine party and also an exhibition of their gymnasium training. There were 65 mothers and children present.

With the opening of the swimming pool the girls became enthusiastic about learning to swim, so for the winter months instead of the gymnasium class the two clubs are having lessons in swimming. For this they pay ten cents a lesson.

A few other things which both clubs have shared in and which might be mentioned are:

A library of 15 books loaned by the children.

A club magazine.

An initiation ceremony in November.

A hallowe'en party.

Helping at the Y.W.C.A. bazaar.

Two dollars and fifty-five cents sent to the Armenians.

A sleigh riding party in March.

Selling shares for the Y.W.C.A. foreign work.

A picnic to the woods last Saturday, which were sent in pretty May baskets, made by the girls to some shut-in friends.

As the clubs continue to grow we hope for bigger and better results. The work is very interesting and full of promise.

Respectfully submitted,
LETA BROWNSCOMBE,
Assistant Secretary.

Physical Department.

Looking back over the year from the standpoint of the girls, we feel it has been a fairly successful one.

There has been enthusiasm in all classes, especially among the juniors and the senior members who felt the need of real gymnasium exercises have all benefited by the season's work.

Junior enrollment, 110; senior enrollment, 105; total enrollment, 215; average attendance, 168; number of classes held per week, 12.

Four parties have been given during the year, a junior and senior hallowe'en party, a Christmas party for the junior members and the senior school girls' party which took the form of a supper with games and fun after.

We co-operated with the Y.M.C.A. twice during the year, when our girls danced at the minstrel show and our closing exhibition which was held in the Y.M.C.A. on the evenings of April 22nd, 23rd and 24th.

The exhibition showed for the most part the work of the year, the different classes exhibiting with the wands, dumb-bells, clubs and hoops, the exercises which are taken in the gymnasium and in the folk, character and classic dances, the dances that are taught.

Our net proceeds from the exhibition amounted to $185.00.

The closing party of the senior classes was held in the gymnasium on Thursday evening, May 6th. An enjoyable time was spent in games and dancing, after which refreshments were served.

The closing party for the juniors was held on Tuesday afternoon, May 11th.

Respectfully submitted,
E. PRYCE,
Physical Director.

Superintendent's Report.

In our department we endeavor to get away from the word "institution" and instead we try to make this department a real home for girls who have come to the city to attend the different schools, to teach or to enter the industrial, business or commercial life.

We have no brilliant outstanding events to speak about, although we have occasional breaks in our regular routine, such as a house party in October with our president and house committee as guests, so that we may become better acquainted with the many new girls who have come in during the summer and early fall, for hallowe'en and the Christmas season we have our dining-room decorated in keeping with the season, and special dinners are served. We have birthday teas each month in the superintendent's sitting room, and before the students, teachers and business girls leave for their summer holidays we have a good-bye party. These are all looked forward to and enjoyed by the girls.

Apart from these we keep jogging along from day to day facing the same problems, perplexities and difficulties as you do in your home, and I might ask who can explain "home?"

It is said that woman holds the destiny of the world in her keeping. If so how important then that the young girl or young woman who has come to the city a stranger should be safe-guarded and guided from the many temptations of city life.

If a young girl comes in and should our home be filled, whether she be a permanent boarder or transient guest, a cot is made up, and she is not allowed to go out and possibly drop into some unknown boarding-house, so she remains with us until she starts again on her journey or has found a suitable and respectable home.

There are many opportunities of giving advice and it is a delight to find the girls so often accepting and acting upon the advice given. Again there are times, as with our own daughters, when it is not advice, but a little bit of a scolding which is needed; in this also we find the girl usually see and admit their fault.

Since last September our home has been filled to its capacity. One hundred and thirty girls have lived for a longer or shorter time in our home, we have also provided comfortable accommodation for 225 transients besides this a great number have dropped in for meals during the year.

On account of the ever increasing cost of food we found it necessary to raise our board 25 cents per week. Our board and room now range from $5 to $6.25 per week, according to the location of the room.

Last year between six and seven hundred dollars were expended on re-furnishings—cork carpet was laid on the hall floor, new rugs for the bedrooms, library table, linens, dishes, kitchen utensils and the many little odds and ends necessary in the running of a home.

The girls assemble each evening after supper for prayers in the green room. The average attendance at prayers was 40.

As in other years our home closes its doors at 10.30 p.m., anyone wishing to remain out after that time asks for permission; 12.30 is our limit for a party.

Again the "flu" epidemic entered our home and with more serious results this year than last. It claimed two of our girls, which cast a gloom over the home for several days.

During the epidemic a delightful spirit of comradship was displayed by the girls, and many were the evidences of sympathy and kindness shown towards each other. Our aim is for one and all to contribute her share towards creating a real home atmosphere.

In looking back over the past year our hearts are filled with gratitude to our heavenly Father for the measure of success which has crowned our efforts. But let us not forget that through the opportunities of the home we may meet and help to face and satisfy the yearnings in the girl life of today.

May we grasp our opportunities, remembering that it is "not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

Respectfully submitted,
E. MORRISON,
Superintendent.

Industrial Extension Department.

The work of the Industrial Extension Department began in February 1920. It has as its field all senior employed girls.

In order to make more far reaching the contact of the association with women in industry, noon meetings have been held regularly in the Quaker Oats, Bonner-Worth, Canadian General Electric and Auburn Woollen Mills. In this way the secretary comes in contact with at least 125 girls. At these meetings are given talks, songs, recitations and the girls have games and sing songs. The department feels very grateful for the interest taken in the work and the help given by Mrs. P. Hooper, Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. Drummond, the Misses M. Harvey, M. Ingall, May Perry, Hazel Davidson, S. Webb and F. Scott.

There are four clubs of employed girls. Of these the Athena Club is the oldest one. For the most part it is a gymnasium club. The girls come to the association for tea and have their gymnasium afterwards.

Then there is the Good Cheer Club made up of household workers, and two clubs from the Bonner-Worth, one of younger girls called the "Jolly Juniors" and one of the seniors, "The F.M. F.M.'s." These clubs are all practically self-govering with their own officers and committees and they plan their own programs. In the last three clubs the program is varied, including talks, gymnasium, sewing, cooking, parties and hikes.

We co-operate with the Welfare Club in the Quaker Oats as much as possible and now in both the Quaker Oats and Bonner-Worth, the girls are planning their own noon meetings.

There is one other senior organization, the Campers' League, composed of girls who were at camp last year. They were organized in order that the girls could keep in touch with each other and work for camp. Among the activities of the year was a concert, the proceeds of which were used to buy a Victrola for camp.

I feel that I am voicing the opinion of the girls when I say our clubs are helping us make a bigger contribution to life. There is no longer any doubt that women are needed in industry, but if the industrial woman is to come into her own she must have the understanding, friendship and backing of all women.

Respectfully submitted,
JEAN V. THOMSON,
Industrial Secretary.

Report of Swimming Pool.

In 1919 our pool was open from May to September, and was, I am sure, greatly enjoyed by the swimmers. Our beginners were, perhaps, a little discouraged though, because owing to Miss Littlefield's ill health, it was necessary to secure a substitute for a while, and in the latter part of the summer, there was no teacher at all. This, of course, disorganized the classes to a great extent. There were eleven classes held each week, and at the close of the season there was a splendid exhibition given, showing good work accomplished.

In 1920 the pool was opened March 1st, two months earlier than previous years. We had the misfortune to have a great deal of sickness, and very cold weather, a rather discouraging combination for this work, and one that greatly hindered all the classes. We had an enrollment of 114 and have held 13 classes each week. Early in April we had an exhibition of swimming as a beginning for the season's work.

Another event which greatly interested the pupils, was moving pictures taken of the pool, about twenty-five juniors took part in this. We were all very glad to have the opportunity of showing our splendid pool through the medium of the film to other Canadian cities, and we feel that not only the Y.W.C.A. but the City of Peterborough should be proud that we are so abreast of the times.

Our beginners' classes for both juniors and seniors are progressing splendidly. We have again organized a life-saving class, and within a few weeks expect to congratulate our girls for having passed their test, and also for being the first class of the Peterborough Y.W.C.A. to receive awards from the Royal Life-Saving Society.

The aim of the Royal Life-Saving Society is to make better known the proper methods of rescue a resuscitation of the apparently drowned. If the person attempting to save life is unacquainted with the proper methods of rescue and release, even though she may be a good swimmer, there is a big possibility that both lives may be lost.

Do you know that in one year alone in the United States there were over seven thousand lives lost through accidental drowning?

Every person should know how to swim for at least three reasons: It improves one's health, it imparts self-reliance and courage, and finally, it may prove the means of saving life. We feel, then, that the swimming pool is filling a pretty big need in offering to the girls and women of the city the opportunity of learning how to swim.

Swimming Instructer.

STANLEY PARK, VANCOUVER, B.C.

English Bay Road, Stanley Park.

Vancouver would be famous if it had only the attraction of "Stanley Park" was the opinion of an English tourist who had circled the globe. That peerless playground of 1,000 acres of virgin forest, with many acres of priceless waterfront and over six miles of marine panorama of park foreshore is the greatest municipal park on the continent. It is fringed by English Bay which abounds with mirrored reflections of forest trees and birds of every shade and plumage bask on the surface. No bulwarks or ocean wall mars the beauty, no roaring billows disturb tranquility, but there is all the beauty and majesty and novelty of its placid surface with a soft calling of the waves.

The park is picturesque with its magnificent firs and cedars, and is largely in its natural state, yet with touches of the conventional in that it is encircled by a perfect motor road which affords the pleasure of enjoying the innumerable points of interest in this wonderland. The unique brilliancy of the exquisite scenery in the distance where mountains of grace and stateliness form a group of peaks, grey and green and rose colored, thrill one again and again by their enchantment. Down their pine-clad slopes sylvan streamlets wind their way. A variety of enormous trees, spreading their branches on the green lawns, greet the eye, creeping ivy decorates the base of these giants of the forest. Walks through the park reveal picturesque retreats where the groves of nature in all [illegible] the [illegible] of luxuriant growth, [illegible] the out-of-doors.

Duties of the Queen Bee.

It may be interesting to some people to learn that all the work in a beehive is done by female bees. The drones, or males, live on the labors of their more industrious female companions. Moreover, there is no such thing as a king bee. The ruler of the hive is the queen, but she is a ruler in name only, being guarded and protected by the bees simply because the colony would become extinct if she did not lay eggs at a prodigious rate. It is not unusual for a good queen to produce her own weight in eggs in a single day, and she keeps this up for weeks at a time.

Courtesies of the Match.

There were the usual courtesies as to precedence in the use of the match. "It's very English," said the man in the corner. "In Scandinavia you can tell the nationality of a man by the way he lights his cigarette. A Swede strikes a match, uses it and throws it away. A Dane uses the match first and then offers it to you. The Norwegian strikes a match, offers it to his companion and uses the fag-end himself."

Brilliant Flashlight.

An excellent flash powder which produces a light of dazzling brilliancy, may be made by mixing equal quantities of magnesium dust and powdered chlorate of potash. Place the mixture on a piece of asbestos paper, and ignite it with a long wax taper. In a darkened room the suddenness and extreme brilliancy of the flash will dazzle everyone and produce a startling effect.

Time to Watch Them.

The sagacious old New York Herald says there is no gallantry in politics. Oh, yes, there is, but when the politicians begin to act with gallantry the chances are they are getting ready to bamboozle you or slit you in the back.

Ideals That Uplift.

We cannot revere anything lofty without ourselves becoming exalted; we cannot revere anything holy without ourselves becoming purer. The character of our homage determines our characters.—J. H. Jowett, D. D.

Holderless Pen.

A European inventor has devised a metal black with four clamps which carries a pen at the end. This device clamped around the forefinger is said to make writing much easier than when a penholder is used.

The Real Test.

"Don't conclude that a man is a patient mortal because you've watched him sitting on a log fishing," said the milk toast philosopher. "Watch him while he's waiting for his supper."

Where Thin Men Have Advantage.

A thin man has a better chance than a fat one. Women gunning for men occasionally puncture a fat one, but few of them shoot well enough to hit a thin one.

Although 400 different species of birds have their home in Nebraska, it is said that no more than 200 are to be found in any one locality.

VETERANS WIN FROM DE LAVAL

FIRST HALF OF FOOTBALL GAME BY FAR THE BEST.

Saturday afternoon's game between the G. W. V. A. and the De Laval football teams ended in a win for the Vets. The first half was by far the best played as both teams exerted themselves to obtain a lead. The ground was rather rough and made it hard for the players on both sides to judge their shots. The second half was at first slow for the players were tired after the rough going but towards the finish both teams put forth a final effort and played a good game.

Play commenced at 3 p.m. with an ideal day for the return match. The first ten minutes was almost entirely at the De Laval end and if it had not been for the fine work of Jones, the eparator's goalie, the Vets would have scored in those first few minutes.

On a rush from centre field Charman scored the first goal for the G.W.V.A., a goal that the Separator goalie could not have saved. Thereafter the De Laval went after the ball carrying it continually to the Vets' end and would have tied the score several times but for Griffin, the Vets' goalie, and Gamble

Towards the end of the half the Vets again carrying the play to the De Laval end scored in a scrim at the goal. Jones very nearly saved that goal also, but Norman caught it on the rebound and beat the goalie.

Hartshorn Scores.

Hartshorn scored the first and only goal for the eSparators after 25 minutes' play. A combined rush from right field and good foot work on the part of the De Laval forwards succeeded in beating Griffin, who was doing exceptionally good work in goal, although suffering from a badly swollen knee. Rush after rush by the Separators was broken by the work of Gamble and Bishop, the Veterans' backs, who saved the goal-keeper many awkard shots. Even then the De Laval were unlucky in not getting a tally as they kept the play at the G.W.V.A end for the rest of that half.

First half ended with the score 2-1 in favor of the G.W.V.A.

Second Half.

Second half commencing was slow and continued to be for the first quarter of an hour. Then the Separators, making several rushes, made things interesting near the Vets' goal on several occasions. They were unable to score, however, and the opposition, getting the ball, carried it to the De Laval end, and in a scrim at the goal McKinley scored. This goal was a gift for the Separator goalie received a blow on the head in the close play at the goal and the ball literally waited to be kicked in.

Game Warms Up.

Just at this time the game got really interesting for the Separators were trying their hardest to reduce the Veterans' lead. The De Laval forwards worked like Trojans to score, but their shots were either saved by Griffin or went wild. Even at that on a corner shot on the Veterans' goal some of the players claimed a score, but it was too close for the referee to see it and it was not allowed.

Norman Scores Twice.

Norman, who was playing a splendid game, scored the next two goals for the Vets. On a combined rush of the Veterans' forwards and some tricky headwork, Norman beat Jones by feet. It was the cleanest goal of the game. Two minutes later they scored again, but this time Jones almost saved. From then on the game was rush after rush from one goal to the other with neither side getting a tally. At the close of play both teams were fagged out owing to the roughness of the ground.

For the G.W.V.A. Norman and Ryan were the stars. The rest of the team played well up to them.

The Separators' stars were Lindsay Styles and Brown. Jones played a fine game, making some good saves, and for those goals which beat him he could not be blamed as most goal-keepers would have been unable to stop them.

The Line-ups.

VETERANS OPEN CITY BALL LEAGUE BY WINNING HONORS

Stage Real Batting Feast Off Canadian Woollen's Southpaw McLinlock's Pitching Was Wild.

The opening game between the War Veterans and the Canadian Woollens was more or less of a batting feast for the War Veterans, who won by 12 to 3. McLintock, the Woollens' southpaw, pitched the first five innings and was a trifle wild. The War Veterans scored their 12 runs during the first five innings, but McLintock was not receiving the support he should have received and errors were responsible for a large part of the scoring. The last two innings Johnson replaced McLintock on the mound and pitched well, securing three strike outs.

Wade pitched the whole game for the War Veterans and made a creditable showing in spite of the fact that at times he got very poor support from his team mates. He had lots of control and allowed only one walk during the game.

The Woollens made their debut fielding in a most auspicious manner, securing the only double play of the day when Mulhall threw to first and Legros threw to the catch, putting out Morse and Anderson. The fielding of the Veterans was at times very ragged and errors were plentiful.

The Woollens got two of their three runs in the fourth innings when Heenan and Legros both reached first on errors and Mulhall sacrificed and Burgoyne singled, scoring Heenan and Legros. The other run was obtained in the second when Coughlin reached second on an error and a wild throw and Gilchrist sacrificed him home. The War Veterans got four of their runs in the third and four more in the fourth innings when they staged a little batting feast. In both of these innings they had eight men to bat.

CITY BALL LEAGUE OPENS

The City League baseball season was ushered in on Saturday under almost ideal weather conditions and with impressive ceremony. The players and numerous other supporters of the four teams met at one-thirty at the Y.M.C.A. and proceeded to the park in cars. They were headed by the band of the Great War Veterans' Association, which was mounted on a contrivance ingeniously arranged by the C.G.E. out of two wagons and drawn by four horses abreast.

At the grounds during the preliminary warm-up and work out of the two teams, which were scheduled to pull off the curtain raiser, the band amused the fans with a splendid selection of music.

His Worship Mayor MacIntyre, after a few brief words on sportsmanship, spoken to the players of all teams, entered the pitcher's box to throw the ball, which was to usher in the season. Ald. Phelan went behind the bat and Ald. Crowe undertook to hit the pill. In his youth Ald. Crowe must have been a ball player, for he obtained a nice hit off the first ball thrown by the Mayor.

The attendance for the opening games was very large and speaks well for the interest in baseball which is going to be shown during the remainder of the season.

As there were to be two games it was the desire of the league officials to cut all opening ceremonies as short as possible and get down to real business without delay. It was 2.15 when Kay yelled "play ball" for the first time.

THISTLES WON MAIN BALL BATTLE FROM CANADIAN GEN., SATURDAY

First Class Exhibition of Ball Presented by Two Good Team—Score 9-2

The main battle of the day between the Thistles and the C.G.E. was won easily by the Thistles with a score of 9-2. In this game both teams shaped up more like ball players than in the previous game and the fielding was good and errors not so plentiful. Kearn pitched great ball for the Thistles and was only taken out in the sixth inning so that the fans might have an opportunity of seeing Harrison in action. Frost pitched a good game for the C.G.E., but was hit heavily and in bunches especially in the sixth inning when nine men went up to bat, five hits were secured and four runs scored.

Harrison was a star first baseman, stopping almost anything. When he took a turn at pitching the last two innings he also showed up well, getting five strike-outs in the two innings.

Cherrett played wonderful ball at short-stop and was practically a stone wall in that position.

The Line-up.

Five runs scored this inning.

DIAMOND SPARKS

It was strange that apparently the weakest team in the league should be the first to pull off a double play.

* * * *

McLintock had all the traditional wildness of south-paws and had difficulty in abiding by the rule which demands that both feet shall be on the slab before pitching the ball. He has not been used to that but he tried hard.

* * * *

Cherrett looks more like a ball player than ever and is more than likely to figure o nthe Central Ontario team this year.

* * * *

The box of cigars promised by Louis Yeotes for the longest hit was sure some tempter. There were no less than five aspirants for this prize who made two baggers, and one of these Murray repeated the performance.

* * * *

If there is any doubt as to who should get the cigars why not give them to Murray? He demonstrated that he could do the trick twice.

* * * *

Harrison, the Thistles star first baseman, who sure would be some slugger if he could only keep the ball in the diamond when he hit it. Three times on Saturday he slammed the pill for what looked like a homer but each time it was foul. If he ever switches his aim a few degrees Babe Ruth had better watch out.

* * * *

Shaughnessy made three hits on four times to bat and the other time he made first on an error.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

KEARNS—CROUGH.

St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, on Tuesday, April 6th, was the scene of a pretty Easter wedding when Mary Geraldine, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. G. Crough, became the bride of Francis Lea, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kearns of Emily.

At 9 o'clock, the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Daniel Crough, and proceeded to the alter where she was met by the groom The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. J. V. McAuley, by whom the nuptial mass was also celebrated.

The bride looked dainty in a gown of white silk crepe de chine trimmed with orange blossoms She wore a veil arranged in mob cap effect and a wreath of orange blossoms. She also wore the groom's gift, an illuminated gold wristwatch and carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden-hair fern tied with white ribbons. She was assisted by her sister, Katie, who looked pretty in a dress of white silk trimmed with blue flowers She wore a wreath and veil and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and fern tied with pink ribbon. The groom was assisted by William Urban Crough brother of the bride.

After the ceremony the young couple, accompanied by one hundred and thirty guests, including friends from Lindsay, Emily, Peterborough Douro and Smith, motored to Kawartha Hall, the home of the bride's parents, where they partook of a sumptuous dinner. After the health of the bride and groom had been proposed by Rev. Fr. McAuley and responded to by the groom and Messrs. F. H. G. Crough, W. Kearns, E. Sullivan, C. Telford, I. Collins and D. Crough, the guests amused themselves with music and games until the evening, when they were joined by about two hundred and fifty guests, who enjoyed themselves in tripping the light fantastic until the wee small hours, when they departed with many kind wishes for the future happiness of the young couple.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pearl necklace, and to the groomsman a gold tiepin set with diamonds. The gifts to the bride and groom were both costly and useful, showing the high esteem in which they are held.

After spending a week visiting friends, the young couple left for an extended trip in Western Canada The bride travelled in a burgundy silk dress, grey coat and hat. Their many friends extend to them their best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

IDE—PRESTON.

The bride, who was gowned in a beautiful creation of georgette over crepe de chine, with customary veil and orange blossoms, wearing a rope of pearls and carrying a lovely bouquet of sweetheart roses, entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march beautifully rendered by Miss A. Spicer of Toronto. She was attended only by her little cousin as flower girl, Miss Alice Northey wearing a gown of pink crepe de chine and carrying a basket of flowers.

The house was most artistically decorated for the occasion with fern and flowers. After the ceremony the bride and groom with a large number of friends and relatives sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner.

The young couple were the recipients of many costly and beautiful gifts, especially from the Barrie Co. Ltd., with which firm the young bride was connected for some time past.

OBITUARY

ALBERT ALEXANDER PRESTON

Albert Alexander Preston, a retired farmer and well known resident of this city, passed away at 7.15 last night after a long illness. Mr. Preston had been ailing for six months, but became seriously ill four weeks ago. On Sunday morning his condition was found to be so critical that he was removed to Nicholls Hospital and an endeavor made to save his life, but all that skill and care could do were unavailing, and he died last night.

He was born sixty-two years ago at Manvers and for many years was a prosperous farmer of the district A few years ago he retired from the farm and moved to the city, taking up his residence at 304 Frederick avenue, where he had lived till the time of his death.

In religion he was a Methodist, and since coming to Peterborough had been a faithful member and regular attendant at Trinity Methodist Church. He took part in all the good work of the church and his death will be a great loss to the community.

Deceased is mourned by a sorrowing wife and four children: Allen of North Monaghan, Frederick and Edith at home, and Mrs. H. T. Millard of this city.

The funeral will take place from the family residence on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery. Service at the house will be at 2:30 and will be conducted by Rev. F. E. Malott, pastor of Trinity Church.

MARGARET HOWLEY.

The death occurred this morning at the residence of her father, Mr P. Hefferman, Lot 3, Concession 2, Douro, of Mrs Margaret Howley, in her 48th year

She is survived by three sons, Ambrose, at home, John, of Havelock and Gerald, at home, and two daughters, Mrs. Austin Allen and Mrs. Louis Roach, both of this city.

MARK STREET SERVICES

Large Congregations and Excellent Choir Music Yesterday.

The usual large congregations attended Mark Street Church yesterday, and the pastor Rev. Mr. Ross, occupied the pulpit both morning and evening. The choir was large and the music splendid.

The morning subject was "Temple Service in the Great Beyond" and was founded on the subject, "Therefore are they before the throne of God and serve Him day and night in His Temple," Rev. vii. 15. The following thoughts were developed in the discourse:

First, the Apostle John, banished to the Isle of Patmos for his faith in Christ, finds himself in the Spirit in the Lord's Day, and has a wonderful vision of heaven. Had he planned for Sunday joy-riding or other Sabbath desecrations he never would have had this vision splendid.

Second, John sees, in vision, the city of God, with its pearly gates and walls of jasper, its towers of crystal, and rainbow encircled throne. He sees the circles of elders, martyrs, apostles and millions of the redeemed.

Third: Where did the multitude come from? From all the world throughout the centuries to the end of time. Why are they there? Not because they came out of great tribulation, but because they washed their robes and made them white in the Blood of the Lamb.

Fourth: Did all these millions know the true God of the Bible? Did they ever hear of Christ on Calvary? No. But those who lived according to the light given them are saved, for every man that ever entered the world has a certain measure of light. "This is the true light that lighteneth every man that cometh into the world." The millions before the throne who came from the darkness of heathendom and lived according to this light are saved from sin and its consequences, but not from ignorance. They will learn over there what was denied them here, even the story of the Divine Love.

Does this mean a second chance of salvation? Not at all. Those who rejected the light are lost. The records of redeeming love shall form the story to be imparted to the multitude over there.

Sixth: Who shall tell this story over there? Those who heard and believed the story here shall tell it yonder. We wondered why our loved ones died so young and why that dear friend went away just when he was needed most. The answer is they had greater work to do over there. Then cheer up, thou drooping spirit, thou shalt find they level yonder and none shall drive thee to the wall. Oh, thou discouraged preacher of the gospel, who never had your chance, but were crowded aside by someone who could never play the game like you: cheer up for God will give thee a field yonder and the wire-puller shall not be there.

The evening subject was "The Faith of Atheism," and was based on the text, "The fool hath said in his heart there is no God,' Psalms liii.

The following are the points of the sermon:

First: The man who rejects the God of the Bible must put something in His place, and we know that there is today a deep, dark atheism, a spacious and tremendous negative, a creed of four words of deep significance, "There is no God." It lies like a deadly weapon on multitudes of souls. It is not the Tom Paine type, but it steals like some invisible poisonous taint into men's blood—that the existence of God is doubtful. It has never been proved, perhaps, after all, that He does not exist.

Second The man who rejects the God of the Bible must accept in the place of theism some one of the following: Atheism, Pantheism, Polytheism or the faith of the agnostic. Mighty indeed is the faith of the man who can accept any of the above creeds in place of the pure and holy teachings of God's word. Mr. Ross carefully examined the teachings of the above creeds to the intense interest of the congregation. The sermon was deeply spiritual in its character.

JUSTLY PROUD OF SWIMMING POOL

The girls of the Young Women's Christian Association are justly proud of their beautiful swimming pool, so proud that they want all the girls of Peterboro to swim in it. For the last two weeks in May they are putting on a campaign for more swimmers Their slogan is, "Every girl is a swimmer" and they aim for at least 200 aditional swimmers in the two weeks. The captains of the teams are Miss Dorothy Fenwick, Miss Helen Metherel, Miss Florence Johnson and Miss Ethel Elliott. Under these captains are teams of ten girls each with first and second lieutenant for each team. There will also be a married ladies' team The progress of the different teams is marked by the climbing of little kewpie dolls up the five ladders in one of the corridors in the swimming pools. The campaign will begin Monday with open night at the pool. Any girl or woman who has a doctor's certificate may go in at 8.15 Monday night. There will be races and a general good time.

PRETTY MUSICAL SKETCH FRIDAY EVENING

REFLECTS CONSIDERABLE CREDIT ON ORGANIZER MISS McCABE.

The delightful programme of last Monday was again presented in St Alphonsus Lyceum last Friday evening, and those who were fortunate enough to be present enjoyed one of the prettiest musical sketches ever presented in the city. The entire presentation, by local talent was the embodiment of grace and refinement and reflected great credit upon the organizer, Miss McCabe.

The minuet was an especially pleasing number, its success was due to the artistic skill of Mrs. A. A. Perrin.

The comedians were decidedly entertaining.

The musical comedy sketch was well presented. Mrs. Perrin's portrayal of the Gypsy called for repeated encores. Mr. Huycke's splendid singing on the "Floral Dance" received a great ovation.

Miss Davidson was heard to splendid advantage in several numbers This young elocutionist's skill and personality quite captivated the audience.

The organization is deeply grateful to those who helped make the entertainment such a pleasant one as well as contributing to such a splendid cause—that of providing a bit of cheer for the old folks of the House of Providence.

"THE VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL" THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

The story of "The Virgin of Stamboul," the expensive feature attraction that will be presented at the Grand on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is excitingly interesting. Priscilla Dean is seen as Sari, a beautiful beggar girl in the streets of Stamboul. Captain Pemberton, a dashing young soldier of fortune falls in love with her. At the same time Achmet Hamid, a powerful sheik of the desert, plans to kill the young officer in love with his favorite wife. Following him to the mosque, he wreaks his vengeance upon the young officer, but is seen by Sari. To protect himself he plans to marry her. From this point the story becomes most engrossingly interesting. The details of a most thrilling plot are carried out with perfection, lending a rare charm to the production.

"The Virgin of Stamboul" will stand out as one of the most amazing, most thrilling, most stupendous photodramas ever put upon the screen.

FAKE FIRE SCARE

A miniature stampede was caused on Friday afternoon in Hopwood's yarn-making establishment through a false fire scare. It seems that the employes of Barries, Ltd., on the top floor were having their pictures taken and the glare and noise of the flashlight created a fire scare across the hall in Hopwood's place The girls employed there made a rush for the stairs and in the excitement one young lady fainted. Fortunately there was no other damage and the girls soon recovered themselves and returned to work.

SALVATION ARMY SELF-DENIAL JUBILEE

In sixty-six different countries throughout the world the Salvation Army is this year celebrating fifty years of service by a jubilee self-denial appeal. In the territory known as Canada East, which is bounded by Port Arthur on the west and Newfoundland and the Bermudas on the east, the date set is May 15th to 22nd, during which time it is hoped to raise 500,000 for Salvation rAmy work at home and in the mission fields.

One-half of the amount will be devoted to the work at home and the other half will be spent in the activities abroad. The money raised will be as a tribute to the memory of General William Booth, founder of the organization, and will enable the Salvation Army to carry on and extend urgently necessary operations.

In the Canada East territory the money will be used to maintain and extend the usefulness of the Salvation Army's maternity homes, children's and rescue homes, women's shelters, workingmen's homes, and shelters and institutions of that character; it will be used to further the Army's police court work, its present jail and penitentiary work. It will help to maintain the free labor bureau where employment is found for thousands of people every year. The hospitals conducted by the Army will be enabled to fulfil their glorious mission, while the industry workshops where derelict men find the opportunity to support themselves will be able to continue and expand and meet the demands which are placed upon them

In the mission field the Salvation Army is a forceful factor. It has always been the practice to devote a portion of the self-denial fund to this field of unlimited opportunities A great unselfish force of men and women are at work in the foreign field that can hardly be estimated. In forty-two different languages the mighty activities of the Salvation Army are carried on.

The Salvation Army Jubilee Self-Denial has the endorsation of His Majesty, the King of Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Rt. Hon. H. H. Asquith, Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, and many others in the Old Land, while among those in Canada who have been pleased to endorse the campaign are Hon. Lionel Clark, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, Sir Robert Falconer, Sir George Foster, Sir Edmund Walker, Sir Edmund Osler, Mr. Justice Riddell, Mr. Justice W. A. Logie, D. B. Hanna. There are many others who have spoken highly of Salvation Army work who reflect the opinion of thousands of admirers of the Salvation Army.

DE LAVAL'S INITIATIVE

Will Advertise City of Peterborough and Industrial Activities.

The initiative ability of the De Laval Manufacturing Company is again to be demonstrated in a form of advertising by the use of a moving picture film.

This form of advertising is not by any means new, but the De Laval is the first business in the city to take advantage of it. The film will be used in some two hundred theatres throughout Canada and will no doubt have the effect of advertising the city and its industrial activities.

The film, in charge of Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, general manager of the De Laval Mfg. Co., will be shown in the Board of Trade chambers this evening at 8 o'clock.

During the showing of the film Mr. Breyfogle will explain its various phases.

Owing to the limited capacity of the chambers, the business and professional men only are invited.

The showing of this film will demonstrate the advertising possibilities in securing a thousand-foot film of the whole city at a cost of approximately six hundred dollars.

KING EDWARD PARK CANNOT BE USED FOR BUILDING PURPOSES

Legislature Authorized its Purchase by City on Condition That it be Maintained as a Public Park—Housing Commission to Get Options on Other Lands.

The proposition to cut up King Edward Park into forty-eight building lots under the housing plan received a knock last night when the city engineer instructed Council in Committee of the Whole that this plan cannot be put into effect. Under act of Legislature this land was in 1908, by request of the city, vested in the City Trust to be used for park purposes only. Therefore that act would have to be rescinded before this property could be used under the housing scheme.

Ald. Turner: "In any event it would not be possible to secure further legislation in this respect this session. Why not let the Housing Commission go ahead on planning to build on other property. Then if thought advisable the city can petition Legislature next session for legislation permitting use of the King Edward Park."

Ald. Gordon: "That's a good idea. I think in a few years this park will be a valuable asset, and it should not be cut up into building lots."

Site for 86 Houses.

Later in Council D. J. Lundy offered the city, by letter, property facing Park street, across from the Park Street Baptist Church, and another piece of land adjacent to Chamberlain street for $25,000, this piece to be without prejudice. These properties would offer 84 building lots and also a factory site or two. The matter was sent to the Housing Commission.

To Secure Options.

It was decided that the commission go ahead and secure options on other lands for submittal to Council.

Committee of the Whole's report recommending procedure by the Housing Commission was adopted after eliminating all reference to King Edward Park as a site for buildings. The report reads as follows:

"That the Ontario Government be requested to guarantee debentures for $200,000 to be issued under the Ontario Housing Act and that the Housing Committee submit plans and specifications for houses to this committee and after they have been approved by this committee to ask for tenders for the construction of twenty-four houses, and to submit the tenders to this committee before letting the contract for their erection."

Commission Appointed.

A bylaw authorizing the appointment of a Housing Commission passed its three readings. This commission consists of the Mayor, James Fennie for two years and ex-Ald Dobbin for one year.

TO REMOVE MORE UNSIGHTLY POLES

C.P.R. TELEGRAPH WIRES ON GEORGE STREET TO GO UNDERGROUND.

Messrs. Hicks and Duncan, members of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, with Manager Fisk, presented to Council last night an agreement they had secured with the C. P. R. Telegraph Co., by which the latter will remove their poles on George street from Charlotte street to the C.P.R. station, and use the Machine Phone's underground conductse. This agreement provides that if at the expiration of the Machine Co.'s franchise, the latter remove their undergonnd conducts, the C.P.R. Telegraph Co. may, if necessary, run their wires on the Peterborough Utilities' poles on Water street.

This agreement was satisfactory to Council.

COST OF NEW HUNTER STREET BRIDGE SO FAR

FAST OVERTAKING THE ORIGINAL ESTIMATES—$62,765 OF MATERIAL IN HAND.

As submitted to the City Council last night, the cost of the new bridge up to May 9th is as follows: $224,919.72, of which the principle item of expenditure is $55,862.84. To be deducted from this amount $62,765 for stock in hand, $5,670 for the temporary bridge, buildings $2,000, salvage $20,000—a total of $90,435, not actually chargeable against the new bridge's cost of construction so far.

The $62,765 for stock in hand is not showing in that portion of the structure so far finished, and much of the material in the temporary bridge and buildings is resaleable for other purposes.

ORIGINAL DEFENCE

Toronto, May 18.—The defence of Frank McGee in the Police Court to a charge of stealing $500 worth of Victory Bonds belonging to Frank McCaulay, one of his roomers, was that he had taken the bonds from underneath the man's pillow so that they might be safe. He denied any intent to steal. Magistrate Kingsford remanded him for sentence.

SCORES OF IRISH ARE ON THE RUN

POLICE OR MILITARY HOLD WARRANTS FOR ARREST OF MANY.

ARRESTS ON MAIN STREETS RARE

POLICE CLAIM THEY DISLIKE TO MAKE SCENE IN PUBLIC.

(By Canadian Press.)

Dublin, May 16.—Scores of men in this city are "on the run" which, in the parlance of the land, means that the police or military hold warrants for their arrest, yet they go about the strees unmolested by policemen

Sinn Feiners here, and incidentally few men will admit they are members of that organisation, say that the police are afraid to arrest one of their members on the streets because a crowd collects, often shots are fired and usually the prisoner is rescued. It is at night and at home that they are in danger of arrest. The police do not admit they are afraid to make an arrest in public but say they dislike to create a scene where many people may gather quickly.

One of the "runners" confided some of his troubles to a newspaper man. He is 28 years of age, has a wife and children and has served several terms as a political prisoner. He said: "My wife and the kiddies are getting rather tired of the suspense of not knowing whether I am coming home or going to jail. I have four places where I sleep. It is only at in frequent and irregular intervals that I go home and then never to sleep in a bed. I roll up in a blanket on a couch or floor partly dressed. If they come for me, which they have several times, I get out of the house and they find no evidences that I have been there. I do not have to lay out along a hedge or hide behind a tree as long as I might if they know I had been there and instigated a thorough search.

"This is only an outline of the sort of life many of us are leading these days. We all follow about the same system in which much is left to chance but it really has kept many of us out of jail for intervals at least."

This informant said nothing would suit him but an Irish Republic and he would fight for it as long as he lived.

TRADE INCREASE OF $32,633,172.00

FOR MONTH OF APRIL AS COMPARED WITH APRIL, 1919.

EXPORT VALUES DECREASE

CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT OF CANADA ISSUES ITS MONTHLY STATEMENT.

(By Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, May 18.—An increase of $32,633,172 in the grand total of Canadian trade for the month of April as compared with April, 1919, is shown by the trade statement issued today by the Customs Department.

The trade of Canada during the past month reached a total of $154,161,134 compared with $121,527,962 for the same month last year. It is noticeable, however, that while there was a great increase in the value of goods imported into Canada as compared with a year ago, there was a decrease of $11,122,763 in the value of goods exported.

STRIKERS CALL A PUBLIC MEETING

PLACE, MARKET SQUARE, WEDNESDAY EVENING AT 8 O'CLOCK.

At a meeting of the machinists of the C.G.E., who are still out on strike, it was decided to hold a public demonstration on the market square on Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in order that the citizens of Peterborough might have an opportunity of hearing the strikers' version of the situation. At this meeting they will also show what steps the strikers took to effect a settlement before going out on strike and an explanation of what has taken place since will be given. The work of the committee of the City Council and the Trades and Labor Council in this regard will also be discussed at this meeting.

SOVIET RULE PLANNED FOR FRANCE

CLAIMS $68,000 AS COMMISSION

ARGUMENT IN W. N. TILLEY VS. C.G.E. CO. BEGAN IN TORONTO TODAY.

(By Canadian Press.)

Toronto, May 18. — Argument was begun this morning by W. N. Tilley, K.C., counsel for R. Carr Harris, in the latte's suit against the Canadian General Electric Co. for $68,000 claimed as commission on munition orders obtained for that company from England.

Mr. Tilley gave a list of orders on which commission was claimed, and contended that his client's employment as an independent contractor was not like that of a servant of a company.

ALMOST A FATALITY.

While driving his car past the corner of George and Hunter streets last night a prominent young man almost ran over a young lady who happened to be crossing the street at the time. The young man explained that he was on his way to purchase tickets to hear Joe Williams sing "I'm Shy, Mary Ellen, I'm Shy," in Victoria Hall on Firday night, and on agreeing to have the young lady acompany him we may expect to hear more about this remarkable escape from serious injury.

COUNTRY'S FIRST DUTY TO REDUCE THE NATION'S WAR INDEBTEDNESS

Minister of Finance, Sir Henry Drayton Presents to Common His First Budget

(By Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, May 18—Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, presented his first budget to the House today. Prior to stating his taxation proposition, Sir Henry gave an extensive review of the finanacial and economic position of the Dominion.

Task Not Too Severe.

Conditions obtaining all over the world, he said, were very different from those which prevailed while the war was in progress. Reduction of a nation's indebtedness, he stated, was the first duty of a country now that the war was won. This task, he maintained, was not so sevee as the obstacles overcome in five years of war and stress, and would be "easy and simple" if Canadians could become as united and earnest as during the war period.

Old Order Reverses.

Sir Henry sketched the progress of Canadian trade, showing how exces sof imports over exports had within the past few years been reversed. He gave a series of tables showing a steady growth in production of wheat and farm produce generally.

Turning to the national debt, Sir Henry said that the gross debt amounted to $3,014,483,774, and less investments the net debt was placed at $1,935,946,302. Referring to the inflation in currency and credits, Sir Henry compared the note circulation in Canada with that in other countries, showing that while in Great Britain there was an increase of 207 pe cent, and of 70 per cent, in the United States during the war period, in Canada the increase in circulation was 108 per cent.

Gold Reserve.

The percentage of gold reserve to the Dominion and bank note circulation was forty three per cent. "Inflation," Sir Henry said, "can only be safely cured in this as in other countries by provincial governments stopping further loans and by all government institutions reducing their expenditures weherever possible and by an increased production by all our forms of productive industry."

Adverse Exchange Rate.

Speaking of the adverse exchange rate between this country and the United States, the Finance Minister said, "Undoubtedly the exchange rate is against our national buying from the United States. It cannot be remedied by artificial means, and will only be relieved when Canada's interchange of commodities with the United States is reduced to a more reasonable rate."

Revenue 388 Millions.

The revenue for the fiscal year, he said, would reach approximately 388 million dollars, the largest revenue Canada had ever collected. It was no less than 225 millions greater than that of the first year of the war. The consolidated fund's ordinary expenditure for 1919-20 would be approximately 349 millions. Giving further statistics, Sir Henry said that the total expenditure for the war up to March 31, 1920, amounted to $1,874,000,000, apart altogether from pensions, soldiers civil reestablishment, land settlement and interest on war debt.

VOTE FOR RAYBESTOS BY-LAW

Tomorrow property owners are asked to vote on a bylaw to grant assistance to the Canadian Raybestos Company in establishing its factory in this city. If this bylaw is carried the Raybestos Co. will take over the building formerly occupied by the Lundy Shovel and Tool Company and will commence the manufacture of automobile accessories.

The company is in a good financial position. Their assets amount to over $3,500,000, of which $3,000,000 represents tangible assets, and the balance trademarks and goodwill.

The Raybestos Co. believe in extensive advertising, and their attention to this has been an important factor in rapidly building up their large business. This year they are advertising in 23 different publications with a total circulation of almost eight million. In six monthly magazines, Review of Reviews, Century, Wold's Work, Harper's, Atlantic Monthly and Scribner's, they have nearly thirty pages of advertising, and also use the Literary Digest, Collier's and other magazines and many trade publications. The company publishes a monthly journal, The Silver Edge, to assist its salesmen and dealers. An efficient sales organization backs up this advertising or is backed up by it, and the result is its products are well known, demanded and appreciated. When the company's Canadian branch is established here Peterborough will receive benefit from this extensive advertising, as Bridgeport does now.

A list of the motor cars and motor trucks which use Raybestos products would be a list of all the well known machines including the Locomobile, Packard, Peerless, Cadillac, Willys-Overland, General Motors, Chandler, Pierce-Arrow, Stevens-Duryea, Hudson, etc., and they are used by the Gramin-Berstein and other truck companies, the Moline Plow Co., the Warner Gear Co., Electric Wheel Co., Timkin-Detroit Axle Co., and numerous others, and in aeroplanes.

The Raybestos Company's factory will be a welcome addition to Peterborough's industries and to the rapidly growing number of Canadian branches of important United States concerns.

Ratepayers are reminded that it is in the interests of industrial expansion and a greater Peterborough that the Canadian Raybestos Company should locate here.

57TH BAND GRANTED $500 AND G.W.V.A. BAND THE SAME SUM

Ten Concerts to be Played by Each Band in the Park or Parks as Designated—Conference Last Night Quite Cordial—Mayor's Vote Deciding Factor

Representatives of the 57th and the G. W. V. A. Bands met the City Council in Committee of the Whole last night in response to an invitation from the city, in the hope of solving the problem of the two organizations getting together as one citizens' band.

No agreement could be effected, however, while expressions of goodwill toward each other were freely in the foreground of all discussion.

In Council meeting later on a definite conclusion was reached by the Council that each band—the 57th and the G. W. V. A.—be allowed a grant of $500, and each organization to give ten concerts in the parks this summer.

The motions leading up to and deciding this vexed question were as follows:

Moved by Ald. Gainey, seconded by Ald Morrison, that a bylaw be passed granting each band $500 they to play ten concerts in the parks.

The bylaw was at this juncture before Council for its second reading in which the amount of grant or grants and the name of recipient or recipients were to be embodied.

Ald. Gordon was in the chair, and as in a previous committee meeting downstairs a vote in this direction had resulted in a tie, his Worship the Mayor's vote would have to decide the matter one way or the other at this stage of the proceedings.

The division was as follows:

For: Ald. Gainey, Morrison, Gordon, Hamilton, and the Mayo.

Against—Ald. Turner, Copping Jones, Nagle Phelan.

The motion thus carried by a majority of one.

A motion by Ald. Turner and Jones in amendment that $600 be granted the 57th Band alone was lost on the same division, Chairman Ald. Gordon voting in the negative.

Another amendment by Ald. Turner and Jones that the 57th get $350, the Veterans $350 and the Salvation Army Band $200, was also lost on a similar division.

It is understood that during the season some sacred openair concerts are to be rendered.

Col. E. B. Clegg of the 57th Peterborough Rangers spoke in the interests of his battalion's band. During two or three months' negotiations the Colonel said, I decided to make an effort toward amalgamation of the two bands. But the main issue seemed to be leadership, and the 57th could not conceive of any basis for agreement in that respect but that Mr. Gliddon remain leader for one year, when he would retire in favor of Mr. Hughes or Mr. Pyrer. This was Mr. Gliddon's own suggestion, but it did not find approval from the Veterans.

Continuing, Col. Clegg pointed out that Mr. Gliddon was brought here twenty or more years ago and had always maintained a military band which reflected credit on both itself and the city up until the war. And the 57th Band would be very sorry to lose Mr. Gliddon's valued services. Finally, Bandmaster Hughes declined Mr. Gliddon's proposition and was apparently looking for a disbanding of the 57th Band. So far as the latter organization was concerned the question of amalgamation was here dropped and the 57th concluded to go on with its own band.

The whole question to his mind, rested between the band leaders. The 57th will not drop Mr. Gliddon, but if Hughes and Pyrer will await their turn for leadership, well and good; these two men in some way, he said, seem tied up together and will not act independently of each other. However, he concluded, we are bound to have a regimental band as a permanent organization.

Bandmaster Rupert Gliddon corroborated Col. Clegg's statement as to his offering to resign in one year. He declared Mr. Hughes to be a real good fellow with whom he had got along in perfect accord for seventeen or eighteen years. "But if you turn down the 57th Band you'll crush the life out of an orgnaization recognized for twenty years as a citizens' band, which measured up to all requirements." As to some adverse criticism, Mr. Gliddon was inclined to think that the city could afford to be generous if the boys did fall down a couple of times.

Will Carry On.

Mr. R. E. Layfield said the Veterans' Band had decided to carry on independently as no amalgamation seemed possible. Should the Council not see their way clear to accept the veterans'-citizens' band proposition, then, if a grant of $600, the sum originaly asked, is made, the Veterans' Band would give open-air concerts in the park or parks according to first plans. "We don't want to combat the 57th Band," Mr. Layfield added. "Some of them are veterans and some of us are ex-members of

MEETING OF CREDITORS

St. Catharines, May 18.—A meeting of the creditors of the Evening Journal is to be held on Thursday, when arrangements will be made for the disposition of the assets. BOLSHEVIK GOVERNMENT SET UP AT TREBIZOND, BLACK SEA PORT Revolution Said to Have Been Engineered by Russian Agitators—Greeks and Turks Clash East of Smyrna Bulgarians Reported Also Under Arms.

(By Canadian Press.)

Constantinople, May 18.—Trebizond, an importont port on the Black Sea coast of Asia-Minor, has been taken over by a local Bolshevik administration, according to an announcement made by the Turkish Press Bureau here.

Hauled Down Flag.

The population hauled down the Turkish flag, raised the Bolshevik emblem, and set up a temporary government, following a great demonstration in the city. It is not known that Bolshevik soldiers have actually reached Trebizond from Russia, but the revolution is believed to have been managed by Russian agitators.

Greeks and Turks Fight.

Greek and Turkish troops have clashed about twenty-five miles east of Smyrna, where the Turks are taking the offensive and are apparently massing reinforcements preparatory to further advances against the Greeks.

Jafar Tayar, commandant at Adrianople, has sent a message here from that city, saying forty thousand Turks and Bulgarians are prepared to resist the Greeks.

SALVATION ARMY JUBILEE.

THIS IS JUBILEE WEEK of the Salvation Army, and it is to be hoped that by Saturday night the local Corps' objective of $5000 for this city will have been reached. The occasion for contributing generally as a community to this Christian Army should commend itself to all broad minded men and women in sympathy with the uplift of the masses and the spread of Christ's kingdom on earth. From that intrepid little band of men and women who first introduced the Salvation Army to the slums of London, England, has grown a mighty organization for religious and charitable work which has spread to the four corners of the earth. Thousands of brands have been snatched from the burning, thousands of men and women of all sorts and conditions have been released from shame vice and crime, and their feet set on the paths of rectitude and righteousness. There should be no reason to question how your money contributed to this great institution for moral reform and care for the distressed has been and will be spent. But as a reminder of the magnitude of the Army's work, let it be known that their God-given work in part includes:

10,000 poor unfortunate girls cared for.

771,000 jobs found for the unemployed.

33,000,000 nights' bed and shelter found.

45,000,000 meals provided.

It would be hard to find a community in this Canada of ours in which a uniformed corps- men and women of the Salvation Army is not at work. Undaunted they visit dens of iniquity and disease and minister unto the fallen and degraded, oftentimes under conditons where their physical safety is threatened. No duty is too arduous, no self-sacrifice too much for them, so long as they can serve and retain brother and sister mortals and bring them within the folds of religious influences. Many a frock-coated man and many a well-dressed woman today communing with church organizations of varied denominations owe it to the Army that they first saw the light of Christian truth and worship Therefore society in general may confidently be relied on this self-denial week to contribute as generously as individual means will allow to an organization which engages in religious work the hardships and sacrifices in which are apparent to the enquiring observer.

The Salvation Army's splendid endeavors and its self-denial appeal are endorsed by His Majesty the King, statesmen and other representative men within our Empire. Among them are found such names as Sir George Foster, Rt. Hon. H. H. Asquith, His Honor Lionel Clark, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario: Rt. Hon. A. J. Belfour, Hon. W. L. M. King, Hon. N. W. Rowell, Hon. Sir H. C. Drayton, Sir Edmund Walker, president Canadian Bank of Commerce; Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, D. B. Hanna, Hon. J. A. Calder, Sir John Willison, Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Sir Robert Falconer, Sir Edmund Osler, Rt. Hon. Albert Margrett, Hon. Justice Riddell, Hon. H. C. Nixon, Hon. Beniah Bowman, and Hon. Justice Logie

COMPARISONS MAY BE ODIOUS.

THAT PROJECT for that big steel merger is causing concern and comparison of policies in many United States quarters. An influential exchange in dealing with this matter says: "Amalgamation of the principal steel companies of Canada and allied matallurgical interests into a single corporation, with the open backing of both the Dominion and the Imperial Governments, calls attention to the difference of view of industrial combinations taken by the British Empire and the United States, assuming each to be truly expressed by their administrative policy. The Department of Justice invites the Supreme Court to stultify itself on the United States Steel decision. The British Government invites the steel, coal and iron ore interests of the Empire to get together and stimulate production for all they are worth, to their own advantage and that of the Empire."

The paper here goes on to say: "The Canadian project will go through, backed as it is by the political and financial interests of both the colony and the Empire. It will possess vast natural resources of coal and iron ore advantageously placed at tidewater. The corporation will get preferntial treatment in the vast British world markets. It will be a formidable competitor even of the great United States Steel Corporation. It may well be the greatest industrial organization in the British Empire Besides raw materials, rail and water transportation, a nucleus of iron and steel manufacturing units and abundance of British capital, it will have British brains and British banking behind it, and they are making an impressive showing just now while Washington is merely talking.

"Great British ironmasters have no prejudices, and if they can manufacture to better advantage in Canada, producing slabs and billets cheap from access to raw materials, they can look at the proposition with a vision as wide as this continent or the world itself. They are not afraid of $500,000,000 capital stock, nor of questionbegging epithets like that of 'water,' which may be, as it was in the case of the United States Steel Corporation, on the proved book value of its stocks, merely intelligently anticipated growth. The British bankers and manufacturers know that the stock exchange will attend to squeezing out the water if there is any. Under the excellent British corporation laws the investor will know exactly what he is buying, and will be trusted thereafter to blow his own nose.

"Comparisons may be odious, but they are sometimes deeply instructive. This one is commended not merely to the Department of Justice but to all the 'regulators' of the business of the country."

EXPERIMENTAL FORESTS.

CANADIANS HAVE NOW been familiar for a long time with the words, "experimental farm," and, while the heading of this article may seem a little new, a moment's reflection will show that the good work which our experimental farms have done for agriculture, our experimental forests are likely to do for forestry and lumbering. The people of this country now realize that a large proportion of Canada is admirably suited to the growing of timber, but is not suited to the growing of ordinary field crops. Rough, hilly land, sandy plains and ridges strewn with boulders are types of soils better suited to growing trees than to growing anything else. At the same time the increasing price of lumber all over the world proves to Canadians that the forests growing on these non-arable lands will continue to form one of Canada's greatest resources. In the Upper Ottawa country and in many other parts of Canada there are districts from which a crop of timber has been taken by the lumbermen, but which have not been ocupied since that time by settlers. These districts are now being covered again with a new growth of timber, but in many cases it is not as good timber as that taken off thirty or forty years ago. It is here that the knowledge and skill of the forest engineer comes in. He can by weeding out the inferior trees give the better species like pine and spruce a chance to develop and cover the country. Details of such work have been reduced to a system in Europe, as many Canadians learned when they served in the trenches in France, but experience in regard to European forests cannot be taken as a guide in a country like Canada, where many of the conditions are different. To study this problem of how to reproduce good forests as quickly as possible on cut-over or burned-over lands, the Dominion Government, at the request of the Honorary Advisory Council for Scientific and Industrial Research, instructed the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior to establish an experimental forest on part of the military reservation at Petawawa. The tract is an ideal one as it presents conditions as they appear over a large part of Ontario and Quebec. Three working seasons have now been spent on the experimental forest at Petawawa and already much information has been gained as to the rapidity of tree growth. With these studies continued and extended Canadians will in years to come know as much about their forests and how to handle them as the French know about theirs.

CANADIAN SCHOOLS ADOPTING MUSIC.

FROM RECENT developments in Western Canadian educational circles, it would appear that the bonds of red tape will soon be cast aside. Saskatchewan provides that music shall be an optional study in the High schools of that Province. This provision states also that credit will be given for a musical education received elsewhere. The candidate presenting official evidence of having obtained a certificate in piano or theory may be exempted from examination in algebra or agriculture, Latin or Greek. This shows what the world is coming to. Imagine music being accepted in place of algebra as part of the training necessary for a second-class certificate in the old days!!

The De La Salle College at Aurora, Ont., where male teachers for the Ontario separate schools are trained, give a course of vocal and instrumental music to all students taking up the normal course, so as to fit them for co-operating in the musical training of boys when they become teachers in the schools.

In Toronto, St. Paul's Separate School ex-pupils have presented to that school a gramophone which is put to much use every school day. The instrument is of great aid in marching, writing and physical culture, as well as helping to cultivate an appreciation for music among the children.

WORKING IN OVERALLS and not parading in them is the way to reduce the high cost of living.

NOT BREAD ALONE.

(Mrs. A. F. Calder.)

Oh, Christian, wherefore, anxious care,
And sordid strife, for gear and gold,
while you to mansions bright are heir,
Unfailing treasure, wealth untold?

A rich inheritance in trust,
Secure beneath a Father's seal,
Beyond corroding, moth or rust,
Where never thief breaks in to steal.

This whole wide world, if we could gain,
'Twere but to our eternal cost,
If for its joys of transient strain
The immortal soul for aye be lost.

For life consists not in those things
That fade and perish in a day,
All earthly on swift silent wings
Pass like light vapory clouds away.

Why should a mortal then be fain
To grasp a great and full supply
Of loaves and fishes, all but vain
The hungry soul to satisfy?

The soul must famish and decline
On the best bread earth can afford:
It lives by every word Divine,
And the blest Spirit's grace outpoured.

Ungrateful, shall we then despise
Blessings of basket and of store
That bounteous heaven freely supplies
In stream unceasing, flowing o'er?

Nay, for each good and perfect gift
Descending from the Source above,
May we our hearts adoring lift
In humble gratitude and love.

SPRING.

(Katharine Adams in Boston Transcript.)

I shall be brave as the Spring comes by,
The sweet, faint time of rose-touched orchad trees
And fragrant field flowers tossing in the breeze,
Of pearly petals and a lilac sky.
I shall be still as the Spring comes by,
The late, deep Sprin gof daffodils that blow,
Of singing gardens where white violets lie,
And in the bush as the Spring comes by,
The frail, strange time of shy young bud and leaf,
Something shall come to heal me of my grief—
Peace and the blessing of the lilac sky.

NEW HOME AND SCHOOL ASSN.

The executive of the newly formed Home and School Association in the King George School, Ashburnham, are surely to be congratulated on the wonderful success of their first regular meeting. In spite of the fact that many homes are quarantined with measles, the kindergarten room was crowded to capacity. In looking over the audience one found a splendid representation of the men of Ashburnham, which augurs well for the success of the association. It may be woman's day, but the greatest achievements require the combined efforts of both men and women. We shall look for great results from such an association as we saw gathered together.

Mrs. A. S. Couper, president of the association, occupied the chair. Not content with the pleasure already given, Mrs. J. M. Gemmel with her assistants served most delicious refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee, which furnished ample proof that the ladies of Ashburnham have accomplished the fine art of cooking.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem, but, to quote from the little poem:

"The party closed at sundown,
But everybody stayed."

So the ladies and gentlemen lingered talking and visiting in groups as if loathe to leave the school on the hill.

The committee wish to thank the board of Mark Street Church for the loan of chairs and the W. A. of St Luke's Church for dishes.

KING EDWARD PARK.

Editor Review:

Dear Sir,—In Saturday's issue a resident on Princess street very logically and forcibly protests against the proposed outrage of cutting up the King Edward Park into building lots.

Your correspondent ponts out the folly of incurring additional needless sewer, water and light expense in building a new street in this quicksand area, but why in the name of common sense sacrifice a park, when acres of building lots are vacant, without going outside the boundary or off the street car line?

We think this aldermanic dream has the ordinary "fool proposition" beat to a frazel, they had better build a terrace on Water street along Victoria Park we could still hold the band concerts on the hill side.

A general criticism of former councils has been their failure to provide ample park and playground space before land prices became prohibitive, the scarcity or price of lots is not a serious item in house building at the present time, and this ridiculous proposal is nothing short of an outrage on the future, when these hundreds of vacant lots are built upon and recreation space required. The City Council cannot change to any appreciable extent the abnormal conditions under which the building trode suffers at the present time, conditions almost world wide, it would be just as sensible for them to try and reduce the price of wheat.

If the Council want to help house the working man who cannot afford to pay $20.00 per month rent, this absurd proposal of a 40-foot lot with its consequent frontage taxation is certainly not a solution, the trend of taxation in the near future is on land values, the workman's lot must be narrow, 30 feet is ample, 25 feet is sufficient.

This proposition is not for the workman at all, but to provide for the highly paid foreman or skilled mechanic who is able to pay his own way.

If the city builds on these lots it will cost about $5,000.00 per house to the purchaser with interest at 6 per cent, taxes at $75.00. It will take over $30.00 per month to cover expense alone with principal and depreciation additional to provide for.

This is only a scheme favoring the manufacturers in providing for their leading men and leaving the ordinary workingman to shift for himself as best he can.

Let the Council get busy on taxing vacant land until it is forced into use and they will thereby take one important step in making future conditions better for all, but hands off the parks and recreation grounds. Instead of less, we will need more in the future.

What has our new Town Planning Commission to say about this proposed confiscation of the people's property without even consulting them about it?

In conclusion, if this scheme goes through and an injunction can be secured to protect the people's rights and prevent the confiscation of their property without their consent, that step will be taken. CITIZEN.

Under the terms by which the city acquired King Edward Park this property cannot be used for any other than park purposes without special legislation, and Council has practically abandoned the idea.—Editor.

THEATRICAL

"TYRONE POWER" AT GRAND THEATRE

LOVERS OF DRAMA SHOULD NOT FAIL TO SEE HIM ON VICTORIA DAY.

Tyrone Power, the eminent actor who made so strong an impression a few weeks since by his powerful presentation of "The Drainman," in Charles Rann Kennedy's "The Servant in the House," will return to Peterborough on Monday, May 24th, when he will present at the Grand Theatre "The Little Brother," a powerful modern drama by Milton Goldsmith and benedict James, in which he made a successful tour of the United States and Eastern Canada last season. In this play Mr. Power assumes the title role, that of a priest of the Russian church, who through the intense bitterness with which he persecutes the Jews, acquires the name of "The Scourge of God." It is a character distinctly different from that of "The Drainman," and the masterly manner in which it's requirements are met by Mr. Power emphasizes his wonderful versatility. It is doubtful if there is a man on the stage today who has played so wide a range of parts with unvarying success as Tyrone Power. He has shown himself to be possessed of that finest of all the faculties of the human mind, imagination, and likewise has manifested in a charming way, that great saving, correcting guiding attribute, a keen sense of humor. Intuitive perception of character is a conspicuous part of his mental equipment, and this has been sharpened by close observation and careful study. He anticipates touring the Dominion next season and presenting several absolutely new plays of merit which he has now under consideration.

SEE "THE VIRGIN OF STAMBOUL"

The story of "The Virgin of Stamboul," the expensive feature attraction that will be presented at the Grand Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is excitingly interesting. Priscilla Dean is seen as Sari, a beautiful beggar girl in the streets of Stamboul. Captain Pemberton, a dashing young soldier of fortune, falls in love with her. At the same time Ahmet Hamid, a powerful Sheik of the desert, plans to kill the young officer in love with his favorite wife. Following him to the Mosque he wrecks his vengeance upon the young officer, but is seen by Sari. To protect himself he plans to marry her. From this point the story becomes most engrossingly interesting. The details of a most thrilling plot are carried out with perfection, lending a rare charm to the production.

"The Virgin of Stamboul" will stand out as one of the most amazing, most thrilling, most stupendous photodramas ever put upon the screen.

"In Old Kentucky," now showing at the Allen Theatre, Anita Stewart has a role which fits her perfectly. As the unsophysticated mountain lass, she is most natural and charming. The picture has thrills varying from the most important which is a great horse race to a leap across a deep chasm on horse back by Anita. Kentucky has featured probably more than any other part of the United States in famous plays on account of its scenery and the background for "In Old Kentucky" is wonderfully pretty.

Moon-shining, an old Kentucky feud which has destroyed practically two families, love and romance, are all centred in this one picture which is a masterful production. The fate of the family fortunes of the Laysons, an aristocratic Kentucky family is dependent on the success in the races of Queen Bess, and it is left to the mountain girl (Anita Stewart) to ride her to success on account of the drunken spree of the jockey.

A Lloyd comedy, in which that great comedy actor excells himself, also features the bill for the first part of the week.

Gulls in the Henscoop.

A curious custom of the Newfoundland fishermen is that of keeping seagulls of a large species as domestic fowls. They capture the young while they are nestlings, and rear them on fish, confining them in pens. Their eggs are eaten, and, for lack of a turkey or goose for Christmas, the fisherman is satisfied with a selection from his coop of fattened gulls.

Famous English Lotteries

It brought a shock to many Londoners when somebody informed them that Westminster bridge was built from the proceeds of a lottery. Then somebody dug up the fact that away back in 1736 parliament incorporated a lottery through which the beginnings were made toward establishing the British museum.

In for It.

An Irish conductor had the misfortune to run his car over an old man who had a bottle of bluing inside his coat. Jumping from his car and seeing the fluid gathering in a pool on the street, he cried to his friend, "Finnegan, it'll go harrd wid us. We've killed one o' them 'blue' bloods."—Boston Transcript.

HOW SPIES DIE.

"Father" Rollin Tells of His War Experiences.

"Father" Rollin, the man who tied Bolo Pasha, Mata Hari, the dancer, and twenty-five other traitors and spies to the stake on the desolate Vincennes parade grounds for execution by a French firing squad, has taken the liberty to talk out of his gruesome school, now that his business is slack.

"Pere" Rollin says his duties first nauseated him, but he got used to it. Between contemplative puffs from a stumpy clay pipe, he continued:

"I saw 27 fall under the bullets of the platoon of poilus. Greeks, Spaniards, Germans, Austrians, Italians, even French and English—and two women.

"Each victim gets a fresh stake, which is a dead tree, stump or branch, or the stake is often shot away."

One method by which Pere Rollin gauges the interest in executions is by the demand for souvenirs in the shape of pieces of rope which tied the condemned man.

"Bolo's end," he went on, "was more sensational. Every poilus of the firing squad had to get a bit of the rope, and I've only got two inches left."

Needless to say this demand for souvenirs was a regular source of income for Father Rollin.

"The man who told the Germans where the Big Bertha shells fell by sending notes to Spain in perfume bottles died in a dramatic fashion. He threw his cap in the air and shouted: "Go on! Fire right at the heart!"

Mata Hari, the Japanese dancer, once the pet of Paris drawing rooms, had been led to think hers was to be only a "make believe execution," Rollin says. That was why she seemed so full of courage, he says, adding, "but the rifles were well charged."

Asked if he kept the wooden stakes, Rollin replied disdainfully: "Keep them? What for? To open a museum? No! I burn them. I'd rather keep warm — and wood is dear."

Russia's Natural Wealth.

As the new experiment works itself out, there will emerge the larger question of the undeveloped resources of Russia, says John Foord, in Asia Magazine. The world knows more about these than it did, but the general impression is a vague conception of vastness without much detailed knowledge. Even the Russia that will emerge from the throes of civil war and the perils of foreign aggression will be the largest connected state in the world, easily fitted to become the foremost state of the world in population, in agriculture, forestal, mineral and industrial production, and therefore in wealth. In European Russia alone there are 500.000.000 acres of forests, which may easily enable her to organize the largest timber and wood-working industries in the world, and the largest paper-making industry as well. These are very largely in North Russia, and Northern Siberia, but farther south, Russia produces immense quantities of wheat, rye, oats, barley, beetroot, mangold, rape, hemp, flax, apples, pears, plums, cherries and other orchard and garden fruits. Still farther south there is an abundance of maize, rice, cotton, jute, tobacco, tea, almonds, pistachios, pomegranates, oranges, apricots and grapes. Russia's food production per acre has been extremely low, because the great majority of the peasants merely scratch the ground and are entirely ignorant of scientific fertilization. It has been asserted that Russia's production could be doubled and trebled without extending her agricultural area, merely by improving the methods of cultivation.

A Forgotten Language.

"The crowfoot girdle treetop turtle," said one gentleman to another, as reported by the Minneapolis Journal, in an office in that city. "Scalp thirty reel blaze," he continued, reading from an old leather-bound ledger. "Scalp thirty reel blaze," repeated his companion, and wrote it down on a sheet of paper. The two gentlemen, says the Journal, were talking a language once used but now forgotten in Minnesota, for they were respectively a former surveyor general of logs and lumber and his assistant, busy identifying some ancient logs that had been a long time sunk in a river. The strange sounding sentences were composed of identification marks of which at least 8,000 have been recorded since the pioneer days when logs were first cut in Minnesota forests. Billions of feet of lumber from the great forests have been thus marked, and once in a while some old logs are recovered from the river bottom and the old ledger of bark marks and stamps on the ends of the logs is again referred to.

Raising Skunks for Fur.

As wild fur-bearing animals have decreased in numbers and the scarcity and prices of furs consequently increased, many individuals have been led to undertake the rearing of fur-bearers in captivity, as for example the efforts to breed foxes in Canada and parts of the United States, and the widespread interest in skunk raising. It is of significance that in one state alone the game warden, within a period of two years, issued more than fifty permits for breeding skunks in captivity.—Robert K. Nabours in the National Geographic Magazine.

Frankness.

The eldest sons of British peers bear what are known as "courtesy titles," when the head of the house has two or three and can spare an inferior one to his son.

Earl Winterton, a young English politician, has a keen sense of humor and can enjoy a joke on himself, as is evidenced by his recounting of this one:

Before succeeding to the earldom he was known as Lord Turnour, under which name he figured in some noisy scenes in the House. A few months after his father's death he was thus addressed at dinner by a fellow guest:

"I ought to know you, but I can't recall your name."

"Oh, I am Earl Winterton," was the reply.

"Of course, of course," said the other. "Why, I have been confounding you all the evening with that ass Turnour!"

A Postal Airplane Service.

After the signing of the armistice the British authorities established a postal airplane service to Cologne, and in connection with this service systematic use was made of wireless telephony, says the Halifax Chronicle. Wireless telephone stations were placed on the ground at distances of fifty miles from each other and with the use of quite small sets were able to transmit messages to aircraft up to thirty miles away. They could also receive from the air to about fifty miles. Frequently these distances were exceeded and an airplane was in communication at one end the same time with three stations. Considering the small size of the apparatus employed these were remarkable results, and testify to the rapid progress made by the British air service since the first trials of wireless telephony to airplanes in 1915.

Etiquette of Fish Feast.

In the Samoan islands, when a fish feast is held, the piece de resistance must be divided up in accordance with a rigid and unvarying etiquette. The heads are assigned to the tribal orators, who are of the high nobility. The flesh just behind the gills is set apart for guests whom the host of the occasion desires to honor. The pectoral fins (a particular delicacy) go to the king. The cuts across the spine just abaft the pectorals (the very parts we should think most desirable) are distributed among the common people. For the chiefs the tail and belly parts are reserved.

Jellies Make Good Drink.

With la grippe and feverish colds, cooling drinks are in demand. Chilled fruit juices are always acceptable, whether it is the juice of raw fruits, such as lemons, limes, oranges or grape fruit or the cooled liquids around cooked dried fruit or preserves. Mix with water, sweeten slightly, and put in a teaspoonful of shaved ice. Tart jellies make a refreshing drink, especially currant jelly. A nourishing drink is made by mixing the water off boiled rice with orange juice or currant jelly and water. Lemonade is made tasty with a dash of nutmeg.

Keeping Warm in Finland.

In many ways the Finns are a very queer people. It is during the terrible cold months that the Finns revel in the mighty ovens that fill one corner of every kitchen and often loom up large and vastly impressive in the other rooms of a Finn home as well. The tops of these monster stoves are perfectly flat, and steps lead up on one side. When the weather becomes bitterly cold and bleak, the entire Finnish family will take quilts and pillows and, mounting to the top of the big heater, spread down their bedding and sleep very comfortably and contentedly on the hard hot bricks until morning.—Nevin O. Winter, in Christian Herald.

Discipline Essential.

Those who escape discipline are to be pitied, but we may be sure the escape will not be for long. The order of the world provides for this without our interference. In most cases we had much better be concerned in holding our hands off or in providing alleviations for the hours between these needful buffetings by the heavy hand of fate. The discipline of others, in other words, ordinarily is none of our business. We may safely and wisely leave it to parents, school masters, police and to the hard knocks of life.

TORONTO WOMAN HAS GAINED 30 POUNDS

TRIED FOR TEN YEARS TO FIND HEALTH WITHOUT SUCCESS—TROUBLES OVERCOME BY TAKING TANLAC.

"I have changed so much for the better than when my friends meet me on the street they don't know me, and no wonder for I have gained thirty-five pounds in weight," was the remarkable statement made by Mrs. Davies, of 55 Beaty Avenue, Toronto, recently.

"I was a sick woman for ten years," she continued "My ill-health was caused by overwork and then a severe shock which shattered my nervous system and I had a complete breakdown. I was in the hospital for a year and when I came out I wasn't very much better. I had headaches that nearly drove me out of my mind, and all the sleep I ever got was after I was completely exhausted. I was as weak as a baby and went down from one hundred and thirty-eight pounds to a hundred and six. I was so pitiably pale and thin that you wouldn't have recognized me for the strong healthy woman I used to be.

"It was my husband who persuaded me to give Tanlac a trial. He read of a case in the papers which almost described my own and he was convinced that it would help me. That was just before Christmas, and that bottle of Tanlac was the best Christmas present I ever had, for it was the turning pont of my illness. The first thing it did was to make me sleep better, and soon my appetite improved and I began to eat as I had done for years. My whole condition steadily improved and I gained in strength and weight rapidly. I now weigh one hundred and thirty-six pounds so that I have gained thirty pounds and really I feel fine. For ten years I have been trying to find something to restore my health, so you can imagine how thankful I am for what Tanlac has done for me."

World-wide Comment on Jubilee Appeal

The Salvation Army's Appeal for a fund to celebrate its Jubilee is one that deserves, and will assuredly elicit, a generous response. There was a time not many years ago when its methods came in for a great deal of criticism. . . . To-day, one neverhears these criticisms. They are echoes from the past and even those who may not altogether agree with the methods of The Army are forced to recognize that it is doing most valuable work for the cause of religion and the social amelioration of the masses. It has always worked for the bottom dogs. Its gretest achievements have been amongst the submerged tenth, the porest of the poor, and there it has invaded a field of labor which far too many other religious movements rarely reach. In the Church militant The Army has a foremost place. In fact, it often seems the only militant Christianity at present in evidence. In the sacrifices which it demands from its leaders, and the energy with which it pursues its aims, it approaches the fiery zeal and self-surrender of the early martyrs. The King, in his greeting to The Army on this occasion, speaks of its "works of love and mercy both in peace and war," and dwells on the degree to which it "has become honored and endeared to the hearts of the nations of the world," and his words express admirably the sentiments of the whole nation. We all recognize now that The Army has won a distinctive place in the British Empire, and that its work should be maintained and encouraged. For what it did before the war, for what it has done since and what it is now capable of dong, not only for Britain but for humanity as a whole, it deserves the most generous support of all classes and denominations.—From South Wales Daily News.

WEEK-END FIRES

Department Called Out to Extinguish Four Blazes.

The Fire Department was called out to several small fires during the week-end but there was no serious damage in any case. At 6.27 p.m. on Saturday a call was received from the residence of Mr. A. E. Lewis, 642 George street, to quench a chimney fire. There was no damage.

Three minutes after the first alarm on Saturday night a call was received from the Exhibition Park and was answered by the horse apparatus. On arriving there it was found that a fire had been started through some unknown cause in one of the sheds, but that it had been extinguished with water before the arrival of the department. The blaze was very small and the sending in of the alarm to the department had been merely a safety measure.

At 8.10 last night another call was received from Lisbon street where the old barn which was burnt down a few days ago had rekindled and was burning away merrily by the time that the department arrived on the scene. It was necessary to law a line of hose to p totun to law a line of hose to put out this blaze, but as the barn had already been damaged beyond repair there was no loss.

At noon today another alarm was sent in from Cricket Place for a small grass fire, which was beaten out by the use of old rubber coats which are reserved for that purpose. In connection with the fire Chief Grange stated this afternoon that a child had picked up the strap which was used to tie the old coats together and that as the party was known to the department they would be wise in saving further trouble by returning the strap to the fire hall.

The sailing of the Cunarder Kaiserin Augusta Victoria was postponed owing to labor disturbances at Southampton.

Y. W. C. A. ACTIVITIES

Campaign for New Swimmers the Next Two Weeks.

Although the gymnasium classes are over for the season, there are still numerous activities at the Young Women's Christian Association. On Tuesday night the Athena Club will meet at the association for supper and afterwards will have a theatre party. The Good Cheer Club, Jolly Juniors, T.M. T.M.'s and Merry Maids will meet as usual on their regular nights. The T.M. T.M.'s are planning a picnic to Nassaw for the 24th of May, to which all girls are invited. If it is a fine day, they can be sure of a great time.

Big excitement is expected at the swimming pool the next two weeks over the campaign for new swimmers. Every girl who at present takes lessons or swims in the Y.W. C.A. pool will be on one of the teams, so if you are among that number and still have not been approached by any of the captains, just telephone 237 and find out to which team you belong. Come in to the pool tonight at 8.15 and see the fun when the races are on, or better still, if you can swim and have a doctor's certificate, come in the races.

Girls in the life-saving classes will be working hard now to get ready for their examination, which will take place in about two weeks. Miss Pickard from Toronto will be the examiner.

Keep Friday night, May 28th, free for the camp shower, and watch the paper to see what articles you can give away.

57TH BAND GRANTED

the 57th. But if the city wants a citizens' band, the Vets' proposition is still open. $1000 from the city and $1000 from the G. W. V. A. This proposition is not made in a spirit of aggression toward the 57th but with a desire to serve the public. I'm sure we all wish the 57th band the best of luck."

Mr. Layfield contended that no member of a citizens' band should be obliged to sign up with the militia for three years.

Col. Clegg replied that while the members of the 57th Band did sign up for three years, any one was at liberty to retire at any time.

Not Lose Identity.

Secretary Whatley of the G. W. V. A. said that after two or three years' [illegible] work the Veterans' Band did not feel like losing its identity. "If the Council should divide the grant the Veterans' Band would give the concerts stipulated. But they could not accept amalgamation." Mr. Whatley pointed out that uniforms for the Veteran's Band had already been ordered, irrespective of any action which might be taken by the Council.

Ald. Turner—"So far as I'm concerned, if we are going to divide at all we should take in the Salvation Army band also."

Echo from Ald. Jones, Morrison and Copping: "Me Too!"

Subsequently Ald. Turner and Jones moved that the 57th Band be granted $600 for thirteen concerts in the park.

Ald. Morrison and Gordon moved in amendment hat $1000 be divided equally between the 57th and the G. W. V. A. Bands for ten concerts in the parks by each. This amendment was tied on the following vote:

For: Ald. Morrison, Hamilton, Gordon and Gainey.

Against—Ald. Jones, Turner, Copping and Phelan.

Here the question was sent upstairs for Council in bi-monthly session, with the result as outlined at the head of this report.

Ald. Turner thought the city owed the Salvation Army Band $500 for past services.

Ald. Gordon maintained that the Army band is a religious organization.

Ald. Turner replied that the band is a people's organization.

Ald. Gordon considered to the effect that he supposed that Ald. Turner would favor a grant to any other religious denominational and which might be organized.

Seed-Growing in the Okanagan

The Okanagan Valley Has Many Beautiful Scenes. This is Penticton.

During the war, the seed supply in Canada was thought to be very low and the Agricultural Experimental Stations were asked to make a war measure of its production. Through the efforts of the various stations, farmers were educated and interested in this class of work to such an extent that many of them have now taken up seed-growing as part of their work. The eastern provinces have given special attention to the results in the Okanagan valley in British Columbia which is especially adopted, with its great diversity of soil, for seed growing. The "grown-in-Canada" idea also makes a strong appeal.

Mr. R. H. Helmer, Superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Station at Summerland, has extensively promoted the industry. The special function of the Experimental Stations is to grow seed from selected roots to supply seed-growers. The Summerland station will grow two varieties of each root crop, will avoid crossing and will reverse the crop each year. To guard against cross fertilization, each district is selecting one variety of mangel, carrot, turnip and various standard vegetables. It is hoped by this means to obtain a purer strain of each. This station has met with fine results in the growing of mangles, turnips, carrots, swiss-chard, corn, cabbage, celery, peppers, tomatoes, beans, peas, cucumbers, water-melons, musk-melons, marrows, parsley, alfalfa, clover, timothy and other grasses, soy beans, parsnips, potatoes, certified grains and numerous varieties of flowers. It was found that flower seeds which were hard to mature in moist climates were harvested with ease at the Okanagan station. These seeds were distributed to the various farms of Canada and have received special recognition.

The yields have been large—mangels have run from 1,000 to 2,500 pounds per acre, sweet corn 2,000 to 3,000 lbs per acre, musk-melons, 600 pounds, tomatoes 400 pounds, carrots 800 to 1,300 pounds, beets 1,000 to 1,200 pounds, cabbage 300 to 800 pounds. Tomato seed from this farm sold as high as eleven dollars an ounce.

Mr. Helmer stated that it was hoped, by producing seed of guaranteed quality and variety, to build-up an industry that would pay the grower and give the farmers of other provinces confidence in Canadian grown seed as superior to imported seed of unknown origin and quality. "All eastern men who have visited the district" stated Mr. Helmer, "say that our plants throw more seed than in the east and our harvest weather is ideal for seed work."

Fostering the industry, "the United good seeds that can be marketed to in British Columbia, with headquarters and cleaning plant at Penticton. Their object is to co-ordinate the efforts of the seed-growers towards the production or seeds of high germination are the re- commercial advantage and the elimination of poor seeds. They aim to sell the seeds on a co-operative basis direct to the grower and the trade. This organization takes the roughly cleaned seed, re-cleans it, tests it for quality and germination and the finished seeds are stored in the Penticton warehouse. The dry climate makes this centre most suitable for the purpose.

To finance this organization, stock has been subscribed all over the province to the extent of about $20,000 and is held mainly by seed-growers. Approximately 100,000 pounds of seed will be put on the market in British Columbia this summer.

FALCONS CHAMPION HOCKEY TEAM WERE GUESTS OF TORONTO CITY

Banqueted in King Edward Hotel Last Night—Mayor T. L. Church Presided.

Toronto, May 18.—The Falcons hockey team of Winnipeg, amateur champions of the world, were the guests of the city at a dinner in the King Edward last night, and many tributes and compliments were paid them on their success in the Olympic games. That the reputation and regard for Canadians in Belgium was greatly increased by their conduct both on and off the ice, was stated by almost every speaker. Mayor T. L. Church presided and in proposing the health of the guests stated that while the Falcons were from Winnipeg, at Antwerp they had represented the Dominion and that the whole country was deeply indebted to them for the manner in which they had upheld Canada. Toronto, although defeated by the Falcons in the contest for the right to represent Canada in the games at Antwerp took considerable credit for the victory, as Winnipeg was a second Toronto, and several of the athletic organisations in Winnipeg were off-shoots of local organisations.

W. A. Hewitt, who was manager of the team on the Olympic expedition, spoke on behalf of the players and traced the history of the club from its organisation right up to the dinner. He told the assembly of the manner in which they had carried on while away and spoke of the manner in which they had been received by the Belgians. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation to Mr. Hewitt of a monocle by Sheriff Plaxton, of Whitby, to complete his All-British costume, from Prince of Wales hat to spats.

Other speakers were President Mulqueen, of S. P. A.; Joe Kelly, Controller Ramsden, Dr. Bruce MacDonald, Dr. Barton, Judge Cohen, J. E. Atkinson, Harry McGee, Francis Nelson and Secretary Merrick, of the A. A. U. of C. The latter speaker stated that Col. Molson, of Montreal, had offered a cup for the winners of the Olympic games for perpetual competition in honor of the Falcons' success in the initial contest and, all that was necessary now was the acceptance by the Olympic Hockey Committee. During the evening Jack Slack rendered a couple of songs which greatly delighted the diners.

Those in the party are: H. Axford (president), W. Fridhiffson, K. Johanneson, W. Bryon, R. J. Benson, H. Halderson, C. Fridhiffson, Mike Goodman and A. Woodman.

Introduced to Premier.

On their arrival at the station yesterday morning the Falcons were met by representatives of the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association and civic bodies. About 10 o'clock they drove to the Parliament Buildings, where they were introduced to Premier Drury and members of the Cabinet, afterwards proceeding to the City Hall, where they were tendered a civic reception and given a warm greeting by a large crowd of fans who had gathered in front of the main entrance of the building. At noon they were guests of the National Club at a luncheon, and the afternoon they spent at the Island Stadium as the guests of President McCaffery of the Toronto Baseball Club at the game between Toronto and Jersey City. Following the game they inspected the harbor improvements and then went to the King Edward Hotel to attend the banquet given them by the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association. At the conclusion of the banquet they were the guests of the United Veterans at their boxing show in the Arena. They will remain in the city until this evening, when they leave for the West.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE

The Canadian Woollens football team will practice tomorrow night at the Oval and all players are requested to be on hand.

CAN. WOOLLENS GO DOWN TO DEFEAT

LOSE TO MACHINE GUN FOOTBALL 11 ON OWN PITCH.

Owing to lack of space the following report of the game between the Canadian Woollens and the Machine Gun Corps was held over from yesterday:

On their home pitch at the Oval the Canadian Woollens football team fell an easy prey to the fast travelling Machine Gun aggregation on Saturday afternoon by a score of 4-1. The Woollens had no luck even from the start. They lost the toss, although this was no great loss as there was little, if any, wind to favor the M.G.C. However, the sun was an important factor affecting the accuracy of the goal shooting and the M.G.C. elected to take all the advantage they could get in the first half and played with the sun and wind at their backs.

It did not take long to tell which was the better team and soon after the game had commenced the M. G. C. capped some neat combination work with a score. This was repeated later in the half and then again toward the close of the half.

They were not, however, allowed to have things all their own way and in a quick rush by the Canadian Woollens' forwards Crowe made an accidental foul which gave the Woollens a penalty shot. The penalty shot was a little too much for the M.G.C. goalie and thus the Woollens scored their only counter in the game. After this pont they were at no time in any real danger of scoring and the M.G.C. had things pretty much their own way and might have scored many more times if they had not become a little too confident and careless. They missed some shots which seemed comparitively easy, but apparently they thought that as the game was already theirs there was no need to put forth much effort.

M.G.C. Slacken.

In consequence of this ever-growing attitude on the part of the M. G. C. players they did not put up anything like as good a game in the second half as they did in the first and only scored one more goal during this period, bringing the score to 4-1. The Woollens were unable to put the advantages of the elements which they gained in the second half to any good use in the odds increased against them instead of decreasing.

For the Woollens Teddy Jones, playing outside left, was easily the star player and his work excited not only the admiration of the Woolens' own supporters, but also gained him a great deal of respect from the members of the opposing team.

Perry Good.

Dick Perry, playing full back for the M.G.C., played in exceptionally good game and gave promise of developing into a first-class player. He was always on the job and the fact that the Woollens were unable to score against the M.G.C. was due a great deal to the efforts of Perry who undoubtedly proved to be a great defence.

The Line-ups.

M.G.C.—Goal, W. Flowers; backs, Crowe and R. Perry; half-backs, Metcalfe, R. McLeish and Darling; forwards, R. Payne, J. Price, Fraser, J. Bell and Darling.

Canadian Woollens—Goal, S. Caledine; backs, F. Barton and A. Styles; half-backs, A. Reid, H. Jackson and C. Clarke; forwards, E. Jones, T. Clarke, J. Montgomery, C. Thorpe and J. Cridland.

UNDERTAKERS' BALL LEAGUE

New York, May 17.—After a grave discussion, the undertakers of New York, finding things extremely dead, have organized the Undertakers' Baseball League. A schedule has been laid out for the season, and some stiff contests are expected.

FLY-WEIGHT CHAMPION OF WORLD IN TORONTO; RECEPTION TOMORROW

Wonderful Little Boxing Machine Causes Amazement to all Who see Him.

Toronto, May 18. — "Jimmy" Wilde, flyweight champion of the world, arrived here yesterday and was cordially received, although the reception proper has been postponed until tomorrow. Wilde lived up to advance notices in that he is a clean-cut athlete, carries none of the scars common to boxers, and is above all, a gentleman. All who had the pleasure of meeting this wonderful little boxing machine were amazed that one so small has been able to accomplish so much. He conveys the impression that he is as speedy in thought as in action.

On his arrival it was announced that he was tired and would probably rest during the afternoon, but "Jimmy" Wilde would have none of it, and a few hours later found him at the Lambton Club enjoying a game of golf. Wilde, be it known, is an ardent golfer, and he seldoom overlooks an opportunity to indulge in his favorite pastime.

Wilde stated that he plans to return to England in a few weeks. His son is ill and he is anxious to be near him. Wilde, however, will be back in the fall and as usual will be ready to meet all-comers at 116 pounds ringside. His earnings since coming to America are in the neighborhood of $60,000, while those who have attempted to defeat him and failed are numerous. He is satisfied with the results obtained on this his first trip across the pond, and states that wherever he has gone his reception has been cordial.

Mrs. Wilde, who manages "Jimmy's" affairs, and Trainer Williams was very careful that Wilde would not be subjected to questioning by curiosity sekers, although he was equally courteous in giving information to those who came with credentials.

JIMMY WILDE ADDS TO HIS REPUTATION

With another of these hard American ring propositions, quickly and effectively disposed of, in the person of Battling Murray, of Philadelphia, World's Champion Jimmy Wilde not only added more to his reputation, but also coralled several thousand more Yankee dollars for his bank account. It took less than two rounds for our Jimmy to add kayo to the much lauded American battler's account. This new victory more than ever appeals to the sons of England who are patiently awaiting the arrival of the good old English "Tommy" in Toronto. Yesterday "Sergeant" Jimmy Wilde wired the directors of the Grand Army of Canada as follows:

"Beating Battling Murray was not quite so difficult as I anticipated. He cut out quite a fast pace, and was earnestly aggressive in the first round, but before the round ended I had his full measure. I did not waste any time in the second round, not caring to take any chances that might interfere with me being in anything but the best condition for my Toronto contest with Patsy Wallace. Patsy is a much harder proposition then Battling Murray, but tell the sporting writers of Canada to be prepared to write up about my knockout of Patsy Wallace, inside the limit of the bout. I will have to take the American champion to satisfy the wishes of my Canadian friends and admirers, and my friends in dear old England.

"My party will leave as per my previous wire and I hope to arrive in Toronto on time. So as to begin my final training for May 24th. I am now in very excellent condition."

JIMMY WILDE.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE ADOPTED LAST NIGHT

SATISFACTION WITH SATURDAY'S OPENING GAMES UNANIMOUSLY EXPRESSED.

The main business accomplished at the meeting of the executive of the City Baseball League held in the Empress Hotel last night was the adoption of the schedule for the season as drawn up by Fred Craig with the exception that the games scheduled to be played on Saturday, May 29, will be reversed and the Thistles will play the War Veterans for the first game and the C.G.E. will meet the Canadian Woollens in the second game.

President Gordon Matthews was in the chair and in the absence of Mr. Phelan, Mr. Frank Convery acted as secretary. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Kay for the very successful opening games.

Mr. Convery, reporting for the committee which had been detailed to interview Dr. Wightman with reference to improving the bases, stated that they had been unable to accomplish onything in this regard. They had communicated with Dr. Wightman and stated the case clearly and requested him to attend the meeting last night so that the matter could be gone into thoroughly. However, Dr. Wightman did not show up in time for the meeting and the president therefore requested the committee to keep on with the good work.

Pleasure was expressed by the representatives of the different clubs on the success of the opening games and there was distinctly a feeling of great optimism for the success of the league during the present season.

DIAMOND SPARKS

It is understood from reliable sources that extreme efforts are being made by the Canadian Woollens to make a winning team out of their aggregation. There were certain spots in the team on Saturday which were particularly weak and the Woollens' scouts are after material to replace these players. In the interests of local sport the powers that are in the City Baseball League have expressed their intention of doing everything possible to assist the Woollens in this regard.

• • • •

It is rumored that Galbraith, whose reputation as a ball player is well known to local fans, will shortly appear on the line-up of the Woollens.

• • • •

Long may also find his home there but the trouble is that Long dearly loves to be playing on a winning team. Otherwise he is a good player and here's to hoping that the Woollens are successful in obtaining his services.

• • • •

With balls selling at $2.50 a piece the question of lost balls looms large in the City League and on this question will depend a lot as to whether or not the league is able to meet expenses. On Saturday there were only four balls missing for the two games and one of these went into the river. That was an encouraging record, but Louis LeBarr said that it took some watching to keep the number down that small.

• • • •

After the first game on Saturday a fan was heard to remark to Louis Yeotes in reference to his letting McLintock go to the Woollens: "That sure was 'some' sacrifice you made, Louis." If it was a sacrifice it certainly did not appear to be so on Saturday.

• • • •

Louis Yeotes is not worrying much over the game on Saturday. His Thistles are scheduled to clash with the Woollens in the second game of the day and a victory for the Thistles is an assured fact, according to Mr. Yeotes. Others probably think so although unless in the meantime the Woollens are able to get together an aggregation that looks more like a winner than the bunch that wore the Woollens' uniforms last Saturday.

• • • •

Louis LeBarr was not terribly impressed with the showing made by the Thistles and the C.G.E. in the opening game. He claims that the Veterans' team is the equal of either of them and he intends to put this claim to the proof as far as the C. G. E. is concerned on Saturday.

GAME OF SEASON THURSDAY NEXT

The Caledonians realize that for them the game with the C. G. E. on Thursday next will be the game of the season and they are leaving nothing to chance. There will be a practice of the team at the Exhibition grounds tonight at 6.30 sharp and after this practice the lineup for Thursday's game will be chosen.

The players who will be on the pitch tonight and from whom will be picked the team for the C. G. E. clash will be as follows: R. Knox, Fanner, Duthie, Bantin, J. Willshaw, R. Willshaw, J. McMillan, H. Frost, A. Hardie, E. Hardie, J. Shaw, M. Shaw, McDowell and Hannah.

The Scotsmen are most confident of being able to secure a victory against their only rivals in the city football world.

BASEBALL AT PORT HOPE

The Central Ontario League opens on Monday, May 24th, Port Hope playing at Oshawa, Lindsay at Cobourg and Peterborough at Belleville. R. Butler, of Lindsay, will umpire the Port Hope-Oshawa battle; Alex. Kay, of Peterborough, will look after Lindsay and Cobourg, and Claude Wilson, of Oshawa, will have a busy day with two old rivals, Belleville and Peterborough.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

PALLIN—JOHNSON.

A very pretty house wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, April 14th, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hans M. Johnson, when their only daughter, Clara Wilhelmine, became the bride of Ralph Ashton Pallin, son of John H. Pallin, of Indian River, Ontario. Rev. Geo. A. Steele, B.A., performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties. About forty-five guests were present. The youthful bride, who was given away by her father, looked very charming in a beautiful gown of cream duchess satin, with conventional embroidered veil and orange blossoms, and carried a large sheaf of cream carnations, snap dragons and ferns. Her attendant, Miss A. Carlson, was gowned most becomingly in a pretty Copenhagen blue voile with cream georgette, while Mr. Norman Johnson, brother of the bride, acted as best man. Immediately following the ceremony, the bridal party and guests partook of a most sumptuous dejeuner, the long table being centred by the prettily decorated four-story bride cake and floral decorations of cream carnations, snap dragons and ferns. The Victrola rendered the beautiful strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March and other suitable selections. Many useful and costly gifts testified to the popularity of the young couple, among which were a handsome cabinet of community silver (36 pieces) and a valuable cheque.

Mr. and Mrs. Pallin will reside at Alderson, Alberta. The best wishes of all are extended to the young couple.

They will be shipped to Ottawa immediately.

The crosses which reached the city yesterday were for the graves of the following soldiers:

NAUGHTY WINDSOR

Two Hundred Applicants Are Seeking Divorce.

Windsor, May 18.—At least two hundred applicants are on lists of local barristers awaiting action on the bill now pending before Parliament which will give Ontario the right to grant divorces in her own courts, as well as cut the cost from $1,000 to $100. LABORITES ACCUSE BRITAIN OF COMPLICITY IN POLISH ATTACK

Means Prolongation of War and Chaos—Declared Government Violated Pledges by Sending Munitions to Poland-Manifesto Styles Blockade of Russia as Ferociously Cruel

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 19.—A definition of the Polish attack on Bolshevik Russia, and what is claimed to be "Great Britain's complicity in that offensive," is contained in a manifesto issued here by a number of Labor leaders.

War and Chaos.

It states that the attack means "prolongation of war and chaos, victory of secret diplomacy and defeat of League of Nations."

Violated Pledges?

The British government is accused of violating its pledges by sending munitions to Poland. The manifesto declared that "the ferociously cruel blockade of Russia is actually maintained, although legally nonexistent, while a stream of goods is flowing into Poland. The temper of the whole Labor movement is rising rapidly, and Labor should see that attack upon Russia is ended."

IMPORTANT SUCCESS FOR SOVIETS

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 19.—The Bolshevik won an important success over the Poles in passing Dvina River at Polotsk, in the government of Vitebsk, according of an official Soviet Government statement today.

The Poles were forced to withdraw, the statement adds, and the population received the Bolshevik with enthusiasm.

WANT PALESTINE AS HOME FOR JEWS

BRITISH ZIONISTS DEMANDING THIS FROM GOVERNMENT OF BRITAIN.

JEWS SUSPICIOUS OF ARABIA

REALISATION OF ZIONISTS' HOPES MAY NOT MATERIALIZE.

(By Canadian Press.)

Leeds, May 18.—British Zionists are demanding, now that Great Britain has received a mandate in Palestine, that the British Government fulfill its promise to restore that country as a national home for Jews. Some of them betray some apprehension that the claims of the Arabs to Palestine may prevent a full realization of the Zionist hope.

"We want to begin our great work," says the Rev. J. E. Goller of Leeds. "We are ready to provide money—£50,000 or £100,000 is nothing once we are sure of our position—and to arrange for the emigration of Jews not only from England, but from Poland and elsewhere to Palestine.

"We must know definitely if the British Government is gong to stand by its promise, or betray the soul of the Jewish people? The promise was distinctly that of a national home, which means, ultimately, a Jewish state in Palestine.

"There has always been drawn across the course of Jewish nationalism the red herring of Pan-Arabic ambitions. We declare that we are prepared in Palestine to deal justly, fairly, and generously with the Arab problem, but for the Arabs to want Arabia, Mesopotamia, and Palestine as a triple Arab kingdom, ere they have proved their capability of governing a single autonomous unit, is tragically absurd.

"If our fears prove to be well-grounded that what shall be flung to us will be but the shadow of a bone, then there is a great section of us, of which I am the least earnest, that will raise the cry: 'To your tents, O Israel.' and we shall leave the Jewish problem to be solved by a future and better age, one which shall recognise, if this age does not, that the problem of the Jew in the world is the acid test of civilization."

6 SHIPS OF SUGAR FOR ST. JOHN N.B.

NOW ON THE WAY FROM CUBA HELD UP BY STRIKES.

(By Canadian Press.)

St. John, N.B., May 19.—Six ships laden with sugar are now en route from Cuba to this port, harbor officials stated today.

The boats are held up in Cuba by strikes. More are to follow them. So great is the quantity of sugar to be laid down here in a few days that a local refinery has chartered a portion of the extensive government sheds in which to store it.

HYDRO ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION MAKES SPLENDID SHOWING IN REPORT

Tells of Recovery of Hydro at a Time When Demand For Power Diminis'ed

The annual report of the Hydro-electric Power Commission tells the story of Hydro's recovery from the period following armistice, when power demand diminished because of the closing of munitions plants.

"At the time of the signing of the armistice," says Sir Adam Beck, "the commission was supplying power to over 4,000 plants working on munitions and war supplies. These plants were at that time using approximately 70 per cent. of the total amount of power supplied by the commission on all systems."

It was not until August that loads again reached normal. From that time the recovery was so rapid that practically all the available power was being used at the end of the year.

Labor and Material.

He points out that the cost was increased because of dearer labor and materials. Much of the material could not be purchased in Canada, so it was necessary to buy in the United States in order to have it in time for the munition work so urgently required at that time. The sum paid in duties and war taxes on this material amounted to $625,000, or an average of 37½ per cent. of the purchase price.

Of the Labor problem, Sir Adam in his report says: "During this period the Labor situation was acute; not only was it almost impossible to obtain sufficient Labor to carry on the work expeditiously, but the cost had nearly doubled over pre-war days. Moreover, as is generally known, the efficiency of Labor had decreased in proportion to its cost. The general scarcity of Labor and the increase in wages during the year resulted in the amount of operating pay rolls increasing in many cases by more than 60 per cent. over that of the previous year. The cost of materials also increased approximately 25 per cent.

Income From Municipalities.

"At the beginning of the year, the commission fixed a schedule of rates covering the estimated cost of service to all municipalities. These rates brought in a total revenue of $3,729,705.75, while the actual cost of service was $3,860,700.79, which includes the total expenses for interest, cost of power, operation and maintenance, amounting to $3,243,329.02, and all the necessary fixed charges and reserves, such as sinking fund, reserves for renewals and contingencies, amounting to $617,371.77. After meeting all operating expenses and setting aside the reserves as above set out (in accord-

TO PAY MORE FOR MOVIE PICTURES

TAXES ON ALL AMUSEMENT HOUSES TO BE CONSIDERABLY INCREASED.

ABOUT 25 PERCENT ON WHOLE

EXEMPTION ENJOYED BY PATRIOTIC AND CHARITABLE AFFAIRS WILL CEASE.

(By Canadian Press.)

Toronto, May 19.—Heavy increases in taxes on theatres and moving picture houses are announced in Hon. Peter Smith's changes to the Theatre and Cinematograph Act.

Altogether the increased taxation will be about 25 per cent. on the whole. Amusements generally come under the change, and exemptions from taxation which patriotic and charitable affairs enjoyed will cease to exist on June 1st.

In municipalities of over 10,000 a theatre will pay 35 cents a seat instead of 25 cents; places of 5,000 to 10,000 will pay 25 cents a seat instead of 5 cents; in places of 3,000 to 5,000 the tax will be 20 cents a seat instead of a flat rate of $75. Instead of a $50 flat rate in towns of 1,500 to 3,000, the tax will be 15 cents a seat, while in municipalities of less than 1,500, where the rate has previously been fixed to meet individual cases, the tax will be 10 cents a head.

Affects Ball Parks.

Dance halls, ball parks and skating rinks in municipalities of 10,000 or over will be taxed $10 per year

NEW TAXES ARE IN FORCE TODAY COLLECTORS NOTIFIED TO LEVY

Luxury Tax Has Two-Fold Object—Hoped Will Check Extravagance.

(By Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, May 19.—Instructions for the levying of the new taxes in effect today have been sent to tax collectors throughout the Dominion.

What the revenue will be the Finance Department experts make no attempt to estimate in anything like exact figures, although it is thought the additional revenue will be about 75 or 80 million dollars.

Purpose Two-fold.

The purpose of the luxury tax is two-fold — more revenue and the prevention of extravagance.

In any event, one of these two objects will be secured. If extravagance continues, the Government will benefit by additional revenue. If prices are lowered to within the limit of exemption from taxation the consumer will benefit. It is thought however, that this tax would give an impetus to a reduction in prices. An article now just coming within the scope of the luxury tax will probably be sold for a few cents under the tax limit.

GOVT. TO RESTORE LAW IN IRELAND

WILL EMPLOY WHOLE OF KINGDOM'S RESOURCES IF NECESSARY.

KILL SECESSION CAMPAIGN

CONSIDERABLE MILITARY REINFORCEMENTS ALREADY SENT TO IRELAND.

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 19.—Government's policy, whether the struggle be short or long, would be to employ whole available forces and resources of the kingdom to restore law and order in Ireland.

This was announced by Baron Burkenhead, Lord Chancellor in the House of Lords, today.

It would be the act of the Government in adopting this policy, he said, to render utterly impossible the existing campaign aiming at secession.

Military Re-inforcements.

Considerable military reinforcements already have been sent to Ireland, the Lord Chancellor stated, and more would be sent as required.

He was speaking with authority and on behalf of the rest of his colleagues, he declared, when he said that if existing military forces were insufficient the Government would hesitate as little to ask the country for more as it hesitated in the late war.

REMNANTS OF ARMY SAFE IN THE CRIMEA

LONDON RECEIVES ASSURANCES THAT DENIKINE'S MEN WILL BE PROTECTED.

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 19.—It was officially announced today that satisfactory assurances had been received from M. Tchitcherin, commissary for foreign affairs of the Soviet Russian Government, regarding the safety of the remnant of General Denekine's forces in the Crimea.

Peace Negotiations Now.

Consequently it was stated peace negotiations will be opened immediately between representatives of General Wrangel's army in South Russia and the Bolsheviki. It is not expected, it was added, that negotiations will be of long duration

(By Canadian Press.)

Toronto, May 19.—Judge McBeth in his report to Hon. S. C. Nixon, Provincial secretary, completely exonerates the superintendent and staff of the Ontario Hospital for Insane at London of every charge laid against them.

DEPUTY MINISTER OF LABOR IN THE CITY

Deputy Minister of Labor Gerald Brown arrived in the city on the early train from Ottawa this morning in response to an urgent telegram despatched by the Mayor last night. The telegram was sent to Senator Robertson, Minister of Labor, but as he was unable to come Mr. Brown was sent to act in his place.

This morning the different parties concerned in the C. G. E. strike were in consultation with the Deputy Minister, but up to the time of going to press they had been unable to reach any decision in the matter.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA IMPROVED IN HEALTH

ABLE TO GET ABOUT AS USUAL WERE WEATHER MILDER.

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 19.—Grave rumors concerning the condition of the Dowager Queen Alexandra, who has been suffering from bronchial cold were set at rest this morning by one of her secretaries, who told the Associated Press that the Queen was so much improved that she would be able to get about as usual if the weather were milder.

Queen Alexandra has been confined to Marlborough House for some weeks.

Harry Lowden entered a long list of complaints, including wholesale theft, brutality to patients and general maladminstration. Judge McBeth failed to find any ground for charges.

G.W.V.A. GRANT THOUSAND DOLLARS TO THEIR BAND, FOR UNIFORMS

Committee Appointed to Draw up Constitution for Juvenile Branch of Association.

At the regular meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association, held in their hall last night, it was decided on the motion of Comrade Parks to grant the sum of $1,000 to the Great War Veterans' Band to be added to the grant made by the city for the purpose of providing suitable uniforms and equipment, and also that a committee of trustees to the number of six be appointed to take charge of the fund and administer it, three of the members to be bandsmen and the other three to be elected by the association as a whole.

Following upon this resolution Comrades Perks, Batley and Secretary Whatley were elected to represent the association on the committee.

In the discussion, which preceded this decision, several members were of the opinion that the band should not accept the city grant, and that they should give concerts of their own, but this attitude was not upheld by the majority of those present.

Secretary Whatley intimated that concerts would in any event be given on the G.W.V.A. lawn and that in that case seats would be arranged for. This will be in addition to the concerts which are to be given in the different parks of the city as decided by the City Council.

Change in Regulations.

On motion of Comrade Perks, it was also decided that the regular meetings should in future be held on the first Monday in each month instead of twice a month as heretofor. In support of his motion Comrade Perks said that he thought that holding of the meetings once a month might be an inducement to the members to turn out to them better than they had been doing in the past. The motion was carried unanimously.

During the general business the question of the organizing of a juvenile branch in connection with the local branch of the G.W.V.A. was brought up for discussion.

Secretary Whatley opened fire by giving a clear statement as to what had been done in other branches in the matter. He stated that some of the western branches had been very successful in this way, and that it was a step to perpetuate the memory of those who founded the association. He suggested that a committee should be appointed to arrange for the drawing up of a constitution for a juvenile branch. He was requested to make it a motion and it was then seconded by Comrade Oxley.

LAST WORD IN LATE POLICE INQUIRY

COST OF COUNSEL IN INVESTIGATION POLICE VS. INSPECTOR.

What was probably the last word in connection with the police investigation was heard yesterday afternoon when the Board of Police Commissioners authorized the payment of $450 to Mr. R. R. Hall in full settlement of his claim as counsel on behalf of the Police Department during the investigation. At a previous meeting of the Board Mr. Hall's original claim of $700 had been received and the chief of police and the Mayor were authorized to offer him $300 in full settlement.

The Mayor stated that Mr. Hall did not think that $300 was enough, and the chief of police said that he had since received a letter from Mr. Hall in which he inferred that he would be willing to take $450 in full settlement of the claim. Magistrate Dumble thought that it was too much for the services rendered, but it was ponted out by other members of the Board that Mr. O'Connel, who acted for the license commissioner, received $700 for the same services as Mr. Hall. The general opinion of the other members of the Board was that the matter was best settled and done with and it was moved by the Mayor that $450 be paid to Mr. Hall. The motion was carried unanimously.

C.G.E. EMPLOYEES AND CITY COUNCIL HOLD CONFERENCE ON STRIKE SITUATION

Hope for Settlement by Means of Arbitration—Minister of Labor to be Present.

The City Council and representatives of the machinists and other men who have unfortunate differences with the C. G. E. and are on strike met together in conference last night.

The situation was thoroughly discussed, resulting in a telegram being sent to Senator Robertson, Minister of Labor for the Dominion, urging his presence in the hope of an interview between Senator Nicholls, president of the C. G. E., and the Minister and an intermediary body from the City Council.

A previous communication with the Minister had resulted in his promise to send here Deputy Minister Brown, but Organizer W. H. Harper of the Machinists' Union seemed to have great faith in the differences being settled were Senator Robertson and Senator Nicholls brought together on this issue.

Mr. Harper recounted all details of negotiations between the company and the men, and declared the issue hinged on the company's general management holding out for buying labor in an open market against the union's principle of collective bargaining on a minimum wage basis. Mr. Harper contended that buying labor in the open market was trading in humanity. Continuing, he said the company's Toronto management was willing to send every individual case before a board of conciliation, but this Mr. Harper contended to be an impossible procedure; it would take too long in the first place. So he offered to divide the machinists into three groups for arbitration of wages and leave the other conditions as they stood by the findings of the conciliation board in 1918.

Mr. Harper here referred to the agreement reached between Mr. E. G. Patterson and the men, as published in full in The Review last Saturday. He (Mr. Harper) had packed up ready for returning home on Saturday when he received word from the works not to send the men in on Monday as the management at Toronto would not endorse the agreement. (Mr. Patterson was sick at home at this time. Since then he (Mr. Harper) had interviewed the company's management in Toronto and had been informed that the question had arisen of other men not included in the Machinists'

BAND QUESTION SETTLEMENT.

LET US HOPE that for this year at any rate the question of band grants is at last settled. There certainly is no hope for amalgamation into one citizens' band, therefore we may look forward to both the 57th and the Veterans' bands engaging in friendly competition to excel. Each organization will undoubtedly give the public good service for their grant of $500.

It can be readily understood that the Veterans' Band were not willing, after three years' hard work, to lose their identity, and it is equally natural that the 57th should be anxious to preserve its identity also. And a peculiar feature of the whole situation is that there are war veterans in the 57th and ex-57th members in the G. W. V. A. Band, to say nothing of war veterans in the Salvation Army Band.

But nevertheless, the propositon for a citizens' band under the name of "Veterans-Citizens" was really a good one and backed by a good round sum in cash. Council recognized that, but in the majority did not want to ignore an old-established institution such as the 57th, and a bandmaster who had served the people long and faithfully. So, under the circumstances, seeing that no amalgamation was possible, Council has adopted the only course open to it in a desire to equitably recognize both organizations, by granting $500 to each band. There was, of course, another alternative—to accept the G. W. V. A.'s proposition for a Veterans'-Citizens' band and at he same time make a grant worth while to the 57th. But hat would involve the expenditure of at least $1500, which sum had not been provided for in the estimates.

We hope the time will come when whatever band or bands are recipients of grants for playing in the parks that they will be so circumstanced that such money will be based entirely on the principle of payment man to men for services rendered.

THAT PARK BUILDING PLAN.

THE KING EDWARD PARK is not to be cut up into building lots after all, and many there be who now come forward and rejoice that this is so. But in the past this breathing spot suffered notoriously for lack of appreciation, and even now gives more the appearance of a neglected piece of waste land awaiting development rather than a park. Much expenditure is needed before it will present any really park attraction. Still, as Alderman Gordon puts it, in time this spot will be a valuable asset of the city's, and let us hope that it will from henceforth be accorded the care to make it so.

A correspondent in yesterday's issue severely criticised Council for considering for one moment turning this park into building lots; but the proposition was only entertained with a view to advancing the house-building scheme. It was recognized as an ideal site for workingmen's homes, being adjacent to Peterborough's industrial district, and the main factor in certain aldermen's minds was that the city, owning this land, would save some $25,000 from the money to be borrowed by debentures to be put into five, six or perhaps seven-roomed houses.

However, Council in majority breathed a sigh of relief, as it were, on learning that under the Act authorizing Council in 1908 to purchase this land, the city can not use the property for any purpose but that of a public park. For this removed King Edward Park from the uncertainties of debate in the urgent need today for finding suitable localities for house-building purposes.

In this connection it was due to Alderman Jones that the city's right to build on this park was questioned. He raised the issue, and on enquiry the city solicitor found that under Legislature's sanction for purchase the city could be restrained from cutting up the park into building lots. Unfortunately, in Peterborough to day ther are too many building lots here and there which might be used for workingmen's homes were they not too large and too small. That is to say, too large for a single house and too small for a semi-detached building. The custom in past years has been to survey land into lots of fifty feet width or near thereto. Now a fifty-foot lot comes too high for the average working man, and it is too narrow for two buildings. This is a handicap to the man who would like to buy one of the numerous single lots available throughout the city, and forces the city largely to resort to the segregation principle.

Here let it be understood that the city, should it be necessary to buy a large acreage of land to make a start on building by its commission, does not intend to confine its operations to that particular property. Anyone having a lot in any neighborhood may secure a loan for building purposes under the housing plan.

THE TREATY OF LONDON.

IT WILL BE INTERESTING to note just now, in the light of happenings in the East, that by the provisions of the pact of London of April 6th2, 1915, by virtue of which Italy entered the war on the side of the Allies, Italy obtained important concessions in the Tyrol, Dalmatia, Asia Minor and Africa. Fiume, on the other hand, was definitely assigned, not to her, but to Croatia, Serbia and Montenegro—that is, to the new Jugo-Slav State. The rejection by Italy of that important clause invalidates the agreement, and that, indeed, is no disaster, for it is out of touch with the new spirit in international affairs and with the changed situation arising out of the complete collapse of Austria-Hungary.

Generally speaking, France, Great Britain and Russia recognize that Italy is interested in the maintenance of the balance of power in the Mediterranean, and that, in the event of the total or partial partition of Turkey in Asia, she ought to obtain a just share of the Mediterranean region adjacent to the province of Adalia, where Italy has already acquired rights and interests which formed the subject of an Italo-British convention. The zone which shall eventually be allotted to Italy shall be delimited, at the proper time, due account being taken of the existing interests of France and Great Britain.

The interests of Italy shall also be taken into consideration in the event of the territorial integrity of the Turkish Empire being maintained and of alterations being made in the zones of interest of the powers.

If France, Great Britain and Russia occupy any territories in Turkey in Asia during the course of the war, the Mediterranean region bordering on the province of Adalia within the limits indicated above shall be reserved to Italy, who shall be entitled to occupy it.

All rights and privileges in Libya at present belonging to the Sultan by virtue of the Treaty of Lausanne are transferred to Italy.

Italy shall receive a share of any eventual war indemnity corresponding to her efforts and sacrifices.

Italy declares that she associates herself in the declaration made by France, Great Britain and Russia to the effect that Arabia and the Moslem holy places in Arabia shall be left under the authority of an independent Moslem power.

MR. DOOLEY'S HUMOR.

IN "MR. DOOLEY Making a Will," which is written in a similar strain to O. Henry stories, "Diarist" in the Westminster Gazette finds much humor. Among other matters, he says, with which the genial Irishman has concerned himself is the descent of man; and the popular idea of the Darwinian theory makes no appeal to him whatever. "I know," he says, "there niver was a Dooley that lived in a three, because I niver see won that cud climb a three. An' anyhow, I don't care. Divvle th' bit iv attintion I give to a fellow lookin' at a glass iv wather through a neye-glass an' guessin' what happened in South Africa eighty-three billyon years ago. OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

TRADE AT HOME AND BE HAPPY.

(Border Cities Era.)

The Orange Sentinel of Toronto makes a wise suggestion that when a city reaches a population of 200,000 efforts should be made to curtail its further growth. Undoubtedly ten cities of 100,000 each would be better than one city of one million or two of a half million. We have a mania for size, but bulk is not everything.

SIR HAMAR'S VICTORY.

(Detroit Free Press.)

Sir Hamar Greenwood won his bye-election by a sweeping majority of over 8,000. The splendid vote polled by the new Irish Secretary, 22,813, was, we imagine, inspired by the hope that Greenwood may be able to do something where predecessors failed.

STOWAWAYS.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

The high cost of ocean travel is increasing the number of stowaways. Scarcely a ship arrives on this side of the Atlantic that does not contain several unregistered passengers, and the majority of them are Russians and Germans fleeing from their own countries.

A ROYAL RAG-SHOP.

(London Daily Express.)

The Church of St. Andrew-by-the-Wardrobe, in the city, in which the rector's wife now serves as parish clerk, derives its singular name from a house in Blackfriars bought by Edward III. in 1359, and used as the office of the Master of the Wardrobe and the repository of the royal clothes. In the course of time this house became a perfect museum of the clothes worn by British sovereigns on state occasions. James I. dispersed the royal rag-shop, and after the Great Fire the Wardrobe was removed to the Savoy, and subsequently to Buckingham street, where it remained until its abolition in the eighteenth century.

BY ORDER OF THE KAISER.

(Guelph Herald.)

It was by Kaiser Wilhelm's personal command, issued January 9, 1917, that the U-boat campaign of ruthlessness which brought the United States into the war was launched. The order bearing his signature was published for the first time in the New York World of Sunday last, together with a long memorandum prepared by Admiral von Holtzendorf, chief of the German admiralty staff, in support of this desperate policy. The copy, which was secured from the files of the German foreign office, reads:

(Strictly Secret.)
General Headquarters,
January 9, 1917.

I order the unrestricted submarine war to be started with full energy on February 1. You must make all necessary preparations immediately, in such a way that this purpose is not prematurely recognized by the enemy and the neutrals. The essential plans of operations are to be submitted to me. A copy of this is to be handed to the imperial chancellor. WILHELM, I. R.

CITIES ARE TOO LARGE.

(Farmers' Sun.)

A dollar spent out of town is a dollar lost to that town. It goes to build up some other town, being deposited there and kept there.

The money you spend across the river and with Toronto mail order firms detracts from the natural progress of your city.

Be fair to the home manufacturers, contractors and merchants. They have invested their capital here with reasonale expectation of home patronage and a fair profit. Many of them put every cent they make back into their business, adding to stock or improving the premises.

Repeatedly it has eben demonstrated that you can buy to advantage in your own city. There is also this fact to consider—and it is important—if the goods are not right you can always go back to the home merchant or dealer for an exchange or adjustment; whereas you have to keep the out-of-town "junk" that you thought was a bargain.

The big mail order catalogues may look pretty, and all that, but their best use is first aid in relieving the fuel situation.

Keep al lthe money you can circulating in your own locality, and when money gets scarce there will be much more available to you than there would be if you sent your money away from your town or locality.

DO WE FORGET?

(Mail and Empire.)

The world is wide—
We [illegible] onward, side by side,
A little while, and then again
Our paths diverge—a little pain,
A silent yearning of the heart
For what has grown of life a part:
A feeling of somewhat bereft—
A closer clasp on what is left,
A shadow passing o'er the sun,
Then gone, and light again has come.
We meet and we part and then forget:
And life holds blessings for us yet.

TELLS HOW TO AVOID DIVORCE

A circuit Judge of Chicago interviewed on the question of divorce said in part:

There is nothing more menacing to our general happiness and welfare than the "divorcitis" germ. It is a disease that may easily become epidemic. It has already become a cancer in our national life.

The divorce chancellor very frequently is called upon to assume the role of physician. He makes his diagnoses from his observations of his "patients" on the witness stand. The palliatives he uses are common sense and milk of human kindness.

Meeting this situation taxes the ingenuity and patience of those having authority to untie marital knots, but who would far rather discover just why the knots were slipping and apply some remedy.

The divorce germ is like all other parasites. It is routed by reason and good common sense.

Absence of unwarranted anger uncalled for criticisms and unreasonable demands spell death to the germ.

On the other hand a suspicious mind, a quarrelsome, nagging disposition or an unhappy, unsettled environment make it wax and grow fat.

Broomstraws are the bayonets of cleanliness. They not only clean the floor, but sweep the dark, pestilential corners of the mind.

Personal cleanliness and tidiness is another thing that must be given consideration. Untidiness—whether in the home or in the personal appearance—is inexcusable.

Clean linen increases your own selfrespect and the pride your spouse has in you. So do clean shoes and other wearing apparel.

A clean shave or a trimmed beard are also important—every husband owes that to his wife and himself.

Every wife's pride should tell her that ten minutes spent in arranging her hair each day is a duty.

You cannot afford to ignore the call of the shoebrush, the hairbrush any more than you can ignore the call of the stomach for food or the lungs for air.

But it may be that both your home and your body are clean and the divorce bug is still present.

In that case probe your mind before rushing to a lawyer. Is your brain in order? Have you applied the theoretical broom to it.

If there are any divorce germs left—when you've cleaned your home, and mind, and body—consult a lawyer! But only then!

THE SAAR COMMISSION.

Winnipeg Man is Honored by Important Appointment.

An honor has been conferred upon Canada by the appointment of a Canadian as one of the four members composing the Saar Valley Commission. The commission consists of five members chosen by the Council of the League of Nations. They represent one member for France, a native of the Saar Basin, and three members of other countries other than France or Germany. Canada has been selected as one of these countries. Its representative is Richard D. Waugh, former Mayor of Winnipeg, Manitoba, and chairman of the Greater Winnipeg Water Commission. Mr. Waugh will represent the British Government. Mr. Waugh, who came from Scotland over thirty years ago and settled in Winnipeg, has held many prominent positions in his adopted country, including that of city controller for four years and mayor for three.

According to a statement given out the Saar Commission will, in the Saar Basin, have all the powers of government hitherto belonging to the German Empire, Prussia, or Bavaria, including the appointment and dismissal of officials and the creating of administratives and representative bodies as it may be necessary. It will have full powers to administer and operate the railways, canals, and the different public services. It will insure by such means as it deems suitable the protection abroad of the interest of the inhabitants. It will have the full right to use the property, other than mines belonging to any German Government, in the territory. Existing laws will continue to apply, but the governing commission, after consultation with the elected representatives of the inhabitants, may modify these laws to bring them into accord with the Peace Treaty. The commission will fix the hours and conditions of labor. Existing civil and criminal courts will continue, but the commission will establish a court to hear appeals from these courts and to decide matters for which these courts are not competent. The commission will also have the power of levying taxes and dues in the territory.

The area of the Saar fields is roughly 1,400 square miles, of which about 52 per cent. are occupied by coal industries. It is largely a hill country with little forest, but with good agricultural land. The population is almost wholly German, only one commune being French-speaking. The main areas of the mining and dependent industries are densely populated. In 1913 the total coal production in the Saar fields was about 18,000,000 tons. The reserves of coal in the Saar Basin are estimated at 16,848,000,000 metric tons.

Labor and Christenings.

W. Wallace Alexander, associated with the Elkins estate and a leading light in the Orpheus club, at a campfire gathering was humorously describing his troubles at a Pennsylvania coal mine which he was seeking to put on a paying basis.

"The miners were getting out coal two days a week—the other five days were devoted to christenings.

For every christening the whole neighborhood took a day to prepare, a day to celebrate and a day to recover.

Finally the problem was solved by hiring a brass band, arranging a parade and having all the christenings take place on the same magnificent, uproarious, welkin-ringing day.

CALVERT IS OLDEST ACTRESS.

Records of Ladies Who Helped to Make History on the Stage.

The veteran actress, Miss Dolores Drummond, who celebrated her eighty-second birthday in London recently, is not the oldest living actress. That distinction appears to belong either to Mrs. Charles Calvert or Miss Genevieve Ward, each of whom was born in 1837, and is in her eighty-third year. Miss Ward was born in March, but January is understood to be Mrs. Calvert's natal month.

Mrs. Calvert is probably the Mother of the stage in age and Mrs. Kendal in length of service. It is pertinent to remember, in this connection, that Mrs. Kendal has often been styled the Matron of the Drama."

X-Ray Guards the Aviator.

In the construction of airplanes a great deal of attention is given to the inspection of material which is designed to enter into the various parts of the machine before it is worked up in order to avoid the possibility of accidents which might occur due to the presence of some defect. The wood used is especially watched and only such pieces as appear to be of the most perfect character are selected in the first place, and after being sawed up a large percentage of this is rejected despite the care of the first selection. The leading English manufacturers of airplanes now make constant use of the X-ray for the examination of all wood and metal designed for use in the construction of their planes. The X-ray tube is contained in a metal case, a hole being cut in the top of this to admit the upward passage of the rays. The strut is laid over this opening, and the penetrating rays pass through the wood, like the sun's rays through glass.

Squirrels Big as Cats.

There is no country that can rival North America for the great number of squirrels, both species and subspecies, represented in her fauna. In so far as brilliancy of color and size are concerned, however, says the American Forestry Magazine, the handsomest and largest squirrels in the world are found in the Orient and the East Indies, along the coast of Malabar, is found a squirrel as big as an ordinary cat; this animal is bright red on the upper part of its body, offset by the most intense black, while all the lower parts are of a clear yellow.

Unusual.

"A rather remarkable couple, I should say," remarked a Toronto man. "They've been married ten years and she still listens with deference when he expresses an opinion."

HANDSOME BUILDINGS.

A Few Facts That All Canadians Should Know.

Owing to the fact that the tower of the new Parliament Buildings has not yet been constructed, the temporary main entrance to the House of Commons is at the western end of the building. The walls are lined with tyndall limestone which was quarried in Manitoba and brought from there to Ottawa in huge blocks. The surface has been tooled or "crandalled," giving it a very effective appearance; the stone is gray with a slightly creamish tint, thus taking away from the coldness of a stone interior. Intricate patterns made of thousands of fossils are traced and in some cases a perfect section of a shell can be seen, presenting the curves of an Ionic capital or part of the vertebra of some prehistoric animal. Because the building was commenced during the war (1916) it was impossible to obtain the well-known Belgian black marble, but a satisfactory substitute was found in the Province of Quebec where, before the war, very little of this marble had been quarried. The marble stairway in the foreground leads up to the House of Commons lobby or rotunda. The supporting arches to the floor above form a cloister while the ceiling is pierced and opened to the daylight. Where the arches spring from the piers they are decorated with carved bosses which take the form of caricatures of statesmen of the past and present. There was at one time considerable unfavorable and rather uncalled for criticism of these "gargoyles." On the arch facing the main door to the Commons Chamber is a carved head of Sir Robert Borden and facing him is the "gargoyle" of Laurier. The doors opening into the various rooms from here are oak ornamented with linen fold panelling.

The Bald Eagle.

Extinction imminently threatens the "American" or bald eagle, one of the most beautiful and magnificent of birds. And by a curious irony the destruction is being accomplished at public expense, as provided in the bounty law passed by the Territorial Legislature of Alaska on April 30, 1917.

The bald eagle has never been an abundant species. Estimates of its numbers have generally been greatly exaggerated. It is only on the basis of the occupied nests that its real numbers—or rather its real scarcity—can be estimated. Computations based on observations of the birds themselves are obviously unreliable. For, conspicuous by its size and habits, it is very apt to attract considerable attention, and the same individuals are doubtless seen again and again.

The only region where the bald eagle has maintained encouraging numbers has been the coastal region and large river valleys of Alaska and Northwestern Canada. Here it did breed in numbers surprisingly large for a bird of its size. But the Alaskan bounty law, which provides for the payment of fifty cents for each eagle destroyed, although it went into effect only on April 30, 1917, had already, by April 10, 1919, resulted in the killing of 5,600 eagles. Moreover, the bounty seekers have undoubtedly not confined their depredations to Alaskan territory, but have extended them into the British provinces adjoining Alaska.

It is possible that by this time more than one-half—perhaps more than three-quarters—of the entire species have already been sacrificed. If action is to be taken it must be at once. For protection, to be effective, must come not merely before the species has been annihilated but before it has been so reduced as to suffer the weakening effect of inbreeding or the failure of the scattered individuals to find each other and raise young.

In view of all that is known by naturalists of the habits of this inoffensive bird, the hostility to the eagle in Alaska is based rather on misinformation and ignorant prejudice than on any real damage done by the birds. The tales of its ferocity and destructiveness to game or domestic animals are for the greater part pure fiction, for the rest usually gross exaggerations.

In a Class by Himself.

A gentleman in the engraving business on Broadway, New York, was greatly annoyed by the tardiness of one of his skilled engravers. Calling him into the office one morning he said: "Mr. Brown, I get here at 8:30 every morning and look over my mail; at 9 o'clock I look out the window and see Mr. Rockefeller on his way to the office; at 9:30 Mr. J. P. Morgan passes on his way to the bank; at 10 I see Mr. Vanderbilt going by; at 10:30 Mr. Taft passes on the way to his office; at 11 you come in. Who the ——— are you?"—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

One day he came in and wanted to ride his tricycle down to his auntie's house. Success.

Life is indefinite—a bundle of contradictions. We men, with our ideas, strive to give it a particular shape by melting it into a particular mold—into the definiteness of success. All the world conquerors, from Alexander down to the American millionaires—mold themselves into a sword or mint, and thus find that distinct image of themselves which is the source of their success.—Rabindranath Tagore.

Tactics.

A reader of Table Talk relates this. "I never saw anyone get out of a difficult situation more deftly than an expressman's helper the other day. I wanted to see his employer and he from the sidewalk called down: 'Boss, come up! There's a lady wants to see you.' From the depths below a voice called, 'Is she young, John, or old?' This, of course, was not intended for my ears, but it reached them, nevertheless, and the young fellow knew it. In the words of the old poem, 'I looked at John and John looked at me.' 'You'll be satisfied, boss, when you come up,' he said tactfully."

TYRONE POWER IN THE LITTLE BROTHER PLAYS GREAT ROLE

PRESENTATION AT GRAND MAY 24TH INTERESTING AND IMPRESSIVE.

Theatre-goers in this city, who recently saw Tyrone Power in his remarkable role of "The Drainman" in Charles Rann Kennedy's play, "The Servant in the House," will find his work in "The Little Brother," which he will present at the Grand Theatre here on May 24th, fully as interesting and as impressive.

"The Little Brother" is a drama by Milton Goldsmith and Benedict James, and it deals in a remarkably effective manner with the problem of religious tolerance and brotherhood, so that it is fully as timely as "The Servant in the House."

It tells the story of two brothers, Jews, separated in childhood during a pogrom in a Polish town. One, adopted and brought up by Christians, becomes a priest. The other, brought up by his own kinsmen, becomes a Jewish rabbi. The priest is unaware of his Jewish birth.

Years later when both have grown to manhood they meet under the most dramatic circumstances in New York. The daughter of the Rabbi and the ward of the priest have fallen in love. Both Rabbi and priest are equally determined to prevent the match, but love proves stronger than their opposition, and the two wed, live happily, and have a child.

Then the Rabbi and his daughter are reconciled, but the priest maintains his uncompromising attitude, even going so far as to try and persuade the young mother to give up her child, so that the vexed question of its religious creed may not arise later on. This, of course, she refuses to do.

After this the two brothers meet. The priest discovers that he, who has been called "the scourge of God" and who has prided himself upon his bitter hatred of the Jews, is a Jew born. The lesson of religious tolerance is driven home with tremendous effect when the priest, realizing that love is stronger than hate and above all creeds, and that every creed has its own place in God's scheme, kneels at the feet of his brother to receive the Rabbinical blessing before he returns to his own church to do his own work, a broader, more tolerant man of wider faith than before.

Mr. Tyrone Power plays the part of the priest. It is a role that offers unique opportunities for dramatic work of an intense kind, and in this Mr. Power excels. His supporting company is a strong one, and includes Miss Enid Holland, the gifted daughter of a great actor, the late E. M. Holland, beloved throughout the United States and Canada in his day.

WONDERFUL SCREEN PRODUCTION AT GRAND

It required six months to make the wonderful screen production, "The Virgin of Stamboul," which will be the feature at the Grand Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In reproducing great desert scenes and in bringing to life the characters in their oriental costumes a very heavy expenditure was entailed running, it is said, close to $500,000.

There are thousands of players in the mighty cast. Whole streets and mosques in old Stamboul have been reproduced with unfailing fidelity. Far-flung echoes of the Arabian desert, camel caravans and Turkish cavalry—wild riding Black Horse Troopers—these give but the faintest ideas as to the magnitude of this master production.

"The Virgin of Stamboul" has for its star the vivacious beauty Priscilla Dean. It's a drama that will fill the mind, eye and the heart of everyone who sees it.

Woman objects to hearing a man praising another woman—if the woman is dead.

A girl gets mad if a young man tries to kiss her. And if he succeeds she gets mad if he doesn't keep it up.

Our idea of a mean man is one who throws mud at a man while alive and then puts flowers on his coffin.

Some suffragettes who advocate whipping posts for abusive husbands are mum as to a suitable penalty for nagging wives.

"We are reorganizing the police department to make it more efficient and to speed it up in its operations, but I think this would be just a little bit too fast for Indianapolis," remarked George V. Coffin, chief of police, as he handed over a letter he had received from an eastern corporation urging the Indianapolis police department to put in an aviation section in connection with its other departments.

The letter explained how a machine equipped with a wireless telephone and operated by a police aviator could keep the chief informed of conditions at all points within a radius of twenty miles of his office. It also said that many lives and millions of dollars would be saved in such catastrophies as the Minnesota forest fires, the Dayton and San Diego floods, by the use of airplane communication.

General O'Ryan's Constellation.

It is not often that a military commander perpetrates a pun, observes Outlook. A veritable pun, however, has been imprinted on the helmets and motortrucks of the American Twenty seventh division. A recent number of the Gas Attack shows a device in which a number of stars are so arranged as to correspond with the constellation Orion. Now, as every one knows, the gallant and efficient commander of that division is General O'Ryan. The idea is clever, and perhaps a bit humorous. Certainly General O'Ryan has proved himself a military star, and the Twenty-seventh division in its capture of Mont Kemmel and its thrust through the Hindenburg line south of Cambrai is truly entitled to be considered some constellation.

Alaskan Indians End War.

War, mostly of the smoldering variety, but which in past generations has blazed up and drawn blood, no longer exists between the Sitka and Wrangell clans of the Kock-Wan-Ton caste of the Thlinket Indian tribe of southeastern Alaska. Peace has been declared. The Indians decided to set aside their tribal customs. Disputes the Indians decided, in the future will be settled by the white man's law instead of by hostilities. No Indian now living can remember the time when the Sitkas and Wrangells were at peace. With the passing of many of the old tribesmen, however, the younger men, imbued with the ideas of modern civilization taught them in the government schools decided they wanted peace.

Abyssinians' Gifts.

A delegation from Abyssinia bearing rich gifts of ivory and silks for the announced purpose of congratulating France on her recent victory, appeared at the Peace Conference in Paris. This is in strict accordance with the ancient Oriental procedure. The real purpose of a visit is not disclosed until preliminary ceremonies are concluded. These native Africans—claiming descent from Solomon and the Queen of Sheba—wished to be in on the carving up of the world, for they have interests which seem vital to them, although little known to the rest of the world. Seated in that natural bastion of Africa, the Abyssinians have lived in greater or less security for unknown centuries. They are not negroes, but a mixture of Hamitic and Semitic races, with a culture of their own and professing the Christian religion, being a branch of the Coptic Church of Egypt. Until recently they have been unmolested save by native tribes.

SINGAPORE TO HAVE TAXIS

Far Eastern City Will Abandon the Rickshaw, Long Used as Method of Transportation.

According to advices from Consul General Edwin N. Gonzales at Singapore, that city is to have an internal transportation system of thoroughly modern taxicabs.

Whether American automobile manufacturers will secure the order for these motors is problematical, but the most significant part of the news is that it marks a further development of the use of modern methods in the far East.

For several years in Singapore there has been a most consistent and vigorous agitation against the institution of the well-known rickshaws. Most of this agitation came from the tongue and pen of the educated Chinese, who maintain that the system of making a horse out of men is wrong from the standpoint of the degrading influence which it has on the individuals as well as the harm it is claimed to work upon the coolies.

Distances are great in most far Eastern cities and while the rickshaw makes transportation reasonably convenient and comfortable, the rickshaw most certainly is a primitive vehicle and doomed to early abandonment because of the rapid advance now being made in the industrial and social life of the far East.

The new company to operate in Singapore is to be officially known as the Singapore Motor Taxicab and Transport company, Ltd., and will have capital of $350,000. The initial equipment will be made up of 40 landaulet taxicabs, five one-ton trucks and five three-quarter ton trucks.

MADE RECORD DURING WAR

Soldiers Proud of "Stars and Stripes," Official Organ of American Troops in France.

The most remarkable publication born of the war appears to have been "The Stars and Stripes." As it went out of business with the final scattering of its staff in June its record is now open to the public.

The publication was, as is well known, the official organ of the American expeditionary forces in France, and there is no doubt that it lived up to its dignity in a handsome manner. It started with a circulation of 30,000 and this was increased to 550,000 in less than a year. It maintained a French war orphan fund, to which 450,000 soldiers contributed 2,000,000 francs, and in its 16 months of life the paper cleared 3,500,000 francs.

There are other details of its progress and its work, among which is one to the effect that it printed 500 poems by soldiers and rejected 20,000.

The Editor and Publisher prints an extended review of the accomplishments of the paper, and from it we learn that its staff at one time or another contained something like 250 men. Among them were Sergt. Maj. Philip Von Blon, managing editor, and Sergt. Robert L. Snadjr, staff contributor, both Clevelanders.

Perplexing.

A certain admiral used to relate a story about a pretty girl on a Mississippi steamer who was anxiously sought in marriage by five of the passengers. As she looked on all of them with favor she sought the captain of the boat for advice in making her choice. His suggestion was that she should leap overboard, he of course, making arrangements that no harm could come to her. This she did, four of her suitors promptly jumping in after her, and jointly bringing her back to the boat. "Whatever shall I do now?" she inquired of the captain. "I don't rightly know miss," he answered, scratching his head in perplexity, "but it seems to me I'd take the dry one."

Y. W. C. A. in Japan.

The Y. W. C. A. work in Japan is of several years' standing. A number of secretaries trained in this country and sent out for this work, together with Japanese women trained both over here and in their native land, were ready to carry on the regular association work when Miss Matthews, who is considered the backbone of the Y. W. C. A. in Japan, was called to this refugee service. The Japanese association, because of its proximity and efficiency, was the first one to receive the call for assistance.

The Difference.

"When a man makes a hit in playing, he is clapped into fame."

"Well, what of it?"

"But if he makes a hit in earnest, he is clapped into jail."

China Clay Used In Paper.

The fact that an amalgamation with a capital of £2,000,000 has been formed to control the richest and best clay-fields in Devon and Cornwall, where alone china-clay exists in Great Britain, recalls the story of one of the most interesting and historic industries in the country.

China-clay is the fine white clay used in making the porcelain articles we are handling every day. Its great virtue lies in the fact that it is of a pure, or nearly pure, white, both before and after being fired, making it of great value in the manufacture of porcelain. It is also used to a great extent by papermakers, and in less quantity in the making of some chemical products.

Technically, china-clay is known as kaolin, derived from Kaoling—"high ridge"—the name of hills in China where the clay was first discovered and used in the manufacture of porcelain. Jesuit missionaries introduced it to Europe, and in the middle of the eighteenth century the clay was discovered in Cornwall and later in Devonshire.

The total output represents nearly half a million tons per annum.—Tit-Bits.

Territory of Louisiana.

In 1800 on the first of October the Spanish government by the treaty of St. Ildefonso, ceded the territory known as Louisiana to France. The territory had been a Spanish possession for 38 years, originally ceded to Spain by Louis XV. The return of Louisiana to France was effected by Napoleon, who contemplated forming a colonial empire in America. After three years he abandoned the scheme and sold the territory to the United States.

Please, Doctor, Make Us Pretty!

Dr. Seymour Oppenheimer of New York writes to the Medical Record expressing the hope that the long strides made in what is called "cosmetic" surgery during the war may not be lost to the civil population.

He says that this surgery for the sole purpose of beautifying ugly persons was always considered "rather a shady business" in which no reputable surgeon would engage.

But there are so many ugly faces and their beautification would make their owners happy, some surgeon the richer by a fee, and the world at large happier for not being obliged to look at ugliness, that this is the auspicious moment for taking cosmetic surgery out of the hands of charlatans and quacks and putting it into those of skilled practitioners.

A Drawback.

Jacob Ruppert, the New York brewer told at a luncheon a story about a war profiteer.

"He gave a dinner one night," said Mr. Ruppert, "and when his wife entered the drawing room he was astonished to see her in a very decollete dinner gown—no sleeves, very low in the front, and lower still in the back. His wife had never worn a decollete gown before and the profiteer stared at her in bewilderment.

"'Well,' she said, 'don't you like it? Don't you like this Paris confection, darling?'

"'Sure I like it,' said the profiteer, 'but what I want to know is, honey, where the dickens are you goin' to tuck your napkin?'"

More Words to Use.

Students of the English language attribute to aerial navigation the addition of 200 new words. As the average American has had in the past a speaking vocabulary of only 650 of the more than 600,000 words in the English language, the increase brought about by the airplane and airship is regarded as remarkable.

Community Dance.

A communication was received from the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., with reference to the community dance that they are holding in June. They asked for the use of the War Veterans' Band and that half a dozen Veterans should assist them in taking tickets and looking after the crowd. The communication pointed out that the cause for which they were working was for the education of the children of soldiers.

In connection with the above communication it was moved by Secretary Whatley that the communication be referred to the secretary of the band and that six members of the association be asked to volunteer their services as requested by the ladies.

Question of Poll Tax.

The matter of poll tax was also brought up by a member and the question asked as to whether any steps had been taken by the association to secure exemption for returned soldiers this year. Secretary Whatley replied that he had made application to the City Council with a view to securing exemption from poll tax for all returned soldiers for the year 1920, but he was informed that the legislation passed by the Hearst Government in 1919 granting permission to municipalities to grant returned soldiers exemption from poll tax for a period not exceeding ten years, had been rescinded by the Drury Government and that therefore the Council was powerless to act in the matter.

PRESIDENTIAL ROW PREPARES FOR DRIVE

ACTIVITIES IN REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN FOR NOMINATION OF PRESIDENT.

(By Canadian Press.)

Chicago, May 18.—"Presidential Row", an institution unique in American politics, is preparing for the final drive that will culminate the week of June 8 in the nomination of a republican candidate for president of the United States.

The "Row," which each four years is the centre of national pre-convention politics, is going through the biggest season in its history.

"Presidential Row" includes parts of two Michigan Boulevard hotels, which are connected by a subterranean passageway, and along the row every leading republican presidential candidate has established or will establish his headquarters. Here too the Republican National Committee maintains extensive offices, while the Democratic Committee meets here on occasion.

Since the Republicans began holding their conventions here regularly in 1904 the "Row" has become an institution of the party.

National headquarters of Governor Frank O. Lowden and Major General Leonard Wood were the first to open this season. The Wood delegation has been active on the "Row" since early last winter and the Lowden camp has been on the ground since January 1.

Later arrivals included western headquarters for Herbert Hoover and Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer and the regional offices of the National Personal Liberty League, working in the interests of Governor Edwards, democrat of New Jersey.

Reservations have been made for Senator Hiram Johnson, Senator Miles Pondexter and Governor Coolidge, of Massachusetts. They will open offices several days before the convention.

The Republican National Committee has had offices on the "Row" for several months. The committee will move to convention headquarters at the Coliseum about May 24, and there will begin hearing contests for convention seats on May 25 or 26, according to present plans.

Following the convention the Republican Committee will occupy an entire floor, including the ball room, in a downtown hotel, and also establish work rooms in a loop office building.

Will H. Hays, chairman of the committee, is expected to spend considerable time during the campaign here and one of the large hotel parlors is being prepared for his private office.

The Democratic National Committee will maintain headquarters here, but has not yet selected a location. Chairman Homer S. Cummings will divide his time between the offices here and those at the Grand Central Palace, New York.

BY AEROPLANE TO PARIS FRANCE

CANADIAN PACIFIC DISPLAY ATTRACTING MUCH ATTENTION IN LONDON.

A distinctly novel attraction has now been provided in the C. P. R. office windows at Charing Cross, London, Eng., an attraction which has been much admired by the crowds who have gathered to make inspection. The fine windows usually devoted to the exhibition of things Canadian is being occupied by an excellent model areodrome of the Aircraft Transport and Travel, Limited, at Hendon, together with scientifically accurate models of various types of aeroplanes and airships.

Such a display in a railway and shipping office may seem rather unusual at first sight, but is really a sign of the times, also marking much enterprise on the part of the Dominion Express Company of Canada. Realizing the importance of maintaining a really "Express" service if its name is still to be justified, the Dominion Express Company, the premier express company in Canada, made arrangements to act as Passenger and Parcels Agent for the Aircraft Transport and Travel Limited on their London-Paris daily air service.

It is thus possible to either passengers or parcels to be booked for conveyance by aeroplane to or from London and Paris through any of the Dominion Express Company's offices in Europe, and these, in addition to London, are to be found in important cities such as Liverpool, Glasgow, Manchester, Birmingham, Bristol and Paris.

The advantages of this arrangement are many, for the Dominion Express, holding as it does the exclusive right of shipping express parcels over the entire C.P.R. system, as agents for the aeroplane service, can ensure than an express package scheduled to catch a certain ship actually reached its destination in Canada in the shortest possible space of time. As time is money nowadays, more than ever it was, it is easy to realize what an important adjunct an air service is to an express company.

The timetable shows that only 2¼ hours is occupied on the journey to or from London and Paris—urgent letters are carried at 2 shillings and 3 pence per ounce over the ordinary letter rate.

Parcels for delivery in Paris on the same day have to be handed in at the London office of the Dominion Express Company, 62-65, Charing Cross, London, S.W., before 10:30 a.m. The parcels rates range from 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. per lb. according to quantity, while special rates are quoted for large and regular consignments. The single fare for passengers is 15 guineas, which includes a car to convey the passenger to Hounslow, the starting point. The Dominion Express Company's officials at Charing Cross have every reason to believe that a large proportion of Canadian visitors to Europe this year will take advantage of the ease with which it is now possible to book seats for a real flying visit to the Continent through their office. In fact, if they so wish, a motor car can pick them up in Trafalgar Square, and in under three hours they can be walking along the Champs Elysees.

Under legislation at last session the maximum scale of business tax is in effect his year, and the modified tax will apply to 1920 profits taxable in 1921.

Tariff Changes

The 7½ per cent. War Customs duty is taken off all remaining items. Last year the 5 per cent British preferential war tax was entirely removed, as well as the 7½ on food, clothing, agricultural implements, etc. The War Customs duties imposed in 1915 are now entirely removed.

Sir Henry also announced that public sittings for tariff revision would be held throughout Canada after prorogation. "Our policy," he said, "calls for a thorough revision of the tariff, with a view to the adoption of such reasonable measures as may be necessary."

Articles of luxury, Sir Henry declared, should be heavily taxed. Food commodities and other necessaries of life, not produced or manufactured in Canada, should, if taxed at all, bear only such imposts as were necessary for revenue purposes.

WORK BEFORE PLEASURE "JIMMY" WILDE'S MOTTO

Although less than two days in Toronto, "Sergeant" Jimmy Wilde has struck high-speed methods. He says that allowing for all the rapid ways of the United States, it was only after he reached Toronto that he got the full meaning of strenuousness.

After he had gone through many impromptu receptions yesterday, his director of affairs had him called away to accompany his trainer, Ben Williams, to the gymnasium. It has been thought best not to make public mention of the location of this gymnasium, as to many visitors might interfere with the champion's work.

Tomorrow morning the parade will be formed at the South African Monument, University avenue. The march will be through the principal down-town streets, and between 11.30 and noon time he will be officially welcomed by Mayor Church and the full Reception Committee at the City Hall. At 1 o'clock the banquet with "Sergeant" "Jimmy" Wilde as the guest of honor, will be given at the King Edward Hotel.

The banquet to be given to "Sergeant" Wilde by the Toronto Welsh Rugby Club is carded for Friday evening.

Wallace Arrives Today.

Patsy Wallace, the American champion, accompanied by his manager, Doc. Cutch, and trainers, will arrive in Toronto this morning. Announcements as to his movements and his training quarters will be given later.

The seats for the Wilde-Wallace contest already exceed all previous sales in Toronto for a similar event. So certain is it that there will be a record attendance to this affair that the directors are making preparations to meet an additional demand for reservation.

AMERICAN TROTTING DERBY HAS BEEN CALLED OFF

Boston, May 19.—The $10,000 American Derby, which was on the programme of the Grand Circuit meeting at Readville in August, has been called off, it was announced today. Entries, which closed ten days ago, were too few to warrant a renewal this year of the classic race which for several seasons before the war was one of the feature events of the Grand Circuit.

FOOTBALL EXECUTIVE

Will Meet in Special Session Tomorrow Evening.

Immediately after the game between the Caledonians and the C. G. E. tomorrow night there will be a special meeting of the football executive called to pick the opposing teams for the international game between Scotch and English players which is to be played off at 2 o'clock on May 24 at the Fair grounds.

It was intimated by one of the executive this morning that while the Scotchmen would probably all be picked from the Caledonian team the Englishmen would be gathered from almost every team in the league. It is more than likely, however, that the majority on the English team will be from the lineup of the C. G. E.

In this game opinion seems to be rather evenly divided as to the chances of a victory, but it is conceded that if it is a case that the Caledonians as a whole practically form the Scotch team it will give them the great advantage of having played together many times already during the season, a point which cannot be overlooked in considering the chances of the two nationalities.

ARGUMENTS ENDED IN SUIT FOR $68.000

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN CARR-HARRIS ACTION AGAINST CANADIAN GENERAL.

Arguments by counsel concluded the hearing of the action by Major Carr-Harris against the Canadian General Electric Company for something over $68,000, being the amount the commissions claimed by the plaintiff for securing war contracts from the British overnment for the defendants, based on one per cent. of the contracts secured. Judgment was reserved by Mr. Justice Kelly.

In his argument, Mr. W. N. Tilley, K.C., for the plaintiff, claimed that the contract made between the two parties stated that commission was to be paid providing the company received orders through the introductions effected by Major Carr-Harris. He claimed that orders commenced to again come in as soon as Major Carr-Harris got to England.

Mr. Tilley argued that Mr. Milne had been sent over to act with Major Carr-Harris and that his client had been sent over on the distinct understanding that he would get one per cent. commission on all orders secured by introduction.

Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., appearing for the company, argued that the principle of paying for introductions was vicious. It might not be the same in this case, but he went on to quote British and American law which condemned the principle of influence in connection with Governmental contracts or appointments. "Is it possible that we are to pay $100,000 for an introduction to the Lord Chancellor?" he asked in his argument; "that is all the plaintiff claims. He was using his influence and seeking to benefit himself, and I consider he is absolutely out of court."

DID NOT KEEP TO NEAR RIGHT SIDE OF ROAD

$20 AND COSTS FOR BREACH OF MOTOR VEHICLE ACT.

In the Police Court this morning John Sariotis, proprietor of the Home Restaurant was fined $20 and costs on a charge of failing to keep as close as possible to the right side of the road when driving a car.

The charge was the result of an accident which occurred at about 5 p.m. on May 12, when Mr. H. T. W. Bradburn, R. R. No. 3, Peterborough, who was driving a Chevrolet on George street, started to turn between Murray and Brock streets, and the defendant, who was driving a Studebaker, attempted to pass him on the left or east side of the street at the same moment, and crashed into him, causing some damage to both cars. The charge this morning was of particular significance, as the complainant had been served with notice of a suit for damages which has been entered on behalf of the defendant by Messrs. Gordon and O'Brien.

Mr. Bradburn in the box stated that before he commenced to turn he warned his daughter of his intention, and she told him that the road was clear and also held her hand out. In the cross-examination by Mr. Gordon, however, he admitted that he did not see his daughter's hand out until he was half way round the turn. He also tooted his horn before turning. The damage to his car consisted of a bent axle and steering gear, which was now being repaired. Mr. Gordon asked him if it was true that he had received notice of a damage suit before the charge was laid, and he admitted that it was so, but that he did not lay the charge which was laid by the chief of police.

Albert Duncan, 74 McDonnel St., stated that he heard the crash and saw both cars after the accident. In his opinion the car which was attempting to pass a turning car was to blame for the accident. He thought Sariotis was exceeding the speed limit, but when questioned as to what was the limit, did not know and said "30 or 25 miles an hour."

Miss Cora Bradburn also gave evidence to the effect that just before turning she looked through the back window of the car and had seen two cars below Brock street, and told her father that there was room to turn. She held her hand out to signify their intention of turning. They had reached the west side of the street and were quite close to the curbing when the other car struck them.

Mrs. Bradburn also gave evidence corroborating that of her husband and daughter.

Mr. Gordon, for the defence, contended that due warning that the car was going to turn had not been given until it was too late and that in any event it was a dangerous practice to turn before reaching a street intersection.

Magistrate Dumble could not see what Sariotis was doing on the west side of the street, and found the defendant guilty of the offense, imposing the above penalty.

RETAIL MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION MEET

ABLE ADDRESSES DELIVERED BY VISITING OFFICIALS OF CANADIAN EXECUTIVES.

A meeting of the retail merchants of Peterborough was held in the Board of Trade rooms last night for the purpose of re-organizing the Peterborough branch of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, also to listen to able addresses by Mr. Trowern, secretary Dominion Board, Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Mr. W. C. Miller, secretary of the Provincial Board, and Mr. Maher, the Provincial organizer.

There was a fair and representative gathering of local merchants and Mr. D. J. Picard occupied the chair.

Mr. W. C. Miller reviewed the work of the association in its various departments. He stated that all bills submitted to the Provincial Legislature passed through his hands first and that careful thought and study was given them in which the interests of the retail merchants was a first consideration. Mr. Miller in outlining this branch of the work, mentioned some of the acts for which the association had been responsible, or which they had supported. They were: The Transient Traders Act, Hawkers and Peddlars Act, Trading Stamp Act, False Advertising Act, Act relating to standardizing of weights and measures, the Knowles Bill, affecting the ruling of manufacturers on the resale price of articles by retail merchants; the Bankruptcy Act, which takes effect July 1st; the Business Tax, Workmens' Compensation Act, Tax on Mail Order Businesses, the Adulteration Act with regard to the pure food and drugs law, and the War Stamp Act, which had regard to the sale of patent medicines.

Mr. Miller also explained the action which had been taken with regard to the proper channels for merchandising, laying particular emphasis on the detriment to the retail traders in the sale to the consumer direct from the manufacturers. He also spoke of the special service given to the merchants by the association in the examination of freight bills, which work was being done at a very small cost to the merchants.

Mr. Maher, organiser of the Retail Merchants' Association for the Province of Ontario, gave a short address on the retail trade and the necessity for organization in order that their interests could be adequately protected. He mentioned particularly the Credit Bureau Department and its service to the members.

Mr. Trowern, secretary of the Dominion Board, in his address particularly spoke of the work of his Board, especially in connection with the legislation. As an example of the work covered by this Board, he drew the attention of the meeting to a 40-foolscap page book, which had been compiled, stating the various views of the retail merchants throughout Canada on the proposed taxing on the basis of cash sales.

Upon the suggestion of the executive officers present it was decided to include in the Peterborough association the counties surrounding, and that the association should be known as the Peterborough and Central Ontario district branch of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. In order to effect the organization of this district it was proposed that Mr. Maher, the Provincial organizer, should spend a considerable amount of time here.

A motion of thanks to the speakers was moved by Mr. Kingan and seconded by Mr. Ross.

If a man is both bad and worthless there is not much hope for him.

CHIPPAWA WORK MUST BE PUSHED

PREMIER DRURY WOULD LIMIT POWER OF INVESTIGATING COMMISSION.

From the remarks made by Premier Drury in the House yesterday on the labor troubles on the Hydro development at Chippawa, the Government may favor a committee of nine members of the Legislature, or a commission, to investigate and report on the situation generally. He made it quite clear that the Government did not propose to shift the entire responsibility upon a commission. The Government would take any action necessary on the report of such committee or commission, which would be limited in power to report, and report only. The question, however, is still open for the Legislature to decide, and the debate continues today.

No Acts to Compel Conciliation.

Incidentally, it developed that there are neither Dominion nor Provincial industrial disputes acts under which a board of conciliation can be forced. All acts exclude such bodies as the Hydro Commission from obligation, except by their consent. Individual members expressed different opinions on the matter of a commission, which came before the House in a resolution by the Labor members, C. F. Swayze and M. M. MacBride, following their promise to the workers at Chippawa on Sunday.

However, the unanimous opinion of all the speakers was that the Chippawa development work must be continued and pushed to a speedy conclusion to get the power so urgently needed.

BRITISH WOMEN AND TEMPERANCE

PARLIAMENT NARROWLY ESCAPED BIG DEMONSTRATION OF PROHIBITION DELEGATES.

(By Canadian Press)

London, May 18.—Parliament was spared a demonstration by delegates to the World's Convention of Temperance Workers recently held here only because one of the London members warned the women that such action would be illegal. The proposal was made by Mrs. Lee Cowie of New Zealand, who aroused the enthusiasm of the delegates by telling them that New Zealand women had been successful in a temperance demonstration. She said that when the New Zealand government was too busy with the war to attend to temperance legislation the temperance workers there organized the "silent march" in Wellington which so impressed the legislators that the temperance bill was passed by the House of Parliament by a small majority. She said, however, that the bill would have to be adopted by three-fifths of the House before it became a law in New Zealand.

"Why don't you women march on Parliament from this convention?" she urged. "You don't want hatchets and hammers. If you don't get into Parliament, the very fact that you march to the House to pray may show that you are in earnest and at any rate they might give Wales her bill."

This suggestion was received with much enthusiasm until Lady Carlisle pointed out that it would be illegal and that the convention would have to arrange a delegation and not a demonstration to go before the House. It was decided to send the delegation.

Miss Agnes Slack, summarizing the progress of the temperance movement, said that Finland and Iceland have obtained prohibition, and that in Denmark the work was nearing completion. Nothing had been heard of the temperance movement in Russia and Bulgaria for three years.

"In China," she said, "the work is overwhelming because the liquor traders fom the United States and Canada ae tying to make a centre for the sale of their liquor there."

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

NOBODY CAN TELL WHEN YOU DARKEN GRAY, FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearanse, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

agreement asking increases which the company could not pay. And if those latter men walked out it would be useless to have the machinists at work.

Mr. Harper declared that the minimum wage for machinists asked here is not in excess of that paid elsewhere, in fact he declared that during the past two weeks agreements had been signed up for 80c. In Peterborough, he said, the higher paid men are willing to make a sacrifice in order to bring up the wages of the lower paid men. He claimed that this minimum rate principle established better harmony and resulted in greater production.

We are not looking for strikes, Mr. Harper said, and to him the only possible solution of present difficulties rested in a third party's offices—those of a conciliation board. "I don't care who arbitrates," said Mr. Harper. "Let them make an award based on conditons found outside of Peterborough and I'll accept it."

Wm. Houston, for the Electrical Workers, spoke in praise of the fair hearing accorded the men by Mr. Patterson before he took sick, but [illegible] no understanding with the Toronto management had been reached nor with Vice-President Ashworth. He denied that the Electrical Workers were holding up the machinists, as rumored on Sunday.

Alex. Morrison said the armature winders were willing to accept Mr. Patterson's offered increase, but many other lines of work were affected by this department.

HYDRO ELECTRIC POWER

ance with Section 23 of the Power Commission Act) the expenditures exceeded the revenue by $130,995.94; the cost of service to all municipalities exceeding the estimates by but 3.5 per cent., a very remarkable showing in view of the phenomenal increase in the cost of labor and material. Bills and credit memoranda have been sent to the municipalities for the difference between the actual cost of service and the bills as rendered, which have already been taken up and incorporated in the books of the municipalities."

In regard to the Chippewa work which has been pushed since 1917, Sir Adam says:

"Since this project was started the vast increase in the prospective market for power has necessitated increasing the capacity of the power canal, which, together with a corresponding increase in the capacity of the generating station, will greatly add to the capital cost of the development, and, based on this increased capacity and with construction under constantly increasing cost of labor and materials, the development will cost much more than the original estimate for the scheme of smaller capacity.

"The estimated progress schedule for work on the development was maintained in all important particulars except in rock excavation, which, on account of the abovementioned labor difficulties, is somewhat behind our estimated schedule, but present progress shows marked improvement and is greater than schedule."

The remainder of the report deals with the extension of the Hydro. At Niagara, the installing of a wooden pipe saved a year's time. The Severn system developed 2,000 additional horse-power to meet the demands of the munitions manufacturers. The St. Lawrence load increased from 500 to 2,000 horse-power in six months last year. On the Thundrer Bay system it is hoped to be able to develop 30,000 horse-power by December, 1920. The rapid growth of the load on the Rideau system has necessitated the Commission going ahead with the High Falls plant. Construction is progressing on the Nipigon River. Storage dams have been installed on the Nipissing system.

SHALL WOMEN BE PASTORS?

PHILADELPHIA PRESBYTERIANS TO ANSWER THIS QUESTION ON MAY 20TH.

Philadelphia, May 18.—Whether women shall be allowed to fill the pulpits of Presbyterian churches or act as elders will be one of the important questions considered at the 132nd annual meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church beginning here May 20.

At the last general assembly a special committee was appointed to determine the views of the constituency on whether women should hold official position in the church organization. Dr. S. Hall Young, chairman, is withholding all information on the report.

A serious discussion is reported on the measure of the continued participation of the church in the Interchurch World Movement.

Dr. James Gray Bolton, chairman of the publicity committee, points out in connection with the New Era and Interchurch movements that from 1690 to 1919 the Presbyterian Church has grown from ten ministers, eighteen churches and 1,000 communicants, to 9918 ministers, 9805 churches and 1,603,038 members. The communicants, who are those on the roll in good standing, represent a Presbyterian constituency of 6,000,000, including baptised children and adherents who are not members.

Dr. John McDowell, secretary of the Board of Home Missions, and director of the departments of social service in the New Era Movement, will submit an exhaustive report on the relation of the church to industry. This is in accord with directions given at the preceding general assembly.

Dr. McDowell has conferred with employers and employes. His effort has been to reconcile differences along Christian lines. Establishment of schools for foremen is one suggestion he makes, in the belief that foremen are frequently the cause of clashes.

DOUBLE CHAMBERS FOR PARLIAMENTS

PROPOSED THAT NORTH AND SOUTH IRELAND HAVE UPPER HOUSES.

London, May 19.—During the debate on the Irish Home Rule bill in the House of Commons, Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty and member of the Cabinet Committee on Ireland, announced that the Government proposed to accept the principle of a second chamber for both the Northern and Southern Parliaments. The bill as at present constituted provides for separate Parliaments and a single central council.

Referring to an allusion to the United States made during the debate by Major-General Seely, Coalition Liberal member for the Ilkestone division of Derbyshire, Sir Edward Carson, the Unionist leader, said: "I think it is high time that America should be dropped out of these discussions. Those who are pretending to speak for America should learn that we are still a great power and not subordinate to America or any other power."

Bountiful Maples.

The making of maple sugar and syrup has become but a memory in the recollection of residents in many of the older parts of Canada. The industry is still, however, an important one over large areas in Quebec and to a less extent in Ontario and the provinces down by the sea. Sugar making from the maple, which is confined entirely to this continent, had a very early beginning. Before the advent of the white man the Indian had learned to extract and concentrate the sap of the maple tree. On the approach of spring the trees were gashed, with the tomahawk, in a slanting direction and beneath the opening made was inserted a wooden chip or spout to direct the fluid drop by drop into the receptacle resting on the ground. The sap was caught in a birch bark dish and boiled in earthen kettles. The small quantity of dark, thick syrup thus made was the only sugar available to the Indians and is stated by early writers to have been highly prized. The early settlers from the Old Land learned from the Indians the art of sugar making and indeed followed for many years their crude methods of manufacture. Even yet primitive equipment and methods are stated to be used in back sections of the country that turn out their annual crop of inferior syrup and sugar.

For perhaps a century the white man followed very closely the primitive methods of the Indian save the substitution of iron or copper kettles for vessels of clay or bark. In the early days before the timber acquired much value the axe continued to be used for tapping the trees, the sap was caught in wooden troughs and conveyed in buckets on the shoulders with a sap yoke to a central point to be boiled. No sugar bush was fully equipped without snowshoes which were frequently found necessary in gathering the sap. The boiling was done in large iron kettles suspended from a pole in the open woods in a sheltered location with no protection from sun, rain or snow or the ashes, falling leaves, moss and bits of bark that were driven about by the wind.

An early improvement was the substitution of the auger for the axe tapping, coopered buckets took the place of the birch bark "case" or hewn sap trough, while the kettle gave way to the modern evaporating tank made famous by the name of Grimm. During the past March and April along the lines of the Canadian Pacific in Quebec and Ontario farmers have been busy with the tapping of the maple trees and year by year the industry is growing in importance. It is estimated that the industry represents an annual valuation of nearly three million dollars and is carried on by 55,000 growers, but the increasing value of maple wood has led to the removal of many fine sugar orchards. With all the advances that have taken place in manipulation, sugar making has not lost its romantic side. "Sugaring off" at sugar camps in the woods is still looked forward to by young and old, who regard the event as a social feature affording rare enjoyment.

United States Golfers Praise St. Andrews-by-the-Sea

WHITE

THE ALGONQUIN ST ANDREWS

This quartette of sterling golfers toured eastern Canada for the Canadian Red Cross last June and were so pleased with the experience that they are desirous of repeating the trip and investigating the quality of Canadian golf in Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff, Vancouver, Victoria and other western cities of the Dominion. They were four of America's best, "Chick" Evans, former Amateur and Open Champion; Oswald Kirkby, Metropolitan Golf Champion; D. E. Sawyer, former Western Amateur Champion, and Gardiner White of Nassau.

The photograph shows them addressing the ball at C.P.R. links at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, N.B., on the shores of Passamaquoddy Bay. The four were particularly impressed with the quality of St. Andrews' golf and the beauty of its surroundings.

"Taking everything into consideration, hotel, country and the course itself, I cannot think of any finer spot than St. Andrews", said Oswald Kirkby. His team-mate, Gardiner White, declared that he intended to take his family to St. Andrews to see and enjoy its many attractions. "St. Andrews is a fine test of the game and is golf de luxe," said "Chick" Evans.

"Golf on the picturesque links of St. Andrews completed one of the most interesting and delightful golf trips that could possibly be arranged," said D. E. Sawyer.

When St. Andrews-by-the-Sea in Canada was named in honor of St. Andrews, Scotland, the birthplace and original home of golf, no effort or expense was spared to make it worthy of its title. Like its Scotch namesake, Canada's St. Andrews is a beautiful seaside links and a splendid test of the royal and ancient game.

Every year large numbers of golfers from all parts of the world play at St. Andrews-by the Sea and many of them like the New Brunswick course as well as they do the links of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club in Scotland.

Golf is an invigorating game anywhere, but it is most delightful when played along the sea. At St. Andrew's there are two courses, a nine hole course 2,500 yards long and an eighteen-hole course 6,000 yards long. Both overlook the sea, and are clad in a firm sward of velvet green. While resting on the course you can enjoy the view of the sea beneath, dotted with sailing vessels and motor boats, and little row boats that glide serenely over the waves. From the golf links you may watch the fishermen catch millions of sardines in their weirs that are set a few hundred yards, or less, from the shore. And old men and old women may often be seen gathering shell fish on the beach. It is a delight to listen to the continuous panting of the waves that expire on the red-lipped land—for the coast line is made of rocks and sand of rich deep red; and looking on it one might fancy that there in prehistoric times some great sea monster was killed and dyed the place with his blood.

The late Sir William Van Horne, one of the presidents of the Canadian Pacific Railway, built a beautiful residence on an island in Passamaquoddy Bay, and his family still lives there in the summer season. Lord Shaughnessy, the Chairman of the C. P. R. Board of Directors, makes his summer home at Fort Tipperary, St. Andrew's, and takes a special interest in the progress of the place.

At St. Andrew's there is splendid sea fishing, and a lake near at hand furnishes some of the best bass fishing in Canada. And should the weather ever be rainy the Algonquin Hotel supplies bowling alleys, pool tables, English and French billiard tables, and a beautiful large casino for dancing. Those who make St. Andrew's by the Sea their holiday resort once will do so a second time, for when you go away from it there is an allurement about the place that brings you back again.

ENG. CRICKET CLUB TO TOUR AMERICA

Advices from New York state that a team representing the Incognito Cricket Club, of England, whose membership is restricted to university graduates, will make a short tour of the American continent in September. One game will be played at the Staten Island Cricket Club grounds, and there is a possibility that the team may play a game in Toronto and Montreal before returning overseas.

DIAMOND SPARKS

If you don't think that the lacrosse fans means business this year all that is necessary to be convinced that they do is to glance into the windows of Thorntons' ready-to-wear store on George street. The sweaters, which have been made for the team by the Albion Knitting Works, are on exhibition there and they certainly look pretty natty. The colors are blue and white and will be very conspicuous in the field

• • • •

Rumor has it that some major league scouts were looking over Louis Yeotes' aggregation, but none of his birds have flown as yet

• • • •

The men behind the Central Ontario team this year are particularly elated with the showing made by the four teams on Saturday and with the calls of ball played. They are of the opinion that with such material to hand for the season it should not be difficult to pick a pennant winner for the Central Ontario League and Belleville had better look out if they have any ambitions in that burg of repeating last year's performance.

• • • •

The opening of the baseball seson tends to draw some of the interest from football, but the fans should not forget the game which comes off tomorrow night between the C. G. E. and the Caledonians. Neither team has suffered a defeat in the City League yet, but one or other of them will have to bite the dust tomorrow night and the contest should be a lively one for the spectators.

• • • •

Odds on the game are rather evenly divided although many seem to favor the C.G.E. aggregation, which is regarded in some quarters to be faster than the Scotchmen. For both teams it will, however, be the real test of the season and inasmuch as they are only scheduled to meet once again during the season, it may be the deciding factor as to which team shall top the league at the end of the season.

• • • •

The Great War Veterans have the best outfield in the league according to Louis LeBarr and he ought to know.

• • • •

It is likely that the Veterans will use two pitchers in the game against the C.G.E. on Saturday. They will probably be Wade and Rose. Wade will take the first part of the game and Rose the tail end.

MAYNARD LEADS IN BOWLING TOURNEY

SCORE LAST NIGHT SEVEN HUNDRED AND FORTY-FIVE.

The City Bowling Tournament started off last night when singles were rolled and some good scores were put up. Jack Maynard is now leading with 745. J. Green rolled into second place with 626; G. Green third with 618.

Tonight singles and doubles will be rolled, and some good scores are expected.

MANY ENTRIES FOR ST. CATHARINES MARATHON

St. Catharines, May 18.—Entries for the Ontario Provincial Olympic Marathon trial to be held in this city on May 24th, over the Martin road race course, will close on Thursday, May 20th. Several entries have already been secured by the secretary, and every indication points to a large entry list for the distance grind. The race will be a modified Marathon of 15 miles, six laps over the 2½-mile triangular course on which Stuart Allan made his ten-mile record. It will start at 2 o'clock Summer time.

The event is being held under the joint auspices of the Martin Amateur Athletic Club and the Chamber of Commerce, by special authority of the Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, and is open to all registered amateurs in good standing who produce their card and can pass the physical test necessary for a Marathon race.

The prize list is unique. In addition to ten valuable place prizes, with several specials and consolations, the local committee is prepared to place in the hands of the Canadian Olympic Committee a cheque for the transportation and expenses of the winner of this race to the Olympic games at Antwerp.

Any further information can be secured on application to W. A. Moore, secretary Ontario Olympic Marathon Trials Committee, St. Catharines, Ont.

NO ARGUMENT

Brick Owens, when umpiring an American Association game at Minneapolis, called a strike on one of the Millers.

"I swung only half way, I didn't go over," the player protested. "Yesterday I swung the same way, and you called it a ball."

"Well," drawled Owens, "that half you had yesterday and the half you had today makes a whole strike. Since it's your third one you're out."

Hamilton and Kitchener, the only Canadian teams active in the M.-O. League yesterday, were defeated.

The Leafs defeated Jersey City by 5 to 2 here yesterday. It was Ryan's third consecutive victory since joining the Leafs.

PETERBOROUGH FAILS TO FIND LACROSSE IN ITS VICINITY

St. Mary's who made a good showing in the O. A. L. A. intermediate ranks last year, are back again, and also want to operate in the junior series. The trouble is to arrange a proper grouping. It has been suggested that they go in with Hanover and Wingham.

It looks as if Peterborough will have to be given a "bye" in their part of the country, as, after scouring the lacrosse towns of former days, they have been unable to dig up a competitor close at home.

A double schedule has been arranged between Bracebridge and Orillia, Huntsville having failed to materialize as a lacrosse centre. The schedule is as follows:

June 16—Bracebridge at Orillia.
July 1—Orillia at Bracebridge.
July 14—Bracebridge at Orillia.
July 29—Orillia at Bracebridge.

Excelsiors of Brampton had 17 men out to practise on Friday night, when they held their initial workout.

A MINIATURE RUSSIA.

In Western Canada, in the midst of rippling fields of flax and wheat, nestles a miniature Russia. Resembling a Turgenieff village of the Caucasus, Brilliant, B.C., and Verigin, Saskatchewan, are centres of a little community of oppressed Doukhobor immigrants who twenty-five years ago fled from Cossack persecution and from Czar Nicholas the Third's imposition of universal military rule. They went first to Cyprus. Later, through the intervention and financial assistance of the Society of Friends, as well as of Count Tolstoy, whose "Resurrection" was written to help defray the expenses of their long journey overseas, they were enabled to go to more distant British territory—Canada. In the shadows of the arched doorways which form the entrance to the twin houses where several families maintain co-operative households, the little barefoot children work or play.

In this community of universal brotherhood there is no wearying routine of labor, for each takes a turn and lends a helping hand at the menial tasks. Speaking only Russian, marrying only among themselves, tilling the soil without wages and turning all profits into the common treasury, these eight thousand or more exiles worship God in the spirit and teach their children to live the gospel spirit of love. On their Far Western Russian-Canadian farms, combining modern mechanical improvements and primitive methods, these simple-minded peasants cultivate their grain and retain and perpetuate the art of "pulling" flax. They never scythe the long fibre, for they want to save its length. Driven to the fields only by their own desire to serve their community, they sometime work from five in the morning to eight at night.

At dusk, when their tasks are ended, they gather in small groups and their Gregorian chants roll through the valley like a glorious litany to the joys of labor and to the soil. One week the sturdy "mother of the village" gathers the ripening grain; another, she is the master cook. Love of animals has made her people vegetarians, who hold that it is sinful to take life of any sort—hence their objection to military service. And so Anastasia, or Marya, or Paula, with linen hand-made plotok, or kerchief, on her head to form a simple frame for the rare beauty of an honest, noble face, makes pancakes from flour of the grain she has helped to gather, and serves them with strawberry jam and Russian tea. Still another week she is found kneeling beside the large stones retting flax at the water's edge.

With her keen flax-eye she soon picks out the right spot in the swift whirling stream. She knows just how long to leave the flax in the river until she must reach over and gather up the fibre in her strong arms. Another time someone else will come to relieve her and she in turn will drop into the chair before the spinning-wheel to spin the threads for the heavy smock of the laborer or the finest weave for her own embroidery. Seated at her wheel—an heirloom handed down from mother to daughter—she practices the tricks of her trade, making the threads lie smoothly in place by moistening her fingers with saliva before she runs the flax fibre between them. At her side is her simple cottage, and behind are the eternal hills, while hollyhocks and marigolds and asters form a riot of color at her feet.

In this scene of rustic beauty she croons her old Slavic folk-songs and tries to forget the horrors of persecution on the distant Caspian shore. The religion of her people is embodied in the "Book of Life," so called because it lives in the memory and hearts of men. Most of it passes from one generation to the next by word of mouth, because only a few of the peasants can read. The songs and chants are based on the Bible in part. On Sundays all gather in the schoolroom, barefooted, with neither minister nor leader, to talk over the needs of the little community. Those speak or pray who hear the voice of God. Sometimes this voice finds expression from the lips of a little child. Behind them all, sustaining them in whatever they do, is the burning conviction that Christ is not dead—that Christ lives in the heart of every man.

Tusk Jelly.

Elephant tusk jelly is highly recommended. In English factories, where many tons of tusk are sawn up annually, for knife-handles, and other uses, great quantities of ivory dust accumulate. This dust is sold at sixpence a pound, and, when properly boiled and prepared, it makes a very fine and pure jelly which is frequently prescribed for the sick.

Want Candies.

Theatre-goers in London are demanding that the war restriction on the selling of candy after 8 o'clock be withdrawn, but the actors oppose the selling of candy and the serving of tea and coffee during the performance. The dropping of a spoon or the crumpling of candy papers is ruinous to a tense or quiet situation in a play.

Must Take the Risk.

Do not expect the ship to return loaded with precious treasures without being exposed to dangers.

Explained.

Said the facetious feller: "A cynic is merely a philosopher with chronic indigestion."

His Party.

The Countess of Warwick, who has been adopted as Labor candidate for East Walthamstow, has long been noted for her practical interest in welfare work.

One of her best stories concerns an occasion when she canvassed the humble quarters of a northern town on behalf of a well-known Labor leader, and encountered at the first house he visited a matron of the most determined character. "May I see Mr. ——?" she asked. "No, you can't," answered the matron, decisively. "But I want to know what party he belongs to," said Lady Warwick. The woman drew up her tall figure. "Well, take a good look at me," she said. "I'm the party he belongs to!"

Headaches Come From Nose.

That headaches are often due to troubles in the nose is well brought out by Dr. William Wilson in the London Practitioner. They are caused by the closure of the mouths of the ducts that drain the sinuses or cavities in the bones of the head. These sinuses are situated in the upper jaw bones directly under the eyes, in the frontal bones, over and between the eyes; in the ethmoid and sphenoid bones, back of the nose and almost in the centre of the head.

The sinuses are lined with mucous membrane and normally are full of air which is changed as we breathe. But a cold in the head causes swelling of the mucous membranes of the nose and pharynx, and the openings of the ducts are thereby closed. Then the air in the sinuses is absorbed and a vacuum is produced. Sometimes the inflammation spreads to the lining of the sinuses and they discharge semi-purulent mucus into the nose and throat. If they be blocked they cannot discharge freely.

The result of either of these conditions is headache. Such a headache is generally felt in the morning and passes away as the day wears on.

The cure for these conditions is the freeing of the entrance to the sinus, which is easily done through the nose by a specialist with a bougie inserted through a silver tube. The physician generally touches them with a weak solution of nitrate of silver. Occasionally a slight operation is necessary.

Merits of Wooden Barrel Obvious.

A barrel can be rolled. This is its greatest merit, says Popular Science Monthly. Every other shape of container which weighs over a hundred pounds when filled, must be lifted bodily and carried on a hand truck or by hoisting machinery. One man can unload a carload of sugar—200 barrels of it—in less than an hour. Don't you wish it were at your door? No other container can be handled at this rate, even by two men working at top speed.

In connection with the police court case this morning resulting from an automobile accident on May 19th last, Mr. Wearing informed The Review this afternoon that a writ had been issued by his firm on behalf of their client, Mr. Bradburn, against J. Sariotis, for damages sustained in the accident, for which Mr. Sariotis was found to be to blame.

WIFE HIT HUBBY WITH HER BOOT

QUARRELLING PARTIES WERE MARRIED JUST BEFORE HUSBAND ENLISTED,

Before Magistrate Langley in the County Court this morning William Chesney was charged with assaulting his wife and inflicting grievous bodily harm.

Mrs. Chesney testified that a week ago last Sunday her husband threw her out of the bedroom with such force that she was unable to get up after falling over. Further examination showed that the parties were married before his enlistment, and while the accused was attending the Collegiate. Since the return of the defendant from overseas the parties have lived very unhappily, each one blaming the other.

In this case Mrs. Chesney hit her husband with a boot, drawing blood. The magistrate dismissed the charge after handing out some wholesome advice. Mr. G. W. Hatton acted for the Crown and Mr. Joseph Wearing for the husband.

HIGHER TARIFF FOR CITY CARTERS

POLICE COMMISSION RECOGNIZES THAT CHARGES MUST BE INCREASED.

A deputation of local carters met the Police Commissioners yesterday afternoon with reference to raising the tariff, which they claimed was fixed some six or seven years ago, and which was entirely inadequate for present-day conditions.

Chief of Police Thompson brought the question before the Board by stating that he had been receiving complaints over the telephone with regard to the charges that carters were making in the city and upon investigation he found that many were charging far more than the schedule called for. One carter charged ten dollars for moving a piano and excused himself by saying that he got twelve dollars for the last one he moved.

The carters were represented by Messrs. White and Ed. Cooney. Mr. Cooney asked for an amendment to the schedule, which he claimed was unreasonable and less than they were compelled to pay their men today. He compared the prices of six years ago such as oats at 35 cents a bushel with the present-day prices and said that during all this time the carters' schedule had not been increased.

Magistrate Dumble asked Mr. Cooney why he did not call a meeting of the carters and prepare a schedule which they thought was just and then bring it before the Board for consideration. His Honor Judge Huycke in agreeing with the suggestion of Magistrate Dumble said that the Board all agreed that the present prices were too low. He advised the deputation to get a schedule drawn up for consideration and to present it at the next meeting of the Board.

A communication from Mr. F. J. Hall, secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board, requesting police protection at the fair grounds on the 24th of May, the Fall Fair and on other occasions when the grounds would be in use. The Board felt that this protection should be granted and it was moved by the Mayor and seconded by Magistrate Dumble that the chief of police be authorized to supply policemen for the Exhibition Grounds as requested.

The usual budget of accounts was passed.

Those present were Judge Huycke (chair), Chief Thompson, Magistrate Dumble and the Mayor.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Few boys there are who have not at some time or other helped with "chores" on the farm—feeding the pig, included. Then often times have they seen loads of swine passing down the streets of the city bound in the direction of the Canadian Packing Company's plant. But there are not many boys who have been privileged to see the process through which flesh of the porker is passed before emerging to be sold in the different stores of the city.

An opportunity will be given every boy who so desires, to see the second process of the preparation of the pork for the table, in the Canadian Packing Company tomorrow, Thursday, at 4.15 p.m., when a qualified guide will be on hand to show and explain the cutting, curing and cooking of meat. Parents would do well to call this observation tour to the attention of their boy and urge upon him to be present. Though it is arranged by the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Department the trip is not confined to Y.M.C.A. members alone and it is to be hoped that many will be on hand to gain first-hand knowledge of the handling of products manufactured in the city and exported to all parts of the Empire. Don't forget the hour and be on hand promptly!

GRAY DORT CAR FOR POLICE DEPARTMENT

CHIEF CLAIMS IT WILL BE OF GREAT SERVICE TO FORCE.

The Police Department is now in possession of a car, the purchase of which was authorized at a recent meeting of the Police Commissioners. Yesterday afternoon when running through the accounts Magistrate Dumble suddenly ejaculated: "What's this account, for one car, Gray-Dort, $1,200? Would not a 'Tin Lizzy' at $400 do just as well?" It was ponted out that even the much despised "Tin Lizzy" brought well over $900, and that in getting this car at that price they had secured a bargain as the car was a 1918 model and had only run about a thousand miles.

Chief Thompson and the Mayor negotiated the purchase and the car was bought from Mr. McDonald of the Peterborough Milk Products Co. for the sum of $1,200. The chief seemed to be highly pleased with the purchase and thought that it would be of immense service to the department.

The appropriation of $1,000 was slightly exceeded, but in view of the fact that prices have been going up and that the car which was purchased was a good one the Board overlooked this part of the deal.

CANADA AND THOSE WAR INDEMNITIES

DOMINION REPRESENTATION AT CONFERENCE ON WHAT GERMANY SHALL PAY.

Ottawa, May 19.—In reply to P. R. DuTremblay (Laurier-Outremont) in the House yesterday afternoon, Sir Robert Borden announced that Canada would have a representative present at the final conference to decide the disposal of war indemnities to be paid by Germany. Mr. DuTremblay called attention to the report that the Anglo-French conference had decided on six billion pounds as the total indemnity and asked if Canada's share had been decided. This question was ruled out. He then asked if the report that a further conference was to be held to finally decide the matter and if Canada had been invited to send a representative; if so, was the Government intending to send such a representative. "The answer is in the affirmative," replied Sir Robert Borden.

DECORATION DAY JUNE 6TH NEXT

CROSSES WILL BE PLACED ON GRAVES OF SOLDIER DEAD.

Sunday, June 6, will be set aside by the Great War Veterans' Association as decoration day for the decoration of the graves of soldiers buried in Little Lake Cemetery and the Sunday following the graves of soldiers buried in St. Peter's Cemetery will also be decorated.

The decoration day this year will be of more than usual interest because on that day the crosses, identical to those of the battlefield graves of France and Flanders, will be placed in position by the Veterans at the head of the grave of each soldier who died while in the service or since returning from overseas. As announced yesterday six of these crosses are already in possession of the local branch G.W.V.A. and Secretary Whatley stated at the general meeting of the association last night that he had written to the record officer M.D. No. 3, Kingston, for twenty more, which would complete the requirements for the Peterborough cemeteries up to the present.

The above date was fixed at last night's meeting on the motion of Comrade Oxley. The motion also fixed the annual decoration Sunday for future years as the first Sunday in June.

Discussion in this regard arose as to whether it would be advisable to invite other organizations in the city to take part in the decoration and opinion was divided on the matter. President Muir thought that if the association was not strong enough to hold a parade of its own it was time that they quit holding decoration parades, but others present did not hold this view. It was pointed out that there would probably be several other decoration services in the same month and that it would be far better to hold them all on the same day. The upshot of it all was that a motion was passed instructing the secretary to write to the City Council and all other local organizations and societies inviting them to join with the association in decorating the graves on June 6 next.

Judgment for $800 and Costs Allowed by Judge Huycke.

In the County Court yesterday Chas. Dawson, of Campbellford was granted judgment for $800 and costs for breach of contract against R. Leeses, formerly of Campbellford, but now a garage manager in Kingston.

Some time ago Leeses contracted to deliver a new Overland car to the complainant or in default to pay $800 and in consideration a sum of $600 had been paid down by Dawson and also an old car turned over.

Leeses did not appear, and only formal evidence was given, upon which Judge Huycke gave judgment.

OBITUARY

REV. A. B. FREDERICK.

Rev. A. B. Frederick, a promising and brilliant young pastor of the Methodist denomination, passed away on Saturday morning at the parsonage at Ivanhoe, after a brief illness from pneumonia, following influenza.

Deceased was only 35 years of age and was ordained into the ministry seven years ago. His first charge was at Centreton and he was transferred to Ivanhoe circuit three years ago. Here he won fine success and was highly popular with his parishioners. During the war he assisted local farmers in the work of production and helped in every patriotic movement. He was public-spirited and took an active part in many community movements. As a speaker and sermoniser, he gave evidence of unusual talent and would probably have risen high in the councils of the church had not death intervened. This sad and untimely ending is deplored by people of all denominations at the premature close of a career of unusual promise, for he was held in the greatest esteem by all as a man, a citizen and an unassuming Christian.

His young wife, and family of three little children, the eldest only five years of age and the youngest but three months, have the fullest sympathy of a great circle of friends

The funeral will be held at Ivanhoe at 10.30 a.m. on Wednesday, May 19, after which the remains will be taken to Lindsay for interment.

The late Mr. Frederick was the son of the late Irvine Frederick of the Township of Ameliasburgh. His father died about 20 years ago and the mother and her family moved to Campbellford where they resided for a number of years. Before entering the ministry, Mr. Frederick was educated at Campbellford High Schools and Victoria University.

He was wedded to Miss See, of Lindsay, and, as stated above, she and her three sons survive. He is also survived by his mother and three married sisters. The mother and one sister reside at Regina, Sask., another resides at Moose Jaw and the third at Peterborough. The funeral is being delayed until Wednesday to permit of the attendance of the relatives from the West.

THE LATE JOHN BROWN.

The funeral of the late John Brown will take place at 2 p.m. on Thursday from his residence, 29 Crescent street, to Little Lake Cemetery. Service will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Greatrix

WILFRID McCLAVEY.

The death occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital last night after a short illness, of Wilfrid McClavey at the age of 41 years. Mr. McClavey was born in Trenton, but had lived in Peterborough for a number of years, was well known in this community and highly respected.

He leaves to mourn his loss his mother, one brother, John, and one sister, Mrs. Marin, all of this city.

The funeral will take place from the family residence 145 Stewart street, on Thursday morning at nine o'clock, to St. Peter's Church, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

MRS. E. W. WASSON.

The sudden death in Toronto on Friday of Mrs. Ernie W. Wasson, formerly Miss Minnie Jones, youngest daughter of the late Joseph Jones of Peterborough, following an operation for meningitis, occasioned profound regret among her many friends here. Mr. Wasson with his sister-in-law, Mrs. W. E. Wright, of Winnipeg, and Mr. Fred E. Jones, came down with the remains on Monday at noon, the funeral being held from the home of her brother, Mr. Edward Jones, 337 McDonnel street, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, an impressive service being conducted by Rev. Robt. Pogue of St. Paul's Church. The following were the pallbearers: Messrs. R. Denne, R. Hicks, C. Graham, F. Stenson, W. G. Montgomery and R. Turner.

Mrs. Wasson leaves to mourn her her husband, Mr. E. Wasson, and one son, Arthur, her mother, Mrs. Jones, who has been living with her in Toronto for the last two years, her sister, Mrs. Wright, Winnipeg, and three brothers, who have the sincere sympathy of their many friends.

On Friday night, May 28th, there is to be a camp shower at the Young Women's Christian Association. More girls are expected at the camp this summer and many things are needed. The following list will suggest some of the things that might be given: Kitchen utensils of all kinds such as kettles, pans, boiler, wash basins, pop-corn popper, etc., knives, forks spoons, cups and saucers, plates and other dishes; small mirrors, Victrola records, music, pickles, jam, various kinds of canned goods, awning, pillows, blankets, cots, mattresses, tents and boats. Further notice of this event will be given later, but in the meantime just look around and see what you can give to the Y.W.C.A. camp.

CARRY FLASH-LAMP ON YOUR MOTOR CAR

A hand flashlight ought to be part of the tool box equipment for those automobiles that are not already fitted with a trouble light. Often enough the motorist is stopped on the road in a dark spot for reasons of mechanical trouble or perhaps to change tires. It isn't safe or satisfactory to light matches in order to investigate what is wrong with a gasoline engine. The light from a flash lamp can be set down somewhere so that it throws its beams on the work in hand.

It may not often be needed, but there does come a time when having such a light handy is worth a great many times what it costs to buy one and carry it around.

MOOSE AT HALIBURTON

Unusual Sight for Train Crew and Passengers.

An unusual sight was witnessed by the train crew on the Haliburton train Monday morning, and also by passengers. When a mile or so north of Kinmount Junction a big moose was noticed stalking through the open fields. When the passenger train pulled alongside the animal became frightened, and started off at a lively clip. Coming to a wire fence, which the animal apparently did not see, the moose was thrown back forcibly on its haunches. Rising again, the big fellow attempted to jump over the fence and caught his feet. He tumbled to the ground in a heap, but was up in an instant and dashed off through the brush.

Moose are seldom seen in the north so close to civilization.

POLES COUNTER AND DRIVE REDS BACK TWELVE AND A HALF MILES

Bolsheviki Claimed Success too Soon—Reds Attempt at Forcing River Repulsed—Soviet Government Were Preparing for Attack in Force on East Prussia.

(By Canadian Press.)

Warsaw, May 21.—Polish troops, counter-attacking Bolshevik forces on the northern sector of the battlefront, have driven Soviet armies back 12½ miles near Erzyszopol, according to an official statement issued here today.

The statement declares that on the middle Beresina sector, the Bolsheviki were repulsed, when they tried to force their way across the river.

Brussiloff in Command.

General Alexis Brussiloff, former commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, is understood to have assumed command of: the Bolshevik offensive against the Poles.

Would Attack Prussia.

In Polish military circles it is thought the Soviets is designed to overrun Lithuania, and extend the Bolsheviki front westward to East Prussia. Military authorities here declare vast stores of munitions and supplies have arrived in East Prussia in anticipation of a break in the Polish front before the Bolshevik offensive.

YOUTHS CHARGED WITH ROBBERIES

FOUR NOT OVER SIXTEEN REMANDED FOR ONE WEEK.

Four youths, not one over the age of sixteen, appeared before the bar at the Police Court this morning to face charges of having been implicated in a series of robberies and housebreaking which has been going on in Peterborough for the past few weeks. Another boy was also charged with being concerned in one of the offenses, but did not appear this morning, and this case will come up next Friday.

Those charged this morning were Thomas McDonald, Gerald Chatten, Harold Brooks, Edward Lavery and Joseph Jordon.

The earliest record of the robberies is April 17th, on which night it is alleged that McDonald, Brooks and Lavery broke into the groceteria of E .F. Mason, 429 George street, and stole $66.95 in cash. The next robbery occurred on May 17th, when it is charged McDonald, Chatten, Lavery and Brooks entered the coal office of Hick's on Murray street with intent to commit an indictible offense.

McDonald Chatten and Brooks are also charged with having entered the premises of A. E. Nick's, Hunter street, but on this occasion nothing was missed. On May 20th it is claimed that McDonald, Chatten and Brooks broke into the livery stable of Maloney's on Chambers street and rifled, the peanut wagon belonging to Antrose Polis, getting away with about $2 worth of peanuts. From here they went to Millard's store on Hunter street, and took a pocket knife, search light and other small articles. Joseph Jordon appears in only one charge, that of stealing the peanuts. He was not charged this morning but will appear when the others come up on Friday next.

Only two of the boys were represented by their parents in the court, and these elected to be tried summarily by the magistrate as also did the boys whose parents were not present. Magistrate Dumble acceded to the request of Crown Attorney Hatton for a remand for one week and allowed the boys out on their own recognizances after lecturing them strongly as to what would happen if they did not show up at ten o'clock next Friday morning. It is understood that a remand was asked because it was thought likely that the case might be further enlarged to include other offenses and that further arrests in connection with tese may be made.

CITY BOYS HAVE RARE GOOD TIME

SIXTY-FOUR SHOWN THROUGH CANADIAN PACKING CO'S BIG PLANT.

Sixty-four boys from all parts of the city were treated to a rare good time yesterday afternoon when through the courtesy of the Canadian Packing Company they were shown the entire working forces of this plant. The visitors were met at the door by representatives of the company and divided into two groups; the one under the guidance of Mr. George Logan and the other under the supervision of Mr. Gordon Thompson. Throughout all the various processes of caring for the products and by-products of the packing industry these two men brought their respective groups into a fuller first-hand knowledge of preparing meats for the home and export market.

In the lard room the guide showed all the various methods of rendering Rose Brand lard and explaining each in detail left no remaining question in the mind of the individual boy. Each was shown how the fatty particles were rendered in large vats, by live steam; how the mixture of steam and water was clarified and then under pressure and skimming even the residue which might be thought to be waste, is made to yield up a further portion which is returned once again, to go through the vats. Truly it may be said that the "squeal" is the only part of the hog not put to a good use in this and all other departments.

From the lard room the party were taken upstairs to the room wherein the vats are filled for the lard rendering process and were privileged to have a peep into the interior of one of the hoppers. A peep was all that was necessary for the heat is excessive from the steam In another branch of this same room the killing process was explained in detail without the actual demonstration. Some were heard to regret the accident which caused the shut down in this chamber of quick transition. Quick it is indeed for 220 hogs can be passed through in one hour on a killing day.

At the cutting table a squad of men were found trimming down the sides of bacon for the European market. In the cooling room, long rows of departed porkers waiting their turn to come to the table; in the cooking department the culinary art was shown in operation on a large scale as evidenced by the large numbers of bologna and hams being prepared. One boy was heard to describe the interior of the roasting oven as being "just like a ferris wheel." The filling of sausage was a real scream to the group gathered round who saw the limp casing rapidly grow in size as the valve was opened. The product of today's labor is destined for the market of those who favor garlic in large quantities.

Down in the refrigerator a real marked change from the summery weather outside was encountered. Hoar frost on all the pipes and a temperature creeping down in the neighborhood of zero brought back memories pleasant or otherwise, of January days. The artificial ice-making was explained by the guide in such a way as to be grasped by the smallest boy present.

These trips to the different factories are held every Wednesday under the auspices of the Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A. They are not confined to Y.M.C.A. boys alone but are for every boy in the city who desires to gain an insight into the manufacture of the products which go from Peterborough to the markets of the world. Next Wednesday at 4.15 p.m. an opportunity will be given to see through the De Laval Company's plant under expert guidance and every boy is urged to be on hand.

PERSIA APPEALS FOR PROTECTION

LOOKS TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS FOR ACTIVE SUPPORT.

BOLSHEVIKI ARE AGGRESSIVE

PERSIA WITHIN HER RIGHTS IN REGARD TO SOVIET VESSELS.

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 21.—Persia has appealed to the League of Nations to protect her against Bolshevik aggression. The appeal, which follows the landing of Bolshevik forces on Persian soil from the Caspian Sea, was made through the Persian foreign minister, who is in Paris.

Warships Are There

The appeal alludes to the presence in Enzeli harbor of warships belonging to the anti-Bolshevik forces formerly operating under Gen. Denekine, and maintains that Persia acted within her rights as a neutral with regard to these vessels. It points out that she declined to allow ships to enter the harbor until she was assured that she would not be hampered in disarming and interning them.

The Leafs were defeated by 7 to 1 in the opening game of the series at Buffalo yesterday. Quinn was hit hard.

LEGISLATORS INVITED TO INSPECT GUELPH AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

(By Canadian Press.)

Toronto, May 21.—A permanent commission to report on the cost of milk production and distribution and retail prices obtained will be named by Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture, next week. This commission will furnish public reports every three months so that the public will be informed of the profits being made.

E. S. Archibald, of the Federal Agricultural Department, Professor Leitch, of the O. A. C., Guelph, and R. F. Hicks, Newtonbrook, will be three of the five on the commission. Two others will be named to represent the distributors and the consumers.

Hon. Mr. Doherty extended an invitation to members of the House this morning to visit the Ontario Agricultural College.

He was fololwed by C. F. Swayzie of Niagara Falls, who extended an invitation to the members to visit the Falls and inspect Hydro development.

REVIEW AND EXAMINER TO AMALGAMATE ON MAY 31ST

NEWSPAPERS AFFECTED ONLY

Beginning May 31st The Daily Evening and Weekly Review's identity will be united with that of The Evening and Weekly Examiner, an agreement to that effect having been reached between the two managements.

This amalgamation has been impelled by the high cost and scarcity of news print, abnormal increase in cost of production and supplies generally, and unfavorable local conditions for the support of two papers, over which this management has no control.

With the ever-increasing expenses entailed in newspaper publication these days the trend of effort in many Canadian towns is for papers to resort to amalgamation of interests to meet the enormous burden of production, and thus The Review and Examiner's transaction, by which Peterborough is made a one-newspaper town, is not lacking of precedent.

But we wish it to be distinctly understood that only The Review newspaper is affected by this business deal. The Job and Bookbinding Departments will still be continued at the old stand on Hunter street, where under new conditions increased efficiency and improved service may be relied on. We bespeak continued and new patronage in this respect.

In stopping publication of The Review the management finds cause for satisfaction at past and present relations with the newspaper public generally. Under conditions existing when the paper was assumed by its present management and conditions which have arisen since, a full measure of appreciation is coming from The Review to a large circle of loyal friends in this community—business and otherwise. And that appreciation is here cordially extended, coupled with best wishes for the future to all subscribers and business patrons.

The Peterborough Weekly Review was first published in 1853 by Thomas White and Robert Romaine. In 1878 it was purchased by Messrs. E. J. Toker and John Carnegie. Since 1884 it has been published by The Peterborough Review Printing and Publishing Co. under successive managements. The Daily Evening Review was established in 1878. Thus The Weekly Review and The Evening Review have seen 66 and 41 years, respectively, of what has been, we venture to hope, useful public service in Peterborough's town, city and county communities.

FLOUR AND SUGAR LOST IN BIG FIRE

FIRE STARTED IN BAKERY

HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS DAMAGE IN VILLAGE OF MILFORD.

(By Canadian Press.)

St. John, N.B., May 21.—Approximately one hundred thousand dollars damage was caused by fire last night in the village of Milford near here. The fire started in a bakery and the flames soon spread to nearby buildings. A bakers' establishment and warehouses containing eighteen thousand dollars worth of flour and six thousand dollars worth of sugar, were completely destroyed.

MR. BURNHAM DECLARES BUDGET GIVES BIRTH TO A PEOPLE'S PARTY

Here is a New Name, a Great Policy and a Great Party, He Says—New Problems Arise Daily in Administration of Canadian Luxury Tax.

(By Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, May 21.—New problems are daily arising in the administration of the new luxury taxes. An important point for decision has been raised by a Canadian manufacturer.

This Man Hit Hard.

Before the budget, he said, he had contracted to fill a large order for goods now subject to an additional excise duty of ten per cent. The selling price of goods is determined in the contract. The budget resolutions provide that in this case excise duty is payable by the manufacturer. If, the manufacturer contends, he pays the duty, not only will his profit be wiped out, but he will have to fill the order at a loss.

It is probable that when the resolutions are in committee amendments will be made to correct any anomalies existing.

(By Canadian Press.)

MR. DYSON WORTH PASSED AWAY TODAY

BORN IN ENGLAND — CAME TO PETERBOROUGH SEVEN YEARS AGO.

A large circle of friends and acquaintances in the city will learn with regret of the death at noon today, after a lingering illness, of Mr. Dyson Worth. Mr. Worth had been ailing for some time, and for the last week or so the family have had great anxiety as to his condition.

Mr. Worth is the father of Mr. Edgar Worth, who organized the Bonner-Worth woollen mills in this city, now better known as the Canadian Woollens, Limited. Deceased was born in Huddersfield, England, sixty years ago, and prior to coming to Peterborough spent sixteen years in Sweden. Seven years ago he came to this city, and since that time he made a host of friends in the community.

By faith he was an Anglican, a consistent member of All Saints Church, the interests of which he always had at heart. He was a member of Prince Arthur Lodge, A. F. and A. M.

The late Mr. Worth is survived by a wife, two daughters, Edith and Emma, at home, and three sons Messrs. J. W. Worth, Edgar Worth and Walter J. Worth, all residing in Peterborough.

The funeral will take place tomorrow from the family residence, 465 Weller street, to All Saints' Church for service at 3 p.m., and thence to Little Lake Cemetery for interment. Rev. R. B. Grobb, rector of All Saints' Church, will officiate.

BREAD RIOTS IN SPAIN'S CAPITAL

MARTIAL LAW IN MADRID — BAKERS' STORES WERE PILLAGED.

(By Canadian Press.)

Madrid May 21.—Martial law has been proclaimed here as a result of bread disturbances. A Government statement issued this morning made the announcement that martial law had been put into effect.

The statement chronicles disturbances during which rioters pillaged shops, especially those of bakers and grocers. Some private houses were attacked, although no actual robbery was committed.

REPORTS OF FOREST FIRES EXAGGERATED

LESS THAN TWENTY CORDS OF WOOD WERE CONSUMED.

Sherbrooke, Que., May 21. — Greatly exaggerated reports of forest fires in Bellechase county were circulated yesterday to the effect that millions of feet of lumber were threatened.

The general manager of the Quebec Central Railway stated today that less than twenty cords of wood were damaged, the fire being quickly extinguished.

COUNCIL TO MEET THIS EVENING AND DISCUSS STRIKE SITUATION HERE

Proposed That City Ask Minister of Labor to Appoint Conciliation Board.

Mayor McIntyre, Ald. G. N. Gordon and Ald. Frank Whitehouse attended at Toronto to interview the Minister of Labor and the Hon. Frederic Nicholls, the president of the Canadian General Electric Company, in the hope of terminating the strike. An appointment was arranged with President Nicholls and he refused to meet Mr. Harper, the organizer of the Machinists' Union for Ontario. The deputation was inclined not to visit Mr. Nicholls at all upon his refusal to discuss it with the workingmen's representative, but finally decided to see him with the view of obtaining his consent to a Conciliation Board. A very lengthy discussion took place. Mr. Nicholls stated his position and finally concluded the discussion by stating he would not accept the Conciliation Board which was suggested by Ald. Gordon to deal with the question of a minimum rate for the men, but would be willing to take up the question of individual cases of wages before a board.

Mayor McIntyre, Alderman Whitehouse and Alderman Gordon were most urgent and insistant upon Mr. Nicholls agreeing to meet Mr. Harper or committee of the men to deal with the question of settlement of the strike but Mr. Nicholls absolutely refused to go into the matter of meeting the men's representative as he said he had met him before and discussed the situation and he had made up his mind that he would do nothing further than the offer he had already made through Mr. Patterson.

The Mayor telegraphed to Mr. Armstrong from Toronto to call a Council meeting tonight to deal with the whole matter and to ask the Minister of Labor to appoint a Conciliation Board, which will be dealt with tonight, Friday.

The Mayor and the committee with him feel the seriousness of the situation, as the strike is affecting the business men, landlords and every person in the city, as well as the men out of work, and the company itself. The Mayor, and the other members of the Council, have given a great deal of time on this matter, and Mayor McIntyre, Ald. Gordon and Ald. Whitehouse all said today they intended to see the thing through, and if it was a fight to a finish they were going to get into it to and stay with it till it was finished.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

FRIDAY, MAY 21, 1920.

TAG DAY TOMORROW.

THE SALVATION ARMY'S Jubilee tag day is tomorrow, and as usual on all worthy occasions of like nature the public's response to the Army's appeal should be generous. Considerable has been published of late in explanation of the noble work carried on by this institution for moral reform and reclaiming from vice and iniquity brother and sister mortals, the expense in connection with which is stupendous, to say nothing of the large measure of self-denial by this organization's members in the arduous tasks so cheerfully shouldered by them. But half the story of individual and collective sacrifice has and cannot be told, for the right hand of the Army's adherents knows not what the left hand doeth. However, the press generally throughout the world and public men of all creeds have lined up behind the Salvation Army on this its fiftieth anniversary; and let us hope hat Peterborough citizens generally tomorrow will see to it that tag day rolls up a good round sum for the extension of real Christ-like endeavor.

THOSE PRICE DEFLATIONS.

IN REGARD TO the tumble in prices in the United States of clothing, boots and shoes, which deflation will probably spread to Canada, it is interesting to note the reasons offered for such reductions. It is said that high prices resulted from laborers and others who made high wages during the war having embarked on an orgy of spending. Well, there's a good deal radically wrong with a country's government, either Canadian or American, which in its professed enquiry into profiteering, peacefully slumbers while one class of society which has the money to spend can be blamed for the soaring of prices to the hardship of other classes who can scarcely make ends meet. The excuse put forth hardly holds water, for no intelligent man or woman will find justification in a system of retailing which advances prices to the detriment of a large section of any community beyond a fair profit because one or two classes are making big money. There have always been classes of sociey with money in abundance, but before the war a line of demarcation was drawn between luxuries on which they were willing to squander money and the absolute necessaries which the less fortunate people must have.

Then it is advanced that in the recent cuts of from twenty-five to seventy-five per cent., retailers will not suffer a loss, as the reductions are made not on the original prices of commodities but on the profits of three years past. Well, in all fairness to humanity, let us hope the time will never come again when a New York or any other man can take such profits in three years as will allow him to cut $20 shoes down to $11, and $58 suits down to $28.50 without suffering a loss. For not long ago a commission in New York reported that good shoes should be sold in that city at from $10 to $12, whereas prices were ranging from $20 upyards.

Then food prices remain high in New York and other cities, because we are told people must have food. That "must have" is indicative of anything ut fair dealing and a long way removed from the principle of the brotherhood of man we hear so much about these days. It is suggestive of extortion, whether extortion exists or not, and we are constrained to wonder!

In Canada we have embarked on a direct taxation plan for luxuries, and the hope was held out of prices being reduced to just below the luxury class. If Canada is going to experience a cut of from twenty-five to seventy-five per cent. in the prices of clothing and boots and shoes, like in New York, a considerable anticipated revenue from luxuries will certainly not be realized.

SPORTING INSTITUTION TO CLOSE.

THIS WEEK SEES the closing up of the affairs of the oldest sporting institution in Peterborough, ont that was founded over fifty years ago, the Peterborough Boating Club. It was organized in 1867 by a number of our athletic young men of the period and nursed along and kept up until it was turned into a joint sock company in 1876. The stockholders included men who have been identified in after life with the professional and commercial activities of the town and afterwards city. E. B. Edwards, R. A. Morrow, E. H. D. Hall, city; T. B. Clementi, H. LeBrun, R. M. Dennistoun, Winnipeg; F. J. Buckett, Fred Barlee, George Barlee, R. E. Wood, Geo. C. Rogers, W. I. Nesbitt, Flordia, and many others. Thes are the names the town used to conjure with when public activities were on the carpet.

The club prospered, acquired a site on the bank of the river at the end of King street, and built commodious boat houses, bought four-oared practice boats, single scull boats and canoes, and for years the semi-weekly regattas on the lake were summer events that drew throngs of spectators. Presently, having ambitions and being filled with ideas of aquatic prowess, the club brought out from England a beautiful four-oared shell and want out through the Province to have a try at the many annual regattas. The crew rowed at Toronto, Barrie, Lachine and other points, where they met the best and worthily held up their end, winning many trophies and much renown. The shell was built for the famous "Paris" crew of St. John, N. B., captained by the famous oarsman, Wallace Ross. Some hitch coming about as to the boat, the local club stepped in and purchased it. The shell is now housed in the premises of the Peterborough Canoe Company, where it has had for many years very careful attention and is cherished as a visible evidence of past prowess.

The building of the C. P. R. spur line along the bank of the river spoiled the water front for the club. Besides, the members were waxing in years and weight. And the younger generation was not coming forward to take up the oars. The property was sold to the Ontario Canoe Company (now the Peterborough Canoe Company), and the equipment passed over to another organization, the Chemong Rowing Club, but, transplanted to the lake side, the project was not a success. Difficulties of getting to the lake and back of a summer evening interfered, and eventually the Chemong Rowing Club went to pieces.

From the avails from the sale of the premises and equipment was derived a fund from which the stockholders were all repaid their stock, at face value, with interest at eight per cent. for ten years, a very satisfacory settlement. But some funds were left over after the settlement, and these have been enshrined in the shape of a Victory bond and will this week be presented to the Playgrounds Association as a slight token of esteem and respect and appreciation of what may be termed one of our most worthy sporting organizations. Mr. E. H. D. Hall and Mr. F. H. Dobbin are the two surviving trustees of the club. Mr. George Hatton and Mr. A. Stevenson are members who recall with much interest the days that are gone, when the club supplied a heap of fun of the right kind, wher each man contributed his personal and physical work and efforts to the general uplift. There may be surviving, but out of the city, a few others, but not many.

ART AND CRITICS.

SIR REGINALD BLOMFIELD deals out a stimulating castigation alike of the new schools of painting and of the art critics, and obtains, we have no doubt, much satisfaction from the exercise, says an English exchange. Here we have the revival of a quarrel as old as art itself. The settled schools of painting will always be challenged by the men with fresh ideas, and out of the conflict comes advance. All that we can say is that while the charlatan may have a temporary success, nothing survives in art that has not a basis of real technical accomplishment and sincerity of purpose. The charge which Sir Reginald Blomfield hurls at the critics is comprehensive enough, but is not new. It rings as the echo of the plaints of the baited art craftsmen down the ages:

"Without technical knowledge of painting, sculpture or archftecture, they are able to instruct us what we are to admire in art, what is the business of the artist, and how he is to carry it out."

Perhaps the critic is not always so lacking in knowledge as this would show him to be, and in any case it is not necessary that a man should be a practical carpet weaver to say whether a rug is beautiful or bad. The artist sometimes forgets that it is not the sole duty to praise what is generally accepted as good, but to seek out what is novel and of promise and to give it encouragement when that is possible.

EDUCATIONAL EXPERIMENT.

THE OWEN SOUND Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire are undertaking a very interesting educational experiment. The annual meeting of the Ontario Historical Society is to be held in Owen Sound on June 10th and 11th, and as that town is to become a city on July 1st it was thought that this would be a good occasion to add an exhibiton of articles which would illustrate the history and development of social life and action during the seveny years since the first settlers came

The prospects for a fine exhibition are good, as the idea has caught the imagination of the people, and the meeting of the Ontario Historical Society should be a great success. Rev. Father Cadot, S.J., he missionary to the Indians of Cape Croker and hte Christian Islands, will give one o fthe evening addresses. Rev. Canon Spencer, of Hamilton, who arrived in 1853 at where Owen Sound now is situated, will give his reminiscences, and Professor J. L. Morison of Queen's University will speak.

A FABLE FOR THE TIMES.

(Philadelphia Record.)

Roger W. Babson, the statistician, repeats and reiterates with much gusto this modern fable to illustrate the attitude of some workers towards their jobs:

Once there was a man who decided that his furnace was not giving sufficient heat. Taking a shovelful of coal, he stood before the open door of the furnace and addressed it thus: "Now, you give me some more heat and I'll give you this coal." The poor dub froze to death.

BEANS AS VINES.

(Dorothy Dale in Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

During the war gardening campaign I knew a woman living in a large congested city who had a brilliant inspiration which has with her resulted in a permanent institution. She grew pole beans on her back porch. Previously she had grown morning glories which were trained on strings to shade the back porch from the southern sun. She decided to sacrifice the morning glory and try some vines. She planted golden cluster wax pole beans. They furnished the shade and a number of messes of wax beans. She had fifteen vines which received excellent care, and as the beans were kept picked, the vines kept on bearing until the frost came. Here is an ideal for thrifty housewives who have porches or windows to shade. They can also be used to run up the garden fence, and some care and a little space will help you defeat the H. C. of L.

LITTLE LESSON FOR AGENT

Speaking of Etiquette Reminded Servant Girl of a Few Ideas She Had in Mind.

"Madam," she began, as the door opened, "I am selling a new book on 'Etiquette and Deportment.'"

"Oh, you are?" she responded. "Go down there and clean the mud from your feet."

"Yes'm. As I was saying, madam, I am sell—"

"Take off your hat! Never address a strange lady at her door without removing your hat."

"Yes'm. Now, then, as I was saying—"

"Take your hand out of your pocket. No gentleman ever carries his hand there."

"Yes'm. Now, madam, this work on 'Eti—'"

"Throw away your pipe. If a gentleman uses tobacco be is careful not to disgust others by the habit.

"Wait. Put that dirty handkerchief out of sight and use less grease on your hair in the future. Now you look a bit decent. You have a book on 'Etiquette and Deportment.' Very well, I don't want it. I am only the servant girl. Go up the steps to the front door and talk with the lady of the house. She called me a downright, no-doubt-about-it idiot this morning, and I think the book you're selling is just what she requires."

Fine Work for Tanks.

The French appear to be ahead of us in finding a use for tanks in peace times. A considerable number of French tanks which are comparatively small sized are now employed for transport purposes about the yards of large industrial works; others are used as farm tractors; while the larger tanks are replacing horses for traction along the wide paths of the great French canals.

The latest and perhaps the most remarkable employment which has been found for these machines is in connection with mountain climbing for tourists. For this purpose the armor and, of course, all the fighting apparatus of the tank are removed, and a carriage superstructure capable of carrying from ten to twenty passengers added. The seating is either arranged longitudinally or crosswise. Very steep grades can be taken, while the machines easily cross small streams and make their way through brushwood, tall grass and over the roughest roads.

As Far As It Went.

"Nellie, here's twopence," said the small girl's mother. "Just take little Jimmie to the barber's and get his hair cut."

"But, mother, that's not enough," began Nellie. And mother told her not to argue but to do as she was told.

So Nellie led the lamb which was to be shorn to the shop, where the barber lifted the little fellow into a high chair and asked Nellie, with a smile:

"How do you want this young man's hair cut, missie?"

"P-p-please," replied Nellie, in a small, scared voice, "will you cut off as much as you can for tuppence?"

PROTECT THE SONG BIRDS

Sound Advice Which Is as Applicable to United States as to Canadian Farmers.

Our songbirds are now on their way to their Canadian haunts, and some of them may have arrived when these lines are read. Their return suggests the old admonition—protect them in every way possible, because they are the best protectors of our gardens, our garden crops and our orchards. Without these birds the insects would "eat us out of house and home."

In an article on the protection of wild life Jack Miner condenses the whole case into a single paragraph. He takes the robin as the representative of our winged allies in the warfare against insects and worms, and he states his case in this fashion:

"Now what good is the robin? Everybody knows the robin. A boy came along the road with a .22 rifle, saw a robin sitting there, and killed it. I went over and picked the robin up. Two cutworms were squirming on the ground—the robin had had them in his beak. I held the bird up, and two more fell out of his mouth. Remember, one cut worm will cut down five tomato plants in a night. The cutworm does his work and then hides under the soil; Mr. Robin comes hopping along, picks in there and pulls him out—and then turns him into a robin. If anyone tells you that a robin will destroy one hundred cutworms in a day take it from him that it is true."—Montreal Herald.

New Golf Clubs.

Of special interest to golf players is a club made with a steel instead of a hickory shaft, shown in Popular Mechanics magazine, which, it is claimed, possesses all the flexibility of the wooden shaft and has additional desirable features. The steel shaft is hollow, tapers toward the lower end, and is much smaller in diameter than one of hickory. This is said to give the player additional driving power, because of reduced friction when the club is swung through the air.

Musical Advice.

"It's a pity you never took music lessons," said Mr. Rafferty.

"So's I could sing more?" inquired Mr. Dolan.

"No. A study of music might have improved [illegible] taste so that you'd quit tryin'."

Buenos Aires.

Buenos Aires is one of the fastest growing cities of the world. The census of 1914 showed 1,575,000 inhabitants, and the population is now estimated to be more than 2,000,000 since immigrants are arriving at the rate of more than 10,000 a week. Until recently the city has retained most of the characteristics of the small Latin American city.

The first English shilling is believed to have been minted in 1503.

BELGRADE TO "COME BACK"

Citizens of Serbian Capital Confident Their Beloved City Will Rise From Its Ashes.

Belgrade, the capital of Serbia and Jugo-Slavia, is now a mere shell of its former self. The Serbs used to be remarkably proud of their metropolis. Did they not possess a city with first-class hotels, electric cars, a boulevard, good shops, and all other modern conveniences, not to mention a profusion of the coffee houses and gardens so dear to the heart of the Serb?

These coffee houses of Belgrade are more of an institution than the tavern ever was in London. A cupful of black coffee in a public garden, a military band playing the weird Slavic songs, and the young people dancing the old folk dances on the grass—these represent the height of contentment to the Serb after a day's work.

During the war, however, there was little coffee drunk in Belgrade, and the Serbs have forgotten how to dance. While the streets of a city are systematically shelled by the enemy, and every ablebodied man is off to war, the citizens think less of comfort and concern themselves with safety.

Belgrade was deserted, but its people, those who survived, are coming back to their wrecked homes. They are still battling with hunger, and their loved city is in chaos, but they are hopeful. As the capital of a Slav republic, Belgrade has, they believe, entered upon a new and more auspicious era of its history.

An Enlightened Age.

One day recently a young couple entered the county clerk's office in Winchester and got a marriage license, each giving their age as twenty-five years. The couple, being acquainted with the county recorder, called on him at his office and during their conversation informed him that they had just been married. The recorder, seeing the envelope in the young man's pocket, which he recognized as coming from the clerk's office, asked: "Who married you?" "Why, the man in the office at the other end of the hall," replied the young man, "and here is our certificate," producing the marriage license. The recorder informed the couple that they were not married, and at their request called a justice of the peace, who performed the ceremony for them.—New York Times.

CONNECTS FRANCE AND SPAIN

Tunnel Recently Completed Does Away With Necessity of Crossing Pyrenees Mountain Peaks.

"There are no more Pyrenees". was once an expression of high political significance in France. It is now a reality, because while all Europe was involved in the struggle to crush militarism, the engineers kept blasting away at the heart of the mountains dividing France and Spain and have constructed a tunnel that obviates the necessity of climbing 9,500 feet of mountain peaks before crossing the boundary. A railway has been installed in this tunnel which connects Puigcerda, Spain, with Ax, France. These two towns are 20 miles apart, but the railway is not that long.

By not impossible grades, it leads from the lower levels of the pass from Prades, France, to the upper valley of the Ariege, near where Puigcerda is situated. It also goes down to the valley of the great River Ebro, along which runs a system of railways and canals, making excellent connections with Saragossa and many smaller places in the heart of Spain, and with the Mediterranean port of Barcelona, Spain.

Heretofore tourists from the Mediterranean region of France have had to use a carriageway through the pass from Prades, where the railway from Perpignan ends, to Puigcerda, but the journey from the valley of the Ariege river was not so easy.

Tungsten Ores.

The production of tungsten ores in the United States in 1918, according to preliminary statistics collected by Frank L. Hess of the geological survey, was equivalent to 5,065 net tons of concentrates, carrying 60 per cent tungsten trioxide, of which 5,015 tons, valued at $5,15[illegible], were marketed or consumed by the producers, and 50 tons were reported as left on hand at the mines December 31. The output was less than that of the two previous years—1916, with 5,923 tons, valued at $12,075,400, and 1917, with 6,144 tons, valued at $6,783,400. The production in 1917 was the largest made by any country, although it was much smaller than the combined output of the British empire.

Find Shells in English Gardens.

Talking of raids, the task of the suburban gardener is likely to provide a little supplementary excitement during the next few seasons. While digging in his garden the other day a resident of Manor Park unearthed a loaded shell. During 1917 and the first few months of last year an enormous quantity of ammunition was fired by the barrage guns in the London district. An uncertain proportion of this consisted of "duds," which, when they did no material damage, were buried a few feet in the earth. It is a crop which will need careful harvesting.—London Chronicle.

Middle Aged Women

Are Here Told the Best Remedy for Their Troubles.

Fremont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared."—Mrs. M. Godden, 925 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.

North Haven, Conn.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health after everything else had failed when passing through change of life. There is nothing like it to overcome the trying symptoms."—Mrs. Florence Isella, Box 197, North Haven, Conn.

DON'T MISS POWER IN LITTLE BROTHER

AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE ONE NIGHT ONLY, MAY THE 24TH.

Owing to the tremendous success achieved by Mr. Tyrone Power, the eminent English actor, and his notable company of English artists on his first visit to this city, a few months ago, in "The Servant in the House," Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, will again present the distinguished English actor, in another of his great successes. Mr. Power will on his return visit be seen in "The Little Brother," a powerful drama of love and sacrifice, from the joint pen of Milton Goldsmith and Benedict James.

Few roles enacted on the American stage ever created the instantaneous sensation that was made by Tyrone Power's interpretation of the character of the Russian priest, in "The Little Brother," which he will present at the Grand Opera House for one night only, Monday, May 24th, for a special return engagement. It was instantly successful. He revealed the character as one of the most impressive one in his stage career. William Winter, then the dean of dramatic critics in America, and one of the ablest and most scholarly writers on things dramatic this continent has ever known, wrote of his work thus: "Stalwart in figure, pictorial in aspect, rugged in manner, broad in gesture, various in vocalism, steadily propulsive in action, he made the part surprisingly graphic. I have seen no other contemporary actor who, literating into assumed identity the surge of profound emotion and abounding enthusiasm, could have done more to vitalise the character and make it possible."

Tyrone Power today is at the height of his career and in the full plentitude of his powers, give a portrayal of the Russian priest, which is in every way stronger and more potent than his first essay. Nothing more vital of more appealing has been known in our modern stage is the verdict of all who have seen his latest impersonation of the role.

In "The Little Brother" Mr. Power will be supported by the same excellent company which appeared here in "The Servant in the House" with the addition of two new members, Mr. Robert Taber and Miss Edna Holland, daughter of the late E. M. Holland, known throughout the United States and Canada as one of the most notable artists on the stage of his day.

Her Unwelcome Visitor.

"A cat! That's what you are—a cat!"

The words hissed from Sybil Evangeline's ruby lips like the hiss of a snake, or the escape of steam from a boiler.

But her visitor never flinched. She sat there, looking at Sybil Evangeline with cold, impersonal stare.

"I hate you! I hate you!" wailed S. E., as she clenched her fists as if to strike.

Then her composure left her, and she threw herself, shrieking, on a couch. The girl's overwrought distress left the visitor as cool as an icecream barrow in mid-winter.

Though it was she who had caused all this trouble in the erstwhile happy home, she cared not. The sight of S. E.'s misery concerned her not a jot, even though it was entirely due to her unwanted visit. Hard-hearted, callous wretch that she was!

Then, with a last shriek like the wail of a siren, Sybil etc., sprang to her feet, and grabbed her visitor viciously.

"How dare you come here?" she raved. "You, with your staring green eyes and contemptuous air! How dare you—how dare you! When I wanted a dog!"

And, with a last effort, she threw the fluffy Persian straight through the door into the kitchen, when it settled down in front of the fire and began licking its whiskers.

Paris Fighting Rats.

A new conflict is on in Paris. The Paris Municipal Council has declared a war of extermination on the army of rats that threatens the city. New means have been discovered for destroying these pests, which abound since the recent flood, and it is likely that special weeks will be appointed during which an intensive campaign will be carried on against the pests.

The Pasteur Institute has discovered an efficient rat poison, a fluid, but it has not been made in sufficiently large quantities yet to cope with the danger. Before the war the municipality periodically ordered "rat hunts" and offered bonuses for the biggest catches. The hunters used to scour the city's sewers. Since the war no one has applied for a permit to hunt rats, and it is quite likely that a special brigade of rat hunters will be organized.

THE LEATHER FAMINE.

War Caused Very Serious Shortage In Boots.

The famine in leather continues as every housewife knows to her cost, when she comes to buy boots and shoes for her children at three times the pre-war price. All the hides in the world were drawn upon, and the manufactured articles melted in the mud and many war-zones like the proverbial icicles in a certain torrid climate.

At one time 200,000,000 pairs of boots were being used by the forces of all nations under arms in all lands from Ireland to the Caucasus and East Africa. France and Russia placed orders with us for 5,000,000 pairs at a time; and the Cossack high legged boot took from seven to eight feet of fine leather.

Belgium, Italy, Serbia, Portugal and Greece looked to Kettering, Northampton, and Leicester for their military footwear. The tanners of Bermondsey had a headlong time and at Marylebone Station infantry boots and Highland shoes were piled in 10-foot stacks by the acre, ready for the army inspectors.

The ever-increasing demands for meat and leather soon reduced the food animals of Europe by 40,000,000 head, notwithstanding the natural increase of these beasts. For military purposes 64,000,000 hides were needed every year, besides another 12,800,000 hides that were used in harness and saddlery, leggings, gun-slings, holsters, scabbards, and aviation suits. These last were often wholly of leather.

Never was any commodity so drawn upon and drained. The trade was goaded and urged for millions of feet of "chrome sides" for the field-service boots; for "memel" for the Russian type, "russet kips" for the Italians, and so on. Sole leather went out in lots of a thousand tons of "bends."

Government combs were run all over the world from China to the Argentine. If the war had dragged on, indeed, we civilians would surely have had to face the prospect of using something like the German paper substitute.

As it was, the looming famine in leather had very curious repercussions. Worn-out horses of the battlefield and elsewhere were drawn upon for uppers. So were the alligators of the Mississippi, whose belly and flanks were tanned in the factories of Jacksonville, in Florida. Australia drew upon her kangaroo and wallaby, tanning their hides with mimosa-bark, and producing a leather of excellent quality, flexible and strong.

Leather was even sought in the deep seas, from the hairy seal, from the white whale of Alaska, and sharks of the thresher and basker varieties. Here hustling America saw a new and profitable trade. Sharkskin factories were established in Pittsburg and Seattle, and 150 varieties of the shark were canvassed for quality of hide and paying by-products.

Sharks range from monsters of forty feet down to the spiny dogfish of the temperate seas, whereof shoals of twenty thousand have been seen at one time, and even living masses thirty miles in extent.

Besides the hides, there are "side-lines" in the new shark trade—gelatine and glue, oil, chicken-food, and fertilizers. But sole leather for boots and shoes is always a difficulty. The great hide of a whale is durable enough, pliable, and tough, yet as a foundation for winter footgear it cannot equal the familiar kind that we know.

And as for the elephant, rhino, hippo, and buffalo, of these beasts here are comparatively few. Meanwhile, the cheery cobbler at his last watches all these substitutes of land and sea. And he counters every claim with the triumphant statement, "There's nothing like leather"—the kind we have always known, and shall know again in the reconstructed world of peace.

Constantinople News.

A little paper consisting of four pages is appearing on six days of the week in Constantinople, steadily holding its own against all difficulties, not the least of which is, that it is an English paper, and as the compositors are not English and have only a slight idea of the English language, if technical mistakes are made it can scarcely be wondered at. This little paper is the Orient News, started in June of last year by its founder, Mr. H. Collison Owen, who was for three years editor of the Balkan News in Salonika, which was purely an army newspaper. The Orient News is more cosmopolitan, and is widely read by all races in this most cosmopolitan of all capitals. It is not only circulating among the Greeks, Armenians, Jews, and the Turkish men, but is also finding its way into the secluded homes of the Turkish women, where this daily interest is becoming more and more appreciated, especially as there is a great movement toward learning the English language. The present editor is Mr. J. D. Cairk, the son of an English clergyman, and two of his staff are young women living in Constantinople, educated at the Robert College, the American institution on the Bosphorus, where not only English, but French, German, Spanish, Greek, and Turkish are taught.

SPORTING NOTES

The Machine Gun lineup for the game against the C.G.E. tomorrow afternoon will be: Goal, Flowers; backs, Crowe and Perry; half backs, N. Metcalfe, McLeish and Darling; forwards, Payne, Fraser, W. Bell, E. Bell, H. Darlings; reserves, Roberts and Metcalfe.

The M. G. C. are hoping to inflict the first defeat on the crack C.G.E. team tomorrow, and if they are able to do this they will thereby put the C. G. E. in the position of being tie for first place with the Caledonians, and the effect of last night's victory will be lost. The M. G. C. gave the Caledonians quite a scare in their encounter with that team, and there is a possible chance that the Edisons will not find it very easy going tomorrow, in any event.

The Great War Veterans' Baseball team announce their lineup for the game tomorrow against the C.G.E. as follows: Pitchers Wade and Rose, catcher, Morse; 1st base, Corrin; 2nd base, Murphy; ss. Anderson, 3rd base, Foley; outfield, Fields, Legon, Campbell and Jackson. It is not known at present just what the arrangement of the outfield will be and this will not be decided until tomorrow afternoon on the field. Neither is it yet decided whether Wade or Rose will open the game for the Veterans.

The Thistles will appear on the diamond exactly the same as last week with the exception that there will be a substitute on second base for Butcher, who is out of town, and Scates, the young twirler from the Examiner office, will pitch a few innings.

The lineup of the Canadian Woollens team will not be very different from last Saturday's game. The main change will be that Johnson will start the game this time instead of finishing it. The following will be the positions of the players tomorrow: Burgoyne, catcher; Johnson, pitcher; Legros, 1st base; Coughlin, 2nd; Mulhall, ss.; Russell 3rd; Heenan, lf.; Shaw, cf.; Gilchrist, rf.; Smith and Kennedy, substitutes.

All the fun will not be taking place at the Exhibition grounds on Monday. It has been announced that the Canadian Woollens will play a team from the Hinde and Dauch factory of Toronto at the Oval on that date. This game should be interesting, not only on account of the fact that it is the first game of the season with an outside team, but is because the Toronto aggregation will be managed by an old Peterborough boy, W. Parnell. Parnell used to play for Peterborough in the old Midland League and will be remembered by baseball fans in this city.

Making Rugs "Antique."

How "genuine antique rugs" are manufactured and prepared for European and American markets is told by an American who visited Bagdad.

The shopping streets seem like tunnels. They are arched overhead with brick to keep out the heat; thus they run, like subways, up and down the bazaar quarter. Through those long, stifling, faintly lighted tunnels throngs the eternal crowd of men, mules and camels.

Often one will see a fine rug lying flat in the filth of a narrow street, ground beneath the tramp of men and beasts, but there is method in this. Foreigners make Oriental rugs, bright and new, in Persia, and sell them through Bagdad. Since an 'old rug' is worth more, wily brokers have hit on this way to make a new rug look old.

Plane That Is All Wing.

A system of airplane construction which is being developed and particularly adapted to large craft appears on its face not only interesting but plausible and practical, provided the location of the weight is not detrimental, says a report by J. H. Colwell, published in the Journal of the Patent Office Society. Broadly stated, the system comprises a hollow plane merged into the fusilage so that the large trussed wing spars, the engine housings and fuel tanks, as well as the pilot, are enclosed within the lifting surface itself. The centre of the plane between the upper and lower walls is deep, while the wings taper to small depths toward the tips. The entire machine, including the pilot's car, is practically a part of the lighting surface, thereby necessitating comparatively few external wind-resisting parts.

THE J. C. TURNBULL COMPANY LIMITED

TO CANADIAN SCHOOL FOLK

His Worship the Mayor of Halifax, J. S. Parker, has addressed the attached letter to the pupils of the schools of Canada:

To Canadian School Children:

Dear Future Citizens,—Our interest is centered in you because in a few years you will be the people to make laws, govern the city and help the new boys and girls to protect themselves and others from harm.

Your city belongs to you; to stone its birds and kill or mutilate its animals is only fun for the moment, and spoils forever the animal, person or thing you injure.

The burnt match thrown carelessly often has heat enough to catch light material. Trees which take twenty years to grow stand black and ugly because of somebody's carelessness.

The fisherman's fire is a joy, but before going home, burn all old papers and see that the fire itself is dead and cold.

The ride behind a team is fun, but the fall from the team may cripple you for life.

Your city needs all its future citizens and wants them healthy and strong and wants your help to protect the brothers, sisters and school mates.

Your friend,
J. S. PARKER,
Mayor

PROTESTS AGAINST ESTIMATES IN BULK

PREMIER DRURY PROMISES HYDRO FIGURES IN DETAIL IN FUTURE.

(By Canadian Press.)

Toronto, May 21.—Premier Drury promised H. H. Dewart, Liberal leader, at this morning's session of the Legislature that next year Hydro estimates would be presented in detail. When consideration of these estimates was concluded Mr. Dewart protested against the Government asking the House to pass them in bulk.

A bill was passed, which provides for miner operations on school children at the expense of the School Board, with a slight amendment that parents must be given two weeks' notice of intention of the operation.

MEETING OF LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

EXCELLENT REPORT BY MISS WALTON ON OBJECTIONABLE PRINTED MATTER.

A very interesting meeting of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday in the Green room of the Y.W.C.A. Mrs. Harstone, the president, was in the chair.

Miss Walton, convenor of the Committee on Objectionable Printed Matter, gave a very excellent report and said that her committee hoped to meet a somewhat similar committee of the Board of Trade in an endeavor to improve the character of moving picture plays.

A letter was read from the Chautauqua's management stating that they would be in Peterborough this year from August 9 to 14th.

Miss Lancaster read a very interesting paper on "Citizenship," in which she reviewed the historical development of representative government.

Mr. Wearing also addressed the meeting, speaking on the "Income Tax," and paying special attention to the points of particular interest to women.

"ENLIGHTEN THY DAUGHTER" COMING

MOVIE AT GRAND WHICH WILL OFFER FORCEFUL LESSON.

There comes to the Grand Opera House next week a motion picture production that will not only act as a forceful lesson to all people, but one which embraces a beautiful drama, intensely interesting and vitally gripping. It is the moral epic, "Enlighten Thy Daughter." A private showing was given, attended by prominent Toronto leaders and at the conclusion the comments were greatly in praise of the moral in the story. Dr Margaret Patterson, health convener, Dominion Federation of Women's Institutes of Canada, spoke very highly as did also Dr. Young, secretary of health education Dominion Council, Y.W.C.A. Mrs. Alderman L. A. Hamilton was another and their remarks were endorsed by Mrs. A. M. Huestis.

Two Hearts that Beat as One.

David Holmes, the Canadian who is said to be the proud possessor of two hearts which work together in perfect harmony, is only one of many men whose physical equipment defies every recognised rule, and who are a sore puzzle to the cleverest of doctors.

It is not long since we were reading of a man, named Lewis, whose heart emits musical sounds clearly audible across a large room.

The music, it is said, resembles that of a calliope in miniature, the notes being metallic and sweet. Lewis is a Pole, who some years ago was exiled to Siberia for a petty offence, and was wounded while trying to make his escape. The weapon pierced his chest, grazing his heart and converting it in some mysterious way into a musical affair, which for many years has been the wonder of the medical world.

Almost more remarkable is a well-known New Yorker who plays fast and loose with the laws of gravity, in a manner that would be quite incredible if it were not vouched for by the chief scientists in America and on the continent.

When this wonderful man steps on the weighing machine his weight grows at will to 200,400, 600, and as high as 800 pounds, although he is a slight man whose apparent weight cannot be more than 120 pounds. Similarly, he can reduce his weight until it falls to that of a boy of ten.

If he is agreeable, a man of average strength can pick him up and raise him in the air as lightly as if he were a schoolboy. At another moment half a dozen strong men cannot raise him an inch from the ground.

When he holds a pole in a vertical position between the palms of his hands a dozen athletes hanging on to it and pulling their hardest cannot make it touch the ground; and a mob of strong men, exerting their utmost strength, cannot push him off the edge of a platform.

He himself is quite unable to explain his remarkable physical peculiarity. All he knows is that it is increasing daily in power, and he quaintly thinks that the law of gravitation will require some amendment as the logical outcome of it.

The Travels of the Chinese Egg.

That China exported, in 1918, some 5,664,000 more fresh eggs than in 1917 is an interesting indication of the growing cosmopolitanism of the China egg, not, to be sure, the deceptive and indestructible china egg that human ingenuity invented to fool the hen, but the real China egg laid in a Chinese hen yard and gathered, one likes to imagine, by the Chinese farmer's daughter. To the average Canadian, China, no doubt, still seems a long way to go for an egg; but an expert has been devoting hours, and, very likely, days in Tientsin to studying the egg-producing industry of that district; and he reveals the Chinese egg as a great traveler. Originally the eggs traveled without their shells, for the dried egg entered into international commerce some time before the fresh egg first started on what might fairly be called its individual journey. As the industry began with an equipment of trays and drums for drying the eggs, which imparted also a metallic content to the product, the earlier stages of the business were handicapped by its methods, and Chinese ingenuity must needs invent a method of blowing an egg into a heated chamber in a fine spray, which was transformed into powder that contained nothing but egg. So nowadays a continuous procession of egg shells is emptied, and millions of pounds of dried egg are produced for exportation to foreign cooks, bakers, and confectioners. Exportation of fresh eggs followed, and during the war the proportion of fresh eggs increased, and that of dried eggs diminished. And now, before long, the real China egg will travel frozen, for the first steamer with a cold-storage equipment for eggs will presently be voyaging between Tientsin and Vancouver.

Avoiding the Handshake.

One of the penalties of royalty is the handshake. It has become the modern equivalent in a democracy of the sword tap upon the shoulder which in early days marked kingly approval. Australians have been so harrowed by the stories of the Prince of Wales' anguish as he progressed through Canada that one of the first decisions of the committee appointed to organize the arrangements for the first stage in the prince's visit to Australia decided that a bow or some other form of gracious greeting should be substituted for the handshake wherever large numbers of people were present.

ANTI-SUICIDE SIGNS IN JAPAN

Near Kobe, Japan, is a "Stop. Look! Listen!" sign at a railroad crossing that has saved 160 known lives within the last six months, according to a verifiable record, these being the lives of that many who had gone to this particular railroad crossing to commit suicide. The big signboard is placed where it is expressly for those intending to take their own lives, this particular junction of highway and railroad track being one of the popular spots for the people of Kobe and vicinity to end their earthly existence by either jumping in the nearby sea or lying down on the rails and waiting for the express.

Suicide in Japan is as much a matter of fashion as the color of a sash or the shape of a man's hat, and different places and different methods are the mode from time to time. At one time the lifesick folks of Tokio used to climb to the eleventh story of the only twelve-story tower in the city, that in Asakusa Park, and dash themselves to Nirvana by jumping over the balcony railing.

The authorities ended that by enclosing the eleventh, story balcony and windows with wire netting. The ninth, tenth and twelfth stories were left open for suicides, but were never taken advantage of. Without an eleventh story to jump from people didn't jump.

Railroad Favorite Death Spot.

For a time prospective death seekers climbed to the balcony of the Kiyomizu Temple, in Koyoto, and switch calling for more wire netting, and then the favorite spot sought was the edge of the beautiful waterfall of Kegon, at Nikko, and a police guard had to be established.

Recently people from central Japan have been giving the railroad track at Suma, a suburb of Kobe, their first choice as the place wherein to say their final sayonara, this spot offering an exit by either water or grinding locomotive wheel, and it is noticeable that the majority of those who die a self-sought death at this place are educated well-to-do people, of a class similar to the many who at one time used to toil to the slope of the Asama volcano to throw themselves over the lip of the crater into the leaping lava.

The growing importance of Suma as a shortcut out of life came to the attention of a social welfare worker of Kobe, a Mrs. Jo, head-worker of the Women's Welfare Association, to whom came the idea of making a final appeal to would-be suicides by posting a conspicuous notice, urging that existence be given one more trial.

"Stop a Moment."

The notice, which is posted with the sanction and approval of the authorities, says in big Chinese and Japanese characters:

"Stop a Moment!"

"If you feel that there are reasons why you must take your life, please go to see Mrs. Jo. at the Woman's Welfare Association, just below the Kamitsutsui terminus of the Kobe car line."

This sign was put up a year ago with an electric light over it to make it prominent by night. At first it failed to appeal, but about six months ago the first woman planning suicide whom it turned from her purpose came to Mrs. Jo. in response to the invitation and poured out her tale of an arrant husband. The woman was kept at the home and the husband telegraphed to, a reconciliation and a promise to reform resulting. Since that time 160 men, women and youths have sought Mrs. Jo. in answer to her "Stop a Moment" suggestion.

While Suma still has its suicides, the number has dropped to less than 30 per cent. of its former record, an indication that the 160 who have reported are not the only ones the sign has saved.

A PEOPLE'S PARTY

Mr. Burnham Says Budget Has Given It Birth.

J. H. Burnham, member for West Peterborough, an admittedly strong Conservative and protectionist of former years, declared in the House last night that he was willing to sacrifice much to perpetuate the Unionist party. But he wanted it to change its name. He suggested "People's party," and he claimed that the Budget policy had given it birth.

People's Party Born.

"Here is a new and a great policy and a great party that has discarded for once its old partisan name in order that it may impress all forms of thought; in order that it may offend no one, but may secure without any invidiousness the support of every man who thinks well of the proposals laid down before him," he declared.

CAN. EMPLOYMENT SERVICE

The employment service of the Department of Labor reports that returns from the Dominion and Provincial offices of the employment service of Canada for the week ending May 1st show a decrease in placements as compared with the returns for the preceding week. The offices reported that they had made 9,510 references to regular positions and that 7,972 placements were affected. This is a decrease of 717 placements as compared with the returns for the preceding week when 8,689 placements were reported. The decrease is due chiefly to the closing of the offices operated by the Dominion Department of Labor in the Maritime Provinces and which have not yet been reopened by the Provincial Governments concerned in conformity with the arrangement prevailing in all other provinces. In addition 1,964 casual jobs were supplied as compared with 1,774 during the week ended April 24. This is the largest casual placement yet reported and is due no doubt to demands incident upon the annual municipal clean-up campaigns and the usual spring housecleaning and moving.

During the week 9,650 applicants were registered, of whom 8,781 were men and 889 were women. This represents a decrease of 1,414 as compared with the 11,064 applications of the previous week. The number of vacancies notified by employers totalled 11,120, of which 9,533 were for men and 1,587 were for women. This represents an increase of 190 when compared with the preceding week. Of the placements in regular employment 7,417 were men and 555 were women. The number of ex-service men reported as placed was 2,801.

Of the placements in regular employment, 59 were reported by Nova Scotia offices, all within the province, as compared with 177 the preceding week; 58 by New Brunswick offices, all within the province, as compared with 516 during the preceding week. Quebec offices reported 560 placements, 549 within the province and 11 in other provinces, as compared with a total of 640 during the previous week. The placements reported by Ontario offices totalled 2,575, of which 2,529 were within the province and 46 in other provinces, as compared with a total of 2,560 during the previous week. Placements were reported by Western Provinces as follows 1,396 by Manitoba office, 1,163 within the province and 233 in other provinces, as compared with a total of 1,558 during the preceding week; 923 by Saskatchewan offices, of which 912 were within the province and 11 in other provinces, as compared with a total of 894 during the week previous; 1,057 by Alberta offices, 1,051 within the province and 6 in other provinces, as compared with a total of 940 during the preceding week. British Columbia offices reported 1,364 placements, 1,339 within the province and 25 in other provinces, as compared with a total of 1,333 during the week ended April 24th.

A DARK SPOT ON HUNTER STREET

Hunter street, west of Belmont avenue, is a section of the city where some sort of illumination at night should be furnished. There is no electric light whatever here, and the street is much travelled by citizens of both sexes. Peterborough is a clean, well-ordered city, but nevertheless no opportunity for molestation should be offered evil-minded people—and what city has not such, transient or resident—for the sake of street lighting?

WATER LEVEL LOW

Montreal, May 20.—The water level in the Montreal harbor is abnormally low at the present time the depth of water in the channel being 22 feet 9 inches and at the McGill street sills the depth is 17 feet 4 inches. These figures are four feet below those of this day last year, and more than a foot below those of the low level of other years.

His Double

By OTILLIA FRANCES PFEIFFER

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

Two men stood facing one another, each dripping wet. One was dressed in the height of style and was the owner of an automobile standing in the road a few hundred feet distant. The other, while respectably attired, showed no evidence of wealth. He was half dragging, half supporting the other. Now the latter braced up somewhat. He had fallen into a deep quarry pit while seeking to secure some rare flowers growing near to its edge, and the other, a casual passerby, had leaped in and rescued the imperiled adventurer as he was sinking for the third time.

For the first moment the two stood full face to face. There was a start, a stare, a void of stupefaction in either countenance and for the space of half a minute the two men regarded one another mutely.

"I say!" abruptly burst forth the better dressed man, "we look near enough alike to be brothers!"

"That dawns upon me forcibly," less animatedly responded the other.

"Come," spoke the rescued one impetuously, "you have risked your life to save mine. It is a debt I can never repay. Get into the auto and we can reach Mayville inside of thirty minutes."

The other drew back. "I do not care to go to Mayville," he said with a seriousness and decision that had a tinge of mystery to it.

"Then Brocton lies ten miles in the other direction. Don't dally—we are both wet and chilled through. When we get back to normal we want to know each other more fully. I am Adrian Purcell."

"And I Roy Dyson," said the rescuer. "I don't want you to make anything extraordinary of my trying to see if I still know how to swim."

"That won't go!" spoke Purcell with warmth. "I'm not likely to soon forget you."

"I'm not much to remember," smiled Dyson glumly, and with some bitterness as though life's awards meant very little to him. He seemed anxious to get on his way alone, resenting gratitude and patronage on the part of the other. He, however, reluctantly got into the machine and Purcell taking the wheel they soon reached Brocton. As they were shown to a room in the hotel Purcell gave the attendant a variety of orders.

"There is no mistake about our resembling one another, is there, now?" he said. "I look a trifle older than you, but we are the same build and height and we tally even as to facial expression. Tell me something about yourself, won't you?"

But Dyson was averse to giving much of his life history. As to Purcell, he was a young man of fortune who insisted that he owed his life to Dyson and wanted to adjust the score in some way. Purcell was so insistent as to this feature that Dyson finally said:

"Since you will have it that you wish to do something for me, I might suggest—"

"Just name it and command me."

"Very well, then; two years ago I left Mayville with the promise to the girl I loved, Mary Smith, that I would go out in the world to try and better my fortune. I returned last night and visited the village. I overheard some people gossiping. Mary Smith had married a year ago and is now Mrs. Mary Bartley, and not six months since I received from her a letter protesting her undying love for me."

"That was indeed a hard blow," said Purcell, genuinely sympathetic.

"I at once turned my back on the town, never to return to it. Now I have met you, we look alike. Because of pride, because I wish to punish the perfidy of Mary Smith, it would be an immense satisfaction to me to have you go to Mayville, register as myself, play my part, boast, overawe the town with your automobile and fine attire and great wealth. Flit at the end of a week, leaving the town persuaded that I have indeed made good, and Mary Smith with a bitter knowledge of what she has missed."

"I declare!" smiled Purcell. "That is an original proposition. Good! It's a bargain. I'll play the part if you will remain here until I return."

Two evenings later Dyson was aroused from a reverie by the unexpected appearance of Purcell.

"You're to go to Mayville," he announced.

"What's that?" demanded Dyson sharply.

"Yes. Say, I played my part grandly, and then yesterday I learned that Mary Smith was coming to see me at the hotel and I bolted."

"You mean Mary Bartley," suggested Dyson.

"I don't," dissented Purcell with vigor. "I mean your own and only Mary Smith. Why, man, I learn that your lady love has pined and waited and would still wait if you haven't a dollar. The Mary Smith who became Mrs. Bartley was a new arrival at the town. Now then, I'm going to disappear and you forget me, but first I'm going to stake you for a few thousands, and be happy in feeling that I have done something for the brave, self-sacrificing fellow who risked his life to save my own."

In vain Roy Dyson demurred, but Purcell was determined. The next day the former went back to Mayville and —Mary.

GOT HER SOLDIER HUSBAND

Lonely Widow Made Application and Government Employment Bureau Did the Rest.

There's a job for the returned soldier which few of us thought of, the job of being a husband. At least, we never thought of it as one of those jobs which could be listed among the "help wanted." This is what happened at one of the New York city United States employment bureaus.

Gordon Sawyer, the government employment agent picked a pink, lilac-scented letter off the top of his mail. He opened it and read:

"My husband died some time ago. I have a small income, a town home and a country place, but I am lonesome. Having read that so many soldiers are out of work, I have concluded that there would be nothing better for me to do than to take for my husband a man who has fought for his country. Can you send a worthy soldier to me?"

"This may be a joke," said Mr. Sawyer. "It sounds too good to be true. But it is worth a trial."

Ten minutes later a goodlooking young soldier walked into the office. "I am looking for a job," he said. "I'm a carpenter."

"Married?" asked Mr. Sawyer.

"Nope," replied Private J.

"Read this letter, investigate the job and report to me."

Just as Mr. Sawyer was closing his office the telephone rang. "This is Private J.," said the voice. "Thanks for that letter. I got the job."

TURNED VESSEL INTO SHOP

Ingenious Idea Appreciated by the Sailors of the British Grand Fleet Stationed at Scapa Flow.

One of the secrets of the war was revealed recently when a party went down to the Victoria docks, London, to inspect the Wilson liner Borodino. This ship was chartered in the early days of the war by the Junior Army and Navy Stores for the purpose of supplying the sailors of the grand fleet with comforts and luxuries that they would otherwise have had to do without. One of the sea lords at the beginning of the war, when the grand fleet was keeping its vigil in Scapa flow, recognized that the officers and men needed something to relieve the dullness of existence while waiting for the German fleet to come out.

The suggestion was adopted, and the Borodino turned into a most effective shop. Almost anything could be bought on board, while there was a fine laundry with a weekly collection and delivery, and a barber's shop. Five thousand dollars a week was taken by the sale of goods, including penny bars of chocolate, greatly favored by young midshipmen. The latest in fancy soaps, shaving creams, new books, the finest chocolates, and an abundance of fresh meat, fish and vegetables helped to make life more bearable in the cold and dismal surroundings of Scapa.

RECALLS OLD ROME

Ancient Coin of Surpassing Historic Interest.

Two Thousand Years Since It Came From the Mint, What a Story of Adventures This Token Could Tell!

A coin 2,000 years old, which may have reposed in the treasure box of a Roman senator, passed from hand to hand in the dice games of members of the Roman imperial guard, been tossed to the rabble by a patrician as he passed through the streets on his way to the baths, or thrown to a victorious gladiator by one of the vestal virgins, now is in the possession of Arthur S. Hibler, United States immigrant inspector at New Orleans. On its way to Mexico, where it was obtained by its present owner, the coin may have been carried as a keepsake by one of the Spanish conquerors and exchanged for the gold and jewels of the Aztecs. Two thousand years afford ample time to pass through a few adventures.

The coin is valued by Mr. Hibler, not only for its age, but for the queer history attached to his gaining possession of it. While he claims he is not superstitious, he admits he regards the coin as a good luck talisman. The piece was sold to him by a Mexican, who wished to cross the border at Brownsville, Tex., and had not enough money for his toll. To pay his way across the international bridge he offered the coin with several others to Mr. Hibler, asserting that it had a strange significance and a blessing attached to it. It had been given him, he said, by the mother of a member of Villa's band, who had been murdered in a cafe brawl. As he lay dying, he had begged the man to take a handkerchief, stained with his life blood, to his mother. The Mexican had sworn to fulfill the trust, and delivered the handkerchief to the old woman. She opened the corner of the handkerchief, which was knotted tightly, and took out several coins. Then she retired into an inner room and, returned, placed a small silvery disk in the messenger's hand, saying it was a talisman that would mean much to its possessor.

The coin is small and white, resembling a modern United States dime in size and color. On its front is a relief of a Roman emperor, with the inscription: "Domitian VIII, Imp. Caesar," and several other characters which are indistinguishable. On the reverse side is what seems to be a reproduction of the temple erected in Jerusalem by Solomon. It is worn thin by the touch of the millions of hands in which it must have rested.

"I have no doubt that it is genuine," Mr. Hibler said. "But how did it come into the possession of the Villista bandit? Well—quien sabe?"

The Tale of an Egg.

Frank Lafferty, a captain of police at Muncie, once answered a call late at night from a restaurant whose owner asked that a drunken man be taken from the place.

"It was the strangest case of intoxication I ever dealt with," said Lafferty, relating the experience. "In the restaurant I found sitting on a high stool at the counter an elderly man who was weeping into his plate containing the remnants of what evidently had been a hard boiled egg.

"'What's the matter?' I asked the soggy individual and he answered between choking sobs 'I weep to think that by this act of cruelty in devouring this egg I have deprived some poor innocent chicken of the right of being born!'

"And do you know," Lafferty continued "the only way we could comfort the poor fellow and get him out of there was to tell him it was not that kind of an egg."—Indianapolis News.

German Black List in Peru.

Publications in Peru do not believe in soon forgetting the intrigue of Germany or letting the Hun go unpunished. Newspapers there carry a complete list of merchants who showed anything like a friendly disposition to Germany throughout the war. It is known as the "Official Allied Black List." The boycott of these merchants includes trade with any of the employees of the firms. The notice at the top of the list includes this warning:

> "Any transaction with an employee of a firm on this list is naturally the same as a transaction with the firm in its own name and will have the same consequences."

Wedding Bells.

A diversion was created at my wedding which has caused many a laugh since. Just as the minister was saying, "Dearly beloved," etc., the fire alarm sounded in the hose house across the street, upsetting the solemnity of the occasion and causing a ripple of laughter among the guests. A dear sentimental auntie, who is slightly deaf, said after the ceremony, "Oh I thought it was so sweet to have the chimes while the service was being read."—Chicago Tribune.

HAD A RECORD APPETITE

Child of Eight Devours Entire Raw Cod, Two Pounds of Candles and Several of Butter.

"Eccentricities of Diet and Their Effect on the Digestion" was the subject of a lecture delivered at the Institute of Hygiene by Dr. Saltau Fenwick. The physician mentioned people who can never eat enough; who have an insatiable hunger. In appearance they are lean, feeble, ill-favored, and they have carnivorous appetites. However much they eat they are none the better for it.

One little girl of eight had a special keeper to prevent her from eating the household goods. She would cheerfully devour seven times as much as any other member of the family, and escaping from her attendant one day for a few minutes enjoyed a meal beginning with an entire raw cod, two pounds of kitchen candles and several pounds of butter. She was fortunately found before she got further than these hors d'oeuvres.

A girl was locked in a little walled garden for two or three hours. During that time she ate every leaf she could lay hands on, most of the small twigs on shrubs and was discovered in the act of gnawing a bough.

One boy ate the whole of his clothing. A young woman invaded a dairy, ate 29 unboiled eggs, six pounds of butter, five loaves, and drank three pints of milk and two bottles of wine; after which, providentially for the dairy keeper, she fell asleep.—London Express.

INDIAN CITIES VERY ENGLISH

In Architecture and Many Other Ways They Are Copies of Those in the Old Land.

The great presidency towns, Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, are European cities planted on Indian soil. All the prominent buildings are European, though in some of the more recent ones an endeavor has been made to adopt what is known as the "Indo-Saracenic" style of architecture. For the rest the streets are called by English names, generally the names of bygone viceroys and governors, or of the soldiers who conquered the land and quelled the mutiny—heroes whose effigies meet you at every turn. The shops are English shops, where English or Eurasian assistants traffic in English goods. English carriages and motors bowl along the macadamized or tarred roads of old England. On every hand there is evidence of the instinctive effort to reproduce, as nearly as the climate will permit, English conditions of life. In Bombay, indeed, the merchant princes are no longer Europeans but Hindus and Parsis. Theirs are the most sumptuous palaces on Malabar hill; theirs the most swagger motors on the Queen's road and the Apollo Bunder. In Calcutta, though commercial competition is less keen, the great Bengali land owner is a prominent and important personage. But few, indeed, are the points of contact between the Asian town and the European city which has been superimposed upon it.—"India and the Future," by William Archer.

Greatest Efficiency Temperature.

Human beings work at the highest point of efficiency in an average temperature of 60 to 65 degrees Fahrenheit, according to Ellsworth Huntington, who publishes in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences a mass of statistics from which he makes this deduction.

The death rate is lowest in the spring and autumn, both in Europe and America, when the temperature averages 64 or 65.

In many factories all the way from Connecticut to Florida it was found that the maximum of work was produced when the temperature in the open air ranged around 62 or 63.

The muscular force exerted by school children and working men, measured with the dynamometer every day in all seasons of the year, was greatest when the thermometer was between 60 and 65 Fahrenheit.

Bird in Need Found Friend.

A North side resident saw a robin fluttering around in his back yard with what he thought was a broken wing. Realizing that the cats would soon make short work, he caught the robin, intending to get it out of harm's way. On investigation he found that instead of a broken wing it had become entangled in a piece of string a yard or two long.

How it had done this was a mystery, unless it had been getting the string for a nest. It was wrapped around the bird's neck three or four times, around one wing several times, and its feet were tied as securely as though the hand of man had done it. A few minutes' work with the scissors soon freed the bird, and it took wing, singing as it went.—Indianapolis News.

New Member Scored.

Some of the occupants of the opposition benches in the new house of commons may not be quite conversant with all the niceties of parliamentary procedure, but they are quite capable, apparently, of holding their own all the same. Thus the other day the honorable member for Silvertown, warming to his argument, had just begun, "I want you gentlemen . . . ." when loud cries of "order" served as a reminder that he was addressing "the house." Mr. Jack Jones' apology was swift and to the point. "I am sorry," he said, "I have made a mistake in calling you gentlemen."—Christian Science Monitor.

"AVERAGE MAN" SCORES ONE

Finds Joy in Reminding Better Half That She Is Also Victim of New Tax.

The average family has been having heart to heart talks for months on how expenditures may be cut down and something of the average salary put in the bank for the annual vacation. The average man has been troubled, too, as he puffed the long, black cigar—not financially troubled, but the result of a little worrying that some day the average woman was going to get personal about their saving plan. It came the other night.

"I see, dear," she began, her sweetness adding to his growing suspicion, "that the state is about to put another tax on cigars. They'll go up some more. You know I wouldn't suggest anything that would interfere with your pleasure, but don't you think cigars are getting too much of a luxury when we are trying to save?"

The average man grunted. It gained time; it prevented sudden complications. He had had an answer ready for weeks for this inevitable question, but reasoning fled just then. He had the paper she had already read. He would find out about this tax before he answered.

And then ain't it a grand and glorious feeling?

"Very well, my dear," he said, trying to keep the neighbors from hearing the exultation in his tone. "This tax will give us both a chance to sacrifice. I'd quit my cigars if you'll give up powdering your face. You see, Sweet, the tax is on cosmetics, too."

And the average man grinned victoriously behind the newspaper.

"WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN"

If Paul Revere Had Only Had a Telephone Available in the Days of 'Seventy-five.

Somebody in the New England telephone organization has been figuring out how easily Paul Revere could have accomplished all the purposes of his famous ride on the "eighteenth of April, in 'seventy five," if he only had had telephone facilities like those available today. As the telephone man says, Revere would have been able to save himself a lot of hard riding. He could have called Concord from a public station in the North end, or Charlestown either, and had his friends of the committee of public safety on the line within eight minutes, if the operators took as much time then as they do now. And how much easier it would have been to get the powder buried and the gun carriages done away with if the Concord folk had had their warning eight minutes after the lanterns were hung aloft in the belfry arch of the Old North steeple. Only, if there had been telephones, there would have been no lanterns. They would have used the 'phone for the whole thing. And then of course a famous poem would never have been written.—Christian Science Monitor.

SEE-SAW FOOTBALL BATTLE ENDS IN C.G.E.'S FAVOR WITH SCORE 4-3

Caledonian Football Eleven Lose in Important Contest Scrimmage Results in Two Men Being Retired —Frost Recieved Bad Kick in Face but Stayed the Game out.

In a see saw battle, which was desperately waged by both sides from start to finish, the C.G.E. football team last night defeated the Caledonians by a score of 4-3. It was anybody's game right up till the last and for a long while victory for the Scotchmen seemed more than likely. The Callies were slightly handicapped by the absence of Alec Hardie, and also by the fact that Frost was under the doctor's care until four o'clock in the afternoon with a ruptured back, and was not really in a fit condition to play last night. In fact had it not been for the extreme urgency of the situation he would have been kept out of the game until he had fully recovered.

The C.G.E. had all the advantage of the elements in the first half, but these were not many as the sun was clouded and the wind very slight. Within a few minutes they had carried the ball down the field to the Callies' goal for the first counter of the game. For many minutes after this it was more or less of a see-saw battle with neither team showing any marked superiority over the other. In a scrimmage up in the vicinity of the C.G.E. goal the Callies put forth the claim that the C.G.E. goalie was well behind the goal posts when he stopped their shot, and they claimed the point. Their claim was allowed by the referee, thus tying the score. There were loud manifestations of disapproval on this decision, both by the C.G.E. players and their supporters, and even some of the Callies' fans seemed a little dubious on the point. The C.G.E. threatened to protest the game on this account.

Two Sent to the Fence.

The Callies secured another goal a few minutes later from a perfectly placed corner kick by McDonnell, headed in by McMillan, and lead from this point until well into the second half. The Callies' full backs did not seem to be up to the mark, and kicked the ball anywhere but up the field. On account of this fact the Callies' goalie, Brunton, had a hard battle at times to prevent the C.G.E. from scoring, but in most of these scrimmages he could be depended upon to be right there with the goods. In the heat of the game Bestard charged Hannah with tripping him, and struck him across the face. The other players intervened and prevented a fight, but the referee ordered both players off the field, and from this point on it was a ten-man game. While Bestard was a valuable man on the C.G.E. line-up, Hannah was badly missed from the Caledonians' forward line, and their combination work was seriously crippled as a result. Great indignation was expressed on all sides over the fact that both men were put off when only one of them had attempted to fight. If Hannah was put off for tripping the referee had other ways of dealing with that offense than by putting the player off the field.

Got Bad Kick.

Towards the end of the first half Frost, who was playing under difficulties right from the start, got badly kicked in the face, and for a few minutes it looked as if he would be forced to retire from the game. Although he stayed the game out after this he was not able to play at his best.

Playing Desperate.

Both teams entered the second half with determination to win, and from the moment the ball was kicked off playing was desperate on both sides. With the rapidity of lightning the ball passed up and down the field, and neither side was apparently able to get in much work around the goal or place a good shot until Partley placed a lovely one for the C.G.E., tying the score for the second time in the game.

A Beautiful Save.

The Callies put on a desperate effort to regain the lead, making a series of attacks on the C.G.E. goal that called for some fine work on the part of Naples to prevent the hopes of the Scotchmen from being realized. Naples made a beautiful save, but stumbled in dong so, and M. Shaw returned the ball to the goal from the right side for a counter, placing the Scotchmen once again in the lead. In this scrimmage round the C.G.E. goal Mason and Hardie fell out over some little point of the game and came to blows. Both seemed to be parties to the offense, yet the referee permitted them both to stay in the game.

Now or Never.

Realizing that for them it was a case of now or never the Edison put on a wonderful rally, and the play shifted to the other end of the field and in the vicinity of the Callies' goal. The Edisons' outside right was given a corner kick, and he placed the ball right in front of the goal. There was a desparate few seconds with the ball in that position and nearly every man except the C.G.E. goal-keeper was in the mix-up. Through the combined efforts of about eight men of the Edison's they headed the ball past Brunton for the tying counter, making the score three all and with but a few minutes of the game to play. It began to look like a draw, but the Edisons did not take long to show the fans that they were not satisfied to leave at a draw, and were out for a victory over the vaunted Scotchmen. In the mix-up around the Callies' goal previous to the tying goal, Turner was rather badly kicked, but was able to stay in the game for the remaining few minutes.

Scored by Manders.

The winning goal was scored a little later by Manders, who places a perfect shot into the corner of the goal from the right-hand side. It was no easy shot and the score brought forth loud cheers for Manders. Try as they would for the last few minutes of the game the Callies could not secure another pointer. At one time they did have an opportunity with nothing but the goalkeeper in front of them, but McDowell made a wild shot and the chance was lost.

Time was called with the C.G.E. the victors by a score of 4-3.

Most Important Game.

Looking at it from every point the game last night was the most important of the season up to the present, and it is likely that there will only be one more game that will equal it during the remainder of the season. That will be when the return match is played. The attendance was the best yet, the entire field being lined by a large number of the supporters of both teams. Excitement was intense from the moment the game commenced and feeling among the spectators ran high at all times. It is understood that the Caledonians are considering entering a protest on the grounds that Hannah had committed no offense and should not have been put off the field.

The Line-ups.

Caledonians -- Goal, Brunton, backs, J. Willshaw, R. Willshaw half-backs, R. Frost, S. McMillan, A. Duthie; centre forwards, Hannah, E Hardie, McDowell; forwards, M Shaw, J. Shaw.

GIRLS, LEARN TO SWIM

A great deal of interest is being taken in the campaign for swimmers at the Young Women's Christian Association. "Every girl a swimmer" is the slogan and the teams are doing their best to make this come true. At present Miss Helen Metherel's team is ahead, but the others are close behind. Some people do not seem to realize that they can start to learn to swim at any time. It is never necessary to wait until a new class starts. But the very best time to begin is right now.

LINE-UPS FOR THE GAME ON MONDAY

SCOTCH AND ENGLISH FOOTBALL CLUBS PREPARE FOR COMING FRAY.

Immediately after the game last night the Football Executive met to pick the teams for the international game between the Scotch and English players on Monday afternoon in connection with the 24th program of sports at the Exhibition Grounds.

While there was little difficulty in deciding upon the Scotch team owing to the scarcity of half-backs, great difficulty arose when it came to choosing the English team as there were so many players of equal value to be considered, and it was only after a great deal of careful consideration that a decision in the matter was reached. The English tem chosen covers every team in the league, even including the Caledonians and the Scotch team is also scattered all over the league, although the majority are Caledonians. On the Scotch team there are two players who recently arrived from Scotland and who have not appeared on any team up to the present.

The Line-ups.

England—Goal, W. Jones (De Laval), captain; right back, H. Mason (C.G.E.); left back, R. Willshaw (Callies); right half-back, H. Frost (Callies); centre half, J. Tridland (Can. Woollens); left half, A. Edwards (G.W.V.A.); outside r., E. Manders (C.G.E.); inside r., W. Lotston (C.G.E.); centre forward, H. Norman (G.W.V.A.); inside left, G. Hartshorn (De Laval); outside left, F. Bartley (C.G.E.); reserves, D. Perry (M.G.C.), H Jackson (Can. Woollens).

A. McKinley will referee the game and the line men will be Mr. Alec Dick of the Caledonian Club and Dick Evans of the De Laval.

OBITUARY

DANIEL BELLEGHEM.

This morning death removed a well-known and high respected citizen in the person of Daniel Belleghem in his seventy-third year. For the last forty years the late Mr. Belleghem has conducted a furniture and undertaking business on Hunter street. Of late, failing health had compelled his retirement from active participation in the business and for that reason his pleasing personality was unknown to many of the newer residents of the city. The deceased was born in Quebec City and moved to Peterborough when three years of age. He has resided here ever since. He was formerly associated in business with the late George Tanner of this city and subsequently succeeded to the business which he developed to its pretentious proportions. He was a member of the George street Methodist Church and a Liberal in politics. His fraternal affiliations included membership in the Oddfellows, the Canadian Order of Foresters, the Knight Templars, and Peterborough Lodge A.F. and A.M., of which he was a past master. The late Mr. Belleghem is survived by two daughters, Mrs. T. Herbert Prust, of Edmonton and Laura, at home; also three sons, Bert Belleghem, of the Bank of Montreal staff, Chicago, and Walter and Arthur, at home. His wife predeceased him two and a half years.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock from the family residence, 180 Hunter street, to Little Lake Cemetery. eSrvice at the house at two o'clock, conducted by the Rev. A. J. Thomas.

MR. W. H. MALOTT.

The Rev. F. E. Malott, pastor of Trinity Church, received a message yesterday that his eldest brother, Mr. W. H. Malott, had died suddenly in Dallas, Texas. For the past twenty-five years Mr. Malott had been in business in San Francisco. A few months ago he opened up a business in Dallas, Texas. He leaves a wife and one son, Lieut. Theodore Malott, who had but lately returned from France.

SEEK CONCILIATION BD. UNDER INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT

City Council Decided on This Step Last Night to Settle Strike Differences.

The City Council met last night to act to the extent of their power in an effort to bring about a settlement of the differences between the C.G.E.'s Toronto management and local strikers.

As a result of the meeting Ald. Gordon and Whitehouse fathered a bylaw authorizing the application to the Minister of Labor for the appointment of a Board of Conciliation under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act.

Ald. Gordon in introducing this measure reported the result of Council's committee's interview with Senator Nicholls in Toronto, as published last evening. In addition, he added that the municipality had an interest in the strike of C.G.E. employees being brought to a conclusion in that the company had received from this community in the way of fixed assessments and concessions, value with interest amounting to over a million dollars.

It was, he continued, in the people's interests that failing in any understanding with Senator Nicholls, that application be made to the Minister of Labor for the appointment of a Government Board of Conciliation.

Every ratepayer, Ald. Gordon declared, and business man are directly interested in the present unfortunate situation, and the people of this city have a financial interest in having this trouble ended. The trouble must be settled in such a way as to avoid recurrence for at least a period of years, as manufacturers will not locate in a city where industrial turmoil periodically arises. He believed the finding of a Board of Conciliation would be accepted by the men.

In conclusion, Ald. Gordon paid tribute to Ald. Whitehouse's attitude toward Senator Nicholls. Ald. Whitehouse he declared, was very fair and temperate in his efforts to effect an agreement with the Senator promising a settlement of differences.

Ald. Whitehouse said he found that Organizer Harper and his men were willing to deal in a fair and reasonable matter. He felt that Senator Nicholls should have given the Mayor, Ald. Gordon and himself more encouragement, but he conveyed the inference that he would accept no interference nor dictation in any way.

Ald. Whitehouse did not think Peterborough men's demands excessive, and he quoted firms in Montreal paying 80c an hour, in Brantford 75 and 80c, in Toronto 85 and 90c an hour. Ald. Whitehouse was grievously disappointed in his interview with Senator Nicholls, especially so when he considered the concession made the company by this city in the past and agreed on for the next ten years.

Mayor McIntyre considered this city had been very generous to the C.G.E. and that the men's demands were just.

MUSKRAT FARMS PAY

(By Canadian Press)

Vancouver, B.C., May 22 — Muskrat-farming is now a promising industry in British Columbia, according to reports reaching here. One of the pioneers of this industry has blocked out a "rat ranch" and is feeding several families of muskrats. He claims that within two years he will be able to get several thousand pelts.

GEORGIAN TROOPS MARCH ON BATUM PORT

(By Canadian Press)

London, May 22.—Georgian troops are reported to be marching on the Black Sea port of Batum, which has been occupied by British troops as the result of serious strikes there.

Several scattered British bands in Trans-Caucasia are reported to be threatened by the advance of Bolshevik bands.

SLAUGHTER SEA LIONS FOR LEATHR

PROPOSAL SUGGESTED BY PREMIER OLIVER OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.

(By Canadian Press.)

Prince Rupert, B.C., May 22. — Large numbers of sea-lions on the British Columbia coast which destroy annually vast quantities of food fish may be slaughtered and their hides placed on the market to reduce the world's leather shortage. The proposal, first put forward by Premier Oliver, has the approval of many experienced fishermen.

One Prince Rupert pioneer declared recently that, with three companions, he had killed seven hundred sea-lions on the Queen Charlotte Islands in two days. The sea-lions, it is said, weigh from 2,000 to 2,500 pounds. The hides are nearly an inch in thickness and make a tough and durable rough leather such as used in workmen's gloves and saddles. Fishermen declare that a sea-lion will eat fifty pounds of fish in a day.

POTATOES $7 AND $7.50 ON MARKET

PEAK OF HIGH PRICES HERE IS NOT REACHED YET.

That the peak of high prices as far as potatoes are concerned has not yet been reached in Peterborough was amply illustrated on the market this morning when prices up to $7.50 were being asked by vendors without even blushing. Apparently only one vendor had the audacity to ask the top price of $7.50 a bag but lots more were asking $7 and for eating potatoes the lowest price recorded on the market today was $6.50. Seed potatoes dropped a little lower then that, and could be obtained for $6, but they were small and were easily the culls.

Other prices were pretty much the same as last week.

WINNIPEG HOTELS ARE PROSPERING

ABSENCE OF RECEIPTS FROM LIQUOR SALES NOT AFFECTING PROFITS.

(By Canadian Press.)

Winnipeg, Man., May 22.—Absence of receipts from the sale of liquor are proving no detriment to the profits of local hotels, according to F. W. McGill, city hotel inspector, who stated today that last year's profits by hotel keepers were the largest in the history of the city, and that as a result this year will see a great improvement in local hotel service. No hotels have closed their doors during the past year and business at present is proving a record.

CHICAGO FLYER WRECKED.

None Are Reported Kileld in Mishap Near Hamilton, O.

NATION-WIDE MOVEMENT IN STATES TO FORCE DOWN HIGH LEVEL PRICES

Financial Interests Veiw With Some Satisfaction Extent of Campaign to Deflate Easts of Commodities—Little Improvement Shown in Transportation Conditions.

(By Canadian Press.)

New York, May 22. — Paramount influences of another unsettled week in the stock market embraced a more restricted credit situation, and a nation-wide movement against higher prices, freight congestion and weakness of liberty bonds on heavy liquidation.

Viewed With Satisfaction.

Financial interests viewed with some satisfaction the extent of the campaign to deflate commodity costs and local banks announced their intention to co-operate with officials of the Central Bank. Recent liquidation of securities in this market has already aided materially, it is claimed, towards restoring normal credit conditions.

Many interesting domestic developments of the week diverted attention from international affairs, including the foreign exchange markets. Reports were again current of the additional gold imports from London, but the local sterling rate, usually a barometer of such movements, was not materially altered. The only note worthy of feature in the foreign remittance record was the strength of German marks, which approximated 2½ cents as against February's low price of one cent.

Increased Discounts.

Increased discount rates ordered by the Federal Reserve Board, and the absolute lack of time funds in all principal financial centres, directed renewed attention to the scarcity of money for all but the most essential and legitimate purposes.

Transportation Conditions.

Little improvement was shown by transportation conditions, but the decision of the government to appoint an investigating Interstate Commerce Commission, with almost plenary powers, is expected to bring a speedy readjustment in that quarter.

REDS OFFENSIVE AGAINST POLES MAKING GOOD PROGRESS AGAIN

Force River Tharnista After Fierce Fighting—Several Villages Captured

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 22.—The Bolshevik offensive against the Poles along the more northerly part of their front, in the region of Beresina River, is continuing to make progress, according to Friday's official statement received by wireless today from Moscow.

Fierce Fighting.

The communique reads: "In the direction of Molodscnno, after fierce fighting, our troops forced the River Tharnitsa.

Occupy Villages.

"On the right bank of the Beresina we occupied a number of villages west and south-west of Beresina village. In the region of Borisov our troops in starting an offensive occupied several villages south and east of Borisov."

25,000 COMMUNISTS PARADE FOR BRITISH

(By Canadian Press.)

Moscow, May 22. — A body of Communist workers to the number of 25,000 was reviewed on parade yesterday by English trade union delegates who are visiting Moscow.

The review took place in a square under the walls of the Kremlin, where a hundred of Communist victims of the revolution died. Twelve thousand Communist factory workers, organized into volunteer militia regiments, fully armed and equipped, formed part of the procession.

These militia reinforcements, which drill four hours weekly, have a strength of thirty thousand in Moscow alone and exist also, it is declared, in other cities in Russia. They are expected, it is exlained, to form the nucleus of a universal system of military training through industrial organizations which will be inaugurated when the country is on a peace footing. Complete co-ordination, officials anticipate, thus will be assured between means of defence and the means of production.

TWO BLAZES YESTERDAY

Sparks Strike Roof of Peterborough Canoe Co. Bldg.

At about 4.15 p.m. yesterday fire broke out in the roof of the store house of the Peterborough Canoe Co., Water street. By the time that the department reached the scene the blaze was eating well into the roof, and it was necessary to lay a line of hose to extinguish it. There was some damage to the roof but the stock inside was not touched either by fire or water and the loss will be slight. It is thought that the fire started from sparks from the cupola of the Peter Hamilton Company.

At 2.35 p.m. a second alarm was rung in from the coal yard on the corner of Aylmer and Brock streets where a spark from a passing locomotive had ignited the roof of one of the coal sheds. Here also it was necessary to lay a line of hose as the roof was burning in a number of different places. The damage was slight, being confined to repairs to the roof.

GERMAN REPUBLIC IS DEAD

Berlin, May 22.—The German republic's first parliament went out of existence at noon yesterday, for, although its mandate is effective until the new Reichstag is convoked, it will not sit again unless summoned as a result of some great emergency.

BARNS IN SMITH GUTTED BY FIRE

ALEXANDER MacGREGOR SUFFERS SERIOUS LOSS IN BUILDINGS AND CONTENTS.

At about four o'clock yesterday afternoon the barns and outbuildings on the farm of Mr. Alex. MacGregor, 4th Line, Smith, caught fire from some unknown origin and despite the frantic efforts of the family and the neighbors, who rushed to help fight the flames, the barns were burned to the ground.

Great trouble was experienced in getting the cattle and horses out of the burning buildings, but this was accomplished without loss. A large quantity of hay and straw and also some grain were included in the loss.

The barns were of the most up-to-date pattern, having been remodelled only last year, and the loss suffered by Mr. MacGregor in the fire will be very heavy. The buildings were partly covered by insurance but the contents will be a total loss.

A hurried call was sent by telephone about 5 o'clock to the Peterborough fire department, but by that time the flames had got beyond control and the buildings were doomed. Chief Craggs therefore decided that as the fire was out of the city limits there was nothing that he could do.

The buildings were a mass of flames before the blaze was discovered, and a strong wind fanned it on so rapidly that all that was at all possible was the saving of the animals and it is fortunate that this was possible in view of the tremendous start which the fire obtained before it was discovered.

PLEDGES AID TO SLASH PRICES

U.S. MANUFACTURERS AGREE THAT PRICES MUST COME DOWN.

RESOLVE TO ACT AT ONCE

EMPLOYERS OF 6,000,000 MEN WILL MAKE WAR AGAINST HIGH PRICES.

New York, May 21.—Before adjourning its Silver Jubilee Convention in this city yesterday the National Association of Manufacturers adopted without dissent a resolution pledging its membership to fall into line in the crusade for price reduction and profit slashing.

This action places behind the movement to reduce the cost of the essentials of life an organization with a membership of 5,400 of the leading manufacturers of the United States employing 6,000,000 men and producing between 75 and 80 per cent. of the total output of manufactured products of this country. The resolution, which was one of several presented by the committee on resolutions in the afternoon session in the Waldorf-Astoria and which was adopted without change, reads:

"Whereas, The cost of living has steadily advanced during the past years; be it

"Resolved, That we are in hearty accord with all sensible efforts to reduce prices of commodities, and that to that end we urge our members to co-operate in all reasonable efforts to bring about that result."

Commenting upon this action Stephen C. Mason of Pittsburg, president of the association, said: "The real meaning of the resolution is that the members of the association believe they should take a definite stand on the reduction of prices. While it does not set any definite figures or recommend any specific percentage of reduction, it is understood that the manufacturers see the necessity of reducing prices of their various and varied products as much as conditions and costs of production will permit."

John W. Edgerton, president of the Tennessee Manufacturers' Association, said: "I believe the time has come when prices must take a downward turn, and the members of the Manufacturers' Association will not be backward in aiding to bring about these reductions. The resolution expresses this resolve."

Before the resolution was framed in its final form there was some disposition in the committee to name a specific percentage of reduction to which members should stand committed. This was not deemed to be feasible, because of the wide diversity in the classes of manufacturers represented and the widely differing conditions affecting different lines of products.

WILL NOT HANDLE HEARST PAPERS

SASKATCHEWAN NEWS STORES PASS UP ANTI-BRITISH PUBLICATIONS.

Saskatoon, May 22.—An [illegible] news store, owned by L. J. Taylor, advertises that in the future it will not handle the Hearst publications. Mr. Taylor, in his published statement, says in part: "As a British subject I cannot continue to support a firm who are conducting an anti-British and anti-Canadian campaign throughout the United States. If the individual dealers will act there will be no need of approaching the Dominion Government to suppress these publications."

The Saskatoon Phoenix announces that it will refuse advertising for the Hearst publications, and the Regina Leader has taken a similar stand. The Phoenix states that a Saskatoon book store withdrew from its stock the Hearst publications and gave notice that it would not handle them in the future.

LIFTS SIEGE STATE IN GERMAN TOWNS

Berlin, May 22. — President Ebert has issued a proclamation raising the State of Siege in Berlin, Brandenburg and the remainder of Germany, wherever it was in force, excepting the districts of Duesseldorf, East Prussia, Silesia nd the Province of Saxony. Decision regarding these localities relative to return to civil jurisdiction will be reached in a few days.

PLANS OF HOUSING COMMISSION

By an advertisement appearing in another column of this paper yesterday, and which will be repeated next week, it will be seen that the Housing Commission is inviting offers from people who hold available property to sell the same to the commission for the purpose of use on which to erect dwellings. There is within the city limits ample property for the purpose; but it must be remembered that to make it available the price must be such as a workingman can afford to pay.

It is a truism that a good lot is never dear. Many a poor house has been sold on the basis that the lot was eligible. Plenty of moderately good houses have lacked purchasers because the lot on which the building stood was a poor one. Poor in the sense of its juxtaposition to other buildings that had been erected after the house had been built. So, in moderation, a good lot is worth considering, if at all within the limit that the prospective owner can afford to pay.

It will be noticed that preference will be given to properties located on streets served now with the usual public utilities—sewers, water, sidewalks, gas, etc. This to avoid so far as possible the expense to the city of putting down additional services such as would be necessary on streets not already equipped. From the offers received a selection will be made and consideration given to availability, price, etc. It will be conceded that there is a limit over which the workingman cannot afford to go in providing a lot, and this will be considered in making selections.

It has been the rule to define frontages, in Peterborough, principally on the basis of a 50-foot frontage. The Housing Act calls for a minimum of 35 feet, except in exceptional cases, such as if a piece of property could be available of, say, 30 feet fronage. The idea being to have light, sunshine and room at and about the house.

While the offers for properties are coming in, the commission, having procured plans and profiles and general lines of dwellings will consider and select two or three types for construction, say houses of four rooms, five rooms and six rooms. In all these, the hall and bathroom do not count as being rooms. So a house of four rooms will have, if the plan be selected, hall and bathroom in addition to living room, kitchen and two bedrooms, with necessary closets. The same thing applies to the other plans. It is true that what people term a plain, commonsense house can be built. Such a plan is easily devised. But the endeavor will be made to get a variety and to introduce while not necessarily expensive changes inside and outside that will make the dwellings attractive. The basic idea is to get the prospective owner into his house at as moderate a capital cost to him as possible. To do this certain things may be considered.

It is rapidly becoming a question as to whether heating a house of small size is, or cannot be, capably done with stoves instead of a furnace. Still, to put a furnace into a house after it is finished is inconvenient. So that all houses will be built with the warm air ducts placed in the walls at time of construction, and carried down to the cellar ready to be attached to the furnace, together with the proper gratings in the baseboards or floors. Before taking the house the buyer can elect and have a furnace or not, as he prefers. If he decide on the furnace it will be put in, and the cost added to the sale price.

This might make to the buyer, at present prices, a difference of immediate expenditure of nearly $200.00. The sanitary requirements call for wash basin and closet in the bathroom. The bathtub may be omitted temporarily, but the attachments must be provided. Leaving out the tub would make a difference that could be considered. In the same way the cement floor in the cellar could be dispensed with for the time being, to be added afterwards at pleasure. Or the house can be completed and the costs charged in the sale price.

It is not imperative that brick should be used, though at present prices of materials brick is no more costly than wooden outside covering. But there is the stucco form of building that is little appreciated in Peterborough. Many houses have been built at Sault Ste. Marie of stucco. The winter weather there is equally as severe as in this district, and yet these houses have given very good satisfaction. When applied properly and on a metal lath the covering is permanent. There is, of course, the usual cement foundation.

Plans and specifications are in preparation and so soon as these are approved tenders will be called for on which to consider the building. Contractors will be invited to undertake the buildings of groups of houses of one or more of the forms as indicated. It is thus hoped to get a concrete view of the situation so far as cost is concerned and based on the cost a decision will be made whether to go on and build or to let the project stand. Houses are needed and necessary. But it is not imperative that any excessive cost be met in order to be able to say that we have built.

While all respect the feeling of sentiment that is voiced in the remonstrances against the use of the King Edward Park property, there is the practical side of the question. And that is what appealed to members of the Council. Could it have been made use of, twenty-two dwellings could have been erected without any cost to the city at large for sidewalks, sewers, water or gas. All these conveniences are there. Then, it is almost a certainty that at some time in the future the Exhibition Park will be taken in by the city for park purposes. If that be done, ther is little use for two parks close together. This thought was also in the mind of the Council. And, best of all, instead of taking say $20,000 of the money to be raised by the sale of the debentures to buy lots, the cash could have been used to erect seven more houses, the avails from the sales of the park lots to come back to the City Trust in due course. However, the matter is settled by the statute in such cases made and provided.

PLENTY OF SUGAR NOW.

NOT LONG AGO we were warned of a serious world shortage of sugar, and given figures to show just to what extent that shortage would reach before this year was out. Yesterday another story came over the wires emphaticaly declaring, as the result of investigation, that there is abundance of sugar, but that it is held up by speculators, and this is undoubtedly the true version of the high-price sugar situation.

The Review a few issues back contended that sugar could to a large extent be dispensed with, and advocated the buying of as little as possible in an endeavor to force prices down. An old saying is that we must fight satan with his own fire, and that is the one effective weapon with which to fight high prices. If speculators hoard supplies to inflate prices, then let the consumers curtail their consumption to deflate prices. For once a high price policy is established, even a normal demand will set those prices inflating. In the case of sugar, for instance, women themselves have to a large extent encouraged high prices. Anticipating higher charges, they have bought and hoarded sugar and then bought again and again for present consumption, on the repeated announcement that the commodity would be scarce. And, of course, prices have climbed, the consumers simply playing into dishonest speculators' hands. Let those who have hoarded sugar unload for their own consumption and cease buying for a while and let people generally cut down their consumption of sugar, together with all commodities in which it is used, to the lowest possible level, and prices of sugar will soon come tumbling down.

This principle of declining to purchase that which, even if it be at a sacrifice of comfort and convenience, can be done without, will have an effect on all commodities. It is being applied in Europe with promising effect; this what might be termed a strike against high prices in the United States has, in many food lines, according to yesterday's despatches, tumbled prices from off their high level. Canada is in the same boat; let Canadians pull with the seme oars, and they'll reach a similar port.

A minister of the gospel is reported to have declared in a sermon the other day that the world now is made up of liars and grafters. Strong language, this, but one is constrained to suspect that reason for its application is found in the case of sugar. This commodity was advertised as scarce and world short, and plausible reasons given therefor. Now, however, it seems the irrefutable discovery is made that the United States alone has on hand, contracted for and available 500,000 tons in excess of its consumption last year. A few more discoveries of this nature in other lines, not at all improbable, according to the trend of things, and we shall have reason to put considerable faith in our reverend friend's declaration as to prevaricators and grafters, not so general, perhaps, as he would have us believe, but of sufficient magnitude to constitute a menace to the rank and file of humanity.

THE LIFE OF PASTEUR.

AN EMINENT reviewer of the scientific discoveries of Pasteur says that his work has from the first been appreciated at its full value by those connected with science in the British Empire, but his name has been little known to the general public, and the enormous value of his discoveries has not been recognised. The signs and amptoms of many diseases were well known to the ancient Greek and Roman phsicians, and they through minute observation became very skilled in prognosis, but of the real cause of disease they knew nothing. Pasteur was the first to show beyond dispute that fermentation was the direct result of the presence in the fermenting liquid of minute living bodies. This in itself was no mean achievement, but it led to results of much greater importance; for Pasteur showed that the terrible silkworm disease, which had caused the loss of millions of francs to the silk-growing districts, was due to a germ, and by his investigations he was able to point out a way by which the disease might be abolished; this was done, and prosperity returned to the district.

His next work was the study of anthrax, a disease which in many parts of France killed more than a quarter of the sheep an deattle; occasionally it attacks man, and then is known as wool-sorter's disease.

Pasteur investigated this disease and showed that the germ which had previousl been seen in affected animals was the cause of the affection, and, still more, he discovered how animals could be rendered immune to the attack of the germ. This was an enormous triumph, and its effects were far-reaching, for it saved many thousands of sheep and cattle every year. Several other maladies occupied the attention of the great investigator, but his work on hydrophobia was unknown, and, though he was unable to find in affected animals any germ that might be supposed to cause the disease, yet he was able to devise a procedure by which persons bitten by rabid animals could be inoculated, with the result that the disease did not develop. This was possible because of the long period that often intervenes between the inficiton of the bite and the appearance of the symptoms; so that it may be possible to carry the inoculations through before the disease has time to develop. Thus a real cure has been found for a hitherto incurable disease, and the only condition is that too long an interval must not have elapsed between the infliction of the bite and the commencement of the teratment.

WORLD WILL STAND AGHAST.

THERE IS EVERY REASON to hope that the Soviet regime in Russia is drawing to an end and that Bolshevism will have soon received its death blow. There is also very little room to doubt that after intercourse with Russia has been restored, and its inward history the past few years revealed without any concealing subterfuge whatver, the world will stand aghast at the the story unfolded.

From what can be gleaned from comparatively isolated Russia, Bolshevism therein is losing whatever hold it had on the populace. Its promised Eldorado: where every man was to be as good as his neighbor and all equally share in the country's wealth and resources, has failed to materialize. For in tyranny, oppression, absolutism, violence, robbery and sudden death Lenine, Trotsky and their crew have put any Czar of all the Russias to blush. Instead of a land flowing with milk and honey and freedom, as promised by Bolshevik leaders, Russia the past two and a half years has been a land of blood and legalized crime unprecedented in this world's history.

The Montreal Star says very truly: "The average Russian has settled down more or less to the old life he lived under Czarism, with differences such as shortage of food, and compulsory work—the outcome of the Bolshevik experiment—which do not tel in his favor. The people's commissioners are fanatical on two points—work and discipline. They are clever enough to realize that without these two they cannot pay the great armies that are keeping the enmy out of Russia and maintaining themselves in power. Idleness has become a more serious crime on the calendar than homicide and to strike is to invite a visit from the Red Guards who are more bloodthirsty in their methods than the old police."

Lenine and his crew of cut-throats hoped for the spread of Bolshevism throughout all Europe and even to this side of the Atlantic. But, thank goodness, that hope has so far been a forlorn one. And, while under conditions which become unbearable to the masses, Bolshevism or Communism might raise its head even in Canada, we cannot conceive of Canadians interpreting its principles as propounded and practised in Russia. But it is up to our statesmen and leaders in Canada's affairs to see to it that no opportunity is offered for an attempted domination of Bolshevism or Communism because of social conditions which breed discontent and anarchy. And it is up to the people in return to industriously apply themselves to the development of Canada's resources, and to respond as generously as possible to the need for greater production, that our country may increase in prosperity and hold its honored place in the world's opinion won by Canadin sacrifice overseas and at home during the war.

TALK ON DEVONSHIRE HOUSE.

IT IS INTERESTING to speculate on the feelings of the beautiful Georgiana, Duchess of Devonshire, if she were to know that Devonshire House had fallen into the rude hands of the movie magnates, comments the Sun and New York Herald. That almost divine self satisfaction, immortalised by Gainsborough, would have been hard put to it to maintain its complacency in the face of such a fact.

Not that Georgiana was a hidebound Conservative, but her reform measures were more temperate than those of the present day. For a hundred and fifty years Devonshire House has served its country as the great rendezvous of Whig statesmen, and now in its old age it must yield before the onslaughts of the cinama. If it had been some royal pavilion erected to satisfy the caprice of a favorite, the disappearance of Devonshire House would scarcel have merited a word of comment. But as the stronghold of a singularly liberal-minded aristocracy its passing into the hands of the housewreckers and eventual transformation into a picture palace is infinitely more regrettable.

The time has passed when any aristocracy, whether liberal or bigoted, can afford to live in London and keep up its country estates as well. Devonshire House has resigned in favor of the multitude; and we can only wonder whether the movie fans will take the same intrest in the affairs of England as their titled predecessors have taken.

One by One They Go.

Another of New York's famous restaurants will put up its shutters and go out of business the end of this month. It is Mouquin's restaurant, for two decades one of the best known eating places in the old Tenderloin district. "Mon dieu," sadly remarked the proprietor yesterday; "life is just one d——d funeral announcement after another." The picturesque old wooden structure on Sixth avenue, near Twenty-eighth street, which is one of New York's oldest landmarks, will be razed for a skyscraper. It was built more than one hundred years ago by Isaac Varian and stood in the center of Varian farm, whose rambling fields and pastures stretched west to the river and to the east as far as Lexington avenue. Through this pastoral landscape wound a couple of cowpaths. These paths are there yet. One is known as Broadway and the other as Sixth avenue. When Isaac Varian died the farm was sold. A public road was cut through the place and it passed directly in front of the old house. A line of stage coaches operated over this road, and what is now Mouquin's restaurant used to be the first stop after leaving Bowling Green.

A MOTHER'S ADVICE

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she is always happy to recommend them to others. Her advice, given after a careful trial, can be readily followed with assured good results. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach. They always do good—they cannot possibly do harm even to the youngest babe. Concerning them Mrs. P. Laforest, St. Nazaire, Que., writes:—"For three months my baby was constipated and cried continually. On the advice of a friend I gave him Baby's Own Tablets and now at the age of five months he is perfectly well and weighs twenty pounds. I am delighted to be able to advise other mothers to use them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Ministry of Mirth.

An ex-member of the London county council, the Rev. H. B. Chapman, vicar of that quaint relic of old London, the Savoy chapel, unroomed in a backwater of the Strand, has emerged into print, in the columns of the Morning Post, on the great amusement question. Mr. Chapman is convinced that all is not well in the theatrical state of England, and there are many who agree with him. Still he is no mere iconoclast. He has his remedy. It is a very simple one—a ministry of mirth, headed by an ideal chief, and established without delay. But then Mr. Chapman admits that he is an "incorrigible optimist." Perhaps Mr. Chapman might add to the gayety of nations by editing a new edition of the works of Demokritos of Abdera, the Laughing Philosopher, unless, as is quite possible, and not without reason, he regards Demokritos as the first of pessimists.

For Home Gardeners.

Home food production will continue because it has been found worth while, is the prediction made in "The War Garden Victorious," a history of the war garden movement in the United States which has just been issued. The book, which gives a complete record of the campaign, declares that "there is no question that the cultivators of our war gardens, now become victory gardens, will continue their labors." The volume is not for sale but is being sent to libraries, garden committees and others interested in keeping a permanent record of this work. The author is Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the National War Garden commission, with whose compliments the book is distributed.

Ventriloquist's Fun.

"Please let me down easy, mister," came a deep voice, apparently from the casket, as Andrew J. Wilson, a negro employed by a Long Beach, Cal., transfer company, was engaged, with another workman, in unloading at a freight station there a coffin containing a body that had been shipped to Long Beach for burial from a town in the middle West.

Wilson was just letting his end of the box down, with about two feet to go. He let it fall the two feet with a bang, and with a flying start he sprinted down the street.

Police Sergeant Clyde Allen of Long Beach, who was standing near the scene with a ventriloquist friend, vouches for the story.

The Kindly Heart

By JESSIE E. SHERWIN

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"There goes a fine woman, Martin. She'd make a good wife for somebody."

Saul Espy and Martin Bross were conversing when the lady designated by the former passed down the road. Martin looked after her with a certain fond and longing expression in his eyes, but he sighed deeply.

"Yes, she's a very superior lady," he acceded. "I have often thought how she would grace and deserve a pleasant home, but good fortune has not come her way. She just manages to eke out a living for herself and her little child, Winifred. As to myself, you know father left the property here only, and that is badly mortgaged."

"Queer about that, Martin. You know your father certainly had some money and securities before he died, for I borrowed and paid him $3,000 on a mortgage."

"Well, towards the last he acted very strangely, as you know, and seems to have lost what he had."

Saul Espy passed on his way and Martin entered the ramshackly old house where he had been born. It had been a lonely home to him. His mother had died when he was a child and at twenty-two he had found himself saddled with a badly run-down little farm, heavily encumbered. His nearest neighbor Mrs. Mary Reeves, a widow and her little child [illegible] about all the company he had or [illegible]. Mrs. Reeves was about his own age and they had been [illegible] friends.

Martin went into the house to prepare [illegible] listen and [illegible]. A whirring sound directed him to a corner of the kitchen where a mouse caught in a trap was speeding round and round in the tread mill wheel attached to the [illegible].

"Most people would drown you, little fellow," observed Martin taking up the cage and eyeing indulgently the sleek little frightened captive within, "but I haven't the heart to. There you are, now run for it."

The kindly Martin carried the trap to the open doorway and shook out the tiny prisoner, which at once scampered for cover. There was a slight scream and Mrs. Reeves stood ten feet away shaking her finger playfully.

"Is that the way you greet a neighbor bent on bringing you a fresh pan of biscuits?" she cried.

"Why, are you that timid?" smiled Martin, taking the mild scolding genially. "It was the smallest mouse possible and if you had looked into its innocent, pleading eyes as I did you would have let it go, too."

"To come back into the house and bother you again," retorted Mrs. Reeves. "Well, I suppose you can't help being tender-hearted. It's the talk of the town that you sat up nursing old Carlo two nights before he died?"

"What! neglect the faithful guardian of the home, almost as old as myself?" spoke Martin stanchly. "As to the mouse tribe, Mrs. Reeves, one night when I was playing my flute two of them came creeping cautiously across the floor and stood there almost human until I ceased playing."

Martin accepted the covered dish proffered. "Wait until I get a cake of honey for you," he said, and as Mrs. Reeves departed he stood gazing after her with a quickened gleam in his eyes.

He stopped outside his pretty neighbor's gate the next morning and nodded cheerily to Mrs. Reeves and little Winifred. "I shall be gone all day and over night at Riverton," he said. "I wonder if you would take the key to the house and step over and feed my [illegible]."

"And let out any stray mouse there may be in the trap?" intimated Mrs. Reeves, with twinkling eyes.

"Yes, that too, if you please," replied Martin.

He got back home the next afternoon to find a desultory crowd viewing a heap of ruins.

"It burned down yesterday," lisped little Winifred, "and mama says you are to come over to our house till you build a new one."

"It was your friends the mice who are accountable for the fire," the widow declared. "When I went into the house I found a box of matches scattered all around. I gathered up all I could, but the mice probably carried some away to their nests and ignited them.

"Did you ever see that before, Mr. Bross?" She had led the way to the sitting room. There lying on the floor was a blackened old tin box.

"Why!" exclaimed Martin, "It's the old bread box that my father used to keep his papers in. I haven't seen it since he died."

"No, for he had it hidden away in in the attic and I found it among the ashes after the fire. Mr. Bross, the only one I've told is your lawyer. It's full of gold. He says it must be the missing fortune your father hid away and it holds over five thousand dollars in gold and silver."

"Then the mice have proven my best friends!" cried Martin, roused out of himself. He gazed raptly at the widow. His eyes sparkled. Then he picked up little Winifred and kissed her.

"Mrs. Reeves," he said, "when I build my new house I want you to promise to let this sweet little friend come to live with me."

"Oh, dear! I should miss her—"

"And you with her," added Martin with yearning eyes.

Where Nails Are Hand-Made.

It seems a pity that Catshill, a pretty Worcestershire village which supplies Birmingham with strawberries and market garden produce should have revived its nail-working industry. Thirty years ago the villagers were famous at the craft. Then the Belgians flooded the market with cheap machine-made nails. Catshill was "ruined," and has since taken profitably to rural pursuits.

Owing to the present high price of nails, the cottage forges have been relighted and some of the old nailers are making as much as £6 and £8 a week. But they are bound to be frozen out again. Trade is not to be reconstructed with hand-made nails.

Taxes Force Duke to Sell Land.

Britain's war taxes continue to force many of her nobility to sell parts of their great estates. One of the greatest of these, which recently has passed under the auctioneer's hammer, is that of the Duke of Rutland, which is known as Belvoir. The duke owns about 60,000 acres, of which he is selling about 12,000 acres, located in the best part of the Lincolnshire hunting district. He explained at a public meeting that the sale was made necessary by the increasing burden of taxation resulting from the war.

Goadby Hall, one of the duke's properties, of 230 acres, was sold privately in advance of the public sale, and 100 tenants have bought from the duke the farms he had rented to them.

Earl Manver's estate, known as Holme Pierrepont, at Radcliffe-on-Trent, has been sold at auction for $233,425. It cover 320 acres.

It is reported that part of the estate of the Earl of Londesborough, comprising Raincliffe Woods and Racecourse, has been bought by a Scarborough financier.

Will Thorne.

There can be no question that Will Thorne, the Labor member in the British Parliament for West Ham, is a workingman, in the most orthodox sense of that much misused term. There can be no question, moreover, that Will Thorne, through all his years of public life, has stood staunchly for the rights of the workingman. When, therefore, Will Thorne gives his opinion on labor issues, he is entitled to be listened to. Discussing the question of a miners' strike in order to enforce nationalization, the other day, he declared emphatically against any such expedient. "Personally," declared the member for West Ham, "I think a strike would be a foolish and suicidal policy; the easier and the simpler way is to bring about nationalization by political efforts. The working classes in all parts of the country have tremendous political power in their hands, and if they have got the will, they certainly have got the power to bring it about through parlamentary effort."

He Surrendered.

His Wife (reading newspaper)—"Just think of it! A couple got married a few days ago after a courtship which lasted fifty years."

Her Husband—"I suppose the poor old man was too feeble to hold out any longer."

THEATRICAL

FINEST STAGE PORTRAIT EVER

"THE LITTLE BROTHER" BY TYRONE POWER AT GRAND MONDAY.

The presentation of "The Servant in the House," with the eminent English actor, Mr. Tyrone Power, created such an impression on the patrons of the Grand Opera House a few months ago that Trans-Canada Theatres Limited will again present the distinguished English actor in another of his great successes "The Little Brother," a powerful drama of love and sacrifice, by Milton Goldsmith and Benedict James.

There is a general consensus of critical opinion that Tyrone Power has seldom, if ever, achieved a finer stage portrait than he does as the Little Brother in the drama of that name, which Trans-Canada Theatres Limited will present at the Grand Opera House for one night only on Monday, May 24th, as a special return engagement. Mr. Power has played this role in many big dramatic centres of population throughout the United States and Canada, and everywhere it has been received as a remarkable and impressive piece of acting. The story is one of exceptional interest. Two brothers, sons of Jewish parents in a Polish town, are separated in childhood during a pogrom. One, brought up by Christians, becomes a priest of the Russian church, the other, educated by his kinsmen, becomes a Jewish rabbi. Many years later the two meet under dramatic circumstances in New York. The daughter of the rabbi and the ward of the priest have fallen in love. Both priest and rabbi are equally determined to prevent such a marriage, which both regard as impossible, though from very different motives. Love, however, proves stronger than religious prejudices, and the two marry. Moreover, they are happy in their married life, and their union is blessed with a son. Later the rabbi becomes reconciled with his daughter but the priest, bitter as ever in his religious fanaticism, endeavors though in vain, to persuade the girl to give up her son, because of the disaster which he thinks he foresees when the time comes to determine the child's religious faith.

Later on the priest and the rabbi learn that they are brothers. In a scene fraught with tremendous dramatic atmosphere, the priest realizes that he who has been known as "the Scourge of God," and who has looked upon himself as the bitterest opponent of the Jewish faith, is a Jew born. Herein lies a notable lesson in religious tolerance; it is driven home with intense effect, with the priest realising that love is stronger than any creed and that every faith has its own work before God.

Mr. Power, whose interpretation of the role of the priest is admittedly a dramatic tour-de-force, will be supported by the same excellent company which appeared here in "The Servant in the House," only in "The Little Brother" two new members will be seen, Mr. Robert Taber and Miss Holland, the gifted daughter of the late E. M. Holland known and beloved throughout the United States and Canada.

NANCE O'NEIL IN PASSION FLOWER

A REMARKABLE SPANISH DRAMA BILLED FOR GRAND THEATRE.

"The Passion Flower," the remarkable Spanish drama by Jacinto Benavente, in which Nance O'Neil has found her most congenial role, is the first play from the Spanish to attain the distinction of classification among the "best plays of the season" in the Broadway charts. It also won the further distinction of being one of the most successful, the production having been removed from its first theatre because of lack of seating capacity for the applicants among the discerning play-goers who were eager to witness the remarkable performance of this remarkable play.

The author, the foremost playright in Spain, was dubious about the presentation of his masterpiece in the United States. It had been written for Maria Guererro, the foremost emotional actress of Spain, and had won a great success through her presentation. The Spanish people believe Guererro to be the greatest emotional actress in the world and they were sceptical about the ability of any American actress to give sufficient power to the great character of Raimunda. Nance O'Neil was chosen for the role because it was believed that she, more than any other actress upon the American stage, could do it full justice. The wisdom of this choice has been amply justified by the press and public approval, but the great compliment came to Miss O'Neil from the author himself, who, after being advised of her presentation and the power of her characterization through his special representatives at the premiere in New York, cabled his congratulations and salutations.

Miss O'Neil opens her next season's work in San Francisco after producing a motion picture of the play in Los Angeles late in the summer and, in order to hold the original company intact until that time, is playing a short summer season through Canada during the early months. "The Passion Flower" with the entire metropolitan production and cast will be seen at the Grand on Saturday night, May 29th.

Conscript the Ocean.

If wind and stream can run mills, why not the ocean factories? A recent fresh-water shortage in Wales caused an enterprising firm of steel manufacturers, whose industry depended largely on the precious liquid to turn their eyes seawards. They succeeded in "harnessing" the sea very effectually. Pipes linked up the beach with the factory—a distance of two hundred yards, and by means of a specially-devised system of pumps fifty thousand to sixty thousand gallons of water were thus obtained daily. This experiment has now become a permanent institution.

Turning from science to humor, the sea can be utilized in other ways. It can even on occasions boil an egg. The accommodating Gulf Stream renders the British Isles almost immune from the frigid temperature which, but for its presence, would doubtless be our portion, is so hot in places that water drawn up from its depths records a temperature of one hundred degrees above zero.

In the Gulf of Mexico, recent travelers have asserted that the stream caused an almost unbearable heat, and a humorist tried the experiment of cooking his breakfast in the sea, with excellent results. His egg was cooked to a turn.

A Scotch Expression.

Very few people who use the expression "Ca' canny" have any idea what it means, or for the matter of that, how it is pronounced. A writer in Ways and Means suggests "caw" as the nearest approach to the sound of the Scottish "ca'" which stands for call—in this instance having nothing to do with calling a halt, but referring to action, not speech, such for instance as turning a skipping rope or working a pump handle. Thus, if we take pumping as an illustration, the phrase "Ca' canny" would mean to work cautiously, not to pump so vigorously that the water is slopped over and wasted; the man pumping is asked not to squander his time by doing his job badly. It is noted as a curious fact that a Scottish phrase embodying nothing but good sound ideas should have been deviated on the south side of the border to uses based on an economic fallacy.

Opinions and visits should never be forced upon people.

There are but a few unhappy marriages. The unhappiness comes later on.

VINDICATING THE SENATE.

Better Element in United States Is Not Silent.

In the Boston Transcript recently in a conspicuous position is a large advertisement by an association called "The Loyal Coalition." Under the title, "How Long is the United States to Remain a Dependency of the Alleged Sinn Fein Republic?" it says.

"In March, 1919, news cables from abroad reported how Sean O'Ceallaigh, introducing himself at Paris as the 'Foreign Minister of the Irish Republic,' served notice on the Peace Conference that unless his Government was awarded official recognition he would have the American Congress repudiate the peace settlement. At the time this pronouncement at [illegible] the appearances of an idle boast [illegible] the echo and execution on the [illegible] of the Atlantic were soon [illegible] coming.

"When the United States Senate assembled in the summer of 1919 one of their first actions, despite the great number of American problems demanding immediate and concentrated attention, was the passage of the offensive Irish resolution in effect proffering sweeping and impertinent advice respecting a difficult and delicate phase of the domestic affairs of a friendly power, Great Britain.

"This was the signal for the surrender of American Government to the alien Sinn Fein invasion, and since that time a wave of [illegible] has swept across the land, [illegible] ing and manipulating by threats where possible, and by intimidation when necessary, public officials, legislatures, civic bodies and individual citizens innumerable. The climax was reached the middle of March, 1920, when the Senate of the United States, still apparently mindful of Sean O'Ceallaigh's dictum, passed the Irish reservation to the Treaty of Peace, and when the Mayor of Boston at a St. Patrick's Day banquet gave endorsement to this campaign for the disruption of friendly relations with the British people.

"Immediately thereafter, viewing with elation the deadlock in the United States Senate, imperilling the peace of the world, and discrediting the prestige of the United States in matters of foreign policy, Eamon De Valera cabled home a joyful message that his mission had been 'fulfilled' and asking that Te Deums be sung all over the benighted land in a spirit of thankfulness for the [illegible] of victories.

"To-day, of all the great nations America stands alone as a victim of Sinn Fein domination."

The facts of the Senate resolution are as above stated, and many United States newspapers and public men have contrasted the restrained patient view taken of them in England with what would be the attitude of the United States were some foreign legislative body to pass resolutions on some similar American problem. In Washington legislative circles foreign policy is regarded as merely a [illegible] of domestic politics, and the significance of the resolutions may easily be exaggerated. They were passed through fear of the Sinn Fein element in the United States, with the expectation that they would be understood abroad as merely something required for political purposes at home.

ANAEMIA ROBS ITS VICTIMS BY STEALTH

Conditions of Thin Blood That Could be Corrected Easily Are Stealing the Health and Energy of Many Men and Women, and Boys and Girls.

Anaemia, which literally means bloodlessness, is one of the most prevalent troubles of the present day. If neglected it is apt to develop into pernicious anaemia, one of the most hopeless diseases. While anaemia attacks men and boys, it is more prevalent among young girls and women and for this reason every woman, particularly every mother, should know how to recognize the signs of this trouble which makes its approach so gradually and so stealthily that it is often far advanced before the nature of the trouble is noticed. One general symptom of anaemia is pallor. The cheeks gradually lose their color, and the lips become pale or white. With this loss of color there come a tendency to fatigue, palpitation of the heart and breathlessness after slight exertion, with occasional headaches. In the more severe cases fainting spells frequently occur.

In ordinary anaemic conditions, including the anaemia that effect young girls in their 'teens, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are all the medicine required. Fresh air, sunlight and nourishing food will do the rest. Any woman or girl taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can tell by the growing redness of her lips that the pills are making her blood rich and red.

Miss Mabel Feener, Liverpool, N.S., says:—"Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I felt like a complete wreck of my former self. My blood was thin and watery; I suffered from faint and dizzy spells, and had headaches almost every day. I was taking doctor's medicine, but it was not helping me and at this time I was learning my trade as a tailoress, and was forced through my illness to give up work. After reading an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills one day I decided to give the pills a trial. After taking two boxes I felt that I was being benefited, and continued their use until I was fully restored to health. The pills certainly did wonders for me and I cannot recommend them too highly."

The purpose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is to build up the blood. They do this one thing and they do it well. They are for this reason an invaluable remedy in diseases arising from bad or deficient blood, as rheumatism, neuralgia, after-effects of the grip and fevers. The pills are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any harmful drug, and cannot injure the most delicate system. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

His Death Expected

New Brunswick Man Saved

Mr. Isidore Thomas, of Tilley's Road, Gloucester County, N.B., while expecting death, availed himself of help that was offered at random. Here is part of a letter he wrote to us:—

"I beg you to publish my letter, so that people may know what Gin Pills did for me. My case was very serious. I was so sick everybody expected my death any day. Finally, on advice from friends, I tried Gin Pills, and in a short time was well again, and soon had gained 20 pounds."

Kidney and bladder troubles, very often, work in secret ways. A bad condition may exist, with only a backache to indicate it. That is why the slightest pains in back or sides should be investigated. These pains, along with sciatic neuralgia, rheumatism, dizziness, constipation, lassitude, lumbago, highly-colored urine, headache, floating specks before the eyes, gravel, indicate kidney trouble. A course of Gin Pills, taken at once, will give relief, and prevent the progress of the disease, enabling the organs to right themselves and restore good health. Gin Pills are the sure, safe, quick remedy. Get a box from your druggist or dealer—50c. Money refunded if no relief found. Send for free sample.

Sky Law.

There is a law for the land. Why not a law for the air? Various suggestions have been put forward for aerial trade routes, postal and passenger routes, etc., and with traffic on the increase, jurisdiction may shortly be necessary.

Collisions and accidents will have to be reckoned with, and compensation duly provided for unfortunate travelers. The comfort and security of land dwellers will have to be looked after, and the law of trespass safeguarded. This latter will be a difficult one to define, but it is safe to assume that certain air spaces will be "roped off," so far as the general air traffic is concerned.

As it becomes customary to travel by air, freight and passenger charges may possibly be regulated by Act of Parliament. Our [illegible] will have to be safeguarded from robbery, [illegible] age, and other crimes [illegible] certain aviators' complete [illegible] over the aerial region, what [illegible] prevent [illegible] laying the highway [illegible] and or so feet from terra firma?

Traveling In Argentina.

Even if one has [illegible] traveling in [illegible] commercially or not [illegible] pleasure of seeing the country, information regarding [illegible] of such an adventure [illegible] a showing [illegible] in South America [illegible] think in [illegible] doubt, that a [illegible] equivalent of 43 [illegible] expenditure for one day [illegible] sustenance is $6.50, with perhaps a dollar more for extras. But this must be a modest commercial traveler conscientiously keeping down his expenses, for it seems easy to argue that the dignity of the firm demands that its representative put up at Hotel A, which cost $5.89 a day, instead of Hotel E, which contents itself with $6.45. Hotels B, C, and D offer hospitality at rates between these extremes; and even Hotel A does not include a bath for its 23 pesos. One may, indeed, take a room at the hotel and eat at a restaurant, in which case the minimum rate at the hotel will range from 5 to 20 pesos. And the commercial traveler who goes without breakfast may lunch and dine outside his caravanserai for $2.57, if he cuts out the extras. So it was in January, but perhaps it will be wise for the prospective traveler to add a peso or two to his totals in case the high cost of living in Argentina has gone up a peg since. For Canadians visiting Argentina in company with their wives expenses will ordinarily be more than double. A commercial traveler may economise, but not a gentleman accompanied by his wife.

Lady Day.

Lady Day, which falls on March 25, first got the name from the fact that it was then that the Angel Gabriel brought the tidings concerning the incarnation of Christ to the Virgin Mary.

"The day of the Annunciation of Our Lady the Virgin Mary," as it was formerly known, is an important one in the Roman Catholic Church, inasmuch as it is on that day that the festival is celebrated in commemoration of the Annunciation. And, although March 25 is now known as "Annunciation," it latterly became known also as "Lady Day." "Old Lady Day," however, was on April 7.

The Jews, by the way, likewise give the name "Annunciation" to a part of the ceremony of the Passover.

Lady Day is also well known on account of the fact that it is one of the four quarter-days of England and Ireland—the other three being Midsummer, June 24; Michaelmas, September 29; and Christmas—for the payment and reception of rents, etc.

FRIENDS NOTICE A BIG CHANGE IN HER

"I FEEL STRONGER THAN I EVER DID," SAYS TORONTO WOMAN—TANLAC PROVES PROVES MERIT.

Still another highly esteemed Toronto woman relates her remarkable experience with Tanlac. This time it is Mrs. A. G. Blissengen, residing at 215 Jarvis street.

"My friends, who used to sympathize with me on account of my ill-health, are now congratulating me on how healthy and well I look," said Mrs. Blissengen recently. "Tanlac surely must be the grandest medicine in the world. At the time I began taking it I weighed only one hundred and twenty-four pounds, and now I weigh one hundred and sixty-six.

"About two years ago I began suffering from what is commonly called a general run-down condition. My appetite left me and my stomach was so weak and upset that I could not eat a thing without feeling nauseated afterwards. In spite of all I could do I kept losing weight. I felt tired out all the time and finally got so weak I simply had to stop trying to do my housework. I went to the country, but after spending some time there I came back home feeling as bad as ever, if not worse. Then I tried more medicine, but it seemed that the harder I tried to get well the worse I got.

"Passing by a drug store one day I happened to notice the Tanlac display in the window, so I went in and bought a bottle, and the first two or three doses helped me. Soon my appetite had a new start, and my indigestion began to lose its grip. By the time my first bottle was gone I was sleeping better and felt more rested and refreshed on getting up in the mornings. Then I bought another, which made such a great difference in my condition that I purchased another and so on until now I am like an entirely different person. My appetite is so keen that I can hardly eat enough to satisfy me and every sign of indigestion has left me. I am actually weighing thirty-one pounds more than I did even when my trouble started two years ago. I am feeling stronger than I ever did and have never felt finer in my life. Tanlac has given me such excellent health and I feel so grateful for it that I can't help but think of others who need it like I did and I wish I could tell them personally about it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by The Warne Drug Co., and by the leading druggists in every town.

BIRD TRAGEDIES.

Strange Stories Told by English Nature Observers.

Capt. Ross Smith, hero of the first flight to Australia, had many curious adventures on the way, but none more strange than that which happened as he rose from the racecourse at Calcutta. There were a number of hawks circling round, and one actually struck the propeller. No damage was done to the propeller, but pieces of hawk hung on to the machine during the whole of that day's journey.

All sorts of curious tragedies happen in the bird world. At Watford a sparrow was found hanging dead outside its nest. It had managed to strangle itself with a horse-hair which it was using in building the nest.

On Finsbury Park Lake a goose was deliberately murdered by a pair of swans. The goose had taken refuge on the stone embankment, out of reach of the swans, but at nightfall it tried to regain its nest. The swans fell upon the poor creature, and literally tore it to pieces.

This calls to mind an extraordinary incident which the contributor once saw in St. James' Park, London. A big gull was standing near the lake, and a girl was throwing bits of bread to it, but the bird stood still, paying no attention.

A sparrow came hopping towards the crumbs, when suddenly the gull came to life. With an amazingly rapid swoop he threw himself on the sparrow, knocked it over with one blow of the beak, and—swallowed it.

A most mysterious thing happened at Pwllheli, in Wales, on a spring day some years ago. The residents found part of the harbor full of dead birds. Some were floating, some dead on the beach.

They were all found within a circumference of three hundred yards, and there were many hundreds of the poor little corpses. It is true that there is a lighthouse at the Gimlet Rock, but the dead birds were not found close under the lighthouse, where they would have fallen had they beaten themselves to death against the glass.

The Word "Dun."

It is said that the word dun, whose meaning is known to every one, was first used about the beginning of the nineteenth century. A constable in England named John Dun was celebrated as a first-class collector of bad debts. When others failed to collect a bad account, Dun would be sure to get it out of the debtor. It soon passed into a current phase that when one owed money and did not pay when asked, he would have to be "dunned." Hence, grew the expression: "You will have to dun so and so if you wish to collect your money." And the word became incorporated into the English language as a verb, much the same as boycott was derived from a man of that name.

Chats About Books and Their Authors

As this will conclude the series of talks on books, it may be as well to answer a question which has sometimes been asked, namely, why more attention has not been paid in them to new books. The answer is not hard to give. Present-day literature is being reviewed in hundreds of magazines and periodicals and it is the fault of the public if it does not make itself acquainted with the criticisms of the day. These articles have not aimed at criticising any book. The object has been to bring before the reader a literature of a bygone day in order to show how much we are losing in letting it slip away from our memories. The literature of the last generation was, on the whole, on a much higher plane than the literature of the present. People took more time to think and the result was a maximum body with a minimum of froth. If anything were needed to confirm this statement it is to be found in the judgments of eminent writers themselves. Five years ago a round-robin from a well-known American periodical was sent to various authors asking them for their opinions on the six best novels in the language. It will be seen from the sum of their joint lists how many novels of the present day figured in their judgment.

Here are the books:

"Robinson Crusoe," "Westward Ho," "Vanity Fair," "Ivanhoe," "Lorna Doone," "David Copperfield," "Tom Jones," "Scarlet Letter," "Tristram Shandy," "Old Wives' Tale," "Man of Property," "Adam Bede," "Anna Karenina," "Pendennis," "Old Curiosity Shop," "Pickwick Papers," "Kipps," "Tono-Bungay," "Under Western Eyes," "Oliver Twist," "Moll Flanders," "Roxana," "Pamela," "Clarissa Harlowe," "Sir Charles Grandison," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Cloister and the Hearth," "Scarlet Letter," "Last Days of Pompeii," "Ben Hur," "Sentimental Tommy," "Peter Ibbetson," "Way of all Flesh," "March Hares," "Guarded Flame," "When Valmond Came to Pontiac," "Rob Roy," "John Inglesant," "Wreckers," "Barchester Towers," "Moonstone."

Out of that list there are just eight books written by authors now living. Where present-day literature has made a real advance is probably in the line of travel and adventure. Improved modes of locomotion have made the remotest corners of the world more or less accessible to travellers, and the result is seen in the flood of really fine tales of adventure that are offered to the public.

Mention has already been made in this section of a book entitled "Small-talk at Wreyland." The Saturday Review said of it on its appearance that it was worth a dozen of the silly volumes which now flood the book market. Its chief charm lies in the unexpected turns that succeeding pages take. There is no sustained narrative but it is full of quaint anecdotes and bits of archaeological lore and glimpses of old-world life and character. Its intensely English atmosphere should make it a favorite with all who love the mother land or claim it as their birthplace. Not the least interesting part of the book is that which refers to superstitions which are still rife in quiet rural villages and hamlets. It may be a shock to many enlightened minds to be told that a belief in witchcraft is prevalent in many places in England. From my own personal experience I know that it is also alive in certain out-of-the-way corners of Canada. It is a survival, of course, of the beliefs current in the old country which were brought over by immigrants in years gone by. Several years ago, I was living in the Muskoka district which had been thrown open only a few years before to settlement. The country was wild and rugged and a considerable proportion of those early settlers fitted in well with their surroundings. One day, when out hunting, I chanced on a small shanty in the middle of a miserable clearing. As nobody answered my knock at the door, I passed on to the rough log barn, a few yards away. A curious sight greeted me. The wife of the owner of the place was seated in the middle of the floor, engaged in tying a stout rope into knots. She seemed to be muttering a weird sort of incantation. Her face chimed in well with her occupation, for malignancy glowed in every feature. On my astonished query as to what she was doing she replied that she was engaged in combatting the power of the "evil eye," which was being exercised by a near neighbor, Mrs. O'Halloran, on her cows. She told me that every time she twisted a knot in the rope the object of her solicitous endeavors would be afflicted with a not too delectable pain in her diaphragm, and she wound up with the venomous ejaculation, "I'll learn her to leave my cow alone." I found out afterwards that her next door neighbor also firmly believed in the power of the "evil eye," as exerted by Mrs. O'Halloran, but that she went about her remedy in a different way. She told me that prayer was the best medium for good results and that whenever she milked she took her pans to the spring near by uttering words of Scripture and praying all the way and that she had never known the procedure to fail. "Small-Talk at Wreyland" tells us that superstitious ideas rule also in regard to medical cures and remedies. One example will suffice. A child, having been laid up, the father was asked how it was faring. "Oh," he said, "it be a sight better since we put'n through a tree." Here was another example of carrying out a pagan rite. The father had split an ash-tree and had wedged the hole open with two pieces of oak. He and his wife, at sunrise took the child there and passed it three times through the tree from east to west. The mother then took the child home and the father pulled out the pieces of oak and bandaged up the tree. The belief was that as the tree healed, the rupture from which the child had been suffering, would heal also.

Poetry suffers a good deal from neglect in Peterborough as elsewhere. I mean the poetry of the celebrated singers. The world would become very blase and uninteresting? I suppose, if we only had a set and limited supply of literature to read and a small background of ideals and formulas of life and conduct to fall back upon. New writers, even if they do not sing in the glorious cadences of the poets of past days, have at any rate, a way of telling truths in a way which appeals to the spirit of the day. But is that spirit a good one? There are many thought-percentage of reduction, it is undersent condition o four literature is a striking sign that the race is retrograding, not owing to the decadence of man's mind-power, but to the fact that he has turned his intellect towards greed and money grubbing. Invention and rapacity are working hand in hand and are producing a state of affairs of which our ancestors had no conception. Mighty empires have perished in the past and some are in the process of passing now. Where will be the use of our wonderful sky-piercing structures, our enormous fleets, our marts and our industries, when engines of destruction of stupendous power are being constructed. Unless our Christianity puts a spurt on and magnanimity rules in our hearts rather than on our lips, civilization will be extinguished and mankind will revert to the days of the Troglodytae, and become cave-dwellers and haunters of desert places.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Three Sundays a Week.

Keep away from Constantinople. They celebrate three Sundays a week there, according to Mrs. Lucy M. J. Garnett, who writes in "Travel" about "How Constantinople Spends Its Sabbath." Friday, the Moslem Sabbath, witnesses the picturesque parade of the Commander of the Faithful to his favorite mosque, followed by a holiday celebration at one of the Bosporus resorts, probably the Sweet Waters of Europe. Saturday morning the Jews don their Sabbath raiment and seek the synagogue, followed by a promenade. The prescribed Sabbath day's journey of the Chosen People, 12,000 hand-breaths (about 2,000 yards) is indulged in later. And on Sunday the Christian Sabbath is celebrated in great state, especially by the Greek Orthodox Church, followed by holiday making. Professors of the three creeds take part to some extent in the celebrations of the others, and for three days business in some sections is at a standstill.

TORTURED BY TERRIBLE ECZEMA

Suffered Three Years Until She Tried "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

DAME PETER LAMARRE

Pointe St. Pierre, P. Q.

"I think it my duty to tell you how much your medicine has done for me. I suffered for three years with terrible Eczema. I consulted several doctors and they did not do me any good.

Then, I used one box of 'Sootha-Salva' and two boxes of 'Fruit-a-tives' and my hands are now clear. The pain is gone and there has been no return. I think it is a marvellous cure because no other medicine did me any good and I tried all the remedies I ever heard of, without benefit until I used 'Sootha-Salva' and 'Fruit-a-tives'

'Fruit-a-tives' cooled the blood and removed the cause of the disease, and 'Sootha-Salva' completed the cure."

THE BRAIN.

A Strange Storehouse of Memories, Thoughts and Ideas.

There are spirits abroad in these days. So declares the mystic—the believer in the occult.

What does the psychologist — the scientific student of mind — have to say on the subject?

He says that in the house of the mind, which we call the brain, there dwells not one tenant merely, but a multitude. It is an empire of innumerable spirits which live together in the space of about a quarter of a cubic foot. Spirits they must be called because they are psychic entities; yet, at the same time, they are material realities, having living forms of bodily presence, sustained by the nourishing currents of the blood.

Here, in other words, we have a vast number of little intelligences, which form a harmonious community, living together and working together.

There are in your brain about 200,000,000 nerve cells each one of which contains a tiny spirit. Each spirit has its own particular work to do; and so long as the little intelligences work together in harmony it is well with you. But if through any cause a disagreement were to occur among them, it would be a dreadful misfortune, for then your mind would go astray.

In order to do their work to best advantage, the spirits are split up into groups, each of which has special duties to perform. They do not operate as individuals, but always in groups. Some groups appear to have nothing to do but to record sensations—of sight, hearing, taste or what not. They have charge of the telegraphic system that extends and ramifies through all parts of the body, constituting, as one might say, information battalions.

Other groups exercise mechanical functions. It is their business to direct the movements of the muscles of the body. Thus in the middle of the top of the brain is a group that governs the movements of the foot and leg; further down, another that controls the arm and hand; lower still, another that has charge of the lips and tongue. In this last "motor area" is the speech centre. If that part of your brain were badly injured you could not talk.

Certain groups attend exclusively to the business of storing memories—a task of utmost imaginable importance, inasmuch as your memories constitute the whole background of your mind. Without them you could do no thinking. Countless millions of memories are filed away in your brain; and, as if for the purpose of rendering them more quickly and easily accessible for reference, the little spirits have them classified in separate cases, so to speak, according to kind.

Low down on each side of the head, above the ears, are stored the memories of sounds. There are filed all the nursery rhymes, old college songs and tuneful bits of operas that have delighted us. Nearby, in the "third frontal convolution," are the words of our mother tongue. The verses we learned in childhood, the Lord's Prayer and fragments of the catechism are there.

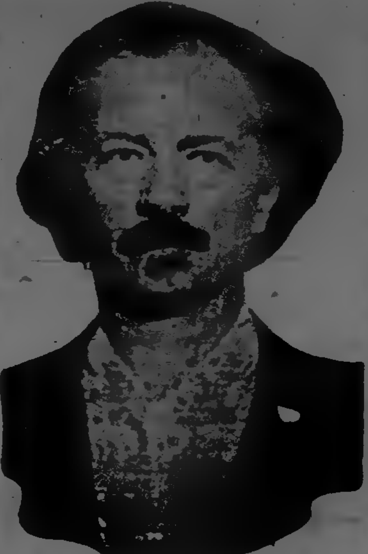
At the back of the brain, low down, is the storage place for visual memories. It is full of pictures of all kinds—the faces of dear old friends, street scenes, everything imaginable.

Intelligence and the moral perceptions seem to be located chiefly in the front part of the brain, behind the forehead. Here are the higher psychic centres. If the physical structures representing them suffer injury from a blow or other cause aberrations of character and intellect result. The spiritual empire is deprived of the guidance and control ordinarily exercised over it as a whole.

In the front and upper portions of the brain reside the aristocracy of the empire of the mind. There are to be found the little spirits that do the real thinking for us — the intelligences that plan, that invent and that make the progress of the world. Over the industrial groups, so to call them, they exercise full sovereignty.

Would-be Assassin Was Choked by Paderewski, The Pianist and Patriot

IGNACE PADEREWSKI, who has now resigned as Prime Minister of Poland, has not touched the piano for more than two years. His fingers have had other work to do. They throttled, for example, the neck of a man found in the Premier's apartment one night. With one hand the assassin presented a paper to Paderewski, with the other a pistol. On the paper was written Paderewski's abdication as Prime Minister. "Sign that," said the villain, "or you are a dead man." Paderewski grappled with his visitor and held him until help arrived. To-day that visitor is Paderewski's firmest friend. For with the unsettled state of the country, the patriot had not haled the man to court.



IGNACE PADEREWSKI.

Physically, mentally, and morally, Paderewski is a towering figure. When, at the beginning of the war, he commenced his work of recruiting Polish troops and getting American aid for his country, people looked at these activities as praiseworthy detachments from his real work in life as pianist and composer. They had yet to learn that, before everything, Paderewski is a Pole and a patriot.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BOTHERS YOU, DRINK LOTS OF WATER

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Industrial Research.

Again and again, during the war, it was insisted by all manner of authorities in England that one of the great efforts of the future should be in the direction of encouraging industrial research. This was, in fact, a war lesson, and Great Britain evidently has no intention of losing it. Already, a Government department of "scientific and industrial research" has been established; whilst, according to the chairman at a recent meeting of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, "universities all over the country, led by University College, London, are re-equipping their training departments."

Extinct Species.

Two grizzly bear skulls from the foothills of San Jose (California) county have been classified at the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, showing that in days gone by a now extinct species of grizzly roamed the hills of Alum Rock and Mount Hamilton ranges, according to announcement there.

Dr. C. Hart Merriman of the institution came here for the skulls of the bears, which were killed more than fifty years ago by Clark Hubbard, a pioneer. According to Doctor Merriman the skulls are from a species clearly distinct from the 33 other species and subspecies classified by the institution. Doctor Merriman has searched the mountains of the entire West for grizzly bear relics.

WESTERN CITIES.

Five of Them Grew From Trading Posts.

Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria all grew up about old Hudson's Bay trading posts. Winnipeg evolved from old Fort Garry at the junction of the Red and Assiniboine rivers, which for years was the capital of the company's empire, embracing at one time three-fourths of North America. Edmonton developed from a fur post established by the company in 1795, which for nearly half a century remained civilization's westernmost outpost in all the region east of the Rocky Mountains. A Hudson's Bay store and a Royal Northwest Mounted Police fort built on the raw prairie in 1875 formed the nucleus about which Calgary grew. A Hudson's Bay store, erected in 1887, was one of the first buildings in a straggling village which became Vancouver. Sir James Douglas in 1843 built on Vancouver Island a fort which is now the city of Victoria and the original Hudson's Bay store built just outside of the wall of the fort of brick, brought round Cape Horn from England, is standing to-day.

Most Sensitive Instrument.

The most sensitive instrument yet made is the bolometer, originally invented by Langley, which is used for measuring variations in the radiation of heat. It registers one millionth of a degree. The heart of it is a platinum wire so thin that it cannot be seen except when a ray of bright light is reflected from it.

Mother Knew.

Joan (blushing)—"Jack, mother was looking when you kissed me last night."

Jack—"How did she take it?"

"Well, she said she felt satisfied that you meant business."

"Chromokipkips."

Edward R. Hewitt of New York is a man of science who also owns a large estate in New Jersey, where he carries on interesting experiments. The Little Journal recounts that several years ago a great lawn fete on his place was one of the leading social events of the season, and he added to the gala aspect of the occasion by dipping the wings of his White Leghorn fowls into red, blue, yellow and green dye solutions. They made a great sensation.

He said they were Tasmanian Chromokipkips and intimated something about $20 a dozen for their eggs. Soon he received inquiries for settings with checks inclosed, and it was only when these were returned and the method of "raising" Tasmanian Chromokipkips was explained that would-be purchasers gave up their quest.

Magellan.

Four hundred years since Magellan, is the gist of an exclamation that will be on many lips in Manila, if not in other cities of the Philippine islands, on March 15 of next year. Magellan discovered the islands on that day, in 1521. There is a hint of the many changes that have come to the islands since they were first known to Europeans, in the fact that the quadricentennial will be celebrated by joint action of Filipinos and Americans now composing the predominating population.

An English Custom Becoming Quite Common in Canada

Every country has its national customs and habits.

For instance, England has the custom of serving afternoon tea.

English homes, stores, offices, factories, work shops, hotels and tea rooms serve afternoon tea. It is part of the national life of England.

Our soldiers poked fun at it, but were not long in acquiring the habit.

And they are not giving it up now that they are back home.

They are influencing a more general adoption of afternoon tea in Canada.

To-day this English custom is quite common in Canadian homes.

It is spreading. New tea rooms are opening all over Canada. Hotels are making a specialty of afternoon tea. The habit is invading offices, stores and work shops.

A few minutes rest in the afternoon with a cup of good tea is a wonderful reviver, giving new zest to the busy business man, stenographer, clerk and worker.

Afternoon tea is a good business proposition.

Easily and quickly made. Very inexpensive.

COLLAPSE OF [illegible]

He Was the Leader of Anti-Bolshevik Forces.

The last days of Gen. Denikine's anti-Bolshevik Russian army, on which the Allies based hopes of exterminating Bolshevism and which last summer was sweeping all before it, and seemed victoriously on its way to Moscow, are described in a picturesque despatch from a French correspondent who followed the fortunes of the vanquished troops throughout their last retreat. The story is not without its pathetic side, for the defeated leader is described as pacing the quay while his hungry, half-clad soldiers sought refuge aboard British and French warships in the harbor of Novorossisk, and Bolshevik guns roared a paean of victory from the Soviet line, less than fourteen miles away.

The final conflict commenced on the morning of March 24, and the foreign missions at Novorossisk were forced to take shelter on the French cruiser Waldeck Rousseau. The soldiers of Denikine's army surged into the villages surrounding the town, establishing a centre of resistance at the headquarters of the British mission. A steady stream of wounded from the front area brought stories of useless opposition. Officers and men alike were disheartened, and awaited the inevitable result of the onslaught of superior numbers.

Next day the Bolsheviki demanded the surrender of the volunteer army, proclaiming the "intellectual Government of the proletariat" and assuring Gen. Denikine's officers that they had nothing to fear if they laid down their arms and aided in the restoration of Russia according to the Soviet program. Having no confidence in the Bolshevist promises, and seeing no hope of success, the disorder became inexpressible, hordes sweeping continually toward the same protective point, the shelter of the allied cruisers.

By the morning of March 26 the Bolsheviki, less than five miles away, had received a warning of the Allies' presence by the British and French ships each firing a dozen long-range shots. Gen. Denikine himself sought refuge aboard a British cruiser, being unable to direct the troop movements.

The centre of the city was soon deserted and many fires broke out, while the same evening incendiary shells were fired at the station, increasing the fear of the inhabitants and casting a weird glow over the hasty preparations for a final stand. The British mission had to be evacuated, and a small group of 500 cavalry and 2,000 unfed, ragged infantry, supporters of Denikine, sought a position whence to defend the city.

Meanwhile, Gen. Denikine arrived aboard a Russian torpedo boat and surveyed this scene of lamentable horror. Maintaining the strong interest in the welfare of his forces which made him beloved as a leader, he pleaded with the Allied commanders to return to the wharves and pick up as many as possible. The French destroyer Ensel de Roux executed a difficult manoeuvre under the enemy's fire and succeeded in rescuing more than 300 Russians. Russian vessels picked up the remainder, and under cover of darkness the fleet made for Theodosia, where they were rescued and knelt on the docks to give thanks to the Almighty for their escape from death at the hands of the Bolshevist victors.

According to the correspondent, Allied assistance resulted in saving 10,000 lives, while as many more succeeded in reaching the Georgia boundary with the assistance of the Don Cossacks. The remainder of what formerly was a proud, highly disciplined and effective force is believed to have met death at the hands of the Soviet troops. It is known that scores of officers, rather than yield their arms, committed suicide as a better alternative than the cruelty shown to have been practiced upon prisoners by the Bolsheviki.

Brazil's Independence Centenary.

Although the celebration of the first centenary of Brazil's independence is two years away—occurring in the month of September, 1922—there have already been begun a detailed series of preparations for the great event. Committees have been named, and it is planned to invite all the nations of the two Americas, as well as certain countries of Europe. There will be numerous events of an international character, as well as games and other festivities. There will also take place many pageants of a historical and dramatic nature, symbolising the various stages of the republic's development, as well as the picturesque characteristics of the nation. The Government will offer prizes for all opera as well as a drama of national import, and will encourage the composition of a national hymn. A national operatic troupe is likewise being organized, which will tour the principal cities of the country. In Rio de Janeiro a massive Pantheon will be erected; a professorial university will be established, in an attempt to improve pedagogics throughout the land, and a historical museum will be founded. Citizens of the United States residing in Brazil have offered to present a commemorative monument to the republic. Hotels are now being constructed to accommodate the crowds that are expected in the city.

Simplified Spelling in Yiddish.

It is generally thought, by those who interest themselves in such matters, that Yiddish is spelled phonetically. In the main, those who think so are right. Yet a question of simplified spelling is now agitating Jewish writers on both sides of the ocean, and the usual arguments known to similar controversy are flying back and forth across the Atlantic. The matter is rendered more complicated by the presence of so large a body of Hebrew words in Yiddish. Hebrew is spelled far from phonetically. To all practical purposes there are no vowels, as these are represented by dots and dashes placed in various combinations under the consonants. The dot-and-dash system is highly complicated, yet when one has once mastered them through long familiarity with Scripture, one may dispense with their assistance, particularly in ever-recurring words. Whence arises an anomaly in Yiddish spelling—the words that are linguistic [illegible] of the German-dialect [illegible] of Yiddish are spelled phonetically, the Hebrew words, on the other hand, which are just as much a part of Yiddish as the others, are spelled traditionally; which is to say, without the vowels and often without the vowel-signs. Now comes a movement to spell all words, Hebrew ones included, plainly and phonetically, vowels and all, according to the rules long prevalent for ordinary Yiddish words. Much of the objection to this procedure has nothing to do with spelling; it is viewed by orthodox Hebrews as an attack upon tradition and Scripture. An appreciable part of the younger element, however, with all respect to Hebrew as the language of the Bible, insist upon giving Yiddish a uniform spelling. Indeed, a group of new poets, on the East Side in New York already write and print their verses, and manifestoes in "simplified Yiddish," and are winning young Jews to the cause.

Want Hotels.

That Uruguay is making special concessions in taxes and imposts for persons who will undertake to build hotels, anywhere in that country, of a sort to attract tourists, is no small matter. It may mean the beginning of the long-delayed but long impending tourist discovery of South America. The prefigured rush can hardly attain its full momentum, however, until Peru arouses herself to follow Uruguay's example, and develops enterprise enough to offer good hotel accommodations in the region of those wonderful pre-conquest cities which it allowed Prof. Hiram Bingham to rediscover in the Andean highlands.

APPLE BLOSSOM TIME IN EVANGELINE LAND

Cape Blomidon, Scene of Embarkation of the Acadians

Gaspereau River, Nova Scotia

Apple-Orchard, Blossom Time, Annapolis Valley, Nova Scotia

June is apple blossom time in Normandie. In Nova Scotia, land of Evangeline and the Acadians, it, too, is apple blossom time. Then there is a hundred mile belt of apple blossoms around quaint Annapolis Valley just as superb in their fragrance and peaceful beauty as they were in the time of which Longfellow wrote his famous poem.

The land fits the poem, or, perhaps, is a poem in itself. It seems like a delicate, fragrant dream, far, far away from the struggle and hurry of life—where rest and peace and simple beauty reign. There is a kind of sadness mixed with all this quiet beauty—a memory of other times, and one feels a haunting mystery while standing gazing at Cape Blomidon, which in turn still looks compassionately down on the sands where the Acadians were embarked on their sad journey. Tall, wraith-like ships glide by the mouth of the Gaspereau River, dream ships, riding on a river of dreams. The Great Magician has laid his wondrous spell upon the land.

Perhaps it is this very peacefulness, this semblence to another world that is bridging Canadians and Americans to Evangeline Land. This famous place lies along the Dominion Atlantic Railway which runs through the heart of the Acadian Country where a statue is being erected to the memory of Evangeline.

Many people go there in the late summer, too, to take part in the Cherry Carnival at Bear River, with its rustic sports and hospitality, like that of old England in the days gone by.

THE AZERBAIJANIANS

STORY OF REPUBLIC TOLD TO PEACE CONFERENCE.

One of the Groups of People In That Curiously Unfamiliar Country Which Spreads Itself Over the Caucasus and Between the Black Sea and the Caspian — Independence Is Demanded.

THERE is something peculiarly interesting in the story of the Azerbaijanian Republic, as it was recently presented to the Peace Conference by the Azerbaijanian delegates who traveled to Europe for that purpose. In a vague kind of way the great world of the West has been aware, for some time past, that a number of republics were being set up in that, to Europeans, curiously unfamiliar country which spreads itself over the Caucasus and beyond, between the Black Sea and the Caspian. The Georgian Republic, the Armenian Republic, and the Azerbaijanian Republic were at any rate names, however little might be known of their formation or status.

Now, in the present prominence being given to Azerbaijan, the great Persian province is not stepping into notice for the first time. In the years immediately preceding the war, when Russia was intent on the prosecution of her famous "move towards warm water" on the Persian Gulf, Azerbaijan and its troubles were very much in the news. The story of how the Russians, on various pleas, advanced to Tabriz, the capital of the province, how they occupied the city, and then, month after month, refused to withdraw, but instead continued to pursue an elaborate policy of Russification throughout the whole region, was, at one time, almost a stock subject in the daily press. Then came the war, and, with the entry of Turkey on the side of the Central Powers, Azerbaijan became a battle ground for the Turk and the Russian. It was of no moment to either party that the province was really Persian territory and that Persia was neutral.

For three years the struggle continued, down, in fact, to the outbreak of the Russian revolution. But, immediately on this event, there was a loosing of control on the confines of the great unwieldly Russian empire, and, by the time the Bolsheviki had succeeded in seizing control, Azerbaijan had become a veritable prey to all manner of disbanded and deserted forces. In these circumstances, the more law-abiding people of the whole vast region of Caucasia and Transcaucasia united to restore some semblance of government. First of all, one government for the whole region was set up. This proved a failure. The Caucasus seceded, and Transcaucasia formed itself into the federal Republic of Azerbaijan, Georgia, and Armenia. This again proved a failure, and, some time in May, 1918, the three states of this federal republic formed themselves into three separate and independent republics. In the following November a British mission, operating in Persia, was invited by the Republic of Azerbaijan to occupy Baku, and since then, apparently, the Azerbaijanians have maintained themselves against all the assaults of the Bolsheviki, have reorganized the country on the basis of a liberal constitution, in which the chief features are universal suffrage and the protection of minorities, and are eagerly desirous of obtaining from the great powers a recognition of their right to independence.

One of the chief difficulties in the way of any such recognition must, of course, be the fact that a very large part of the district claimed by the Azerbaijanians is Persian territory. Persia's title is, however, the title of conquest, and there can be no question that the Azerbaijanians form a distinct ethnological unit; that they have enjoyed a large measure of independence through the centuries; and that, in the eighteenth century, the country consisted of a conglomerate of independent khanates whose hand was raised quite indifferently against Persian, Turk, Georgian, or Russian. How far the final settlement really rests with the Peace Conference it is difficult to say, but there is no doubt that the Azerbaijanians can make out a very good claim to independence.

Seeking Lost Condor.

To delve into the unknown depths of the sea off the west coast of Vancouver Island and wrest therefrom treasures hidden for many years, is the object of S. Maddison and his party of salvagers, who will begin operations shortly. Last autumn Mr. Maddison made submarine cruises among the crags which line the coast and located four large wrecks besides a number of smaller ones. Two of the larger he identified as the Pass-of-Melford and the Valencia and one of the others he thinks is the long lost H. M. S. Condor, which disappeared in 19[illegible] and has never been heard of since. Some of the numerous boats which met their fate on the perilous west coast carried cargoes which at the time of sinking did not make it worth while salvaging; but under present-day conditions there is freight aboard those boats which must be worth almost its weight in gold.

Glenn Curtiss Loved Mechanics.

Glenn Hammond Curtiss, one time messenger in Rochester, N. Y., now "king of the air," and worth millions, like most boys, loved things mechanical. His day dreams and his dreams at night were of mechanical contrivances that moved about on wheels, and the inventions of Jules Verne. From motorcycles to airplanes proved a short step. Curtiss, who had been improving on his motorcycle engine, developed it so it could be used in dirigible balloons. In 1909 he went to Rheims and easily defeated the crack foreign flyers, becoming the first international champion of the air. In 1910 he flew from Albany to New York, 150 miles. Having won his laurels in the air, he took up the actual work of building planes. Today there is scarcely any airplane used in the United States or Europe on which Curtiss does not draw a royalty.

MAGYAR PROBLEMS.

Trouble Caused by Over-lapping of Nationalities.

At the time when efforts were being made to obtain in Hungary's favor a revision of the Peace Treaty presented to that country by the Allies, Dr. Benes, the Czecho-Slovak Minister for Foreign Affairs, made a detailed statement on the Magyar problem in the Czecho-Slovak National Assembly. He pointed out the defects of the previous regime of the Bolsheviki, the fall of which, he said, had aroused hopes of more honorable and satisfactory dealings on the part of the Magyars with their neighbors. Instead of this, however, the new Government had established its existence afresh with a view to imperialistic aims and failed to realize that the question of the integrity of the Hungarian frontiers had already been disposed of. The Hungarians had been taught nothing by the war; they were employing their old oriental methods of propaganda.

Dr. Benes declared that the Magyars in Slovakia had no cause to complain, since they had been provided with their own officials and schools, and were possessed of full judicial rights. He further stated that the Magyar Government was not acting loyally toward the Czecho-Slovak Republic. At a time when the frontiers had been fixed and the Magyar authorities themselves had undertaken to respect them, he had evidence to prove that anti-Czech propaganda emanating from Budapest was being carried on in Slovakia. The most serious action of the Magyars in this respect was the sending of Bolsheviki into Czech territory. It might seem impossible that political leaders who were the advocates of constitutional ideals should ally themselves with elements whom they were at the same time persecuting as enemies of the social order. He regretted to say, however, that he had discovered the association of Gen. Friedrich with this Bolshevist propaganda.

The Magyar Government were also making use of false statistics. For instance, they stated that there were 1,000,000 Magyars in Slovakia. Dr. Benes refuted this by means of figures showing that there were not quite 500,000 Magyars in the whole of that region, and even the greater part of these were Magyarized Slovaks. Moreover, as a result of the peace negotiations Czecho-Slovakia had been obliged to sacrifice over 300,000 Slovaks to Hungary. It was not possible for the Czechs to ignore these methods of Magyar propaganda which were typical of those made use of by Hungary on former occasions.

On this occasion, Dr. Benes saw it was also necessary to remark that the racial minorities in Hungary were again being persecuted, while in Czecho-Slovakia there was absolute equality and justice. He objected to the demand for a plebiscite; it was an insincere appeal, since at the same time territorial integrity was also being asked for. It was calculated to arouse confusion, uncertainty, and disorder in Central Europe, especially in Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Roumania. The international situation was uncertain, and the Magyars were hoping to increase this uncertainty and thus improve their own position. The Czecho-Slovak nation was prepared for a rational agreement with the Magyars as with their other neighbors, but they would use every means to prevent Hungary from again resorting to the measures of the old regime, which had been attempted by the Bolsheviki and also by the present administration.

CHANGE IN BALL TIME

In order not to conflict with the program of the Exhibition Board for the afternoon of the 14th it has been decided to make a slight alteration in the time of the baseball game between the Hinde and Dauch Company of Toronto and the Canadian Woollens. Instead of being played at the Oval at one-thirty in the afternoon the game will now be played at the Riverside Park at ten o'clock in the morning.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Their Manufacture Is Industry of Czecho-Slovak Villagers.

Within a radius of six or seven miles from Schonbach, Czecho-Slovakia, there are 21 villages whose inhabitants are employed in the manufacture of stringed musical instruments, writes U. S. Trade Commissioner Vladimir A. Geringer, from Prague. Of the 6,000 residents of Schonbach almost 4,000 are engaged in this home industry, among them both women and children. In the making of one instrument many different workers take part.

Not more than 15 miles from Schonbach is the town of Kraslice (Graslitz), where brass and wind instruments, such as trumpets, cornets, trombones, clarionets, flutes, etc., are manufactured, as well as home industry products. Kralove Hradec is also noted for its production of brass and wind instruments.

In addition to the towns of Schonbach and Kraslice, Graslitz) and the surrounding villages there are many manufacturers of musical instruments scattered through Czecho-Slovakia whose products are exported to all parts of the world. Many of the instruments normally bring high prices, because of their exceptionally fine tone and quality. Outside of pianos and organs, they are produced mostly by small manufacturers.

A Compliment.

Mother—"Indeed! What did she say?"

"I heard her tell a friend that there were worse old gossips than you in town, after all!"

His Choice.

Hudson—"What is Smith going to do now that his fortune is gone?"

Watson—"He's undecided whether to be chauffeur to his former butler, or butler to his former chauffeur."

Legitimate Prey.

One day a little old woman appeared at the parsonage to be married to an old man. The woman was bent over so much one had to stoop to look into her face. The bridegroom was deaf as a post.

All the time the pastor was making out the necessary papers the woman talked and muttered to herself, saying: "I don't know why that stingy old man wants to get married. He doesn't want to pay a cook, that's all. Make him pay well, parson. He's worth it. He's got a farm and lots of money. He's a mean, stingy, old man and he's deaf and can't hear what I say. Charge him good, brother."

The ceremony over, the man paid the customary $5, with the bride still jawing, he utterly oblivious of it all.

G.W.V.A.'S GOOD WORK

Assists Soldiers in Getting Delayed Gratuities.

The assistance which the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association is daily rendering to returned soldiers resident in Peterborough was amply illustrated this morning when a Veteran who had been trying unsuccessfully for fourteen months to get his gratuity money rang up the secretary to say that, thanks to the work of the association, he had this morning received a cheque for the whole amount.

The Veteran in question was discharged from the army after a lengthy service in 1918, and became employed at the C.G.E. For fourteen months he applied in vain for his gratuity, seeking the aid of the superintendent of the factory and other local sources in his endeavors. Finally the other day some one advised him to take the matter up with the G.W.V.A., and within four days he was in possession of a cheque covering his entire claim.

THE FIRST NATIONAL FRANCHISES FOR CAN.

SECURED BY MESSRS. JULE AND J. J. ALLEN FOR THEIR THEATRES.

Consummating a deal whereby the Allen Theatre enterprises secure a twenty-five year franchise for each of the fifty motion picture houses of the well-known circuit, giving exclusive exhibition rights to the productions of a host of the popular picture stars, authors and directors, Messrs. Jule and J. J. Allen today issued one of the most important statements to have emanated from their office in recent years. The deal, which was finally consummated in New York last Saturday, involves upwards of a million dollars and secures for the Allen interests an absolute assurance that they will secure the pick of the motion pictures to be released during the next twenty-five years by the Associated First National Exhibitors Circuit, Inc., the dominating distributing organization in the motion picture field. The significance and magnitude of the transaction just completed can best be understood when it is stated that the "First National" controls the productions of such sought-for stars and directors as Charles Ray, Norma Talmadge, Constance Talmadge, Katherine McDonald, Anita Stewart, Marshall Neilan and others of like prominence.

The contracts, which were signed by Messrs. Jule and J. J. Allen for the Canadian circuit of theatres, and by representatives of the Associated First National Exhibitors, will become effective immediately and include all photoplays released up to date and in the future with the exception of those few that have been previously contracted for by other interests. As fast as outstanding contracts with outside concerns expire, they will automatically be taken over by the Allen Theatre Enterprises.

The local Allen Theatre will in the future present all of the big special attractions released through their recently acquired associates, as well as the pick of the other film services now in the field.

SPARKS BIG THREE RING CIRCUS COMING

Sparks World Famous Shows are to exhibit at the Exhibition Grounds on Tuesday, June 1st, and from the newspaper reports preceding them, their exhibition will be well worth seeing.

Of the many features carried by the show this season, some of the animal acts are without doubt the most wonderful and thrilling ever presented to a Canadian audience. There will be two herds of ponderous elephants, headed by the earth's mightiest monster, Big Zulu, the skyscraper elephant, the Sparks stable of shimmy and tango dancing horses, including Caesar, champion high jumping horse of the world, and three groups of marblesque statue horses and dogs in a series of classic poses and groupings. Then, too, there will be the Captain Cassells trained seals, whose accomplishments include even the playing of musical instruments to the accompaniment of the band.

The menagerie of wild animals carried by the Sparks Circus is complete in every detail and contains rare and costly specimens of the earth's most curious animals. A parade two miles in length and of wondrous splendor will leave the circus grounds at 10:30 a.m. and will contain many beautiful women and handsome horses, interspersed with five bands of music and two calliopes.

FIRST TEACHINGS OF ART

(By A. A. Macaulay.)

Having raised true feeling into its right place we can now go forward on the high road of art and enjoy our inheritance—the inheritance of technique or style or workmanship, polished for us by the ages. For this enjoyment we need perception, conception, form, line, composition, harmony and rythm. These are all included in every branch of art. Perception is merely the process of seeing, merely the wonderful gift of sight. A great many people are born with defective sight but most of us are vexed if a picture hangs "crooked" and some among us take the trouble of "putting it straight." After perception comes conception; after true perception comes a true conception. To put it simply we will take an example. Your gaze perhaps falls on a boat in a harbor, a brown sail flaps idly, the fisherman is mending his net. Pereption, conception—the former is the act of seeing, the latter converts the thing seen with your brain and your heart. An idea formulates, you allow your thoughts to play around the boat and the fisherman. With the lightning speed of thought you have gone out fishing with him, braved rough seas, seen the fish hauled in by that net. Back your idea travels to the net. Your imagination is fired, you get out your canvas or block. You will make a picture. But how? How are you gong to express your feelings and thoughts with your pencil or brush? Now comes your first technique, your workmanship. You must travel along the road others have beaten out for you, but you are not going to put your feet into their prints. Many a picture of a fisherman and a boat has been made but these are your own thoughts and feelings which are struggling to be expressed. Here comes in technique. Before you touch your canvas a rough arrangement or composition is in your mind; the wise man will mark his points even if he has no need to actually connect them by drawing; in fact as soon as a good draughtsman can dispense with the drawn line when working in color the better for the freedom of his brush. Of course every individual has his own manner of working or technique as much as every individual has his own voice, but the great canons of art stand fast and one of the greatest is the predominance of life over material. Thus in a picture of the fisherman, the boat, the net, the water, the shore, the sky, the man must be the central fact or point. Concentrate your energies on life and the rest follows.

SMALL POX PATIENT TAKEN OFF TRAIN

The Grand Trunk train from Belleville this morning bore an unwelcome visitor to the city in the form of a smallpox patient.

It was discovered on the train that he was infected with the disease, and the Medical Officer of Health was notified and had him conveyed immediately to the Isolation Hospital. The patient's home is at Harwood.

Permission is granted to all officers and other ranks attending the momerial service in the George Street Methodist Church on Sunday next, 23rd inst., to appear in uniform if they so desire.

MILITARY FUNERAL

Late W. G. Thorne to be Interred This Afternoon.

The funeral of the late William George Thorne, which takes place this afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery, will be a military one, arrangements for this having been made at a special meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association held last night. Unfortunately baseball, football and other things on Saturday afternoon will make it difficult to have a full attendance of the Veterans, but the Veterans' Band will attend and the buglers will be on hand to play the last post at the graveside. Owing to the difficulties mentioned above there will be no firing party, but this omission will be the only deviation from a full military burial.

In view of the fact that the deceased was a member of the 39th Battalion, all Veterans who belonged to that unit are asked to make a special effort to attend this afternoon.

IN MEMORIAM

REYNOLDS—In loving memory of our death mother, Margaret Reynolds, who died May 23, 1919.

The home it has been darkened
By the shadow of a death:
It was one a loving mother,
And her we'll ne'er forget.

A voice had whispered "Come;"
And in the silence of the night
God took His loved one Home

A vacant chair now tells the tale
Of the debt that she had paid:
Angels bright watch day and night
O'er the grave where she is laid·

The silver cord is broken,
A life well spent is o'er:
At peace, asleep in Jesus,
She rests for evermore.

Your Protection is in Pasteurization
Ask your milk dealer if he Pasteurizes his milk, because only by this process can the deadly bacilli that lurk in the very cows themselves be destroyed.
"No raw milk should be given to children unless it is known to be produced under clean conditions. If such milk cannot be procured it should be Pasteurised. We guard with great care, as we certainly should, our public water supplies, but disease germs do not multiply in water as they do in milk; in fact, cream and milk are very suitable media for the growth and rapid increase of many pathogenic germs."
Unless one knows beyond question of a doubt that the cows are in perfect health, that every step in its handling is such that there can not be any infection., uless these requirements be met absolutely, use only properly PASTEURIZED MILK.

CLAIMED THAT PRES. CARRANZA SUICIDED TO AVOID CAPTURE

Reports of Autopsy, However, Point to Conclusion That President Was Assassmated—Struck by Two Rifle Bullets, One in Breast, Other in Abdomen

(By Canadian Press.)

Mexico City, May 25.—President Carranza committed suicide rather than be taken prisoner, according to a telegram given out at the headquarters of General Gonzales.

This telegram purports to have been sent from Carro Azul, Puebla State, on May 20th, by Col. Rodoto Herrero, who, previous reports said, was responsible for the President's death.

Reports of an autopsy performed on the body of Carranza at Tlaxcalantongo fail to agree with the claim of Herrero that the president committed suicide, it was asserted in official quarters here. Surgeons, it is declared, found that Carranza had been struck by two rifle bullets, one of which penetrated his breast and the other his abdomen. These bullets entered from in front, and the conclusion of those who witnessed the operation is that the president had been assassinated.

MEMORIAL TO LATE MR. AND MRS. COPPING

TABLET UNVEILED IN MEMORY OF GERMAN U-BOAT VICTIMS.

Toronto, May 25. — Yesterday afternoon at St. Paul's Anglican Church a tablet was unveiled to the memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Copping by their sons, Norman Copping, of Toronto, and Russell Copping, of Peterborough, is the first tablet erected in the Dominion in the Dominion to the memory of victims of the Lusitania.

The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Cody, who, in paying a warm tribute to the late Mr. Copping—whom he referred to as one of Toronto's outstanding, upright business men—stated that it is well to be reminded of what we may very easily forget, and that he was glad the tablet will perpetuate the solemn judgment of mankind against the breach of international law and honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Copping, together with one other regular member of St. Paul's congregation, were all drowned, and also two of the pupils of Havergal College.

The tablet is a very handsome bronze one, mounted on marble. At the corners are maple leaves on green, and the badges of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club are also introduced. The inscription bears the Coroner's verdict of wilful murder against the officer of the submarine, the German emperor and government.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Norman Copping, there were present representatives from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, the Granite Bowling Club, and old Business Men's Association.

AUTO STRUCK BUGGY WOMAN INJURED

MISS RICE, OTONABEE, THROWN TO THE STREET UNCONSCIOUS.

Miss Lizzie Rice, R. R. No. 11, Otonabee, was the victim of a serious accident on Saturday night at 8.30 when an automobile driven by George Rutherford, 215 Simcoe street, struck the buggy in which she was sitting and threw her to the ground, inflicting injuries to the back of her head, which necessitated three stitches.

Miss Rice was seated in a buggy standing on George street just below the corner of Sherbrooke street when an automobile owned and driven by George Rutherford, proceeding south along George street, caught the left wheel of the buggy and threw Miss Rice to the ground, knocking her unconscious. Rutherford immediately stopped his car and, with the assistance of Mr. Butler Hickey, who was also in the car, carried the injured girl to No. 247 George street. Dr. Eastwood was called and ordered her to be taken to the hospital where three stitches were found necessary on account of a severe cut in the back of her head. The authorities at St. Joseph's Hospital stated this morning that she was getting along very nicely.

Rutherford declared that he did not see the buggy until he was right on to it. The damage to the buggy is very slight.

CARNIVAL OF SPORT AND FUN AT EXHIBITION GROUNDS YESTERDAY

Large Crowd Enjoys First Class Program of Events, Horse Races the Feature

All roads led to the Exhibition Grounds yesterday afternoon. In spite of the threatening weather large crowds attended the field day put on by the Exhibition Board.

The main attractions for the afternoon were the international football game between picked Scotch and English players and the horse races.

Horse Races.

These events proved to be very exciting and closely contested, especially the colts' event. The following are the results:

2.25 class (trot or pace), 3 in 5, mile heats—First money Climation; second money, Little Wana; third, Dan Direct; fourth, Ellen B.

Free-for-all (trot or pace), 3 in 5, mile heats—First money Bettie D.; second money, Helen M.; third, Susie Hal.

Colt race, 3 in 5, ½ mile heats—First prize (blanket), Lena Rivers; second prize (set boots), Dean Todd; third prize (lap rug), Harry Hill.

Football Match.

Second only to the races was the football game between representatives of England and Scotland. The English team won the toss and it was easily seen from the first that the English line-up was far faster in every position in the field than that of the Scotchmen. The first score was secured after about ten minutes of play, when Fenner ran out in an effort to save. The ball was passed quickly and got behind him for the first counter of the game.

Later on during the first half the English team had some wonderful opportunities for scoring, but seemed to miss them every time. Bartley was playing off side continuously and on one occasion during this half had a sure shot for the goal had it not been that he was off side. He has apparently been more or less getting away with this off side play in the City League games, but with McKinley refereeing yesterday he was caught every time that he attempted it.

Hardie Saves.

On another occasion the Scotch goalie again ran out, and the same trick was worked as in the first in-

MEMORIAL TABLET UNVEILED IN GEORGE ST. METHODIST CHURCH

Both Dead and Living Members Who Served in the War Are Honored.

An event of the greatest importance in the history of George Street Methodist Church was the unveiling of a memorial tablet to the members of the church who gave their services during the war, and especially to those who did not return. This unveiling took place at the morning service on Sunday and was attended by a crowded church. The military authorities kindly granted permission to all soldiers and ex-soldiers in the city who desired to do so to wear uniforms for the occasion, and many soldiers appeared at the service in khaki to pay their respects to their fallen comrades, whose names are inscribed on the tablet.

The opening prayer was taken by Rev. Mr. Greatrix. This was followed by an eloquent address by Lieut.-Col. E. B. Clegg, officer commanding Peterborough Rangers, and formerly officer commanding the 57th Battalion. It was especially fitting that Colonel Clegg should be given the honor of addressing the congregation this occasion as it was under him that the majority of the men whose names were being immortalized enlisted and served.

Rev. A. J. Thomas, pastor of the church, followed Col. Clegg with an address, and then a statement was presented by Mr. H. G. Walker, the chairman of the tablet committee.

The unveiling was performed by Mr. T. W. Robinson, one of the original trustees of the church, and in the task he was ably assisted by Mr. Walker. Then followed the prayer of dedication and an address by Mr S. R. Armstrong.

All the speakers spoke on much the same line, dwelling in glowing terms upon the splendid way in which the men from the congregation had flocked to the colors in the hour of the nation's greatest necessity, and the way in which so many had given their lives for the sake of freedom. Gratitude for the sacrifices made by the soldiers was also expressed, and the congregation most eloquently reminded that this gratitude carried with it certain obligations which it was incumbent on them to fulfil, to preserve all for which so many had fought and died in France and Flanders.

The tablet, which contains 160 names, thirty of which are those from the church who went overseas never to return, is a large bronze memorial destined to stand the test of time for ages to come. At the top is neatly inscribed the purpose of the tablet, and beneath this in the centre of the tablet are the names of the thirty men who gave their lives. This is surrounded by a border, and down both sides from top to bottom is a long column of those members of the church who served in His Majesty's forces at any time during the war.

U.S. SETTLERS FOR WESTERN CANADA

GREAT TIDE OF 1913 IMMIGRATION TO BE REPEATED.

(By Canadian Press.)

Omaha, May 25.—According to a statement by W. V. Bennet, in charge of the Canadian government land office, the great tide of immigration of 1912 and 1913 to Western Canada is about to be repeated.

In the first three months of 1920 almost as many settlers from the trans-Missouri country have gone to Canada as went all last year.

The statement adds that during the past twenty years forty-five thousand Nebraskans have emigrated, taking with them approximately fifty million dollars. The explanation is that farms in Canada can be purchased at one-third the price required for land in the United States.

SHORTCOMINGS OF D.S.C.R. VOCATIONAL TRAINING AIRED BEFORE COMMITTEE

Flaws in Regulations--Claimed Men are Placed in Wrong Courses.

(By Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, May 25.—The shortcomings of the D. S. C. R. vocational training were aired before the special committee on pensions and re-establishment this morning. W. Nicol, Kingston, Mr. Newman, Ottawa, and S. Stalford, Toronto, told the committee there was hardship among vocationally trained men and asked for an extension of the training course.

Mr. Stalford thought the D.S.C.R. was doing everything possible to give the men a new start in their work, but there were flaws in the regulations.

Mr. Nicol claimed there was a waste of money through men being placed in wrong courses.

At the present time the D.S.C.R. progress report overcame these difficulties, but the men discharged before these reports were started had not the advantage of them.

Mr. Newman declared he had desired to take an electrical fitting course, but was advised not to do so and took up show card writing. He was doubtful of making a successful living out of this after finishing his course. He thought there should be a committee of three men to advise prospective students instead of a single officer.

TRIBUTE TO JOS. SCRIVEN, AUTHOR

PREMIER DRURY UNVEILS A MEMORIAL ON SHORES OF RICE LAKE.

THREE THOUSAND PRESENT

MINISTER AND LADY ENTERTAINED AT QUEEN'S HOTEL MILLBROOK.

Before a crowd of about three thousand people, many of whom were from Peterborough and this district, the memorial to Joseph Medlicott Scriven, author of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," was unveiled at Pengelley Cemetery, Rice Lake, yesterday afternoon by Premier Drury.

The service opened with the doxology and the Lord's prayer recited in unison. Then Rev. A. H. McConnachie gave the Scripture reading, which was followed by prayer with Rev. W. H. Higgs leading.

Rev. Dr. Lee, who occupied the chair, gave a short address, referring in terms of the great admiration and love to the memory of the author of that popular hymn whose monument then was being unveiled. He was followed by the singing of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," in which all those present took a hearty part.

Premier E. C. Drury, to whom was given the honor of unveiling the memorial, also spoke along the same lines as the chairman, expressing his great appreciation of the work of Joseph Scriven and his satisfaction in the thought that the memory of his work was to be immortalized in this way.

Following Premier Drury's address the entire gathering broke into Scriven's own famous hymn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and the sight of some three thousand people from all parts of the Province joining their voices in this hymn of praise was most impressing. The program closed with the benediction.

Previous to the arrival of the Premier a splendid musical program was put on by the Silver Band (40 pieces) of the Peterborough branch of the Salvation Army. Refreshments were supplied under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Bailleboro Methodist Church.

The Peterborough party went out to Barnard's Landing on the S. S. Stoney Lake yesterday morning under the auspices of the local Salvation Army, arriving there at noon and returning immediately after the unveiling.

The Premier and Mrs. Drury were tedered a dinner at the Queen's Hotel, Millbrook, at noon. Rev. Dr. W. D. Lee, of Millbrook, presided. Toasts to the King and to Mr. Drury were drunk, but there was no speech making, the Premier contenting himself with a hearty expression of thanks for the reception tendered Mrs. Drury and himself. Mr. Drury motored to Omemee where he addressed a meeting last night.

Scriven's History.

Scriven's father was Capt. John Scriven of the Royal Marines who lived in County Down, Ireland and his mother was sister to an English Vicar the Rev. Joseph Medlicotte, whose parish was at Pottern in Wiltshire. He was born at Seapatrick, County Down on September 10th, 1819 and was christened Joseph after his mother's father. His early education was entrusted to a Dr. Doncaster in whose charge he appears to have remained until he was about fifteen years of age. On November 2nd, 1835, he entered that famous seat of learning, Trinity College, Dublin. He attended Trinity for about two years, and then at the request of his uncle he was admitted to the Addiscombe Military College, Surrey, as a cadet on September 6th, 1837. After remaining there for more than two years he resigned on the 9th of October, 1839 on the ground that "his health rendered him unfit for service in a tropical climate." He then re-entered Trinity College, and at the age of twenty-three in the year 1842, obtained his degree of Bachelor of Arts. He was now at the canonical age for ordination and appears to have had some intention of entering the ministry. Some years after, the date is not positively known, he appeared in Northumberland County this country, and for some years taught school in or near the town of Port Hope, and was also subsequently engaged by a prominent citizen as private tutor.

His memory is fragrant in the hearts of many who still remember him, not because of his learning but because of his extraordinary philanthropy in giving away all his means to the poor, and also for his efforts to preach the gospel anywhere and everywhere to those who would listen to his message. The early death of Miss Roche, his fiancee, was a shock from which he never recovered. Some years after when overtaken by illness and flushed with fever, he was missed one night from his room. After search he was found in the attitude of prayer on the morning of August 10th, 1886, in the flume of a dam near Rice Lake. Tenderly his body was laid away in Pengelley Cemetery near by, and at his own desire he sleeps beside the mortal remains of her whom he loved so well.

He published a hymn book about the year 1860, of his own composing, but which has not had a general circulation. But he will always be remembered by a hymn, not in his book strange to say but undoubtedly his composition, written about 1837, probably dedicated to his mother and sung all over the world, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." This in itself has given him immortality.

TWO FIRES SATURDAY

Careless cigarette smoking is thought to have been the cause of a fire on Saturday night at about half past eleven in the store of H. Kline, 430 George street. When the fire department answered an alarm to his address it was found that flames were working their way through the stock in the store, and there was danger of a serious fire. With the aid of a 45-gallon chemical tank, however the department extinguished the blaze, confining the loss to the goods which were already damaged upon the arrival of the fire department.

Mr. Kline stated that about 11:20 he and two friends were in the office smoking, and it is thought that one of the three put his cigarette down when they went out, and that the cigarette ignited the office stationery.

There was also another fire at the Peterborough Canoe factory Saturday evening, but this time some rubbish outside was burning and there was no damage.

CANADA'S FUEL RESOURCES.

MR. ARTHUR V. WHITE, consulting engineer of the Commision of Conservation of Canada, arguing that "there is no menace to Canada's economic and general welfare at all comparable to the fact that she is so largely dependent upon a foreign country for her fuel needs," urges Canadian development of its own coal resources. In respect of quantity, quality, and accessibility for mining purposes, the Dominion, he declares, "possesses coal deposits which compare favorably with those of the greatest coal mining countries of the world. She has nearly 1,000,000,000 tons of semi-anthracite coal, 316,000,000 tons of bituminous coal, and 10,000,000,000,000 tons of sub-bituminous coal and lignite. Canada's only sane policy is to develop as rapidly as possible both her own fuel and power resources, and to provide for the distribution and storage of fuel in all communities of the Dominion."

Mr. White's tatements admit of no argument. The rairie Provinces alone are paying nearly $19,000,000 annually to United States interests for imported coal.

In addition to the difficulty of obtaining the quantities required, the transportation situation is exceedingly difficult. All upper lake ports (United States ports as well as Fort William and Port Arthur) are absolutely without any hold-over, and their requirements for the coming year are placed at 33,000,000 tons. It is said to be quite impossible to transport more than 20,000,000 tons to supply such a demand.

BANISH THE WORD "WAR."

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS in the United States always did create more or less national turmoil and unrest and a neglect even of important industrial and commercial issues. For twelve months at least before the actual election itself partizanship involves our cousins to the south in a state of confusion and neglect of other interests. Just now conditions due to that coming election are far more serious than perhaps at any previous time in America's history, for they are of world interest in that one outstanding, and perhaps the main, plank in both Republican and Democrat platforms is the Treaty of Versailles, and its greatest of all provisions, the League of Nations. When President Wilson announced his ideal for a League of Nations, which found an echo from all allied governments, and was acclaimed from coast to coast and north to south of the United States, this world had reason to hope that at last the sword would be laid aside for ever and the god of war cut down and shattered. Unfortunately, however, such vital issues as the peace treaty and its League of Nations provision are subjects which led warring congressmen into battle, and those issues are now being used as footballs in a bitter partisan campaign for President, irrespective no doubt of any other interests than those of party.

But there are other interests at stake in this Presidential election, and the methods now being used to affect its result. World peace cannot be assured while such nations as Germany and Turkey are encouraged to dream still of a war of vengeance and conquest by the United States Government withholding its endorsation of those very measures which make for an elimination of the dream of war. Even as the Teutonic allies lost all hope of victory on learning that the might of America was thrown into the cause of liberty and justice, so will their minds find occasion for turning once more to war, just so long as that one great English speaking nation repudiates President Wilson's pronouncement for a League of Nations. For war is in the minds of all European nations; the people have been born into that state of mind which calls for resort to arms in settlement of great international questions; sixty-four millions of Germans were educated in the worship of Mars, the god of war, and world nations in general were periodically talking of and preparing for war as the only decisive means for settling differences. The idea of a League of Nations is to eliminate this martial spirit and institute an age of peace, and educate the world up to settling disputes around the council table. But if any one great power like the United States stands apart from that League, then lesser powers, especially in the Balkans and the Near-East, will still but await an opportunity for those smouldering sparks of war to again blaze forth into flames and once more envelope all Europe, and more than likely America also.

There is really no reason why international law could not banish war from off this face of this earth, the same as civil war enforces the settlement of community and individual disputes in a court of enquiry. Civil law is backed by the weight of national education and training; an international council table for the settlement of international differences would also have behind it moral force for peaceful solution. Let the minds of all peoples of the earth be forced into channels of thought in which war is banished from the world's vocabulary and there will not be left even the idea of war. And this ultimate ideal state of mind can be forced on even the most pro-war nations by the power of a League of Nations to maintain international [illegible] as communal order is regulated by civic law.

One drawback to universal peace is that too many people are proclaiming that there always will be wars and rumors of wars, and that their own nation must be prepared. If civilized peoples would only inculcate the precept of peace on earth and good will to all men insisting that never again shall Europe be deluged in blood and all the horrors of armed contest, then even the thought of war will not enter into internal controversies.

Lord Loreburn contends that official documents show how, through open alliances and secret understandings, Russia, Germany, France, Great Britain were drawn into the Austrian-Balkan quarrel after the original differences were in a fair way to being settled—another two days would have averted war altogether. And yet what happened? The thought of war as the only method for settlement dominated men's and nations' minds, the very atmosphere was permeated with war; panic and mobilization followed, and war there was to repletion. Had there been an international council table, a League of Nations, this world would have been saved horrors from which it has not yet recovered and which men should never permit again.

Germans were educated in the glory of war, with their very mothers' milk they imbibed the lust of world-domination, a worship of all the glittering trappings and paraphernalia of armament and military force. The results of forty years of such education has been appalling, to themselves, their neighbors, and most of the world in general. The need for a League of Nations, and the elimination of the sword as a means of adjusting international differences has been driven home with intense force; and now, if we only start inculcating a real hate of war and a love for international fraternity, we may look forward to that happy day when war is not only one's last thought, but actually has no place in men's minds.

CIVILIZATION JEOPARDIZED.

OUR CIVILIZATION is in jeopardy as great as, or even greater than, when Ludendorff's legions looked like carrying all before them in March, 1918, says an Australian exchange. Chaos stares a despairing world in the face. The future is, indeed, so dark and lowering that it is imposisble for us not to cling, like drowning men, at straws to the least ray of hope, that even yet a way may be found for America to act in full concert with the nations who, with her, fought so valorously to make the world safe for democracy. Can it be possible that the victories won in the field are going to be hopelessly nullified by blunders in the realms of politics and diplomacy? If they are, then, alas, is civilization doomed. The Americans must realize that they cannot live to and for themselves, that the whole world is one, and that unless co-operation succeeds to conflict they with the rest must contemplate the deluge.

WITHIN THE EMPIRE.

AS THERE IS imperative need for the development of Canada's natural resources, so the investment of British and foreign capital should be encouraged. Granted the proper financial methods and given adequate public security against corporate interests, Canada has nothing to fear and everything to gain from activities of powerful corporations possessing adequate financial resources to develop the country's raw materials and conduct processes of manufacture in Canada.

The five hundred million dollar British Empire Steel Corporation, with its tremendous finacial resources, will not only expedite development of the great iron ore and coal deposits on the Atlantic seaboard, but will give a new impetus to the shipping and shipbuilding industry in the Dominion. There has been a great deal of criticism of this corporation bcause the figures seem large, but no criticism of the United States Steel Corporation which is investing almost as much at Ojibway, on the Detroit River. That is an American corporation. They have been welcomed with open arms and have been given a great many advantages and concessions, and every dollar that they make in the employment of a capital of from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 will go across in dividends to the United States. It can at least be said that the money earned by the British Empire Corporation will remain within the Empire.

FINANCE IN GERMANY.

MR. CLIFTON REYNOLDS gives some very interesting notes on "Socialist Finance in Germany," which he has made as the result of a recent tour with Captain Wedgwood Benn, to Germany. Before the war, he points out, the national debt of the German Empire stood at about five milliards of marks, and the latest estimate gives the figures at over $50,000,000,000, to express them at pre-war exchange value. Imperial expenditure has increase by 900 per cent., and the State expenditure by 100 per cent. There is a floating debt of 82 milliards of marks, and the paper money in circulation amounts to 57 milliards, while the territorial loss to Germany under the Peace Treaty causes a reduction of about 10 per cent. on tax revenue. To meet expenditrue and reduce deficit and debt charges Erzberger proposed at the close of 1919 a special income tax of a uniform 10 per cent. on companies of over 200,000 marks capital. He suggested also levies on capital, which are expected to produce 3,600 marks for thirty years, and death duties and inheritance taxes, making a total of 15,000 marks of direct taxation. Taxes on farmers and articles of consumption were to produce 11,000 marks, and the grand total was thus 26,000 million marks.

The subject of the German capital levy is one of particular interest. Take the specific example of an individual owning an industrial enterprise worth seven million marks before the war, as given in the Berliner Tageblatt, which assumes that he has increased his capital to ten million marks; the war levy on the increase takes as much as 2,827,900 marks, while the capital levy on the remainder payable over thirty years will amount to 2,710,858 marks. If the owner dies within thirty years, the estate will pay 186,062 marks, while the heir is to pay in inheritance tax of 1,289,938 marks. It is interesting to note that Herr Rathenau, one of the most important business men in Germany, has expressed his approval of this tax, as likely to prove successful and satisfactory. It is certainly a remarkable departure in taxation.

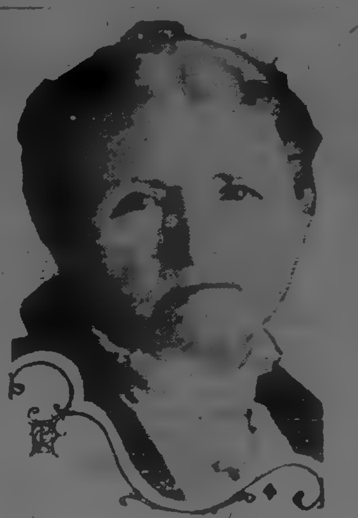
THE BANKERS SIT IN THE GAME.

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat.)

Economists and financiers agree that there must be a considerable slowing down of the buying pace, both by the consumers and those who minister to them, but that it must be a gradual process to prevent jolts in the commercial and industrial machinery. They have it in their power to contribute much to this slowing process, if they will watch credits closelly and be severely discriminating in the making of loans, confining them to purely busines purposes and excluding all speculative ventures, including the holding in warehouses of great quantities of food and raw materials for a speculative market.

MRS. A. L. WILDRICK, of Los Angeles, Calif., who says she had to spend half her time in bed and could not get relief until she took Tanlac. Declares she now feels as well as she ever felt in her life and that she has gained fifteen pounds in weight.



The following remarkable statement was made recently by Mrs. A. L. Wildrick, a well-known and highly respected resident of Los Angeles, Calif., living at No. 222 North Alvarado Street. Mrs. Wildrick is 69 years of age and is the mother of seven children. Her photograph appears here.

"For the past year or more," said Mrs. Wildrick, "I have been in very poor health. I suffered principally from chronic indigestion and my condition was so bad I had to spend half of my time in bed from sheer weakness. In spite of all the medicine I took I could not possibly get any relief and I became so nervous and unstrung that at times I could hardly realize what I was doing. I just had no appetite at all and suffered terribly nearly all the time with indigestion and was really in a very bad way physically. If I did eat a little something I would always have a miserable, distressed feeling afterward and I tell you I was going down hill pretty fast.

"Well, I just can't find words to tell you how really bad off I was and also to tell you what Tanlac has done for me, for I feel as well now as I ever felt in my life. Why, after taking only three and a half bottles of this medicine I have actually gained 15 pounds in weight and everyone tells me I am looking better than in years!

"Since I have been taking Tanlac I have found out that several of my intimate friends are also taking it and everyone of them are delighted with it. I am surely glad to recommend Tanlac and help spread the goodness of this medicine. Yes, I want you to use my photograph too, so that all my friends may see how well I am looking. Anyone who could see me now after seeing me only a few weeks ago would be convinced that Tanlac must be a really wonderful medicine."

Out of Sorts?

Influenza, colds, and other scourges due to germs, pass by those who are at "par," and find their victims in those "below par." That expression, used medically, means that your power of resistance is lowered, the red corpuscles in your blood decrease, and your spirits—an important factor—are "down."

A physician has pointed out that most of us can quite easily tell when we are below par, and then it is up to us to "tonic" ourselves over the period of depression until the normal health returns.

A smoker below par either does not smoke, or his tobacco gives him but a small proportion of his usual enjoyment.

A brain-worker below par is conscious that, for some reason or other, he has to over-concentrate himself on his work.

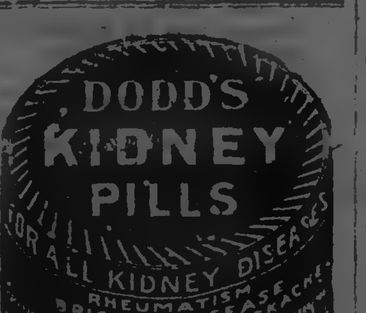
Other people get ragged in temper, and with no apparent cause. The cause, of course, is because they are below par.

A manual worker finds that his tools "jib" most unaccountably. Others are "off their feed," and neither the contemplation of a meal, nor the eating of it gives them any pleasure.

Some find that noises, usually unnoticed, annoy and torture. Others, again, go sleepy, and some get a touch of insomnia. There is no "below par" symptom applicable to everybody, and it is therefore necessary, and very wise, to find out—as one can do by observation—our own particular danger-signal, and act accordingly—and in time!

A Blind Golfer.

An English Victoria Cross officer, who was blinded in the war, still plays golf. He goes on the course accompanied by his wife, and his ball is teed for him by a caddy. His wife assists him to get his feet into exactly the right position. The caddy then rings a tiny bell over the ball so as to indicate to the player's acute hearing the exact spot to which he must aim. On the green he relies also upon touch.



STUDENTS ON STRIKE.

Picturesque Incident of Hamar Greenwood's Youth.

It is curious that Sir Hamar Greenwood, the man who at 50 is required to allay rebellion and revolution, was at 25 the instigator and leader of rebellion and revolution. Yet such is the fact. That is how he sprang into fame in Toronto. The circumstance is the one around which the most vivid personal recollections of him hang. The event was the famous students' strike of Toronto University. The trouble started when the Undergraduate Political Science Club got into hot water with the authorities about two American guests. The undergraduate paper, "Varsity," took up the cudgels on behalf of the club with an article that was "offensive." The editor was deposed. A new editor, James Tucker, was elected. When he refused to apologize for "Varsity's" previous outburst he was expelled from the university. Here was a fine issue. Free speech, a free press, oppression of an individual, were involved. The students could think of no other way of expressing their feelings but by going on strike and refusing to attend any more lectures.

The first meeting of the strikers was held in a hall on Spadina avenue, which on occasion was used by a Sunday school. Several students spoke, some extremists, some for temporizing, but none giving a clear lead, and there were increasing cries for "Greenwood," although he had not been directly involved in the trouble, showing how thus early he was regarded by his associates. At length Greenwood took the platform. Pointing to a Sunday school motto framed on the wall he read for his opening message:

"Dare to be a Daniel,
Dare to stand alone,
Dare to have a message firm,
Dare to make it known."

From that moment Greenwood was the unchallenged leader, hero and director of the students' strike. Wherever he lead they were content to follow. The strike lasted until the Government appointed a royal commission of five judges to enquire into the students' grievances. The day when Greenwood appeared as a witness before that commission was one long to be remembered. It signalized in the minds of the students that the strike was a great victory. It mattered not that the award of the commission whitewashed the authorities and omitted to reinstate Tucker. Greenwood organized a subscription for him, collecting funds to send him to Leland-Stanford in California to secure the degree which his Alma Mater refused him.

It is of interest to note that prominent among the other strike leaders was William Lyon Mackenzie King.

The Navy League Campaign.

The Educational Committee of the Navy League of Canada (Ontario Division) is sending out under their auspices, three lecturers who are going throughout Ontario to the Women's Institutes. The plan has the endorsement of Mrs. Todd, of Orillia, the provincial president of the Women's Institutes.

The lecturers will be provided with a lantern and a series of slides demonstrating the truth of the policy that builds and binds a nation. No country can be truly great without an export trade and the farmer and laborer as well as the business man is deeply concerned in the development of the Dominion of Canada, which in the last analysis means prosperity to all.

Canada's problem for the purpose of our argument are two—1, greater productiveness; 2, the ability to reach the markets of the world with her unrivalled products. How this will be done will be told in a graphic manner, and from the arrival of the settler to the carrying of the goods to the markets overseas the story is full of human interest and truth.

Every county in the Province of Ontario, it is hoped will be reached before the end of September, the county president of the Women's Institutes having already been communicated with upon the subject.

The lecture will be without cost to the community, save the obtaining of a hall, and it is felt that in nearly all cases the local schoolroom, the basement of the church or some other suitable place can be obtained through the good offices of the president of the local Women's Institutes.

Herding Caribou With Airplanes.

Manipulation of the countless thousands of barren lands caribou and musk oxen by use of the airplane is the scheme of W. H. P. Jarvis in planning the best means of herding these animals. It is Jarvis' theory that aviators act as drovers and as the herds come down in the autumn drive them against the shores of the Hudson Bay and down along the coast behind a strong fence built from a point above Port Nelson, the tidewater terminal of the Hudson Bay Railway. Once they are jammed between the sea and the fence he expects to segregate the sexes, and the does could be let through a gateway and given their freedom, while the fat bucks could be driven to the Hudson Bay Railway and there slaughtered and shipped out to the Canadian markets.

The Hudson's Bay Company.

The charter creating the Company of Adventurers of England Trading into Hudson's Bay was signed by King Charles II. on May 2, 1670. At the height of its power, the company ruled three-fourths of the North American continent. It surrendered its authority and territories to Canada in 1870. With 250 years of history and romance behind it, it has the distinction of being the oldest mercantile corporation in existence.

Making a Rifle.

Nine hundred and ninety-seven cutting tools alone are required in manufacturing a modern rifle. The twist drill is one of the busiest of these. To supply 1,000,000 rifles, 94,000,000 holes must be drilled.

The average man's good story wouldn't go in a church paper.

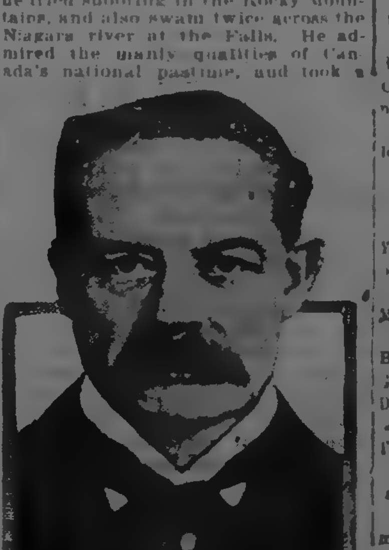
Lord Desborough Makes Appeal to All Britishers As a Peer and Sportsman

THE recent announcement that Lord Desborough may pay a visit to America this year, which would include, of course, a stay in Canada, has aroused interest afresh in one of the most popular members of the British peerage. Lord Desborough won the hearts of the English people by his prowess as a sportsman. He first attracted attention in 1876 when he represented Oxford in a sculling race against a representative of Cambridge, and in both of the following years he had a place in the Oxford crew against Cambridge. Since that time he has been almost constantly in the eye of the British sporting world. He has climbed the Alps and shot big game in India. Some years ago he stroked a crew that rowed across the English Channel. He won the British punting championship for three years in succession. He paid one visit to Canada, and while here he tried shooting in the Rocky Mountains, and also swam twice across the Niagara river at the Falls. He admired the manly qualities of Canada's national pastime, and took a considerable interest in lacrosse games played later on in England. He has always been closely associated with the English athletes taking part in Olympic contests, and is considered an authority on rowing, punting, shooting and fishing.



LORD DESBOROUGH.

Although Lord Desborough is known chiefly as a sporting man, he has also been interested in military matters. He won the Epee prize at the military tournament in 1904, and also acted as special correspondent in the second Suakim campaign.

The death of Lord Desborough's heir, Hon. Julian Grenfell, during the first year of the Great War, won great sympathy for the popular peer. His sons, Julian and Billy Grenfell, were two of the best liked young men in the British Isles, and both of them gave their lives early in the great struggle. Julian Grenfell was one of the finest all-round athletes in England, belonging to a type peculiar to the Old Land where the America idea of rigid specialization in sport has not yet been accepted, and probably never will be. His brother was almost his equal, and they were known in the army as Castor and Pollux. Julian Grenfell was also a poet of considerable ability, and his poem, "Into Battle," written shortly before his death, will always find a place in anthologies of war poetry, being one of the most moving bits of verse from the pen of a fighting man. One man who knew them in life said "They lived unvanquished by any littleness, and they died as they had lived." No father of noble sons made greater sacrifices in the war than did Lord Desborough.

Want Hotels.

That Uruguay is making special concessions in taxes and imposts for persons who will undertake to build hotels anywhere in that country, of a kind to attract tourists, is no small matter. It may mean the beginning of the long delayed but long impending tourist discovery of South America. The presaged rush can hardly attain its full momentum, however, until Peru [illegible] herself to follow Uruguay's example, and develops enterprise enough to offer good hotel accommodations in the region of those wonderful pre-conquest cities which [illegible] Prof. Hiram Bingham to [illegible] over in the Andean [illegible]lands.

NANCE O'NEIL IN PASSION FLOWER

The personality of Jacinto Benavente, the celebrated Spanish dramatic author of "La Malquerida" and more than 100 other plays, is one of the most puzzling of contemporary authors. This play, which comes to the Grand Saturday, May 29th, is being presented now as "The Passion Flower," with the noted American emotional actress, Nance O'Neil, in the leading role, and the few performances already played indicate that the distinction given it as his greatest play is well justified measured by the plays from his pen which have been translated into the English language. Of this number at least a dozen have been published by Scribners from the pen of John Garrett Underhill, who represents the Society of Spanish Authors in the United States.

Although volumes have been written about Benavente and his work, it is extremely difficult to find any thoroughly comprehensive account of his career in pSanish, and much less in English. Manuel Bueno, whose "Teatro Espanol Contemporaneo" is better known than any other book on the stage in America, deals only with his earlier comedies. The recent monograph by A. Gonzalez Blanco is merely expository in a gracefully laudatory vei, and without great value. Perhaps the most satisfactory analysis has been attempted by Alejandro Miquis, the theatrical critic, in his introduction to the two volume anthology of famous passages from the Benavente plays.

Benavente is a remarkable combination of actor, playwribht, manager, statesman and several other things! He is a member of the Cortes, the Spanish Senate, a noted actor, and the new director of the National Theatre, the Teatro Espanol. He is also the director of the National Conservatory of Acting, has written voluminously for and on the stage, has produced during the past seaso three plays himself, with three distict companies, and is an important influence in the art and industry of moving pictures. In fact he has become, by his manifold interests and activities, a sort of Spanish institution.

Since the establishment of his reputation he has had the greatest difficulty in preventing himself from being exploited as one of the sights of Madrid. The movement to erect a statue to him by popular subscription, proved particularly stubborn. It was vetoed by Benavente on the ground that he was far from deceased. The municipality then proposed to rename the street on which he lives in his honor, although this is one of the oldest and most celebrated in Madrid. In this matter the dramatist thought the neighbors might properly be considered and declined the honor. There is however the Teatro Beavente, named in his honor.

Benavente has never neglected his duties to the theatre during all his activities. In assuming the direction of the Theatro Espanol he has not become in any sense a functionary of the city or the state. The organization of the Spanish theatre differs radically in this respect from that of the Comedie Francaise, and is much freer and more democratic. In the contrary, the author of "The Passion Flower" has leased the Espanol and will finance the theatre himself, selecting his own company of players. The regulative enactments to which the lessee must submit, require the maintenance of certain traditions of the Spanish stage in addition to specifying certain performances which must be given, more particularly of standard plays of Lope de Vega, and Calderon, belonging to the poetic repertory. As Benavente has always held that bad acting has made the classics uninteresting, this provision met with no opposition from him.

A matter which must be of interest to Americans is his great interest in the new generation of players. Recently the actors of Paris went on strike about the same time New York was witnessing incidents of a similar condition. The complaint of the Paris actors was against the graduates of the French Conservatoire from appearing in the principal Paris theatres until they had served an apprenticeship of at least three years in the suburban houses. Benavente, on the contrary, holds to the American view that the young actor should be recognized and encouraged, and he has met this issue by inaugurating a system in Madrid whereby the most deserving of the younger actors may be seen directly under his management at the Espanol.

Another matter which is of special interest to New Yorkers is that Benavente is a close student of the work of the Educational Alliance, which had done notably good work for the stage in New York among the school children. Largely through his interest in the work of this association here he has established in Madrid the Children's Theatre which he inaugurated with "The Prince who Learned Everything Out of Books," which he especially wrote for the opening of this playhouse.

LITTLE BROTHER PLAY WORTH WHILE

As Father Petrovitch in "The Little Brother," last night, Tyrone Power once again was the delight of a crowded house at the Grand Opera House. One would have thought that the actor who could play so realistically the part of the Drainman in "The Servant in the House" would scarcely be fitted to fill the bill as a priest, but Mr. Power appeared to be as much at home in his enactment of the priest as he did in the role of the drainman.

The story was one concerning the religious fanaticism of the Russian Pogroms, and in it priest and rabbi were thrown together in an unusual and most exciting manner. Harvey Hays, who played so well as the servant in the house recently, took the part of the Jewish rabbi and took it to perfection. It was a role not far removed from the role allotted to him in "The Servant in the House," and one suitable to his peculiar characteristics.

A strain of humor was introduced to an otherwise serious play by Miss Alma Chester, who took the part of the Irish servant, Bridget. She acted her part wonderfully and her Irish witticisms wer a happy addition to the story.

HIGH CLASS COMIC MINSTREL TALENT

HARVEY'S GREATER MINSTRELS CLEAN-CUT AND IRRESISTIBLE ORGANIZATION.

With Lawrence Baker, "Spareribs" Jones, "Slim" Jim Austin, Will Merritt, Noah Robinson, the comedy end of Harvey's Greater Minstrels would be superior to other similar shows without Duke Anderson, Chaarlie Beecham and Frank Kirk. After all there cannot be too much comedy in a minstrel, provided, of course, it is clean-cut and of an irresistible kind.

Manager Harvey is justly proud of all the talent he has secured, and although it is expensive to pay high salaries to so many clever people, yet it is a lot of satisfaction to the manager to feel assured that no matter where the Harvey Greater Minstrel's play, it is going to please the patrons.

However, none of the above coterie of experts are funnier than Frank Kirk as he is playing the banjo and singing with a lighted cigar in his lips, that he apparently swallows the cigar and continues to sing as smoke pours forth from his mouth like lava from a volcano.

Kirk's performance is clever, but likewise is the work of Arnz Moore, the [illegible] of much mystery, the four old men dancing number, and the comedy acrobatic [illegible] and wing dancing of Buster Mills.

This company will be at the Grand Opera House Friday, May 28th, matinee and night, at popular prices.

KINGS' SCHOLARS.

Coveted Prizes for Schoolboys Come Direct from George V

The recent award of the King's Gold Medal for the best boy at King's Lynn Grammar School, which was gained by Mr. W. W. Grave [illegible], has drawn attention to the splendid manner in which King George has always since his accession encouraged education in this way, and to the famous schools he has thus favored.

The giving of the gold medal in question to the King's Lynn school was begun by the late King Edward VII., whose son and successor has worthily kept up the custom. The lucky boy will attend later at Sandringham during the King's visit there, and be presented with the medal by the King himself.

Another well-known school similarly honored is the Newport Grammar School, Isle of Wight, to which King George annually presents a valuable prize for the best boy, the struggle for which is naturally very keen each year.

That our present monarch takes the deepest interest in encouraging budding talent and character in this way is shown by the fact that he gives annually a scholarship of £30 a year to Dover College, of which he is the patron, so that the leading boy from that noted school may have help towards his university course at Oxford or Cambridge.

This scholarship is not given for proficiency in any particular subject or examination, but for general success and good work, as well as high character, during the recipient's whole school career.

To Rugby School his Majesty presents each year what is known as the "King's Medal" for the writer of the best historical essay. There is much competition for this distinguished honor, though the prize is seldom presented to the lucky winner by the King in person. To the ancient foundation of Westminster School, as well as to Eton College, the reigning sovereign, like his predecessors for many centuries back, has always shown special favor, since several of the customs, prizes, and honors there have to do with royalty's presence and generosity in a particular sort of way. The Latin play at the former and the "Glorious Fourth" at the latter school are cases in point.

Wellington College can boast of a "King's Gold Medal," given annually by our monarch for competition amongst its pupils. The King here again exercises great good sense, asking the Head to select each time not only a prominent scholar and hard-worker, but a boy whose character stands prominently forward as being well worthy of the school and its splendid traditions. As a soldier and sailor himself, of no mean experience and knowledge, his Majesty has a very warm corner in his heart for the sons of the services.

Probably it is this feeling too, which has induced King George to offer a specially beautiful medal as a reward to the most successful cadet in the Naval College at Dartmouth. In this respect he is following his father, King Edward VII., who took a deep interest in this college. But one may be sure that the 390 cadets at Dartmouth are all eager to win the honor appropriately bestowed by such a fine specimen of themselves. For did not our King himself graduate from the famous old "Britannia," which now serves for part of their naval training?

Seeking Lost Condor.

To delve into the unknown depths of the sea off the west coast of Vancouver Island and wrest therefrom treasures hidden for many years, is the object of S. Maddison and his party of salvagers, who will begin operations shortly. Last autumn Mr. Maddison made submarine cruises among the crags which line the coast and located four large wrecks besides a number of smaller ones. Two of the larger he identified as the Pass-of-Melford and the Valencia and one of the others he thinks is the long lost H. M. S. Condor, which disappeared in 1903 and has never been heard of since. Some of the numerous boats which met their fate on the perilous west coast carried cargoes which at the time of sinking did not make it worth while salvaging; but under present-day conditions there is freight aboard those boats which must be worth almost its weight in gold.

ONE WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE

Of Interest to Childless Women.

Toronto, Ontario.—"I suffered for a long time from a female weakness, inflammation, and a terrible backache caused by that condition. One day one of your booklets was left at my door, and I read how other women with troubles like mine had been made well, so I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash, and it helped me wonderfully, and I now have the finest little baby boy that any mother could want. I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who has female troubles." —Mrs. JOSEPH LA BELLA, 773 Shaw Street, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong, and this good old fashioned root and herb remedy contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

DAYS OF FENIAN RAID

CITIZENS OF YOUNG CANADA WERE EXCITED.

Old Torontonian Recalls the Surprise of Everybody When the Authorities of the United States Permitted Dastardly Attack Upon a Small and Friendly Neighbor.

PRIOR to 1860 the question of freeing the slaves in the south was creating such political agitation between the Northern and Southern States of America, which was finally brought to a head whether Kansas should be admitted to the Union as a free or a slave state. The Southern States were solidly in favor of slavery, whence arose the term "The Solid South," and with the election of the Republican candidate, Abraham Lincoln, a pronounced abolitionist, the States in the South seceded one after another, and the great Civil War was on with its varying fortunes till the surrender of Gen. Lee to Gen. Grant brought it to a close.

During all the time the war was on, the Fenian organizations in the States were very active advocating their cause, and numerous threats were made about invading Canada.

The close of the Civil War and the subsequent disbanding of the soldiers let free hundreds of Irish soldiers and those who were in sympathy with the movement, were enrolled under Gen. O'Neil, who organized the movement to attack Canada.

The Canadian Government were warned as to the intentions of the Fenians, and also to expect a rising of "local sympathizers, but did not take the question as seriously as they should, nor did any sane person think it possible that an attempt of such a nature would be allowed by the American Government.

The winter of '65 and '66 passed with many rumors of raids, but on the 17th March it was definitely stated that there would be local disturbances in Toronto, and to guard against this all the local volunteers were kept under arms in the drill shed, south of Wellington, by Simcoe, the whole day.

I well remember what a bitter cold day it was—the ground was bare of snow and as hard as flint. A biting north wind blew all day and the poor boys in the drill shed suffered terribly from the cold. The day passed quietly, as on account of the tense feeling there was no outward demonstration or procession, and St. Patrick was honored quietly at home and by the usual concert in the city.

With so many rumors and threats about the Fenians, the military authorities were on their toes all the time. The different regiments were kept up to full strength. In addition to the volunteers were the 30th Regiment of the line and a brigade of artillery.

As I remember how bitterly cold St. Patrick's Day was, so well I remember how hot the weather was on June the 1st. Phew, but it was warm. We were busy planting dahlia bulbs by a tall Norway spruce hedge, the pride of the nursery from the length, vigor and evenness of its shape, but the sun beat down on us unmercifully. The thermometer showed 100 degrees in the shade, and any excuse was sufficient to make us stop work. But when the word came that the volunteers were to report at once for active service, that the Fenians were crossing Niagara in force. The 30th Regiment, regulars, stationed in Toronto, were on the march. Extras from the Leader and the Globe were flying around and being read by excited people. Goodbye, dahlias, there was no more planting that day.

This was real excitement. War! War, while every fresh extra would state fresh alarms. But the same old spirit was there as in 1812. No hesitation. Brickyards stopped work, farmers left their ploughs and gardeners their planting, and all hurried into the city to get the latest news.

The day was passed amid great excitement, watching the [illegible] boards, the beating of drums, with the troops boarding the cars on their way to Niagara. June 2nd the same scorching hot weather continued, and news was eagerly watched for by throngs who gathered early around the newspaper offices, anxiously looking for news, and the bulletins came thick and fast, such as: "Enemy in force at Ridgeway, and firing began on both sides." How thrilling was the excitement only those present can realize. Several names appeared on the board. "Ensign McEachren shot. Mark Defries shot." And as the other details came the excitement grew to fever pitch. So passed the day in frenzy, with wondering remarks. "Where were the regulars? What are they doing?" And not till afterwards came fuller details, that the situation was in hand, that some Fenians were captured and Gen. O'Neil was in full retreat.

Not till the funeral of dead volunteers was held, and the whole city turned out to do honor to the brave boys, and the solemn tones of the Dead March as the cortege sadly followed the coffins on the guns, with the Union Jacks lovingly and proudly draped over them, did the people realize the dastardly villainy of the raid, and it would have fared ill for any prisoners had the crowd got hold of them.

The country was deserted, as everyone for miles had gone to the city. The Fenian prisoners were escorted and guarded carefully by a troop of cavalry on their way to the city jail.—J. McP. Ross, in Toronto Telegram.

WHY EXPERIMENT?

Food scientists claim that the leavener is largely responsible for the flavor, texture and wholesomeness of your home baking. That on no other one ingredient does so much depend. It is important, therefore, to use a baking powder that you know possesses the necessary leavening qualities.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

Contains No Alum

and is the only strictly high class baking powder in Canada selling at a moderate price. Its reputation is built on purity and highest quality.

The only well known medium priced baking powder made in Canada that does not contain alum and that has all its ingredients plainly stated on the label.

Made in Canada

Ralph Connor's New Post.

According to an official announcement from Provincial Secretary Armstrong, of Manitoba, Dr. C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor), will be appointed chairman of the Joint Council of Industry to be set up by the Provincial Government under the Industrial Conditions Act.

An East End Paradise.

There is every hope that the new garden city to be erected on the depressing site known as the Isle of Dogs will vie with better-favored sisters for supremacy in the picturesque.

As everyone knows, the Isle of Dogs—so called because it was once the residence of hounds owned by the Georgian monarchs—is a dreary area formed by the dock cutting across the famous horseshoe bend of the Thames. Here clean, sanitary dwellings are to spring up with the rapidity of mushrooms in place of the present squalor.

The houses will be built in pairs and fours in four sizes, the material to be used being stock brick with slate roofs. There is to be ample garden space; the roads will be lined with the trees and shrubs dear to the heart of the Hampstead dweller. The homes will be electric-lighted throughout, gas-heaters will supply hot water, much-coveted wardrobe cupboards will adorn the sleeping apartments, while covered-in dressers, gas-cookers, and gas coppers, coal-cupboards and spacious bath accommodation will excite the envy of northern suburban housewives.

All the flowers that bloom in the spring will, it is hoped, flourish there after the manner of other garden cities; in fact, nothing is to be spared to make the Isle of Dogs a fair island indeed.

By the end of 1921 it is anticipated that most of the 120 houses and flats planned will be ready for their lucky occupiers.

Scotland's Motor Famine.

For many a man in Scotland, according to an automobile market report from Edinburgh, it is not enough to have sufficient money in his purse to buy a motor car—he must possess his money in patience until the supply has caught up with the demand. Since that condition is not expected to come to pass for about two years, such cars as are available are bringing high prices. A popular car which used to sell for £198 before the war now brings £476; and five-year-old cars have been selling at 50 per cent. more than the original owners paid for them—a statement that may well sound like a fantastic, but pleasant dream to an American citizen who wishes to dispose of the car he has, and buy himself a new one. Horses also are scarce and high-priced for the war reduced the number of horses, and at the same time added to the present demand for automobiles, because many of those who gave up their horses during the war now prefer to replace them by motor cars. The Corporation of Edinburgh has been experimenting with 32-passenger vehicles for carrying sightseers to parts of the town and suburbs that are not served by the tramways, and the experiment has proved so successful that additional cars are needed. Besides that, the use of such cars is spreading as a means of communication between village and village, and for touring in the Highlands.

The Word "Dun."

It is said that the word dun, whose meaning is known to every one, was first used about the beginning of the nineteenth century. A constable in England named John Dun was celebrated as a first-class collector of bad debts. When others failed to collect a bad account, Dun would be sure to get it out of the debtor. It soon passed into a current phase that when one owed money and did not pay when asked, he would have to be "dunned." Hence, grew the expression: "You will have to dun so and so if you wish to collect your money." And the word became incorporated into the English language as a verb, much the same as boycott was derived from a [illegible] of that name.

ONLY FEW MORE DAYS TO WAIT FOR THE CIRCUS

It may be that on some day when summer is young you throw your window wide open and through them, upon the wings of mornings, comes the reverberating call of a bugle. You listen expectantly, and as you do the tramp of many impatient hoofs, the jingle of harness and the rumble of red wagons reach your ears.

A busy man turns to his desk half petulantly, but as he does so a band commences to smash musical rainbows across the street. It isn't like the city bands. You can't explain it—it's different, that's all, and makes you tingle from head to toes. This may be supplemented by an almighty voice, "Hold your horses—the elephants are approaching!"

That's the last straw. The boy eternal possesses you. He takes your memory by the hand and leads it back into the land of used-to-be. In a lifetime of action much that has gone before is forgotten, but the one day of days in which you saw your first circus is an evergreen memory. So it is that the circus differs from all other forms of amusement. It has established for itself a place in history and in the general affections of the people which time or environment has not dislodged.

The Sparks Three-Ring Circus is perhaps the best exemplification extent of what the modern circus is capable of producing. Thirty-three years ago it was founded by John H. Sparks and since that period it has steadily grown from a small two-car affair, to one of magnitude, and today it stands as one of the most satisfying amusement enterprises ever offered to the American public. Money, time, ingenuity and originality have been expended to the end that the offering shall be worth while and thoroughly appreciated. The word "cleanliness" has always been its watchword and let it be known that it is entirely devoid of the petty grafts usually found with other tented enterprises. Also bear in mind that the Sparks Circus is today giving more for the money than any other travelling organizations who have sought public approval and that it will exhibit in Peterborough Tuesday, June 1st, on the Exhibition Grounds.

CARNIVAL OF SPORTS

stance but this time the Englishman found Hardie in goal and Hardie sent the ball up the field out of all danger. Time and time again during the first half the English team made furious attacks on the Scotch goal but Fenner played well in goal, and the Englishmen were for the most part unable to put their superiority in the way of combination playing and speed to any great advantage. Towards the close of this half Turner received a nasty knock in the face, but was able to continue the game. Half time was called with the score standing at 1-0 in favor of England

Second Half.

The second half was uneventful except for the continued brilliant work of Fenner in goal. But for his fine exhibition it is safe to say that a tremendous score would have been piled up against the Scotchmen. The second goal for England was secured by Norman after a scrimmage in the vicinity of the Scotch goal. Both goals were obtained fairly easily, and were more the result of the general superiority of the whole English team over their Scottish opponents more than the good work of any particular player.

The line-ups:

England — Goal, Jones; backs, Willshal and McDonald; half-backs, rFost, Cridland and Edwards; forwards, Manders, Hotston, Norman, Turner and Bartley.

Scotland—Goal, C. Fenner; backs, E. Hardie, S. McMillan; half-backs, R. Thom, R. McLeish, J. Lindsay; forwards, Hannah, M. Shaw, J. Shaw, F. McKinley, J. McDonald.

Cridland showed up the best in either of the two teams, and played a wonderful game. This was seen the first opportunity that he has had to show what he could do as he is playing in the City League on a very inferior team, and it was admitted on all sides yesterday that he showed himself to be a first-class football player. On the Scotch team McMillan shone and C. Fenner also made a good showing in goal.

The Lacrosse.

While the lacrosse did not attract the attention that it would have received had there been an outside team playing against the locals, yet the two teams picked from the local enthusiasts put up a very good exhibition of Canada's national game, and showed that there is a wealth of good material for this game in Peterborough.

Music and Entertainment.

Apart from the main attractions other items on the program of events to hold the interest of the people continuously throughout the afternoon. The bands of the Great War Veterans and the 57th Regiment alternately supplied excellent music from the band stand situated directly in front of the grand stand, and the means of a huge megaphone. Scotch and comic entertainers amused the audience between the band selections. It was one round of fun and enjoyment from beginning to end and all seemed to be thoroughly enjoying themselves.

Machine Gun Drill.

Running concurrently with the football game and the races was a first-class exhibition of machine gun drill by the newly orgaized machine gun company. The boys went through the different movements, etc., with the rapidity and exactness of veterans, and reflected the greatest credit on their instructors, who have in so short a time brought them to this high standard of efficiency. They attracted great interest and admiration yesterday.

CALEDONIANS IN FIRST PLACE NOW

On Saturday, with the assistance of the Machine Gun Comany, the Caledonians ousted the C. G. E. from their place at the head of the City Football League. Although the C. G. E. and the Caledonians now have the same number of points, yet the Scotchmen are leading in the number of goals they have scored, and both teams have the same number of goals scored against them. To reach the top of the league it was necessary that the Caledonians pile up a large score against heir opponents on Saturday as well as that the M. G. C. should deliver a defeat to the unbeaten Electrics. Both these hopes were realized. The C. G. E. went down to defeat at the Oval by a score of 2 to 1 against the M.G.C., who played a very fast game.

While the Gunners did not show quite the scientific football that their opponents did, yet when it came to speed they were more than their match, although it was a hard fought game from start to finish.

While the Gunners were thus assisting the Scotchmen the Caledonians themselves wer administering a severe defeat to the much defeated Separator experts. Despite the fact that Jones was as strong as ever in goal the Scotchmen scored again and again, and when half-time was called the score stood 5-0 with the De Laval on the tail end. In the second half the losers were able to put up a little better showing, but they could neither score nor prevent [illegible] scored against although they held their opponents down somewhat better than they did in the first half. When time was finally called the Caledonians emerged victorious by a score of 7 to 0.

SPORTSMEN HONORED.

Well-known Golfer Was Given a Peerage.

One of the notable happenings of life in the Old World was that the first three men to earn royal favor this year in Britain should hold leading positions in the world of sport, but perhaps the fact that they had been exceptionally prominent in war work and other patriotic movements has had something to do with the high honor conferred upon them by King George. Two racing men in Sir James Buchanan and Sir H. Cunliffe Owen have had baronetcies conferred upon them, while Sir George Riddell, an enthusiastic golfer, has been raised to the peerage.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, seventy-one years ago of humble parents, a biography of Sir James would read more like a fairy tale than the tabulated incidents of a shrewd, successful business man. When still a lad he wandered to London and became connected with the great whiskey house of Buchanan Brothers, which lately amalgamated with another great house of the same "blend" for a capital of $25,000,000, yet despite all the money at his command the new baronet never yearned for a title, but on the contrary shunned anything that might bring him notice in the eye of the Government. He might be said to have gone through life anonymously, and an incident which leaked out only recently confirms the assertion. Last year when the log of Admiral Nelson's flagship Victory was purchased for $25,000 and presented to the nation there was an unlimited amount of guessing as to the donor. Nobody knew nor would it ever become public property now but for a leak through official Government channels.

Not alone as a racing patron does Sir James rate high, but he is a landed proprietor of mark. He owns a country residence at Lavington, Sussex, which supplies some of the best game shooting in the south of England. The house was once the residence of Bishop Wilberforce. Buchanan is a justice of the peace in his adopted county, of which he was high sheriff in 1910. Along with Lavington Buchanan owns estates in East Africa and British Columbia. His stud is at Lavington, where the unbeaten Hurry On and Santry are the sultans, and it is conducted on the most scientific principles. During his early ventures on the turf Sir James ran his horses under the assumed name of T. Kincaid, and at one time or another he experienced varying luck with such good ones as Black Sand, Epsom Lad, Golden Measure, Jingling Geordie, Bayodee and Tullibardine. Under his present name he headed the list of winning owners in 1901 with a total of $10[illegible]000. Just now the Buchanan string of racers is trained by P. P. Gilpin at Clarehaven, and they include a formidable array of young and old on the flat as well as some first-rate jumpers in The Culprit and Abo [illegible]

If the reports from Newmarket are to be credited, Buchanan has an even break to win the Derby with Sarchedon, which will be steered by J. H. "Skeets" Martin, the American jockey. The rumor is that the colt has wintered well and has shaken off the disposition to have his own way, a trait which marked his running as a two-year-old. In appearance he is a dappled grey of great bone and quality, and as he is close to seventeen hands, is endowed with ability to cover the ground in marvelous fashion. Up to the middle of July Sarchedon was rated as the best two-year-old in England, but his star was dimmed by Tetratema, a half brother and another grey, both being by The Tetrarch. Sarchedon was bought by Buchanan when a yearling for the sum of $3,500, and he is out of a mare named Perfect Peach, by Persimmon, so that as far as breeding goes the Clarehaven candidate leaves nothing to be desired.

On his first appearance Sarchedon won three races straight off the reel, showing wonderful style as a mover, but he had acquired a knack of swerving, which even such a veteran pilot as Martin was not able to master. His last win was in the July stakes at Newmarket, worth $12,510, and he was so well fancied that he went to the post an odds-on favorite at 2 to 1. Although he did not run [illegible]

[illegible] story [illegible] be complete, without a dash of romance. Some years ago when he was knocking elbows with the aristocracy, and was still a bachelor, he ran against a smart gentleman who dealt in the business of securing wives of the upper crust for wealthy commoners and vice versa. Foremost on the list of the matchmaker was a lady with the bluest blood in her veins, but she was willing to mate with a husband of the ordinary class, provided he possessed the necessary amount of cash to support her crest and family traditions in their accustomed grandeur. Sir James was the natural mark, but to the surprise of the bargain hunter he would not countenance an introduction, much less submit to a matrimonial alliance.

Sir H. Cunliffe Owen owns enormous tobacco interests in England and America, and visited New York recently. With Lady Owen, who races horses under her own name, he supports one of the biggest stables in England.

A Scotch Expression.

Very few people who use the expression "Ca' canny" have any idea what it means, or for the matter of that, how it is pronounced. A writer in Ways and Means suggests "caw" as the nearest approach to the sound of the Scottish "ca'" which stands for call—in this instance having nothing to do with calling a halt, but referring to action, not speech, such for instance as turning a skipping rope or working a pump handle. Thus, if we take pumping as an illustration, the phrase "Ca' canny" would mean to work cautiously, not to pump so vigorously that the water is slopped over and wasted; the man pumping is asked not to squander his time by doing his job badly. It is noted as a curious fact that a Scottish phrase embodying nothing but good sound ideas should have been deviated on the south side of the border to uses based on an economic fallacy.

REJUVENATED BY "VITAL" TABLETS

We claim the method of injecting glands into the system is unnecessary. The revival of youth can be brought about by taking the French rejuvenator, VITAL Tablets. A person of sixty can feel like a person of twenty. We do not claim VITAL Tablets will do all this instantly, but by taking them regularly for a time, and the time will depend upon the person, but one will gradually feel younger and eventually you will come back to the land of youth and pep. Diseases of every description will gradually disappear, men and women will be healthy and strong, doctors' bills will be reduced to a minimum. If you are not feeling yourself, go to your drug store and procure a box of these celebrated French Tablets and you will experience such a change for the good, that you will forever bless the inventor of this wonderful rejuvenating tonic. A STEAMER TRIP TO VICTORIA, B.C.

The Empress Hotel, Victoria, B.C.

Half way from Vancouver, on the seventy-mile trip to Victoria, a warning whistle sounds just before the steamer enters Plumber's Pass, a narrow gap between two islands which like a chain, fringe our Pacific seaboard. It is from here onwards that one sees the real beauties of the Coastal Belt of British Columbia, scenery of which one never tires. Here and there, on the chain of islands, the vivid green of alders or a pretty and prosperous farm peeps out from the sombre forest of firs. The giant Mount Baker, whose snow-clad cone stands a landmark for 90 miles or more, now on our port beam shines in the glittering sunlight above the rest of the cascades, and we see it all the way as it recedes far distant in the steamer's wake. To our south and east where the land and sea seem to meet is the faint outline of the entrance of Puget Sound on whose shores stand Seattle and half a dozen American towns. To our south and west, some twenty miles away, are the foothills of the mighty Olympics, whose glistening white peaks tower high above the skyline.

The Straits, which still bear the name of Juan de Fuca, are full of traffic. Side by side we pass, and dip our flag too, in passing, another of the Canadian Pacific Railway's palatial steamers—a tiny tug, towing a big boom of whole trees, swings into a little cove to shelter for the night. Another tug flying the Stars and Stripes, with half a dozen scows behind on its way from Tacoma to Sewards Bay, tells of big things up North where the building of a railway to the Behring Straits is in progress. We have left the mosquito fishing fleet at the Fraser's mouth, but every here and there are groups of gasoline launches troling for salmon. On our starboard side, back from the hundred and one little islands, shows up the shore line of the Saanich peninsula and the small town of Sidney. On and on past rocks and islets and the same wonderful scenery.

C. P. R. Steamer Princess Charlotte.

As the steamer rounds the fruit farms of Gordon Head, and clears the point that separates Cordova and Cadboro' Bays, a natural park of irregular but perfectly spaced oaks, forms the feature of the Island landscape. Oak Bay, Shoal, Foul Bay, Ross Bay, the last resting place of the "old timers," are passed in turn. Each with its own charm, delightful homes in white and red, in light and tan, and a variety of other hues, stand out from the remnant of the forest gardens, many a blaze of brilliance, green lawns girt with flowering shrubs, and, in the background, stately mansions, seemingly fairy palaces, steeped in a maze of marvellous loveliness, recall the memory of a picture sprung from the brain of some old master. Such is one's first impression of the "City of Homes," the "City of Clear Skies," the city that knows no winter and whose summers are cooler than our own.

The point that forms the entrance of the outer harbours is passed, and the charm gains and grows. The stately Parliament Buildings in grey stone, their broken lines to give them grandeur, their twenty turquoise tinted copper cupolas, their great dome crowned by Vancouver's statue, and the bold Norman entrance-arch above the facade of steps, have a fitting setting in a front of grass and flowers, and in the glorious background of the snows of the distant Olympics.

Victoria, the Queen City, and such part of Vancouver Island where the mountains shelter the land from the Pacific gales has the ideal climate of the temperate zone, the winters of New Orleans, the summers of Labrador. The rain fall is 26 inches, the summer with the exception of a little rain in June are invariably dry, there are no high winds and no thunderstorms. It is the nearest approach to paradise on earth.

Every Canadian owes it to himself, some time or other, to make himself acquainted with Victoria, the capital of the Province of British Columbia, as well as the ideal surroundings of the East Coast of Vancouver Island.

CANADIAN GENERAL BALL TEAM PILE UP SCORE AGAINST VETERANS OF 14-3

Rose Brothers Opponents in Pitching Box—Unevenly Matched Team in Tame Game.

[illegible] game between [illegible] and the C.G.E. on Saturday afternoon. The younger Rose showed himself and be a better pitcher than his brother and he also got more support from his team mates, with the result that he won his game by the handy score of [illegible] 3. Gus Rose was inclined to be wild and opened the game by walking the first three men who came up to bat. It looked very much like a shut out game for the Veterans until the sixth inning when the Veterans began to find the younger Rose for a few hits and brought in their only three runs.

The following is the game by innings:

First Inning.

War Veterans—Morse was out on a hit to second base. Murphy struck out. Anderson hit to the pitcher and was out. No runs. No hits.

C. G. E.—Collins walked and stole second. Cherritt and Ross walked. R. Rose was out on a fly to left field but Collins scored on the throw home. Jackson hit to Anderson who muffed it. Cherritt and Ross scored. Helson singled. Jackson was out stealing home and McKarney [illegible] out. [illegible] runs. 1 hit.

Second Inning.

War Veterans—Wade struck out. Gus Rose was out on a fly to Jackson. Campbell singled over second base. Foly hit to first base and was out. No runs. 1 hit.

C. G. E.—Connors struck out. L. Rose was out on a hit to the pitcher. Collins walked. Cherritt walked. Ross signled to left field. Collins scored on Wade's wild throw. R. Rose hit to the infield and was safe on Anderson's error. Jackson singled over second base and Cherritt and Ross scored. Helson struck out. 3 runs. 2 hits.

Third Inning.

War Veterans—Legon was out on a fly caught by the catcher. Field hit to Anderson and was out. Morse was out on a fly to left field. No runs. No hits.

C. G. E.—McKarney struck out. Connors reached first, hit by pitcher, stole second and was safe on Murphy's error. L. Rose walked. Collins hit an infield fly with two men on bases and was declared out. [illegible] was caught off first on the same play. No runs. No hits.

Fourth Inning.

War Veterans—Murphy struck out. Anderson was out on a fly to third base. Wade hit a two bagger to centre field. Rose hit to Collins and was out. No runs. One hit.

C. G. E.—Cherritt bunted a foul on third strike and was out. Ross hit to the pitcher and was out. R. Rose struck out. No runs. No hits.

Fifth Inning.

(Jackson replaced Field in centre field).

War Veterans—Campbell was out on a fly to centre field. Foly struck out. Legon hit to third base and was safe on Jackson's error. Field was out on a fly to second base. No runs. No hits.

C. G. E.—Jackson hit a fly to Anderson who missed it. Helson singled to centre field. Jackson scored on Morse's bad throw to third. McKarney singled. Connors singled, stolen second and Helson scored. L. Rose singled. McKarney scored. Collins hit over second base and Connors scored. Foly's error let L. Rose score. Cherritt walked. Ross hit to Foly and was safe on his error. R. Rose was out on a hit to first base. Jackson singled but was caught at second. Rose's wild pitch scored Collins. Helson singled. Cherritt scored on a balk. McKarney was out on a hit to third base. Eight runs. Six hits.

DIAMOND SPARKS

If the City League expects to hold the crowds they will have to put up a little better exhibition than was given on Saturday. Long before the second game was over the crowd had melted away. Unless something is done to even the teams up the crowd will only turn out when the Thistles meet the C.G.E. and will ignore the other games. A severe shake-up is needed in the interests of sport.

* * *

The C.G.E. were lucky to get their runs in the second inning. The umpire chose to call a perfect strike a ball when Cherritt was up to bat. It would have been the third strike and three men out before a run was scored in that innings.

* * *

Morse, the Veterans' catcher, pulled an awful bone in the second inning. He held the ball and played with a man on third when he should have thrown to first and caught his man out.

* * *

Morse showed that he could peg them down to second in the third inning and had his man easily if Anderson had not dropped it.

* * *

In the first game Wade secured the honor of hitting the only two-base hit.

* * *

Errorless ball was not played by any of the teams on Saturday, but the Thistles and the C.G.E. both kept their errors down to a respectable level. With the other two teams errors were more plentiful than hits.

* * *

Two youngsters showed promise of being first-class ball players on Saturday. They were Scates, who pitched for the Thistles for the first two innings and Wolger, who played second base. Wolgar held down the second sack better than his predecessor of last week and Scates did well in the box and was only taken out to give the pitchers who were going to Belleville a chance to get a work out.

* * *

It must have hurt Gus Rose pretty badly to see his younger brother out pitch him, but Gus' best pitching days are gone.

* * *

Swansen was robbed of a lovely hit in the first inning of the Thistles-Woollens game when he drove one to the right line. The official scorer had already figured it for a two bagger, but Kennedy showed that he could cover any part of the right field right up to the foul line and made a lovely catch.

* * *

L. Johnson had better confine his efforts to lacrosse in the future. He was easy meat for the heavy hitting Thistles and they proceeded to fatten up their batting averages right from the start. The only reason that they slackened up towards the end was that they wanted to get home to supper, and even then some of them simply could not help hitting it.

* * *

In the fourth inning Coughlin was not satisfied with letting Wolger get one base on his error, but he had to make a bad throw to first and give him two bases.

CANADIAN WOOLLENS SHOW SOME CLASS

EASILY DEFEAT HIND & DAUCH TEAM FROM TORONTO YESTERDAY.

By a score of 7-2 yesterday morning at the Riverside Park the Canadian Woollens' baseball team easily defeated the team from the Hind and Dauch Company of Toronto. Smith was pitching for the Woollens and held the visitors down to five scattered hits. He struck out eight and only walked two, both in the first innings. Errors were mainly responsible for the Woollens' 7 runs.

The home team won their game in the first inning when they secured five runs off Parnell. Parnell had enough at the end of this inning and went to short stop and Mitchell finished the game. The visitors, who had given Parnell no support in the first inning, settled down to baseball for the remainder of the game with Mitchell pitching and the Woollens were only able to get two more runs, one of which was very lucky and the other was sacrificed in.

Louis Yeotes' team [illegible] Thistles fattened their batting averages in the second game on Saturday afternoon at the expense of L. Johnson, the Woollens' star twirler. McLinock, the Woollens' south paw, was on hand warming up before the game, but evidently they did not hold out much hopes of being able to improve matters and let Johnson finish his game. The total score was 23-1 and the worst innings were the third when ten runs were scored and the fourth when the Thistles netted six. In all there were sixteen hits secured off Johnson and numerous errors helped to make up the Thistles enormous tally.

The following is the game by innings:

NANCE O'NEIL

Its policy is largely that of the Educational Alliance of New York—to furnish dramatic entertainment for the poor children of what is equivalent in Madrid to the East Side of New oYrk.

Benavente is not unfamiliar with American plays and plyers. When application was made to him for the presentation of his "La Malquerida", he considered the standing and careers of each of the principal applicants—there were three well-known American actresses seeking this play—and he personally preferred Nance O'Neil, whose work he knew about. As Miss O'Neil had played brilliantly in such standard dramas as "The Fires of St. John," "Magda," "Hedda Gabler," and Shakespearean plays, he knew that she possessed the qualities essential to an understanding and appreciation of his plays. When the announcement was made to him that the play was to be produced with Miss O'Neil he expressed his entire satisfaction.

Miss O'Neil, on the other hand, has been fitted with a part which suits her personality and utalises her great dramatic powers as he part has for many years.

At a meeting of the T.A.S.A. Executive and club representatives last night the ruling relative to affiliated players was rescinded.

WELL-BABIES CLINIC

As a rule, men do not like housecleaning time, and neither do babies. In the first place, they cannot see any sense in it at all, and secondly it interferes a little with their plans to attend the Babies' Clinic. But in spite of such drawbacks as housecleaning, moving, etc., the work of the clinic is going steadily on, and already many good results have been shown.

Every Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock in the ladies' room at the G.W.V.A. hall, the clinic is held. Nurses, trained in handling and caring for children, take the babies, as they come in, register them, weigh and measure them, and then pass them on to the physician in charge for a thorough examination. Often glaring defects are found, which the mother has not understood, and she is instructed to see her family physician without delay. In minor matters, the attending physician helps her over the hard places by timely advice.

At the end of every month, an open meeting is held, and besides the regular work, demonstrations will be given of how properly to do many things in connection with the care of children.

This month this open meeting falls on Tuesday, June 1st. Come and bring a friend who is interested in this work, even if you haven't a baby to bring. After the clinic, Dr. McPherson and Mrs. Stevenson will speak and the King's Daughters will serve tea.

BIGGEST CIRCUS THIS YEAR ON JUNE 8TH

ONLY OPPORTUNITY TO SEE REAL WILD ANIMAL SHOW.

Ah, kiddies, the big day is set!

Advertising car No. 1 of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus is in Peterborough today and announce the coming of this circus on Tuesday, June 8, just two weeks off.

A feature of the outdoor advertising is announced by J. C. Donahue, manager of the car.

In former years it has been our policy, as that of other circuses, to tack large banners to the side of business buildings in the business sections. This year we have discontinued this form of advertisement. We have realized that this policy, though an aid to the show, mars the beauty of the city. Though promises of the removal of these banners on circus day are made, no shows ever take them down, with the result that they fade and get rain soaked, then begin to bag and hang, marring the beauty of the building and the section. Many people have lost their lives in attempting to take the banners from their buildings. None of the big circuses use this method any longer, only the small eight and ten car shows continuing the old policy. This circus will only use the billboards and store windows.

This is the biggest circus visiting Canada this year and the only wild animal show. The advance agents of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus declare that the program is one worthy of everyone's patronage and worth waiting months to see. Famous equestrian acts have been brought from the London headquarters, while the greatest animal trainers have accomplished wonders in teaching the wild beasts feats unheard of before.

Two performances will be given on Tuesday, June 8, a matinee at 2 p.m. and night performance at 8 o'clock. A spectacular surprise-filled street parade will introduce the circus to the public. A convenience only provided by the big shows is a downtown ticket office, where general admission and reserver seats are on sale all show day, at the same prices which prevail on the circus grounds.

The McClary Manufacturing Co. of London has bought all the holdings of the Wm. Buck Stove Co., Ltd., of Brantford.

Archbishop John Whitgilt Is Remembered in Croydon As Founder of Hospital

A LITTLE while ago, there took place in Croydon, the ancient town some ten miles south of London, an interesting and accustomed ceremony, namely the annual festival service by which is commemorated the munificence of Archbishop Whitgift to Croydon. It was, in fact, the 324th anniversary of the foundation of the Whitgift Hospital, and, headed by bands, the boys of the Whitgift Grammar and Middle Schools marched to the parish church. The Vicar of Croydon preached a sermon, for which, under the terms of the bequest, he received sixteen shillings and eightpence, and all who took part in the festival wore "Whitegift" flowers, in other words, white stock and fern. Everything was done as it always has been done, and it was specially fitting that it should be so, for John Whitgift, sometime Archbishop of Canterbury, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, was, in many respects, the most exacting of men. "The howse which I have buylded for the sayde school howse and also the howse which I have buylded for the school master, shall be for ever imployde to that use onlye, and to no other." So ran one of his instructions. It has not been strictly obeyed, in the matter of the school house, but it shows to some extent the manner of man he was.

Now, it was on the 17th of January, 1596, that the archbishop, having obtained letters patent from Queen Elizabeth, began to build his hospital "for the reliefe and sustentation of certaine poor people." He finished it on September 29, 1599. Never was there a more methodical and painstaking builder. Not only did he give the most minute instructions as to the work, but the records of each day's progress during the three years spent in building were most carefully and elaborately drawn up. Then, in the matter of regulations, he left nothing unprovided for. Was it a question of a broken window "or other decaye by wilfulness or negligence"? then the brother or the sister responsible was to "amend it" within one month on pain of having fourpence a week stopped out of his or her allowance. For the hospital was, as it is still, both an almshouse and a school. But, as is the way with such foundations, the lands and bequests which produced but a very modest sum, three hundred years ago, have appreciated and appreciated in value until, to-day the foundation has become a wealthy trust, carrying out the ideas of the founder on a scale which, in all probability, he never would have thought possible.

John Whitgift, however, "My white gift," as Queen Elizabeth called him, just as she called Parker, her "black husband," was a man of big ideas. True, the Archbishop of Canterbury was a veritable Prince bishop, even in the days of Queen Elizabeth, but J. Corbet Anderson has left record, in his "History of Croydon," that Archbishop Whitgift's military surroundings "were somewhat carped at by his enemies." And indeed such an attitude was not altogether without excuse, for the archbishop appears to have made no small stir when he moved officially from place to place. Thus it was his custom to visit Canterbury every third year. On those occasions, he moved from his palace at Croydon with a retinue of 200 persons, and, in addition, "he was honorably escorted by the gentry of the country, so that he sometimes entered the city of Canterbury with a procession of eight hundred to a thousand horse." The archbishop, moreover, had amongst his own servants a regularly trained force of 100 foot and 50 horse which, in the days of the Great Armada, held itself ready, with the redoubtable archbishop at its head, "to take its share in the defence of sovereign and country."

Nevertheless John Whitgift was no swashbuckler, no shallow lover of pomp and circumstances. He was a sturdy bulwark against any lapse from the Reformation, a very diligent preacher, "as well after his preferments as before," a man "of middle and moderate disposition, of a free minde and a bountifull hand towards his household servants, his neighbours, but especially towards Schollers and strangers." Indeed, in spite of his military retinue, he was, as Fuller described him, "far from violence, and his politick patience was blessed in a high proportion."

FELIX DIAZ AND FORCES COMBINE WITH REBELS LOYAL TO CARRANZA

Large Bodies of Armed Men Still Faithful to Murdered President's Government—Diaz Reconsiders Resolution to Quit Mexico—News Not Yet Confirmed.

(By Canadian Press.)

Vera Cruz, May 27.—Rebel forces commanded by Felix Dias and operating along the coast of the State of Vera Cruz, near Nantla, are combining with other rebels and troops still remaining loyal to the Carranza Government, according to advices received here.

Not Yet Confirmed.

As yet there is no official confirmation of this report. Dias announced some time ago he had abandoned his opposition to the Carranza Government, and that he wished to leave the country. So far as known he has not departed, and reports state he has taken advantage of the fact that he has not been pursued, and has reconsidered his resolution to quit Mexico.

LABOR CANDIDATES FOR ELECTION

(By Canadian Press.)

Winnipeg, May 27.—F. J. Dixon, M. Law, William Ivens, convicted strike leaders, F. G. Tipping and W. E. James will be the Dominion Labor party's candidates at the Provincial election.

They were nominated at a meeting of the party last night, as the result of a ballot by mail, marked according to the proportional representation system of voting, and the four were chosen from a slate of nine.

Coalition of Liberals and Conservatives Seems Now to Be An Established Fact

The Ottawa Journal sizes up the Dominion's political situation thus:

Barely noticed by the country, almost escaping the consciousness of Parliament itself, the House of Commons has been the scene during the past few days of a momentous political event. It has seen the coalition of Liberals and Conservatives, entered into in 1917 for war effort, emerge from the obscurities and uncertainties of the past two years as a single new party with a distinctive political creed.

• • • •

Ever since the signing of the armistice the future of Unionism has been blurred. With the object of coalition achieved the leaders of its two wings could not make up their minds upon the question as to whether they should carry the unity applied to war to problems of peace, or agree to disagree and go their respective ways. Such a choice, naturally, was not easy, and the result was a prolonged delay that had many elements of danger. For while the leaders debated, and compromised and postponed, all kinds of enemies were busy at the gate. The Unionist party—if it could be called a party—had no one to look after reorganization had no bureau of propaganda, no local associations, no patronage, no common policy or platform which it could ask the country to support; and the consequence was inevitable. While the party held together in Parliament, chiefly because it could not find "a better 'ole" to go to in the House of Commons, things in the country were different. In the west the farmers welded themselves into a mighty organization to challenge the supremacy of all parties; in Ontario the United Farmers gathered sufficient strength to hurl the Hearst Government from power; and throughout the rest of the country a dissipated Unionist strength manifested itself in the growth of various political organizations, in a torrent of newspaper and platform criticism, and in strong anti-Government majorities in a series of byelections.

• • • •

When Parliament met the situation for Unionism was bad. Its enemies in the country seemed to be multiplying; its bravest friends began to waver in allegiance; members, impressed by the restlessness of their constituents, were harboring doubts as to what they should do; and the ministerial ship, without the aid of Sir Robert Borden's hand on the helm, seemed to be heading for the shoals.

• • • •

With the opening of the session, however, the position improved. The Agrarians, who were expected to drive a wedge through the Government's western supporters, showed little or no parliamentary capacity; Mr. King's leadership of the Opposition, was commonplace and often mediocre; and the ministry more than held its own in defending its policies and measures. The result was that possibilities of a Unionist break-up grew progressively more remote. The Unionists, both Liberal and Conservative, began to realise that there could be no choice as between the crude panaceas and class-consciousness of the Agrarians, the sectionalism and organized insincerity of the Opposition, and the record and achievements of the Government, and that, therefore, the perpetuation of the Coalition in distinctive party form was the goal towards which they should strive.

• • • •

Thus the project of a new party, so eagerly embraced in early Coalition days but afterwards so often in danger of death, began to take permanent form. There were difficulties and obstacles in the way, bickerings and small doubts and surface dangers, but they were not strong enough to break the links that had been forged in battle, in common patriotism, and in association; and this past week, as Sir Henry Drayton unveiled the ministry's fiscal policy, displaying adherence to moderate protection, and as one Liberal-Unionist after another stood up in its support, there were few observers wheo did not realize that Unionism as a permanent party, with the old N.P. as its fiscal flag, was at last an accomplished fact.

• • • •

Much, of course, remains to be done. There is ground to be consolidated, organisation and platform details to be worked out, and a number of other things to be settled that are inseparable from practical politics. But these, after all, are minor matters. The main objective, the history-making fact that a new political party has appeared upon the political stage, is the thing that counts.

• • • •

Whether the advent of the new party means the passing of Conservatism, the obliteration of the party of Macdonald and Cartier remains to be seen. It may be that the name "Conservative" will disappear, but that the constructive spirit and genius which have characterized its history will be largely retained. When the Chamberlain Radicals went over to the Conservatives in the eighties, not even the dominant spirit of "Fighting Joe" could obliterate the old traditions, and in the Unionism which followed, it was the principles of Pitt and Disraeli that prevailed. And so, in large measure it is likely to be in the new Union party in Canada.

• • • •

Not that the new party is to be a Tory Party. It will be anything but that. On the contrary it is likely to be neither reactionary nor radical. It will not cling to the doctrine that to preserve it it is necessary to stand still but neither will it try to uproot old and established institutions under the guise and in the name of re-

U.S. AND BRITAIN PULL TOGETHER

SUCH IS BELIEF EXPRESSED BY SIR ARTHUR SHIRLEY BENN.

MAY RECONTTRUCT EUROPE

JUST WILD MEN TRYING TO UPROOT AMERICAN CONSTITUTION.

Leeds, England, May 27.—Sir Arthur Shirley Benn, who was head of the British mission to the International Trade Conference at Atlantic City last Fall, has told the members of the Luncheon Club that he believed the United States and Great Britain would continue to "pull together." If so, he said, he thought they and their allies would be able to reconstitute Europe and get back to former conditions of trade.

A great many people had said there was no chance of Great Britain and the United States pulling together because they were so much alike—too impetuous and aggressive. He did not believe it. He had known America since 1877 and had never known a better feeling to exist between England and America than exists today among the people who counted.

There were in America, he said, pro-Germans, Sinn Feiners and others—"wild men who were trying to uproot the whole American Constitution." There were people who were working, with pro-Germans and Sinn Feiners, to do all they could against England. But they would not succeed, he said. The class of people in America who were descended from Anglo-Saxon stock were not going to give up the government of the country to any "mixed cosmopolitan body of people like the Bolshevists and their class who were making the trouble in America today."

The bulk of the people of the United States, he declared, had the most absolute faith in the honesty, courage and determination of John Bull. Great Britain, he said, owed America a big debt, but the Allies owed this country a larger one.

SLAYER'S VICTIM FROM PORT HOPE

NINTH WIFE OF "BLUEBEARD" THOUGHT WIDOW OF LATE DAVID WATT.

Port Hope Guide: "Bluebeard" Harvey, who was sentenced at Los Angeles to life imprisonment for the murder of one of the eight wives he had admitted slaying, has "recollected" still another wife whom he killed. This brings the total to nine wives he has slain. The officer, who has been constantly with the arch-criminal since his arrest a month ago, stated for the first time "Bluebeard," who was sentenced under the name of Jas. P. Watson, revealed his true identity as Joseph Gillam.

"Bluebeard's" ninth wife victim according to his confession, was Mrs. M. A. Watt. He married her in Winnipeg, and murdered her and sank her body in Lake Coeur d'Alene, in whose waters lies another of his victims.

"The woman's name just suddenly flashed through my mind. I forgot it before," was "Bluebeard's" explanation of the delay in mentioning the ninth murder.

"Bluebeard's" confession shows to date nine murders, five missing women and twenty-one marriages, and the investigators, like the public, are wondering whether the amazing list to wheich he has confessed embraces all, or whether he will have further "recollections."

He assumed the alias James P. Watson when he went to Canada, where he continued his marrying habit.

It is the general opinion here that the Mrs. M. A. Watt referred to above is the widow of the late David Watt. It will be remembered that Mrs. Watt was married in Winnipeg and that during their honeymoon she and her husband became separated for several days and the assistance of the police had to be called in to locate the husband. The initials given M. A. correspond with the assessment roll here where Mrs. Watt's name appears as Mary Ann.

GERMAN GOVT. WILL BE RE-ELECTED

LEADERS OF COALITION EXPRESS CONFIDENCE OF RETAINING POWER.

LITTLE CHANCE FOR REDS

DEMOCRATS AND CLERICALS EXPECT TO RETAIN PRESENT REPRESENTATION.

(By Canadian Press.)

Berlin, May 26.—Leaders of the coalition of the three parties now in control of the German government profess confidence that these parties, the Majority Socialists, the German Democrats, and the Christian People's Party, or Clericals, will continue in control as a result of the election to be held June 6. This election will choose members of the first regular National Assembly under the Republican constitution.

These leaders concur in saying that probably the Majority Socialists who now have 165 seats will lose a third of these to the Independent Socialists, who are expected to emerge from the balloting with seventy members of the Assembly, instead of twenty-two, which they now have. The political leaders say the communists probably will have five representatives in the new Parliament, as the German Bolshevists are well supplied with money, although their party organization is not wholly intact.

The ultra Reds expect to benefit through the recent rioting, in the Ruhr and Saxon districts, while the Democratic and Clerical leaders say they expect to retain their present representation.

There is a strong effort being made by the Conservative Clericals in the direction of inducing the National Liberals to join the coalition block, not only for the purpose of fortifying it numerically as a set-off to the losses expected to be incurred by the Majority Socialists, but also because the Clericals feel the need of moral support in new quarters for their church school policies, in defense of which they are virtually deserted by the Democrats and basically opposed by the Majority Socialists.

One of the most influential of the Clerical leaders is making overtures to Gustav Stresemann, the National Liberal leader, to induce him to pool issues with the coalition block.

CATHOLIC PRELATE WRITES DEFENDING LETTER TO LONDON PAPERS.

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 27.—The Government of India, reviewing the findings of the Special Commission investigating recent disorders in India, declares that General Dyer, British commander in India, exceeded reasonable requirements of the case, and showed misconception of his duty, resulting in lamentable and unnecessary loss of life.

This judgment, it is announced, has been communicated to the commander-in-chief, with a request that he take appropriate action.

Saved Outrages.

The Catholic Archbishop of Simla has sent a letter to London papers, defending General Dyer. He says that hesitation by authorities would have meant general murder of European men, outraging of women, loss of public buildings and desecration of Christian churches. The archbishop maintains that General Dyer saved Europeans and saved India.

Crowds surrounded this cage, according to Deberg, heaping epithets upon Kolchak and jeering at him.

Freight Difficulty Holding up Coal Imports to Eastern Ontario is Settled.

(By Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, May 27.—Prepayment of freight, the difficulty which has held up coal imports in Eastern Canada for the past month, has been settled, as far as Ontario, except the Ottawa district, is concerned, and railways will shortly make an arrangement which will provide for a similar solution of the difficulty for Montreal and Ottawa districts.

The action of the Canadian railways in agreeing to accept coal shipments with charges on Canadian haul, way bill collect, was rendered easy in Ontario by the fact that the rates to practically all Ontario points are upon combination of local rates to and from the international boundary.

Avoid U. S. Currency.

Arrangements with the railway association of Canada provided that coal importers in Canada can avoid paying for haul in Canada in U. S. currency, effecting considerable saving in the cost of transportation.

This settlement affects only coal and coke shipments.

CLAIM BOOTS CANNOT BE MADE TO RETAIL AT LESS THAN $12 A PAIR

Manufacturers Will Ask That Minimum Price for Tax be Raised—Armed With Statistics to Show Footwear is Being Manufactured as Cheaply as Possible

(By Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, May 27.—The Shoe Manufacturers' Association, of which F. S. Scott, M.P. for South Waterloo, is president, will wait upon the minister of finance in all probability this afternoon to make representations regarding the luxury tax on boots retailed at nine dollars and over. This was decided on this morning at an emergency meeting of the association.

Raise the Minimum.

It is understood that the members will ask Sir Henry Drayton to raise the minimum price for the tax to at least twelve dollars. Manufacturers claim that boots cannot be manufactured for retail at less than this figure, and the delegation will attend the conference armed with statistics to show that they are manufacturing as cheaply as possible.

Representations on the luxury tax continue to flood the Department of Finance, and arrangements are being made to receive many delegations, including jewelers and electrical men.

ONTARIO REFERENDUM IN OCTOBER

(By Canadian Press.)

Ottawa, May 27.—It is probable that the Ontario referendum on the importation of liquor will be held in October, as has already been decided in the case of three other provinces.

The definite date, however, has not yet been decided.

THREE BARBERS WENT A-FISHING

RETURNED LATER THAN EXPECTED, FOUND STORE DOOR IN MOURNING.

Rising in the "we sma' " hours of the morning, a local barber and his entire tonsorial staff decided to go for a little fishing trip before commencing work for the day, and with this end in view they utilized the boss's car and went out into Cavan, about 15 or 17 miles from the city. They were away longer than they expected, and in the meantime the morning customers began to wonder what was wrong. When the party returned to town they found on the door of the shop a crepe and an obituary notice headed by the words "Not dead but sleepeth," also the favorite flowers of the proprietor in a neat little vase. Mr. Lewis, for he was the barber concerned in the incident, took the joke in good spirit, but it is safe to say that the next time he goes on a fishing tour he will return in time to open his shop.

Their mission concerns a resumption of trade with Russia. Krasin was met by representatives of the British Foreign Office.

MEN BOARD TRAINS, INSULT PASSENGERS AND SMASH WINDOWS.

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 27.—Twelve thousand workers on the Great Indian Peninsular Railway have struck, demanding increased wages, says a Bombay despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

Men Threaten.

Yesterday afternoon the men adopted a threatening attitude, stoned workshop windows and disorganized traffic at Bombay. Trains were boarded by strikers, who smashed windows, insulted passengers and held up traffic for an hour, it is said.

The first charge of sugar profiteering in Canada will come before the Board of Commerce in Ottawa Friday.

A Tiflis despatch says the Georgians have already reached an agreement with Moscow under which the Tiflis government undertakes to prevent Georgian territory being used as a base for attacks against the Bolsheviki.

The reported willingness of the Armenians to negotiate is explained by the fact that they are exposed to attacks by Turkish Nationalists on one side and the Bolsheviki on the other, and probably have in view an arrangement assuring them of tranquility on their northern boundary

Says Such a Method Would Ineffacably Stain Honor of United States

(By Canadian Press.)

Washington, May 27. — The Republican peace resolution was vetoed today by President Wilson.

Such a method of making peace with Germany, the President said, would place an ineffacable stain upon the galantry and honor of the United States.

Without announcing his intention regarding the Treaty of Versailles, the President declared that the treaty embodied important things omitted by the resolution, and said that by rejecting the treaty the United States has declared in effect that it wished to draw apart and pursue objects and interests of its own.

WHICH THE BETTER WAY?

THE FARMERS in the United States find no favor in the suggestion of a third party composed of themselves. No, they are content, and perhaps wisely so, to throw the weight of their support on the side of that political party which gives them the greater promise of their demands being acceded to. At the convention of national agricultural organizations just concluded in Chicago it was decided to send representatives to the national conventions of both the great parties to demand recognition of the policies of the agriculturatl section of the country. The party which gives the greatest emasuer of sympathy to the farmers' demands will be supported.

It remains to be seen whether the farmers across the border or their agrarian brethren here in Canada have chosen the better way. American farmers, by presenting a solid front on the side of one great political party seem more than likely to gain legislation in their own interests, without saddling themselves with the cares and uncertainties of partisanship. Canadian farmers on the other hand, believe in the policy of a third party composed of themselves, but even with the success of the Provincial U. F. O. at the polls, resulting in a farmer Premier, before the Dominion election it cannot yet be said that the future of that third party is assured. At any rate our American farmer friends as yet see no encouragement in the prospects here to stimulate them to follow the political example of Canadian agriculturists.

UKRAINIANS AND POLES.

FLUCTUATIONS in the tide of battle between Poles Ukrainians and the Russian Bolsheviki are not doubt watched with keen interest in Canada, with sympathy for the allies. These three warring states are neighbors however, whose differences should be settled in a peaceful way in keeping with the spirit of the Treaty of Versailles, which is coupled with the League of Nations. At least, that is the light in which we should look upon the situation, no matter how unpopular even the name, Bolshevik, is in our minds. For Great Britain to interfere by financial or military aid would be contrary to the laws of that League of Nations which she has subscribed to, and the first principle of which is "peaceful solution of international differences." Had the United States Senate not withheld its endorsation of that League, it would have been in sufficient operative force by now to have averted bloody strife in Ukraine.

The Speaker of the British House of Commons was perfectly right when he declared that that Parliament had no right to discuss the government of any other country but its own. But had the League of Nations been thoroughly consolidated, then its council would have had the right to intervene in the present situation between the Russian Bolsheviki, Poles and Ukrainians.

Generaly speaking, Canadians know something about the Poles from their residence here, too much about the Russian Bolsheviki from reports, and but little of the Ukrainians, many of whom are settlers in the Canadian Northwest. And in the light of that war now being waged in the Ukraine it might be interesting to note a description of this race from an essay by Professor Charles Seignobos, who says:

The Ukrainian is a race purely Slav, gay, chivalrous made thoughtful by its own steppes—a race of poets, musicians, artists, who have fixed for al ltime their national history in the songs of the people which no centuries of oppression could silence. The singers—the Kobzars—accompany themselves on the kobza while they sing the glories of the Ukraine. All art with them is national, from the building of their tiny huts to the embroideries which adorn their clothes and which are distinguished for their originality all over the East.

Here is a people, one of the most numerous of Europe and nevertheless one of the least known. They are called Little Russians to distinguish them from the mass of the Russian people—they are called Ukrainian because they inhabit the frontier between Poland and Russia: one of the branches (in Austrian Galicia) bears the name of Ruthenian. In the nineteenth century this oppressed people revealed to the world the puissance of its artistic gifts. The Ukrainians became the first singers of Europe; the celebrated Russian music is the music of the Ukraine; and it is an Ukrainian, Gogol, who has opened the way to the Russian romancers of genius.

Paul Crath, in an introduction to the same volume says: "Where in the summer the Dnieper is carrying down its broad yellow waters to empty them into the bluish waves of the Black Sea, and upon the steeps of its mountainous right bank, like pyramids, the ancestral grave hills stand, looking over the endless plains golden with ripening rye; where the little white huts of the villagers hide themselves in the green orchards of scarlet apples, yellow pears, purple prunes, musical with the humming of bees; where, beside a broad road, under a willow tree, a blind lirnik-beggar sits, singing a song of the vanished freedom; where the "grandsons" of that freedom mow the lush grass with their scythes glistening in the hot sun, just as the sabres of their grandfathers flashed on the same.

Seven feet deep is the black soil of Ukraina, bringing forth from one seed one hundred and twenty fold. Poles, Turks and Muscovites began to press forward, eager to grasp the land flowing with milk and honey and bind her as a captive. Long centuries the sabre of the Cossack flashed beheading invaders from all parts of the world. At last it was shivered and broken. Now naught is left of Ukraina save her songs—but in those songs she still lives, engraved in the heart of the people. Let it be sung, and before your eyes you shall resurrect the dead centuries.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

ONE REALLY GETS TIRED of hearing the everlasting question "Who won the war?" Any person who followed the stupendous struggle knows very well that had not the British Empire, France, Belgium and Italy held back the Teuton allies for four dreadful years. America would not even have had an opportunity by her buddies' presence in the eleventh hour of everlastingly bragging that they won the war. And the following extract from "Chalmers Comes Back," by W. J. Dawson, an American, is a timely rebuke to his own people:

"I am an American, so don't think I am capable of disparaging America. No armies have fought with finer devotion than our American boys. They are equal to the best. But they didn't win the war. They came too late for that. They helped turn the scale beyond doubt. That was a great thing to do. But if you will look at the casualty list of the last three months of fighting, you can easily see who bore the brunt of the struggle. For week after week the British casualties ran at thirty to forty thousand. I'm not saying that the American troops wouldn't have fought quite as well, but they weren't there in sufficient numbers. They held one end of a long line, and held it splendidly. They did great things in the Argonne. But do you know that up to the very end of the war hardly an American airplane was in the air? They weren't ready. The American aviators flew in French and British machines. Sometimes they had refitted them with American engines but that was all. The fact is—and it's a splendid fact—that America had laid her plans for a long war. She had built railways right across France to supply her troops with food and munitions. She had organized with tremendous efficiency for at least four years of war. Obviously it follows that when the war ended suddenly she had not put forth her strength. It was there, but it wasn't mobilized. Therefore, it's nonsense to say that America won the war. She helped immensely by her wealth and her unexpected military efficiency and the effect that these things had in destroying the morale of Germany. She helped to the utmost of her opportunity in actual fighting. Isn't it enough to say that without parading all the streets with placards, 'The Yanks Did It'?

"I should be a very poor American if I didn't do justice to my comrades in arms. I don't suppose you know it, for the world generally doesn't know it yet, but the Canadians were the hammer-head of all the great final attacks. They were always put into the place of the greatest danger. They used to be called 'Foch's Pets.' But I never heard them boast that Canada won the war. For four long years and a half they fought from Ypres to Drocourt, but I never heard them boast about it. It's the spirit of boasting I dislike. It's petty. It's parochial. It isn't worthy of America. It's just because I'm an American that I hate to hear any American talk boastingly of his own doings, in tacit disparagement of those who fought much longer than he, and against more terrible odds."

HAPPY HUNTING GROUNDS.

MR. THOS. SETON, in his "The Arctic Prairies," claims to take one again to those happy hunting grounds which we used to frequent in boyhood under the tutelage of the lamented Mayne Reid. That is to say that, although the buffalo is extinct on those Western prairies where it used to be in countless numbers, it is nevertheless still to be found and to be hunted in the far Northwest. Thither Mr. Thompson Seton leads us. The hunt of the buffalo is not what it was, for even after all these miles of wild prairie traversed the herd is comparatively small; but the real wild buffalo is there, and so is the Red Man, not quite so noble as of yore, with a slouch hat on his head and a short clay pipe—modern edition of the peace calumet—between his teeth.

Captain Augustus Buchanan in his "Wild Life in Canada," takes us to the same country of the same semi-noble Red Man of the Chippewa tribe. But he does not take us buffalo hunting. Both with him and with Mr. Thompson Seton we may hunt the caribou, that caribou of the Barren Lands where the animal gives for finer sport than in a woodland country. And of large game this is almost all that we shoot with Captain Buchanan, though Mr. Seton takes us after the musk ox. By compensation, Captain Buchanan's is rather the book of the naturalist sportsman. Both are pleasant, both are attractively illustrated, neither can be overlooked by any to whom the call of the Magnetic North has come and who think of voyaging in the lands of the Hudson Bay territory and the like frozen regions, both are agreeable reading to those who sit out on a hot lawn and wish themselves cool on an ardent summer's day. But neither is to be caled important in any sense nor exhaustive of the great distances and the great subjects of which they treat. Such ambition was not within the aim of either writer; but both have produced books of travel gossip, and of sporting chat lightly concocted and to be conned without brain fag. We have read many of their like before, and gladly would read more.

CURATIVE POWER OF MUSIC.

THE THERAPEUTIC value of singing both by causing ful lexpansion of the lungs and by its invigorating effect on mind and body, is not fully appreciated," writes the London correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association. A Vocal Therapy Fund has been formed with a committee containing several well-known leaders of the profession. In appealing for funds the committee points out that the work is partly curative, consisting of individual training under medical supervision, of men suffering, through shock and strain, from stammering, aphonia or mutism, and partly restorative by instruction in choral singing, taking advantage of the well-known power of song to cure ailments affecting speech and respiration.

Trained choirs have been organized which give concerts both in and out of hospitals, and song centres have been started at special and general hostels, hospitals and hostel centres in London, England, and the provinces. It is thought that the treatment would be especially applicable to the many thousands of medically unfit men discharged from the military hospitals who are unable to [illegible] full use and enjoment of li[illegible]

THE VALUE OF COMPULSORY TRAINING.

Amazing Career of Hungarian

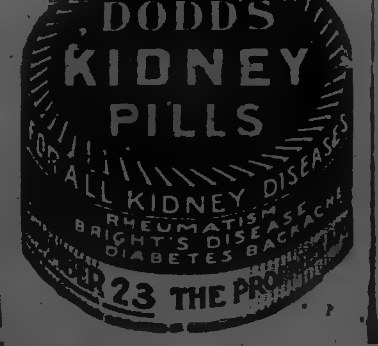
ONE of the many evil geniuses that have plagued Hungary since the war appears to have fallen, at least temporarily, and while we have no particular reason for wishing Hungary well, she is to be congratulated upon the spectacle of Stephen Friedrich, formerly Minister of War, in prison on a charge of murder. He is accused of responsibility for the death of Count Stephen Tisza, one of the leading statesmen of the Central Powers throughout the war. He was Premier of Hungary and a bitter enemy of the Entente. When he was shot to death in a revolutionary uprising there was no great grief expressed in Hungary; but the Hungarians after an experience of the Hapsburgs, the Reds and the Whites have come to the conclusion that the Hapsburgs were comparatively innocuous. They are tending to them now, and it is for the purpose of stimulating this feeling that they are called upon to deplore the untimely taking off of Tisza. Those in the plot to re-establish the Hapsburgs may deplore the fact that Friedrich is made the "goat" in this murder trial, but his brilliant rise from obscurity to power made him enemies, and he is being thrown overboard.

Friedrich was an obscure manufacturer of machinery and was unheard of until the revolution of October, 1918, which marked the end of Austro-Hungarian resistance. At this time he was living in a suburb of Budapest, and seized the opportunity to organize a secret society on the Russian pattern. The plan was to introduce soviet government in Hungary. Friedrich edited an anti-militarist paper with this end in view. It was this organization that decreed the assassination of Tisza; and if Friedrich was not one of those who slew the premier he provided them with the weapons for the act. It was Friedrich who organized the Officers Council of Eleven and presided over it, although he was not an officer. When the revolution succeeded, he was nominated by this powerful council as Minister of War. Nevertheless the nomination was ignored by the National Council as well as later by the Karolyi Cabinet. With characteristic impudence, however, he presented himself at the War Department and finding Col. Linder in charge he appointed himself as under-secretary and simply declined to be discharged.

When the Bela Kun Soviet Government collapsed, Friedrich at an opportune moment presented himself to the populace from a balcony and announced that he was the new Minister of War, and that he had the sanction of the Entente Allies. Though this was denied by the Allies' representatives. Friedrich appears to have been able to hang on, and once in power had men and money at his command to maintain his position. He became with Admiral Horthy one of the two chief leaders of the Whites, as the present party in power calls itself, in opposition to the Reds. For a while the two cooperated successfully, for they were equally determined to wash out in blood any emouldering embers of the revolution and to bring about the reinstatement of the Hapsburgs. But there was this difference between them, that whereas Horthy desires to have the former Emperor Charles restored, Friedrich has been plotting and murdering in behalf of the Archduke Joseph. Lately the balance appears to have been turning in favor of the Horthy faction, and now he feels independent enough to do without his bloodthirsty coadjutor.

Friedrich is one of the most remarkable adventurers cast up by the backwash of the war. That he is not a man of great ability would seem to be indicated by the fact that he lived until middle age and was a manufacturer in a small way without anybody hearing about him. His chief equipment for the part he has played in the past year is unlimited impudence, no scruples whatever and a sincere hatred of the Jews. It was the last quality that made him popular. When a Jewish massacre was on foot he was in the foreground and among the Magyars hatred of the Jews appears to be flaming more fiercely than it flamed in Russia. Both Horthy and Friedrich had also the advantage of the support of the Roumanian army when it invaded Hungary, and this backing, apart from anything else, would have kept them in power. He was deferential to the Roumanian officers, but this did not prevent him from making impassioned harangues to his countrymen in which he denounced the barbarities of the Roumanian invasion.

This suggests another quality that the man seems to have discovered almost overnight — a gift of fiery language and a sense of what a mob likes to hear. Horthy had at least military training for his post. Friedrich had nothing but his innate ruffianism, and luck: for a man must be lucky to be an organizer of the Reds, and within a year a leader of the Whites. The truth is that since bloodshed was the chief quality of both, the moral difference between them was not great, though the political divergence was marked. His downfall is due chiefly to Francis Gondor, a Hungarian, now in exile in Vienna, who, in his Socialist paper has charged Friedrich with murder and has even violated a Socialist canon to the extent that he has collected sound evidence to prove his case. Horthy, as remarked, is not displeased, and Horthy is at present the boss of Hungary. To get rid of Friedrich is a step in the right direction, if Hungary is to regain her sanity. To get rid of Horthy will be equally helpful.



"MOONSHINING."

It Is Illegal in Many Lands, Including Canada.

American newspapers inform us that an "open revolt" against prohibition has broken out in Iron County, in the State of Michigan.

A party of state constables, having seized a large supply of contraband whisky, was stopped by a powerful force of county police and forced to give up the kegs which they had confiscated.

How many people have any idea that there was once a real war in America over this self-same business—the distilling of contraband spirits?

The American colonists, having risen against the Mother Country over the Tea Tax, found their own Government insisting on a revenue tax on all spirits. The people of Eastern Pennsylvania strongly objected, and when their objections were over ruled, actually rose in arms.

The business is recorded in American history under the title of the "Whisky Insurrection," and the great President Washington had to raise a force of 15,000 men to subdue the trouble. Many homesteads were burnt, and quite a number of lives lost before peace was finally restored.

The countries which have always been "up agin' " the tax on spirits are Ireland and the American States of Kentucky and Tennessee.

The game is known as "moonshining," because, while the stills may be worked by day, the illicitly-distilled liquor is always distributed at night.

In Ireland the Royal Irish Constabulary are always busy hunting moonshiners, and hardly a month passes without the discovery of a still.

When a still is found it is destroyed, and any store of liquor discovered is treated in the same way. Just before the war a party of police raided a still in County Mayo, and, as one of them said, "It went to our hearts to burst up the kegs and pour all that good liquor down the drain."

But they did their job, and went away. When they were gone the owners of the still, who had been in hiding, returned. They took up the grating above the drain, removed some brickwork, and drew up a large cask full of whisky. Knowing what would happen, they had prepared for the police visit by putting this cask in position beforehand.

All through that wild, wooded country which surrounds Panther Knob and Little Frog Mountain in Tennessee, the mountaineers still defy prohibition, just as for generations past they have defied the revenue authorities.

One of the most wonderful characters ever known in this district was Betsy Sims, "the beautiful giantess." Betsy was six feet in height, splendidly built, extraordinarily handsome, and the head of an organized gang of distillers.

The revenue men tracked her at last, and found her in a hidden "still house" in the most inaccessible part of the ranges. Even then she refused to surrender. She fired the place, and tried to escape under cover of the smoke. An officer saw her and seized her. She drew a knife and stabbed him. It took three men to make her a prisoner.

The story of the brothers, Silas and Milos Wood, is well known in that state. They had a still. An acquaintance, David Payne, wanted to come in. They refused, whereupon he turned revenue man and arrested them. They served a year's imprisonment. When they got out Milos sent Payne a message not to come "a-breshing against my palings."

David came. There was a quarrel. He shot Milos and his uncle, and himself went to the "pen" (prison) for ten years. From this murder started a feud which still rages among the fierce mountain men.

They are marvellously loyal one to another, these moonshiners. A man called Gus Reddon had long defied the law, but at last was tracked down, and caught in the very act of working his still.

He turned, to find two "Revenues" with their pistols pointed at his head. At that moment, through the open window, he saw his partner, Silas Reilly, coming down the path with a bag of meal over his shoulder. The "Revenues" saw him, too.

"You make a sound, Gus," threatened one of them, "and I'll shoot you dead!"

Gus Heddon's reply was to shout a warning to Reilly at the top of his voice. Next moment the pistol spoke, and he fell, mortally wounded.

Go up into that country to-day, and you will find these men living in one-room shacks. The walls are loop-holed, and a Winchester or Martini repeating rifle hangs in a rack above the fireplace.

Up in our northwestern territory the laws against selling liquor to the Indians are extremely severe. But since the Indians will exchange their choicest furs for what is called "klootch," the law is constantly evaded.

Since the law made vodka a state monopoly in Russia, illicit distilling has become a gigantic, but of course secret, business. Just before the war the arrests for this kind of thing had risen to over 7,000 yearly. At present there is probably not much of it. The wretched people need all their grain for bread.

TREATMENT IS A [illegible]

Dr. C. K. Clarke Speaks of [illegible] in Canada.

That the people of Canada have so far been criminally remiss in their treatment of the mentally diseased through prejudice and apathy, is one of the serious charges made by Dr. C. K. Clarke, president of the National Committee of Mental Hygiene and Dean of the Faculty of Medicine of the University of Toronto. Dr. Clarke has been in nearly every asylum for the insane in Canada and expressed the opinion that the condition of the public asylums was not anything to be proud of. He gave the opinion that as in the educational system the individual had been overlooked, patients were herded together, and staffs were not properly qualified.

"Hospitals for the insane should not be built with any other end in view than that of the betterment of the individual patient," he said. "Many provinces have apparently proceeded along the line that when they have built highly ornamental and extravagantly constructed institutions, they have done their duty. I am firmly of the belief that if more money were lavished on building up staffs of proper size and ability, more efficient administration would be secured."

Anyone familiar with the requirements of even a custodial institution at the present time, knows that the medical staff should have at least one well trained phychiatrist for each one hundred patients, an ample staff of trained women nurses, a staff of occupational therapy experts, a social service department, proper segregation of different types of disease, well-equipped hydro-therapeutic and physio-therapeutic departments, work shops, gymnasiums, and other outlets for the purpose of winning back the diseased to health. These are only a few of the things required, and yet how many of the so-called hospitals for the insane have them? Why the staffs are generally appointed with the idea that the physicians will attempt to do the impossible, and to give these amiable gentlemen justice they make the effort with a pertinacity that does them credit.

"Public institutions, such as asylums, are peculiarly the stamping grounds of the needy politicians," says Dr. Clarke, "and the staffs are ordinarily appointees of politicians who have not only enunciated, but practiced the dictum that 'to the victors belong the spoils.' Superintendents have rarely been selected, because they were accomplished phychiatrists, but rather because their political applications demanded and received recognition. Now to be quite frank, many of these superintendents have been admirable men, full of the best instincts, but it is not possible to acquire a knowledge of psychiatry and institutional management by divine inspiration.

Dr. Clarke instanced the military hospital at Cobourg, as an institution where, due to methods of treatment a patient who had a chance would get it, and proceeded:

"What are the requirements, then, for the model treatment of the insane? (1) The recognition of the fact by provincial governments that while the care of the insane is their responsibility in a sense, yet the management and control of the institutions should be in the hands of commissioners whose reputations are beyond reproach. The Board of Commissioners should have an accomplished psychiatrist, a well-qualified lawyer, and an astute business man as their chief members, all of the type not to be influenced by political considerations. (2) Psycopathic hospitals should be erected in cities in close proximity if possible to the universities and large general hospitals. They should be as well equipped as a surgical hospital. They should provide facilities for medical students to become acquainted thoroughly with the knowledge of psychiatry. Thus they are able to take advantage of the laboratory service of the hospital, of the X-ray department, and afford mental facilities for the training of special nurses. The fact, too, that acute cases can receive immediate and thorough treatment, without suffering the stigma attached to going to an asylum, is one that has no end of therapeutic value. (3) Hospitals for the insane should be built with no other end in view than the betterment of the individual patient. The reaction against extravagant asylum building is founded on common sense."

Dr. Clarke says that some of the Ontario Hospitals for the Insane are a credit to the province, and Whitby as an institution is admirably equipped, as is Rockwood Hospital at Kingston and the Eastern Hospital at Brockville. His chief point is that prevention is not regarded as the "sine qua non," and early treatment in psycopathic hospitals is not provided for acute cases. Until this is done, regardless of the responsibility of the municipality which has ordinarily been made the scapegoat by daily politicians, reforms will not come. He insists that the Government should boldly face its responsibility and show that it is really what we all hope for, a Government of action rather than promise.

"If there are particular provinces that should be commended, these are British Columbia and Manitoba. Winnipeg has taken the lead, while Ontario has fallen out. All through the West psycopathic hospitals of the latest type are being built. I have always believed in the virility and constructive ability of the great West," said Dr. Clarke, "and when asked to assume the directorship of the Canadian National Committee on Mental Hygiene, frankly said that if our work was to succeed we must get the co-operation of the West. The people there are unhampered by a host of traditions that keep back the East."

The Label.

As the man and the maid strolled through the picture gallery the woman stopped before an exhibit. "Oh, how sweet!" she breathed. "I wonder what it means?" questioned the young fellow, as he eyed the pictured pair who clung together in an attitude of love and longing. "Oh, Charlie, don't you see?" the girl chided tenderly. "He has just asked her to marry him and she has consented. It's lovely! What does the artist call the picture?" The young man leaned nearer and eyed a little label on the frame. "I see!" he cried. "It's printed on this card here—'Sold!' "

THEATRICAL

NANCE O'NEIL IN PASSION FLOWER

ONE OF AMERICA'S FOREMOST EMOTIONAL ACTRESSES COMES TO GRAND.

"The Passion Flower" by Jacinto Bonavente, in which Nance O'Neil, one of America's foremost emotional actresses, won one of the most remarkable artistic triumphs of the past season in New York, where the play ran throughout the theatrical season, was accorded the most pronounced approval by the discriminating critics and special writers in New York. The importance of the play and the general production attracted not only the regular critics but the literary sharps as well. Benjamin de Casseres, for instance, gave vent to this passionate tribute to the play:

"'The Passion Flower' is one of the greatest plays ever written because it is a masterpiece of technique; it evokes the atmosphere of fatality in a way that has been equalled or surpassed only by the Greeks, Shakespeare, Ibson, Hardy, Turgenev, St. John Irvine and Tolstoy—at his greatest. It is evolved according to the best Freudian laws, which are as profound as life. One must see this great play by washing himself clean of all his Broadway conventions. We understand why we have got to go abroad for our ideas and our art. No American could possibly have written what Jacinto Benavente has done in 'The Passion Flower.'"

Mr. de Casseres represents the literary opinion of the play. He is a leading literary critic and essayist. But the play made an appeal to a much wider group of admirers. The digest of the daily newspapers of New York, on the morning following the premiere of the play in that city, is evidence of this universal appeal and approval.

"A big actress in a big play," the Evening Telegram declared, to which the Post adds: "Stirred a large audience to the depths," "by fine acting of a kind we but seldom see," concludes the Evening Mail. The Times says it is a "richly written and extraordinary dramatic play, the vivid and vital work of an expert." Of Miss O'Neil the Evening Telegram declares "in the great moments her elemental forcefulness sweeps everything before it, in "the most sensational climax of any play in New York this season" the Sun adds. "The gripping close of the second act was masterfully worked up to," the American says of the second act, while of the act which followed the Evening World tells its readers "has the strength of convictions." The theme is a most unusual one, the Evening Globe congratulating the cast upon its artistic handling of "an extraordinary sex situation, extra ordinarily handled," and the Tribune summing it up as "the most amazing production of the season," and the Globe adding that it is "one of the greatest plays ever written."

It is a matter of congratulation to playgoers of cities in Canada that the company which was responsible for winning these high critical encomiums from all the dramatic writers of the Metropolitan press, will be held intact for the long tour in which the company is now engaged. Miss O'Neil, of course, is the dominant spirit in the entire production. But Benavente, who is himself an actor as well as theatre manager, holds to the theory that a play should be a chronicle of an ensemble rather than an individual. Without competent supporting members, there could be no artistic success. Richard G. Herndon, the director of this tour and company, is also a believer in this policy, and he has held intact the company which assumes a continuance of the brilliant work which has marked the life of the play in New York.

At the Grand, Saturday evening, May 29, for one performance only.

Legitimate Prey.

One day a little old woman appeared at the parsonage to be married to an old man. The woman was bent over so much one had to stoop to look into her face. The bridegroom was deaf as a post.

All the time the pastor was making out the necessary papers the woman talked and muttered to herself, saying: "I don't know why that stingy old man wants to get married. He doesn't want to pay a cook, that's all. Make him pay well, parson. He's worth it. He's got a farm and lots of money. He's a mean, stingy old man and he's deaf and can't hear what I say. Charge him good, brother."

The ceremony over, the man paid the customary $5, with the bride still jawing, he utterly oblivious of it all.

Knife Pickwick Handled.

There is a first-rate anecdote in Mr. J. J. Hissey's book, "Gossip of the Road," concerning the popularity of Dickens—or Pickwick. One of the two, but which one? Phrenological.

An old reminder, says the Independent, of the days when phrenology was popular as a means of "reading character," with a sly dig at the tendency of its professors to give complimentary explanations of the "bumps," [illegible] in a letter from Elizabeth Barrett Browning advertised for sale in a London bookseller's catalogue. It reads in part: "Do you believe in phrenology? Did you ever consult a phrenological oracle? and did it answer, '[illegible]on, thou art invincible?'"

[illegible] of the secrets of the war was revealed recently when a party went down to the Victoria docks, London, to inspect the Wilson liner Borodino. This ship was chartered in the early days of the war by the Junior Army and Navy Stores for the purpose of supplying the sailors of the grand fleet with comforts and luxuries that they would otherwise have had to do without. One of the sea lords at the beginning of the war, when the grand fleet was keeping its vigil in Scapa Flow, recognized that the officers and men needed something to relieve the dullness of existence while waiting for the German fleet to come out.

Won By Waiting

By ALVAH JORDAN GARTH

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

It was like a transition from the arid desert to a fertile valley of Eden, the abandonment of an impossible farm in the alkali lands, and a grateful settling down in the welcome groove of the Walden place. It was the possession of a decrepit old man, Ezra Walden, and his orphan niece, Iola, and from the start John Burton liked it and bound himself to remain. He was to work it on shares and after that on a half ownership basis.

Outside of comfort and prospect there was Iola. It took less than a month for Burton to treasure her as the brightest little being he had ever met. First he admired her, then he longed for her constant company and finally came to love her.

And then disenchantment, so far as his hopes were concerned: a blow sudden and bitter and then all the sunshine of life seemed blotted out for him. Iola had come to treat Burton almost as one of the family. She enjoyed companionship with a person so intellectual and kindly, and he entertained the secret hope that as time went on she might come to regard him with the favor of affection. The palace of happiness he had built so fondly crashed into ruins as one day Ezra Walden called him to his room, where he lay slowly wasting away.

"Sit down, Burton," said the old man feebly. "I want to have a talk with you. You have been a great help and comfort to me, you have worked hard and faithfully and I don't want to see you lose by it. I haven't long to live, the doctor told me last week. When the end comes there is Iola to think of. I want to provide for her as fully as possible. Iola wishes to go to Denver."

A quick pain struck the heart of the silent lover. "She has relatives there?" he ventured faintly.

"No, but about a year ago a man named Blake Darrell spent a month here hunting and fishing. He was a flashy, boastful sort of a fellow and between you and I, did not impress me very favorably, but as I later learned made love to Iola and she was impressed. It was after he was gone that the child told me that he had filled her mind with all kinds of glowing ideas of the active life of the city, that he was writing to her regularly, and if she ever came to Denver he would see that she got a fine position and would make her his wife. She did not exactly agree to this, for she wasn't sure of her own mind, but I can see that when I am gone her thoughts will all be fixed upon going into this new life. What I was thinking was this: You say you have about a thousand dollars saved up. Buy the place here, pay down what you can and the balance to go to Iola as she needs it. Only this: if her mind is set on going to Denver, and if she wishes to marry this man Darrell, go with her and become her guardian until that is consummated, just as if you were myself."

Burton's heart was heavy as he gave his promise to carry out the injunctions of Mr. Walden. His dream was over and done. Iola was lost to him and the future seemed blighted. Within the week the old man died. A kindly neighbor took Iola in her charge and a few days later Burton called upon Iola to learn her wishes.

She was subdued with grief, forlornly uncertain, but finally told Burton that she wished to go to Denver. He explained to her the wishes of her grandfather and she seemed to experience a deep gratitude for his helpful, loyal service.

This was emphasized when together they started for the East. His delicate and solicitous care for her comfort touched Iola deeply. She began to realize how she would miss the sturdy, sterling friend when he went back alone to the old farm for which she secretly began to grow homesick. She was almost tearful when he left her at a hotel in Denver. Her face wore a strange seriousness when he called the next morning.

"I would like to have you deliver this," she said. "Wait for no answer." And she handed him a letter directed to Blake Darrell.

She was in a nervous flutter when Burton returned. He also acted unsettled and shaken.

"I have strange news for you, Iola," he said. "Blake Darrell was shot dead in a drunken brawl a month since. He left a widow."

To his surprise Iola seemed little affected by the intelligence. "I changed my mind half way to Denver," she spoke in troubled tones. "I do not intend to remain. Oh! my good, kind friend, whom I alone can trust, take me back—home!"

Burton began to tremble with vague suppressed emotion. She tore open the envelope he had returned to her. "Read it, please. It will explain," she said in subdued tones and turned her face away.

He understood as he traversed the lines telling Darrell that she had decided not to marry him, that her love was bestowed upon another.

"You are going back to the old home?" spoke Burton.

"Yes, if you will take me," said Iola fervently. "We had not left the dear old place an hour before I realized my folly."

He hastened to take her hand. Her head dropped to his shoulder and he knew he was that other to whom she had referred in the letter.

The Lost Page

By CECILLE LANGDON

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

There came a call from mother downstairs, just as Lucy Barton had finished a letter to a friend at the seaside. It was six pages in length and, in gathering up the loose sheets and folding them later, Lucy Barton did not notice that one of them, the last, was missing. The wind had blown it away.

That last page bore the final paragraph of the epistle and read: 'I shall not visit Ocean Beach this season, Winnie, dear. I suppose it is because I am a little homelike being and too closely analyze the superficial beaux and belles of idle social life. My dream is a modest one—a sweet little cottage, covered with roses, a cuckoo clock and a dairy. As to the life partner, with all this happy beauty he must simply love me.'

A shy, retiring young man passed the place an hour later. As he neared the Barton home he walked slowly and saw to it that his cuffs were adjusted and his necktie smooth and neat. He looked disappointed as he peered past the trees and shrubbery of the garden. Gordon Heath had met Lucy Barton twice and longed earnestly to meet her again. As he reached the edge of the lot a sheet of paper caught up from the garden by a fitful breeze, almost blew into his face. He caught it in his hand and was about to throw it away when he noticed the words, "Your faithful friend, Lucy Barton."

It made the finger tips of shy Gordon Heath thrill to come in contact with words the adorable Lucy had written. His glance [illegible] on the paragraph preceding the signature. Reverently Gordon folded the rose-colored, violet-scented page, placed it in his pocket and half a mile further on sat down on a bench in a little park and was lost in deep reflection.

That evening he met Lucy at a little social function and was her escort home. As they parted Lucy read [illegible] eager, though mute, wishes aright. She invited Gordon to call at the house and he went away blissfully treading on air.

Lucy was amazed at the liking she began to conceive for this casual acquaintance who soon developed into a regular escort. He had not the courage to seek the [illegible] but would give him the right to [illegible] his sentiments, and Lucy did not [illegible]. [illegible] at a tennis party at the Barton [illegible] and half a dozen of those [illegible] arrived. They were [illegible] shy when Nell Brown caused Lucy to [illegible] as he observed: "I say, who can solve for me the mystery of Gordon Heath's latest [illegible] movement?"

"Why, what is it?" propounded his [illegible].

"Dacre, the real estate man, told me today that he had sold the Morse cottage to Heath."

"Aha! That solves a branch mystery," broke in Roy Telford. "I saw Gordon up at the nursery last week, ordering enough rose bushes to cover a farm."

"And a carpenter came into our place this morning and arranged for material to put up a little up-to-date dairy on the place Heath has bought," said Val Endicott. "He's certainly going to get married. Lucy, how is [illegible]?"

Lucy was growing as red as a peony. "Why do you ask me?" she fluttered; but just then a new arrival was observed at the gate and Gordon Heath [illegible]ached. Mercy Brown, tease that she was, advanced to meet him.

"Oh, Mr. Heath, the secret is out!" she cried.

"Why, what do you mean?" interrogated Heath.

"Cottage—roses—dairy! We are all wild to know who you intend to put in that pretty home you have bought."

"Why—that is I—I purchased it as an investment."

"Nobody believes that, and while we are waiting for the others there is time to run over to the cottage in question."

He looked quite uncomfortable as the imperious group forced him to lead the way. He never addressed so much as a word to Lucy, at his side.

All about his "investment" [illegible] bushes had been set. Behind it was the frame structure that was to be the dairy. Lucy and he stood on the porch. The others scattered about the place as he unlocked the front door.

"There are five rooms—" began Gordon, when Lucy uttered a quick gasp as her eyes fell upon a clock on the mantel.

"You see—I mean—that is I have started in buying a few things already."

There was an interruption. [illegible] little door in the clock [illegible] and a little bird ran out [illegible] "cuckoo!"

[illegible] in his pocket. He [illegible] the lost sheet.

"Miss Barton, I found this near your home. You can guess the rest. [illegible] the cuckoo and myself got to lead a lonely life?" he spoke.

"Why, I like cuckoos," replied Lucy, delightfully candid; "and I [illegible] you, too—"

Her glowing eyes told the [illegible] story and between them they [illegible] their first kiss in their future home.

Merits of Wooden Barrel Obvious.

A barrel can be rolled. This is its greatest merit, says Popular Science Monthly. Every other shape of container which weighs over a hundred pounds when filled, must be lifted bodily and carried on a hand truck or by hoisting machinery. One man can unload a carload of sugar—200 barrels of it—in less than an hour. Don't you wish it were at your door? No other container can be handled at this rate, even by two men working at top speed.

SEE PETERBOROUGH'S PRODUCTS PRODUCED

THIS IS SLOGAN OF Y.M.C.A. BOYS ON OBSERVATION TOUR

See Peterborough's products produced" is the slogan of the boys' observation tours through the different factories of the city, another of which was held yesterday afternoon to the plant of the De Laval Company. Over eighty-five boys were on hand to take advantage of the opportunity presented. Efficient guides are able to explain many features which even those who are employed in one department are not altogether familiar with. The boys evince such keen appreciation of the educational value of these tours that it sends each forth a publicity agent in a small way.

Entering the factory at the north gate the group was divided into parties and started through the machine shop. Wending their way along the centre pasage they were able to grasp the picture of a sea of whirling belts and machinery. All crowded around to watch an employee skillfully weld small particles on what looked to be a part of a separator. Then in single file they were taken through the metal polishing branch and in to the little room where the electro-plating is done. The process was rather pre-digested for the boyish minds by being explained in relationship to the plating on a pair of skates.

In the Silo Department, where mechanical perfection is at its best, the machinery which takes lumber from the piles in the yard and unaided by human hands turns it out ready to be erected a silo, was made the subject of discussion. In the rear of this department piles of lumber used as stock for the Silo Department showed how the wood is dipped in a solution to preserve it from the elements.

A milking machine came in for its share of questions in the main warehouse. Though obviously of too technical a nature to permit of much discussion as to the make-up, the guide was able to point out the advantage of the machine over the hand milking of yesterday.

Then came the Separator Department with once again the belts and busy machinery; punch press, lathes, etc. The assembled separator was shown in the testing room where it is run to assure of its being in first-class order before being placed upon the market. Then came the big event—to the boy. A kind-hearted employe in the dipping room, by the use of the dipping tank, transformed a copper into a silvery piece resembling a quarter and instantly he was besieged with others to be put through a similar process. It was with very evident reluctance that the young tourists were induced to leave here even after the shop closing time.

These tours are designed not alone for the interesting features they present but also for their educational value. Some of the boys present were of a too tender age to grasp even the non-technical explanations given by the guides. On this account, therefore, those in charge have decided that future tours shall be only for boys of 12 years and over in order that the educational value be not lost. Next week's trip promises to be the best yet. Announcements will be made later.

OFFICER DIRECTOR SOLDIERS' ESTATES

(By Canadian Press.)

Regina, Sask., May 27.—Major L. Clare Moyer, D.S.O., of this city, has been appointed by the Saskatchewan Government as law officer, director of soldiers' estates, to succeed Capt. A. L. Geddes, who was promoted to deputy attorney-general a few days ago. Major Moyer left for overseas with the 195 Battalion in 1916 with the rank of captain. He was promoted to a majority in the field and was awarded the D.S.O. for conspicuous gallantry during the big retreat of 1918. He was twice mentioned in despatches.

The new director of soldiers' estates graduated from the University of Toronto in 1910 with a B.A. degree. For a short time he was attached to the editorial staff of The Toronto Star and in 1911 came west and joined the staff of the Regina Morning Leader, which paper he served as legislative reporter for over a year. He then became attached to the staff of the Attorney-General's Department as a student at law. After completing his course with a down-town legal firm he was admitted to the Saskatchewan bar in 1915.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO STAY ON FARMS

(By Canadian Press.)

Buenos Aires, May 26. — Argentina, like the United States, has difficulty keeping people on the farms and out of the cities. To combat the tendency toward city life, the minister of the interior, Ramon Gomez, has asked all the governors of the provinces and territories to urge people to colonize the public lands.

Under a new law colonists are enabled to borrow from the National Mortgage Bank up to 80 per cent. of the value on land they have purchased and under the homestead law the Government is permitted to give to colonists small lots of land in some districts.

IT HAS KEPT HIM ON THE PAYROLL

MONTREAL MAN GAINS FIFTEEN POUNDS ON THREE BOTTLES OF TANLAC—FEELS FINE NOW.

"My comrades down at the foundry call me 'Tanlac;' for I am all the time praising it for what it has done for me," remarked Ovila Rochen, 429 Fullum Street, Montreal, Que., while discussing the medicine with some callers at his residence recently. Mr. Rochen, who has been an iron founder for the past fourteen years, is now employed by Miller Brothers and is popular with all who know him.

"I have the best reasons," he continued, "for praising Tanlac, for if I had not taken it I doubt if I could have remained on the company's payroll much longer. I had been suffering from indigestion other troubles for two years and was in an awful run-down condition. I was actually so weak that at times on my way to the foundry I would get so dizzy, my head seemed to be spinning around like a top and I had to go back home and lie down. My appetite was gone entirely and I could not eat anything without bloating up and feeling sluggish and miserable for hours. My nerves were so upset that I was always fidgeting and jumping in my sleep at night, and I always felt more tired in the mornings than when I went to bed. My kidneys bothered me a great deal and there was a constant nagging, twitching pain in the small of my back. My complexion was greenish looking and there was a sour, sickening taste in my mouth all the time.

"Tanlac was recommended to me by a druggist and the results have been far beyond my expectations. I now get up in the mornings after sleeping good and sound all night, feeling rested, cheerful and happy and can work the entire day without pain or inconvenience. My kidneys have stopped bothering me and the pains have disappeared from my back entirely. My appetite is fine and my stomach is in such good condition that I can eat just anything without feeling a touch of indigestion. I have just finished my third bottle of Tanlac and have already gained fifteen pounds in weight. It is doing me so much good that I wouldn't think of being without it, and, to avoid missing a dose I always carry a bottle in my dinner pail to the foundry every day. After getting such wonderful results I could not do otherwise than praise Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by The Warne Drug Co., and by the leading druggists in every town.

HELD UP, RORCED BY CHINESE BANDITS

(By Canadian Press.)

Vancouver, B.C., May 27.—Arriving in ancouver arrayed in a borrowed unclerical looking suit of grey tweed which had seen better days, Rev. R. A. Whiteside, a missionary, who has penetrated about as far into the heart of China as any living white man, has a thrilling tale to tell of having been held up and robbed by Chinese brigands while on his way, with his wife and children, to join the steamer Katori Maru at Shanghai.

They were robbed of all their belongings, even Mrs. Whiteside's wedding ring, but the parents are very happy in that their two little children were not taken away from them and held for ransome as the brigands had at first planned. In Sze Chuan province, where Rev. Mr. Whiteside was stationed for fifteen years, military chiefs demand as high as 30 per cent. tax, he stated, and the only hope of the people is that if a strong and fair minded governor comes into power he orders a general beheading of tyranous tax collectors.

DEWART SAYS LICENSE BOARD IS A LIQUOR DEALING BUSINESS

Commission Should be on Medical Dispensary—Threatens to Kill Estimates of Board by Moving an Amendment Railways Appeal Against Compensation Act.

(By Canadian Press.)

Toronto, May 27.—H. H. Dewart, Liberal leader, in the House today threatened to kill the estimates of the Ontario Board of License Commissioners by moving an amendment when they come up for concurrence.

The License Board, he declared, was nothing more than large liquor dealing business instead of a medical dispensary.

Compensation Act.

Objections to Hon. W. Rollo's amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act were made this morning by a deputation consisting of Col. W. B. Kingsmill, Canadian counsel for the Michigan Central, and Angus McMurchy, representing the C. P. R. They submitted that consolidation of all funds under the Act for payment of maintainance to widows would react unfairly on permanent companies in that they would frequently be called upon to pay the share of firms which go out of business and leave widows of employers to be supported.

The minister did not propose to agree to the request.

40,000 SERVANTS SHORT IN ENGLAND

(By Canadian Press.)

Winnipeg, May 27.—"The problem of obtaining household workers for Western Canada will not be solved by immigration from the Old Country, but a limited number of girls might be obtained if the provincial Governments would advance part of their passage money," declared Mrs. Charles Robson, who has recently returned from investigating conditions in England and Scotland on behalf of the Dominion Government. The result of Mrs. Robson's investigation reveal the fact that England's war conditions have succeeded in diminishing the servant class to such an extent that in England alone there is a shortage of 40,000 servants.

CAMERON HIGHLANDERS ORDERED TO IRELAND

(By Canadian Press.)

London, May 27.—Following the departure of the Cameron Highlanders for Ireland, three additional regiments have received orders to embark for Queenstown. These regiments are expected to reach Queenstown on Monday, under sealed orders as to their further movements.

LOOKING FORWARD TO CONCILIATION

The Mayor, after consulting with some of the members of the Council, telegraphed the Minister of Labor today, after he had received word that the Minister of Labor had appointed a board of conciliation, and named Fred Bancroft as one of the board, that the men on strike are willing to resume work if the Canadian General Electric Company's management appoint a member of the conciliation board and agree to be bound by the findings of this board.

The men agreed to be bound by the findings of the board if the company would also be bound by it, and Mayor McIntyre telegrahed the Minister of Labor asking him to communicate with President Nicholls of the company requesting President Nicholls to appoint a member of the board to represent the company and to decide on the question in dispute between the men and the company.

The Mayor also telegrahed Hon. Frederick Nicholls to the same effect, requesting him to agree to be bound by the findings of the conciliation board and to appoint a member of it, and that if he did that the men would go back to work and be bound by the decision of the board. Up to the time of going to press no answer has been received to either telegram.

Mayor McIntyre Ald Whitehouse, and Ald. Gordon were in consultation this morning and afternoon in respect to the matter.

Abyssinians' Gifts.

A delegation from Abyssinia bearing rich gifts of ivory and silks for the announced purpose of congratulating France on her recent victory, appeared at the Peace Conference in Paris. This is in strict accordance with the ancient Oriental procedure. The real purpose of a visit is not disclosed until preliminary ceremonies are concluded. These native Africans—claiming descent from Solomon and the Queen of Sheba—wished to be in on the carving up of the world, for they have interests which seem vital to them, although little known to the rest of the world. Seated in that natural bastion of Africa, the Abyssinians have lived in greater or less security for unknown centuries. They are not negroes, but a mixture of Hamitic and Semitic races, with a culture of their own and professing the Christian religion, being a branch of the Coptic Church of Egypt. Until recently they have been unmolested save by native tribes.

LOCAL FOOTBALL EXECUTIVE SUSPENDS PLAYERS FOR ALLEGED ROUGH TACTICS

EAST PETERBORO FALLS IN LINE

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR NEW BALL LEAGUE LAST NIGHT.

Jake Solomon's vision of an East Peterborough Baseball League became a "fait accompli" last night when representatives of baseball teams from Douro, Lakefield, Keene, Norwood and Nassau met in the Windsor Hotel here and elected officers and arranged for the opening games this season. While the arrangement of a schedule of games for the first month of the season was left over, it was decided that on Wednesday, June 2, Keene and Norwood should meet on the latter's diamond and on the following day Douro will play at Lakefield.

The arrangement of the schedule will have to be governed by conditions with regard to work on the farms, etc., and it was therefore decided at last night's meeting that the schedule would cover the month of June only and that after these games had been played another meeting would be called to arrange for further games during the summer, which would not conflict with farm work.

The following officers were elected:

Patrons—J. A. Sexsmith, M.P.; E. N. McDonald, M.P.P., and Warden R. B. Nicholls.

Honorary Presidents — Walter Kidd, Jake Solomon and A. T. Johnston.

President — Martin Coughlin, Douro.

Vice-Presidents—E. Doris, Keene; M Minord, Norwood, and Mr. Ford, Lakefield.

Secretary - Treasurer — Frank Leahy, Nassau.

Executive Committee—Messrs. W Morrison Lakefield; John Walsh, Douro; Jack Coughlin, Nassau; F. R Patterson, Norwood, and Charles Nelson, Keene.

The matter of providing a suitable cup also came up for considerable motion and it was decided that the offer of the Thompson Cup, which has formerly been donated for home-and-home games between Keene and Indian River would be accepted and that this cup would be given to the champion team of the league to hold for one season. In order to retain the cup permanently it will be necessary for a team to win it two seasons in succession.

This cup has been given in connection with the Labor Day sports between Keene and Indian River and for some reason or other last year neither teams secured it. This year Keene and Indian River will be allowed to compete for it as usual but the winning team will only hold it till the end of the season when it will go to the team heading the league.

Prior to the election of officers the meeting was under the chairmanship of Mr. Jake Solomon. The various representatives present expressed their thanks for the work of Mr. Solomon in getting the league into running order and stated that great credit in this regard was due to him.

Williamson Gets Suspension Sine-Die Crowe and Bestard One Game.

Rough tactics in connection with the City League football games will not be tolerated and this fact was amply illustrated at a special meeting of the football executive last night when several players appeared to answer charges arising from quarrels in recent games and were penalized according to the gravity of their offense, the penalties ranging from suspension for one game to suspension sine-die.

The first case considered was that of the recent fistic encounter between Bestard of the C.G.E. and Hannah of the Caledonians, which took place on Thursday last when the Caledonians met the C.G.E. for the first time. On the evidence of the referee, it was decided to exonorate Hannah from all blame in connection with the affair and to suspend Bestard for one game.

The other case was in connection with the recent game at the Oval between the Machine Gun Company and the C.G.E. when two players started a boxing match in the middle of the game and one of them went even further and struck the referee. The players on the carpet for these offences were Crowe of the M.G.C. and Williamson of the C.G.E.

Crowe was found guilty of retaliating to Williamson, who was the aggressor and Crowe was consequently suspended for one game. Williamson also struck the referee and he was suspended sine-die. In connection with the case of Williamson, it was pointed out by the members of the executive that he had the privilege of applying for re-instatement at any time, but that his application would have to come up for consideration by the executive. It was also intimated from the same quarter that in future all cases reported by referees for rough playing would be dealt with even severely in order to keep football in Peterborough a c ean sport.

The following referees were appointed:

Saturday, May 29 (M.G.C. vs. Can. Woollens—Referee A. McKinley.

Saturday, May 29 (War Vets vs. Caledonians)—Referee F. Keller.

Thursday, June 3 (M.G.C. vs. War Veterans)—Referee A. Day.

Saturday, June 5 (C.G.E. vs M. G. C.)—Referee A. McKinley.

Saturday, June 5 (Caledonians vs. De Laval)—Referee J. Young.

Thursday, June 10 (G.W.V.A. vs. Can. Woollens)—Referee Bates.

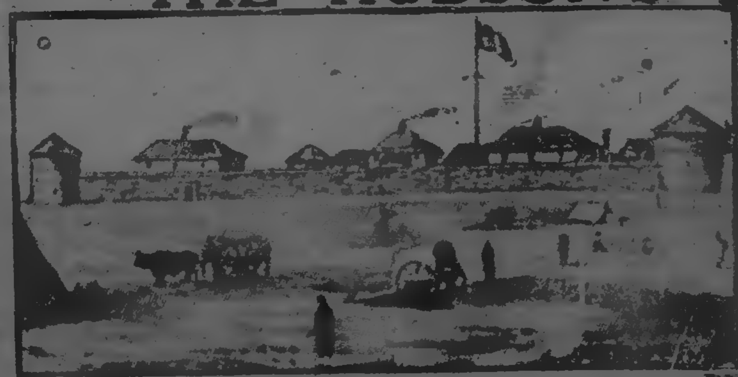
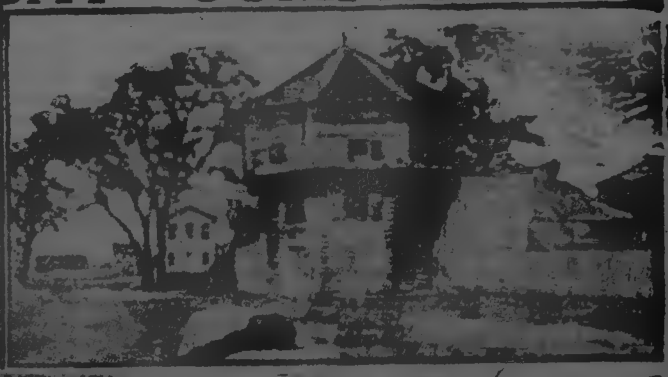
THE HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY





Fort Garry, Winnipeg, in The Old Days.

Dramatic as any romance ever penned is the history of those trail-blazers of commerce, the Hudson's Bay Company, weaving their way through the centuries and closely interwoven with the development of Canada. Incoporated by Charles II. of England in 1670, it has the unique distinction of being the oldest chartered concern in the world with a present day sphere of influence as large as Great Britain, France, Spain and Germany combined. From lone Labrador to the Pacific, and from Winnipeg to the frozen ocean, are scattered the 250 trading posts of the Company in charge of some thousands of silent servants. The interest of the gay King Charles was aroused by the astounding report of the Frenchman, Radisson, having brought 600,000 beaver skins to Quebec, the result of a single trip north, and so the Royal Charter was granted to Prince Rupert and his friends, known as "The Gentleman Adventurers of England, Trading to Hudson's Bay." Unique in commercial annals is that charter which gave to the "Gentlemen Adventurers," possession and jurisdiction over a country as large as Europe. Nineteen thousand pounds of fur was the first output of the concern, and in 1865 they had 3,000 men on their pay roll and 152 trading posts. Started as a trading company, it has been described as the patron of science and exploration, the defender of the British flag and name, and the fosterer, to a certain extent, of education and religion. Its trading centres were the outposts of civilization and now, after 250 years, its stores, posts and lands extend throughout [illegible] Canada.

For 100 years, from 1682 to 1782, the company fought the ground, inch by inch, against the French. One hundred and fourteen years after their organization, a band of Scotch traders formed the North-West Company and established forts throughout the fur land. The serious strife of these two powerful companies, sparing no method of trade warfare, on plains, through forests, on streams and lakes, makes fascinating reading, and in 1821 they amalgamated. There followed a great development of trade and the governor, Sir George Simpson, established an empire in the solitudes of Rupert's Land.

Volumes might be written of the legends lingering around the old fur posts. In 1788, Fort Chipewyan on Lake Athabasca, was built by Roderick McKenzie, and is the oldest post in the north. His cousin, Alexander McKenzie, set out from there, on his history-making journeys. This little bit of Britain where the Union Jack has floated for over a century, was styled the "Emporium of the North," and has much buried history.

Edmonton House, built in 1795, where Crees and Blackfeet met in warfare and the great brigades started on their journey to Northern outposts, gives place to the handsome parliament buildings.

An effort of imagination were needed in the busy thoroughfare, Portage Avenue, Winnipeg, to see the oldest trail to Edmonton and the longest street in the world; to see in broad, crowded Main Street, the old Red River Cart Trail, following the bend of the river and life centred around Fort Garry with its protective walls.

Brandon House, built in 1794, on the south side of the Assiniboine, was a few miles below the present city of Brandon.

Fort St. James, in a purely lovely setting on Stuart Lake, British Columbia, built in 1806, was destroyed by fire in [illegible] 1915.

An outstanding figure on the Pacific slope was Sir James Douglas, who established Fort Camosun, afterwards Fort Victoria in 1847, and now the City of Victoria in its lovely setting on Vancouver Island. This is one of the points where the Hudson's Bay sentiment was a strong factor in the success of the concern.

Porcupines at Home

IN my many years of woods roaming I have had the privilege of more than a mere passing acquaintance with the porcupine. Will it be betraying confidences if I describe a few meetings? You see, he never made a bosom companion of me, any more than of anyone else, for he is certainly the most dour if not surly inhabitant of the northern wilds. However, we have exchanged visits in the most neighborly manner, and the familiarity has never turned to contempt.

It was a mid-morning in the New Brunswick wilderness when he first sought me out. My companion happened to be alone in the tent. Without knock or scratch, in he came through the back flaps and, raising his quills, demanded grub. My companion had never met his like before, didn't like his attitude, and choosing discretion as the most convenient impulse, hurled the scissors at his head and fled. I was cutting fuel at the foot of the glade and my interest was immediately aroused by the report that a wild beast had invaded the tent. By the time I was there, however, he had made up his ponderous decision that there was nothing of interest lying about, and was slowly making his exit by the front door. I stepped politely aside to let him pass, but do you think he would deign so much as to give me a glance!

A few weeks later we met him again. I was standing to my knees in the centre of the Tinkettle, when he pushed through the dense tangle of alders and birch and started diagonally across the stream in a bee-line for my legs. His own stubby limbs could just about touch the bottom, and his gray-black back was half awash as he paddled along. He evidently was too short of sight or else too preoccupied with his own peculiar affairs to notice a mere human in the path, and I enjoyed the joke immensely. That is, at first I did. As he came steadily nearer, his small jetty eyes immovably fixed, I began to take a sympathetic interest in my bare legs. It was all right to be on intimate terms, but you didn't exactly want him to rub up against you, kitten fashion. Perhaps he was bluffing, just as I was, but anyway he won. When I saw him within five feet I decided to break the silence, and gave a sharp whistle. Now, did he start or puff himself out or come to a stop, as any well-behaved creature would under such circumstances? No such vulgar emotion for him. He simply swerved half a point to starboard so as to clear my bows by a narrow margin, and plodded steadily on.

"I admire your nerve, old fellow," I said aloud. But even that brought no response. After all, a common 'coon or even a woodchuck makes a more amiable companion.

Everytime I go into the woods I run across my prickly friend, or his handiwork. His greed, or inquisitiveness, takes him into every deserted lumber camp or stable he can find agape, where he proceeds to dine luxuriously on empty fish-boxes, broken harness, mangers, or what not. All that he demands is that the object retain a trace of salt or grease or other long-lost delicacy—and he falls to. In one old camp there was a grindstone gnawed until it looked like a half-consumed pie. No doubt the lard used in the winters of axe-sharpening had soaked deep into the soft sandstone. But no one but a porcupine would have gone quite so far as that. His teeth must have looked like needles by the season's end. And as for the long, narrow portage trails and corduroyed lumber roads, he is the most frequent traveler you will meet on a day's journey. Maybe other folk are as numerous, but then you see he is the only one who does not shun publicity as a bat does light. Indeed he is as indifferent to your existence as he is to a lynx's or a bear's, and is a lion in the path to everything that walks. However, I have succeeded in cracking his mental crust more than once.

We had pitched our little tent on Merchants Lake in the Algonquin Park, and were in process of rustling grub, when my comrade caught me by the arm, whispering, "See coming down the tree! Is it a bear?"

It was a porcupine, of course, but as the tail first made its appearance as the creature backed down the trunk, the mistake was not surprising—at least would not have been if bears had tails. We stepped over for a close-up inspection. The chap by that time had his hind legs on the sward. There he stopped, eyed us intently for many seconds and—decided to continue his supper at the top of the tree. Slowly, with the utmost deliberation, he began to retrace his course, clutching the bark with his sharp-nailed forepaws and hunching himself upward like a boy shinnying a pole. When he was well on his way we returned to the frying-pan and its sizzling contents.

"He must have a poor conscience—for a porcupine," I explained.

We heard him come down, with a thump, around midnight, again startling my comrade, who was having his initiation into wilderness ways.

The following summer, the first night out, he tried to get even with us by pushing the tent over. We were awakened by a bulky object bulging the silk exactly over our faces. I was half amused, half exasperated and, sticking my head through the flaps, shouted, "Here, you, beat it!" Of course it was slangy and rude of me, but the visitor took the hint and "beat" it.

As Summer Boarders.

Jud Tunkins, according to the Washington Star, says that this year's farm hands expect to make enough to come back next year as summer boarders.

"AVERAGE MAN" SCORES ONE

Finds Joy in Reminding Better Half That She Is Also Victim of New Tax.

The average family has been having heart to heart talks for months on how expenditures may be cut down and something of the average salary put in the bank for the annual vacation. The average man has been troubled, too, as he puffed the long, black cigar—not financially troubled, but the result of a little worrying that some day the average woman was going to get personal about their saving plan. It came the other night.

"I see, dear," she began, her sweetness adding to his growing suspicion, "that the state is about to put another tax on cigars. They'll go up some more. You know I wouldn't suggest anything that would interfere with your pleasure, but don't you think cigars are getting too much of a luxury when we are trying to save?"

The average man grunted. It gained time; it prevented sudden complications. He had had an answer ready for weeks for this inevitable question, but reasoning fled just then. He had the paper she had already read. He would find out about this tax before he answered.

And then—ain't it a grand and glorious feeling?

"Very well, my dear," he said, trying to keep the neighbors from hearing the exultation in his tone. "This tax will give us both a chance to sacrifice. I'll quit my cigars if you'll give up powdering your face. You see, Sweet, the tax is on cosmetics, too."

And the average man grinned victoriously behind the newspaper.

"WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN"

If Paul Revere Had Only Had a Telephone Available in the Days of 'Seventy-five.

Somebody in the New England telephone organization has been figuring out how easily Paul Revere could have accomplished all the purposes of his famous ride on the "eighteenth of April, in 'seventy-five," if he only had had telephone facilities like those available today. As the telephone man says, Revere would have been able to save himself a lot of hard riding. He could have called Concord from a public station in the North end, or Charlestown either, and had his friends of the committee of public safety on the line within eight minutes, if the operators took as much time then as they do now. And how much easier it would have been to get the powder ferried and the gun carriages done away with if the Concord folk had had their warning eight minutes after the lanterns were hung aloft in the belfry arch of the Old North steeple. Only, if there had been telephones, there would have been no lanterns. They would have used the 'phone for the whole thing. And then of course a famous poem would never have been written.—Christian Science Monitor.

Sky Law.

There is a law for the land. Why not a law for the air? Various suggestions have been put forward for aerial trade routes, postal and passenger routes, etc., and with traffic on the increase, jurisdiction will shortly be necessary.

Collisions and accidents will have to be reckoned with, and compensation duly provided for unfortunate travelers. The comfort and security of land dwellers will have to be looked after, and the law of trespass safeguarded. This latter will be a difficult one to define, but it is safe to assume that certain air spaces will be "roped off," so far as the general air traffic is concerned.

As it becomes customary to travel by air, freight and passenger charges may possibly be regulated by Act of Parliament. Our vehicles will have to be safeguarded from robbery, pillage, and other crimes. In view of certain aviators' complete mastery over the aerial region, what is to prevent unscrupulous aeronauts from playing the highwayman role a thousand or so feet from terra firma?

MAGYAR PROBLEMS.

Trouble Caused by Over-lapping of Nationalities.

At the time when efforts were being made to obtain in Hungary's favor a revision of the Peace Treaty presented to that country by the Allies, Dr. Benes, the Czecho-Slovak Minister for Foreign Affairs, made a detailed statement on the Magyar problem in the Czecho-Slovak National Assembly. He pointed out the defects of the previous regime of the Bolsheviki, the fall of which, he said, had aroused hopes of more honorable and satisfactory dealings on the part of the Magyars with their neighbors. Instead of this, however, the new Government had established its existence afresh with a view to imperialistic aims and failed to realize that the question of the integrity of the Hungarian frontiers had already been disposed of. The Hungarians had been taught nothing by the war; they were employing their old oriental methods of propaganda.

Dr. Benes declared that the Magyars in Slovakia had no cause to complain, since they had been provided with their own officials and schools, and were possessed of full judicial rights. He further stated that the Magyar Government was not acting loyally toward the Czecho-Slovak Republic. At a time when the frontiers had been fixed and the Magyar authorities themselves had undertaken to respect them, he had evidence to prove that anti-Czech propaganda emanating from Budapest was being carried on in Slovakia. The most serious action of the Magyars in this respect was the sending of Bolsheviki into Czech territory. It might seem impossible that political leaders who were the advocates of constitutional ideals should ally themselves with elements whom they were at the same time persecuting as enemies of the social order. He regretted to say, however, that he had discovered the association of Gen. Friedrich with this Bolshevist propaganda.

The Magyar Government were also making use of false statistics. For instance, they stated that there were 1,000,000 Magyars in Slovakia. Dr. Benes refuted this by means of figures showing that there were not quite 500,000 Magyars in the whole of that region, and even the greater part of these were Magyarized Slovaks. Moreover, as a result of the peace negotiations Czecho-Slovakia had been obliged to sacrifice over 300,000 Slovaks to Hungary. It was not possible for the Czechs to ignore these methods of Magyar propaganda which were typical of those made use of by Hungary on former occasions.

On this occasion, Dr. Benes said it was also necessary to remark that the racial minorities in Hungary were again being persecuted, while in Czecho-Slovakia there was absolute equality and justice. He objected to the demand for a plebiscite; it was an insincere appeal, since at the same time territorial integrity was also being asked for. It was calculated to arouse confusion, uncertainty, and disorder in Central Europe, especially in Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Roumania. The international situation was uncertain, and the Magyars were hoping to increase this uncertainty and thus improve their own position. The Czecho-Slovak Government was prepared for a rational agreement with the Magyars as with their other neighbors, but they would use every means to prevent Hungary from again resorting to the measures of the old regime, which had been attempted by the Bolsheviki and also by the present administration.

Keeping Warm in Finland.

In many ways the Finns are a very queer people. It is during the terribly cold months that the Finns revel in the mighty ovens that fill one corner of every kitchen and often loom up large and vastly impressive in the other rooms of a Finn home as well. The tops of these monster stoves are perfectly flat, and steps lead up on one side. When the weather becomes bitterly cold and bleak, the entire Finnish family will take quilts and pillows and, mounting to the top of the big heater, spread down their bedding and sleep very comfortably and contentedly on the hard hot bricks until morning.—Nevia C. Winter, in Christian Herald.

Discipline Essential.

Those who escape discipline are to be pitied, but we may be sure the escape will not be for long. The rest of the world provides for this without our interference. In most cases we had much better be concerned in keeping our hands off or in providing deviations for the hours between the needful buffetings by the heavy hand of fate. The discipline of others, in other words, ordinarily is none of our business. We may safely and wisely leave it to parents, school masters, and to the hard knocks of life.

Irish Political Status Shows Fallacy of Claims Made by Both the Parties

THERE has just been published by the Proportional Representation Society of Ireland, a leaflet giving a tabulated result of the recent municipal elections in Ireland. In studying these figures in order to estimate their bearing on the political situation, it must be remembered that the proportion of population in the towns varies greatly. Also that in Ulster there is a much bigger number of Unionists in the towns than Nationalists. Thus, in County Antrim about one-third of the population is in the towns, while in County Galway there is only one-tenth. This applies also to the provinces. In Ulster 14 per cent. of the population is in the towns, while in the three southern provinces there is only 11 per cent.

Now, not counting the areas in which there were no contest, and leaving out the 2.9 per cent. of spoiled votes, there is left a total of 322,244 votes to fill 1,735 seats. Table III. of the leaflet shows the return of "first preference" votes which will be worth studying. The Irish Parliamentary election at the end of 1919 gave the following percentages: Unionist, 22 per cent.; Nationalist, 7.6 per cent.; Sinn Fein, 69.5 per cent., making up the 100 per cent. For the municipal elections the figures work out as follows:

Sinn Fein ...	27.1 per cent.	87,311
Unionist	26.7 per cent.	85,932
Labor	17.9 per cent.	57,626
Nationalist ..	14.6 per cent.	47,102
Independent .	13.7 per cent.	44,273
	100.0 per cent.	322,244

It is true that the municipal elections should be fought out in order to get the best men to carry out the public work, but in the present state of Ireland the man and his political views are more often voted for.

It is frequently claimed by Sinn Fein that in the Parliamentary elections they swept the country by 3 to 1, but this claim is entirely erroneous. If, in the three southern provinces, Sinn Fein and Labor are grouped together as the revolutionary party, and the Unionists, Nationalists and Independents as non-revolutionary, the figures work out roughly 105,000 to 79,000, or very nearly 5 to 4, a very different thing from 3 to 1.

Now, the leaflet is, in a way, even more informative on the state of things in Ulster, for as mentioned before, it has to be remembered that municipal elections deal only with urban areas, which are far bigger in Ulster. First preference votes work out as follows:

Unionist ...	73,233 or 52.6 per cent.
Labor	27,504 or 19.8 per cent.
Nationalist .	25,719 or 14.9 per cent.
Sinn Fein ..	12,457 or 8.8 per cent.
Independent .	5,[illegible]4 or [illegible] per cent.

Now, more than half of the Unionist population of Ulster is in Belfast and actually 93 per cent. in the four counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down and Derry, so that the figures show that Ulster, which is always claimed as so homogeneous, is really more divided than the southern provinces. The Parliamentary elections showed: Unionist, 73 per cent.; Nationalist, 10 per cent.; Sinn Fein, 16 per cent., so that the idea that Ulster is solid in the north is just as fallacious as the idea that Sinn Fein has an absolutely sweeping majority in the south and west.

A year or more ago, when the demand for proportional representation in Ireland was gathering strength, the Christian Science Monitor published the proposals of some of the leaders of this movement to set up a constituent assembly elected by proportional representation, but making it a sine qua non that the final arbitration should rest with the League of Nations. Sir Horace Plunkett, immediately on his return from America, made a speech in which he said: "Set up an Irish Constituent Assembly, and then refuse all outside interference," though, as the Dominion League have always proposed to leave certain matters to the Imperial Government, it would be difficult to get away from interference.

Arthur Griffith was pressed, after this speech, to say whether Ireland should submit her case to the League of Nations, and replied: "Yes, when it is properly organized, and America exerts her full influence in it." The originators of the constituent idea to-day, then, say: "Set up your constituent assembly of Irishmen to draw up their constitution, which they will submit to Parliament, who would certainly offer amendments, and when both parties have done all possible from their respective points of view, final points of difference would be submitted to the League of Nations on which at least two members from the United States should be sitting. But it is a vital point that Ireland should be represented as a nation in the League of Nations."

The Travels of the Chinese Egg.

China exported, in 1918, some [illegible] more fresh eggs than in [illegible]—an interesting indication of the growing cosmopolitanism of the yellow egg; not, to be sure, the deceptive and indestructible china egg that human ingenuity invented to fool the hen, but the real China egg laid in a Chinese hen yard and gathered, one likes to imagine, by the Chinese farmer's daughter. To the average Canadian, China, no doubt, still seems a long way to go for an egg; but an expert has been devoting hours, and, very likely, days in Tientsin to studying the egg-producing industry of that district; and he reveals the Chinese egg as a great traveler. Originally the eggs traveled without their shells, for the dried egg entered into international commerce some time before the fresh egg first started on what might fairly be called its individual journey. As the industry began with an equipment of trays and drums for drying the eggs, which imparted also a metallic content to the product, the earlier stages of the business were handicapped by its methods, and Chinese ingenuity must needs invent a method of blowing an egg into a heated chamber in a fine spray, which was transformed into powder that contained nothing but egg. So nowadays a continuous procession of egg shells is emptied, and millions of pounds of dried egg are produced for exportation to foreign cooks, bakers, and confectioners. Exportation of fresh eggs followed, and during the war the proportion of fresh eggs increased, and that of dried eggs diminished. And now, before long, the real China egg will travel frozen, for the first steamer with a cold-storage equipment for eggs will presently be voyaging between Tientsin and Vancouver.

Avoiding the Handshake.

One of the penalties of royalty is the handshake. It has become the modern equivalent in a democracy of the sword tap upon the shoulder which in early days marked kingly approval. Australians have been so harrowed by the stories of the Prince of Wales' anguish as he progressed through Canada that one of the first decisions of the committee appointed to organize the arrangements for the first stage in the prince's visit to Australia decided that a bow or some other form of gracious greeting should be substituted for the handshake wherever large numbers of people were present.

SUGAR SCARCE HERE

Prices Will be Governed by Conditions Elsewhere.

While the price of sugar to the consumer in Peterborough has shown no tendency to increase within the past few weeks, and is still rated at 22 cents a pound, yet retailers in the city declare that, as far as this city itself is concerned, there is a real shortage, and that, even at the present time, the wholesale houses simply cannot fill their orders. When asked as to whether they thought the prices was likely to increase in Peterborough as it seemed to be doing elsewhere, the majority of dealers would not commit themselves further than to say that they thought the trend of sugar prices here would be governed entirely by conditions in other parts of the Province.

The management, desiring to meet public approbation, wishes to impress on city and suburban residents that they are cordially invited to have the family attend and review the street parade at 10.30 tomorrow morning. They are requested to note its variegated completion in human and animal interest—in quantity and quality. Notice the absence of gilded concealment of contents—wagons in contrast to the open cage which evidence of the wonderful exhibition of wild jungle creatures bending obedience to the fearless schooling of men and women.

This is one of the most costly collections of educated beasts ever exposed to public gaze, instructive as well as entertaining, as evidence of the laborious patience required and expense incurred in its acquisition, a new departure to challenge the admiration and confidence of the visited communities. Four bands and two calliopes will lend musical charm while the eye is enjoying the riot of color and stately appearance of the richly costumed lady riders and cavaliers, 200 beautifully caparisoned spirited horses in splendid fettle, herds of elephants, camels, sacred cattle, dromedaries and zebra, most of them driven in harness.

Taken as a whole it will be worth coming many miles to see.

AMUSEMENTS IN ESSENTIAL CLASS

HARVEY'S GREATER MINSTRELS OFFERS CLEAN FUN, EXCEPTIONAL TALENT.

A very, very few of the people might consider the amusements of the country as non-essentials. But the Administration does not so regard it officially or personally.

Mr. McAdoo, when Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, repeatedly declared amusements very essential and again in a long letter under date of August 30, 1918, addressed to the Billboard, the world's leading theatrical periodical, he says, addressing the amusement profession:

"Your business is not looked upon as non-essential, and there is no desire to eliminate you from the business and social life of the country. On the contrary, the patriotic work you are doing and the large source of revenue to the Government from the war tax that you represent is fully appreciated."

Indeed, the country would soon become dormant, disheartened and exhausted by the monotony of affairs and the cares of the times if it were not for the source of recreation and temporary mental relief afforded by the amusements. In the centre of this wonderful government machinery of the times, where almost miracles are being planned and directed in the city of Washington, the amusement business is thriving as never before in its history. Practically every one of our high officials makes a weekly visit to the theatre—they are forced to do so or they would be overcome by sheer exhaustion.

People attending such a meritorious entertainment as that presented by the Harvey Greater Minstrels, a company of forty people, pay a small war tax on every ticket, thus helping the government, besides receiving temporary relief from their cares and worries.

They will be at the Grand Friday matinee and night.

FIRES IN CAREW

Bush Burning North of Bobcaygeon a Couple of Weeks Now.

For the last couple of weeks there have been serious forest fires in the back woods north of Bobcaygeon running over the timber limits of the Macdonald estate and of The John Carew Lumber Co., and doing considerable damage. So far as we are aware, the fires have now been checked, but not extinguished. Several skidways of logs which came within the path of the fires were destroyed.

Mr. John Carew states that the company lost considerable standing timber last week, but the fires were pretty well out by this time. The company has some 45 square miles of timber in Cavendish and Harvey townships, which suffered slightly.

Trained wild animals are a prominent feature on the program to be offered by the Great Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus here on Tuesday, June 8.

ADD TO THE FUN

Add to the evening's fun by enclosing a rhyme with your gift.

EDITOR'S MAIL

FIGHT THE DANDELION.

To the Editor: We hear much these days about how to beautify our city and one phase of this question is to show a plentiful display of beautiful flowering plants. When on my walks through our city I find a diversity of ideas along this line. Some of our citizens show forth their taste by having well-kept lawns, bordered it may be with flower beds. While their neighbors either thoughtlessly or through laziness allow their places to be over-run with dandelions. This Hun of the horticultural family, if left to himself, would speedily unsurge every inch of space in our lawns.

The only way to meet this onslaught is by an invited effort. Can it not be done?

OBSERVER

CIRCUS PARADE TUESDAY NEXT

The big circus day has been set for Tuesday, June 8, when the majestic Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus will exhibit here. Bright, flashing posters are now heralding the glad news.

The advance car No. 1 has already been here and the men in charge say the exhibition this season will surpass all former programs.

From information received in advance from cities wherein the circus has already appeared this season, it is said the trained animal acts contain many new feats. The trainers spent the winter months in drilling these beasts to answer their commands and have accomplished wonders heretofore unknown.

Further information declares the equestrian acts are composed of European headliners and daring American performers. There will be the funny clowns, famous acrobats, bewildering aerialists and many unmentionable features that are proving decided hits.

A menagerie containing a member of every living wildanimal family is being carried and is said to be one of the largest collections in the world. The doors will be opened one hour before each performance, both matinee and night, so that a thorough visit to the menagerie may be enjoyed. During the show's visit here a downtown ticket office, where the same price will be charged for tickets as on the circus lot, will be opened at Hooper's, 414 George street.

form. It will simply be a party devoted to public service studying and grappling with problems as they appear, and refusing to divorce itself from realities for the sake of formulaes and creeds.

* * * *

Meanwhile a number of important questions are awaiting decision. There is cabinet re-organization—long delayed; three Senate vacancies; a by-election writ to be issued; an appointment of a Minister to Washington; and one or two other matters hardly less important. Finally, there is the question of leadership. Since Sir Robert Borden's return from the South there has been a remarkable lull in gossip about this problem. Whether this means that the Premier has decided to remain at his post, there is no telling. The truth, indeed, would appear to be that Sir Robert is keeping his own counsel, end has not confided his mind to any of his colleagues. A decision of some kind, however, would not injure the beginning of the new party. And the sooner the better.

THE LURE OF SPRING.

Twenty Collegiate Institute Youths Were Tempted and Fell.

Yesterday afternoon twenty youths from the Fourth Form Matriculation at the local Collegiate felt the warm spring breeze, thought of the sweet green fields, were tempted and fell. They all decided that a chemistry lesson with all its dryness was not for them on such a glorious day, so they wandered to the green fields instead.

But the eagle eye of the powers that be in the Collegiate was even sharper than they had anticipated, and when they presented themselves at school this morning they were arraigned to answer for their misdemeanor. Principal Kenner had sympathy with the call of spring and sentenced them to be suspended for the remainder of the week so that they might enjoy spring to its fullness. But the sentence carried with it the ominous threat that he "would deal further with them on their return to school on Monday."

"THE MISSION OF LIFE."

Interesting Work by Local Author —First Edition Sold.

There has been recently published in Peterborough a book of considerable local and district interest, entitled "The Mission of Life." The author is Bury White, who has copyrighted the work under the Canadian Act. The book itself is not a work of fiction, but an arresting recital of plain facts by its author, who has engaged in practically all the lines of activities.

The first edition of "The Mission of Life" has been entirely sold out, and some of the leading homes in this city and the surrounding district have a copy. A second edition of this work is now in the press and will no doubt meet with as ready a sale as did the first edition. Mr. White has succeeded in writing a book that will find appreciation and service in any home.

Letters recognizing real merit in "The Mission of Life" have been received from Sir Robert Borden, Sir Douglas Haig, and Dr. Cody, former minister of Education for Ontario.

Samples of this work may be seen in Soden's bookstore.
